"From the Far West."

Mr. Milton Hyde, formerly of this town, writes to a friend some of his experiences in the "Far West:"

ALBANY, Oregon, Dec. 20, 1880.

DEAR FRIEND,—Hoping that this will find you in the land of the living, and that you have been and still are enjoying good health, I will try and give you some idea how I have fared in the last three years. Since last I heard from you I and all my family have been in good health most of the time. I am now living in town, having let my farm, as I think that I can make more money than on the farm. I have made a living since I have been here, but that is all, and now I want to go into buisness once more, which I shall do very soon. I have a large fruit crop this year and plenty of cider, which I wish you could help me drink. The outlook for Oregon in the immediate future is very good, as there are several railroads in process of construction; two of them to connect with the east, which will bring capital here, and that is what we need, as Albany has the finest water power in the country for manufactories. We have had no cold weather this winter. We picked apples last week to make cider. When I left the Old Bay State, I was inclined to Democratic principles, but since I have seen so many people that served in the Southern army, and heard them express their opinions, I have voted the Republican ticket, and shall do so until I see something better. I have not used any tobacco for nearly three years, which will surprise you I expect, as I used to be an old smoker.

I went on a fishing trip to the Yaguisna Bay, which did not differ from a former one which I described to you last Sept. I with five men, two span of horses and two spring wagons started on a deer hunt in the Cascade mountains. We left Albany about 8 A. M. We expected to get an earlier start, but some of the boys were late, as usual in such cases. Our route lay due east through the best part of this valley. It was just after harvest, and the large fields looked barren; here and there a large pile of wheat in sacks all ready to haul to the warehouse, and large stacks of straw just as it came from the thrasher, which will be burned before the rains come. The country is very level, and the roads good for thirty miles; then we come to the foot hills, which are the advance guard of these grand old mountains. Right here there is a toll road over the mountains. We pass the gate and pay $2.00 per wagon, and enter on our up hill work. We travel about fifteen miles more, and camp at the foot of the Three Mile hill (so called). There is a nice little farm here, with plenty of feed for the horses. Leaving two of our party to do the chores, I with three of the party go and try to get a mess of trout for breakfast. We found one of the prettiest of mountain brooks, and in an hour's time caught sixty-five nice ones, and got into camp a little after dark. I caught my share, but I am ashamed to say that we ate all of them at one meal. The next morning, bright and early, we started up the hill; on the top there is another farm, and at the bottom, on the other side, another. Then we get into a small ey, pathrough which runs the Santiam river, the swiftest, clearest and most magnificent stream I ever saw. This valley is some twelve miles in length. Then we come to Soda Springs; there are several springs of different mineral waters on the bank of the river.

Leaving here we begin to climb the mountains again, and enter on some grand scenery. Here the road is cut in the solid rock just wide enough for the wagon, with a perpendicular fall of several hundred feet to the river below. There are the Salmon Falls, with a clear fall of fifty feet. Here the salmon come, and can get no further. In some places the mountains approach so near at their base there is hardly room for the river. We pass over about fifteen miles of this road, and pass clear spring streams at nearly every turn, and camp on one of them within one rod of the road. We take our horses back three miles to where an old pioneer has a farm with pasture, turn them out, and do not see them again until ready for home. We get into camp about 2 P. M., and one of the boys takes his rifle, and goes out to get a deer. After a while we hear his rifle crack, and soon he comes in with a nice one on his back, and from that time on we were never out of deer meat. These deer live in the summer in the green timber about seventy miles east, and every fall they come to winter in the valley. These mountains were all burned over a few years ago, and you can see all over them. The deer have regular trails that they travel on every year; so we get up in the morning at 3 o'clock, get a hot breakfast, and start for a stand on some of these trails. I was green at the business; all the rest were old deer hunters. I did not see any on my stand for several days; the other boys got some every day. At last one rainy morning I got on a new stand. It was raining quite hard; I had a good fire, and spread my rubber coat over a frame of bushes, and sat there as comfortable as I wanted to be, when I happened to look up the mountain, and saw a deer coming down my trail. He was about one-quarter off when I first saw him. Every little while he would pass out of sight as the trail turned to the right or left. Pretty soon he came straight towards me, stopping every few steps to nibble at the leaves and twigs. I sat there admiring his graceful motions and handsome form, almost loth to shoot him. I let him come as near as I wanted him, and then your old companion killed his first deer—a nice two-year-old buck. Pretty soon the boys, who had gone above me, came in nearly frozen, and, as it happened, that was the only one killed that day. There is no use to hunt after 9 or 10 o'clock, as they do not travel later. Our tent, which was large enough for us all, was pitched on a little knoll close to the road. We had our camp fire in front, and within ten feet of a clear cold spring of pure water. We get in camp about 11 A. M., and get dianer. Then those that like to fish spend the afternoon in wading up or down the Santiam, catching plenty of the speckled beauties. Sometimes as we sit on our rustic seats in front of our camp fire, we see emigrants coming in to the central valley from all parts of the West and South. Those from Iowa have nice large horses, and good outfits generally, while those from Arkansas and Missouri are the reverse. Now here comes a large band of Warm Spring Indians, with their small ponies well loaded down with camp utensils, papooses and squaws, all bound for a whortleberry patch over in the mountains; they come from their reservations about eighty miles east from here. They have always been friendly and helped to end the Modoc war in '72. They dry berries, and take them home for winter. We have splendid luck hunting, having killed thirty-two deer in ten days, and plenty of trout. We start for home, where we arrive all safe in iess than two days from camp. Our deer meat and hides sold for $70.00 in Albany, besides what we kept for our own use. So ended one of the pleasantest trips I ever took.

Yours, etc.,
MILTON HYDE.

PREDICTING STORMS.—"What is the method of ascertaining the approach of a storm so long in advance as this last one?" was asked of Capt. Howgate of the Weather Bureau. He replied: "There is no method—it's purely problematical. Mr. Vennor is not connected with the Weather Bureau of Canada. The realization of one of those storm predictions creates considerable talk, but no one seems to heed the numberless failures. Our duties and aims are to give the approach of any storm as soon as it comes within range of our stations, and to point out its course and power, that every one can provide against disaster. To attempt anything else would be no more worthy of credulity than fortune telling."

EASTERN RAILROAD.—The Eastern will go into the beach business next summer, by building a narrow guage road, to be known as the Eastern Junction, Broad Sound Pier and Point Shirley Railroad. The road will start from the main line nearly opposite the pavilion at Revere Beach, cross the Lynn and Boston narrow guage at an elevation, run to Broad Sound Pier, thence to Beachmont, whence a branch track will be laid to Grover's cliff, the main track continuing to Winthrop beach, Ocean Spray, Crystal Cove to Point Shirley. A long, covered iron pier will be erected at Broad Sound for a steamboat landing. It is expected the line will be in running order by the first of June.

The Trustees of the Danvers Hospital report the rate for board of patients, fixed by the Legislature at $3.25 per week, as insufficient to meet the expenses, which are necessarily large on account of the great numbers of acute cases, requiring attention far beyond chronic cases. The admissions during the year have been 531—five more males than females. Of the whole number of cases (1114) treated during the year, 165 were discharged recovered, 106 improved, 151 unimproved, 83 died. About 90 of the present patients are at liberty to leave their rooms any time of day, provided they do not leave the grounds. The only forms of mechanical restraint in use are leather wristlets worn by four patients, who have lately made attacks upon attendants.

Mr. Atkinson is sole owner of "A Poetical Wooing," which has been aptly termed "a sparkling dramatic novelty," and in which he has appeared more than one hundred times. Gems of dramatic thought from the best writers are woven into an interesting, laughable and symmetrical plot, so that the two lovers woo in the language of some poets, quarrel in the language of other poets, and make up in the language of other poets—the author having discovered an apparently inexhaustible fountain of poetry.

The sleigh makers who consulted Vennor and Tice, last Autumn, on the chances of snow are no doubt zealous disciples of the weather prophets by this time. Whatever may have been the supply of sleighs they made up on the strength of the predictions, they probably have locked up no useless capital in their stock this winter.

It must be a matter of congratulation to our citizens that the graceless author of the following piece of epistolary depravity could not have belonged to any of the Sunday Schools of the town, and yet the circumstances of the original coming into the possession of a steady and worthy townsman, seem to indicate that its writer must have passed through our streets, and could not have lived far away:

NO. READING, Jan. 5, 1881.

In the case of Mr. John C. Allen, late of North Reading, and in the employ of Mr. H. A. Upton as a butcher, in justice to all parties concerned and the public, I think it right that I make the following statement: While I have no doubt that the phlegmonous Inflammation which occasioned the loss of Mr. Allen's hand and his life was caused by the introduction into his system of a septic animal poison, it is in my mind a matter of uncertainty when, how, and by what means this poison was introduced. Putrid blood, offal, hides, and other refuse of a slaughtering establishment, which a man engaged in this business would be likely to handle—all these in my opinion are likely to have been in this case a material that would convey the poison into the system, had a man abrasions upon the skin of his hands and arms.

The heifer that Mr. Allen slaughtered, and which some supposed to be the source of infection, was killed by him at least twelve days before the disease showed itself in his hand. I do not know by personal experience or observation how long a poison of this character may be in the system before declaring itself; but all authorities I have access to limit the time to three or four days. This, in my judgment, precludes the possibility of Mr. Allen's death having been caused by any poison introduced into his system in slaughtering the beef in question. I attended Mr. Allen professionally from the beginning of his disease till his death, and make this statement with no bias in favor or against any of the parties concerned.

WM. P. DAVIS, M. D.

WAKEFIELD, Jan. 3d, 1881.

This certifies that I was called to see John C. Allen of No. Reading, with Phlegmonous or Gangrenous Eresipelas, which was supposed to have been caused by coming in contact with diseased animal matter when butchering for Henry A. Upton. This must have been impossible, for the disease did not appear until one week or more after handling the supposed diseased animal.

CHAS. JORDAN, M. D.

READING, Jan. 1st, 1881.

Mr. H. A. UPTON, No. Reading.

Dear Sir:—Basing my opinion on your statement concerning the alleged case of blood poisoning, I will say: The fact that Mr. Allen continued in his usual health for ten days after killing the heifer, (Nov. 10), and became ill twenty-four hours after receiving a scratch from a foul brush that had been used on diseased horses, is strong presumptive evidence against the theory that his death was due to matter innoculated from the heifer.

Respectfully yours,
GEO. E. PUTNEY, M.D.

SALEM ITEMS.—Ms. S. B. Hathaway, and not Mr. Hart as erroneously stated, has been appointed Keeper of Salem Jail. Mr. Hart was offered the position, but declined.

The Salem Police Relief Association held their Fourth Annual Ball at Mechanic Hall, on Friday evening last. Over 800 tickets had been sold, making the affair a complete success. All the available space on the floor of the hall was occupied by the dancers, and the gallery and balconies were crowded with interesting spectators until a late hour.

A promenade concert by the Salem Cadet Band, which lasted for an hour, and contained some very fine selections, was a pleasant feature of the evening. The hall decorations which were of a very beautiful and costly nature, were under the direction of Lamprell & Marble of Boston.

Frye's Mills have been purchased by the city for the sum of $11,000; this, in connection with other contemplated measures, is regarded as a move in the right direction.

The loss by fire during the year 1880 in this city, was only $1640, which is the smallest for ten years.

Commencing with the first of January, 1881, the price of gas has been reduced 20 cents on a thousand feet.

The East (Unitarian) Church held a Christmas Festival on Wednesday evening of last week. Dancing and other amusements occupied the evening.

The Salem Light Infantry will hold their next Social Assembly on Tuesday evening, January 11th, at Franklin Hall.

The "Tourists in a Pullman Palace Car" will arrive in Salem on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18th, and present their pleasing entertainment, which is now enjoying such great success at the Gaiety Theatre, Boston.

State officer Lewis A. Manning has headquarters at 256 1-2 Essex street, Salem.

The Naumkeag Clothing Company have a "broadside" in the PRESS to-day. Mr. Gallup, the gentlemanly manager of this house, makes the announcement, that the Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Clothing commenced January 3d, and their large and excellent stock which is made of the very best material and in the latest styles, is being sold at bottom prices. Another feature is, that, at the "Naumkeag" you may depend on finding everything just as recommended.

AN AGGRAVATING CASE.—In the Superi or Civil Court, on Wednesday, the jury returned a verdict of $1999 in favor of Mary Kelley for injuries received from Miss Lucretia P. Massey's carriage on a street in Danvers. The case is a singular one. Miss Massey, the defendant, resides in Danvers, near the Middleton line, and loaned her carriage to her servant to ride to the Catholic Church at Danvers. The plaintiff alleged that in crossing a street the defendant's carriage knocked her down and broke her arm, with other injuries.

They say:

That lots of good resolutions were made last Saturday.

That many of them are already broken.

That our office is the best place to get your printing done.

That the people hereabouts are fast finding it out.

That the busy presses there is evidence of this fact.

That several people have written 1880 this week when they meant 1881.—Gloucester Bulletin.

On Thursday evening last, an accordeon played Yankee Doodle and other airs, at 242 Washington street, Boston. It was accompanied with the bones played in the office of the Post in Salem, and the music thus blended and in good time, was listened to by various people in Salem, Lynn, and Lawrence, and appearing to them as if played together in one room. Such are some of the wonders of the telephone.—Salem Post.

The people who have settled it in their own minds that 1881 is going to be a terrible year will probably extract a certain gloomy satisfaction from the news that famine is now destroying thousands of lives in Russia.

We are in hopes that the next issue of the PRESS will appear "on time," and when our mechanical arrangements are completed, we shall give more attention to the editorial and local departments.

Real estate is going to take a good start next spring, and such property will soon be immensely valuable—says the Cambridge Press.

"From the Far West."

Mr. Milton Hyde, formerly of this town, writes to a friend some of his experiences in the "Far West:"

ALBANY, Oregon, Dec. 20, 1880.

DEAR FRIEND,—Hoping that this will find you in the land of the living, and that you have been and still are enjoying good health, I will try and give you some idea how I have fared in the last three years. Since last I heard from you I and all my family have been in good health most of the time. I am now living in town, having let my farm, as I think that I can make more money than on the farm. I have made a living since I have been here, but that is all, and now I want to go into buisness once more, which I shall do very soon. I have a large fruit crop this year and plenty of cider, which I wish you could help me drink. The outlook for Oregon in the immediate future is very good, as there are several railroads in process of construction; two of them to connect with the east, which will bring capital here, and that is what we need, as Albany has the finest water power in the country for manufactories. We have had no cold weather this winter. We picked apples last week to make cider. When I left the Old Bay State, I was inclined to Democratic principles, but since I have seen so many people that served in the Southern army, and heard them express their opinions, I have voted the Republican ticket, and shall do so until I see something better. I have not used any tobacco for nearly three years, which will surprise you I expect, as I used to be an old smoker.

I went on a fishing trip to the Yaguisna Bay, which did not differ from a former one which I described to you last Sept. I with five men, two span of horses and two spring wagons started on a deer hunt in the Cascade mountains. We left Albany about 8 A. M. We expected to get an earlier start, but some of the boys were late, as usual in such cases. Our route lay due east through the best part of this valley. It was just after harvest, and the large fields looked barren; here and there a large pile of wheat in sacks all ready to haul to the warehouse, and large stacks of straw just as it came from the thrasher, which will be burned before the rains come. The country is very level, and the roads good for thirty miles; then we come to the foot hills, which are the advance guard of these grand old mountains. Right here there is a toll road over the mountains. We pass the gate and pay $2.00 per wagon, and enter on our up hill work. We travel about fifteen miles more, and camp at the foot of the Three Mile hill (so called). There is a nice little farm here, with plenty of feed for the horses. Leaving two of our party to do the chores, I with three of the party go and try to get a mess of trout for breakfast. We found one of the prettiest of mountain brooks, and in an hour's time caught sixty-five nice ones, and got into camp a little after dark. I caught my share, but I am ashamed to say that we ate all of them at one meal. The next morning, bright and early, we started up the hill; on the top there is another farm, and at the bottom, on the other side, another. Then we get into a small ey, pathrough which runs the Santiam river, the swiftest, clearest and most magnificent stream I ever saw. This valley is some twelve miles in length. Then we come to Soda Springs; there are several springs of different mineral waters on the bank of the river.

Leaving here we begin to climb the mountains again, and enter on some grand scenery. Here the road is cut in the solid rock just wide enough for the wagon, with a perpendicular fall of several hundred feet to the river below. There are the Salmon Falls, with a clear fall of fifty feet. Here the salmon come, and can get no further. In some places the mountains approach so near at their base there is hardly room for the river. We pass over about fifteen miles of this road, and pass clear spring streams at nearly every turn, and camp on one of them within one rod of the road. We take our horses back three miles to where an old pioneer has a farm with pasture, turn them out, and do not see them again until ready for home. We get into camp about 2 P. M., and one of the boys takes his rifle, and goes out to get a deer. After a while we hear his rifle crack, and soon he comes in with a nice one on his back, and from that time on we were never out of deer meat. These deer live in the summer in the green timber about seventy miles east, and every fall they come to winter in the valley. These mountains were all burned over a few years ago, and you can see all over them. The deer have regular trails that they travel on every year; so we get up in the morning at 3 o'clock, get a hot breakfast, and start for a stand on some of these trails. I was green at the business; all the rest were old deer hunters. I did not see any on my stand for several days; the other boys got some every day. At last one rainy morning I got on a new stand. It was raining quite hard; I had a good fire, and spread my rubber coat over a frame of bushes, and sat there as comfortable as I wanted to be, when I happened to look up the mountain, and saw a deer coming down my trail. He was about one-quarter off when I first saw him. Every little while he would pass out of sight as the trail turned to the right or left. Pretty soon he came straight towards me, stopping every few steps to nibble at the leaves and twigs. I sat there admiring his graceful motions and handsome form, almost loth to shoot him. I let him come as near as I wanted him, and then your old companion killed his first deer—a nice two-year-old buck. Pretty soon the boys, who had gone above me, came in nearly frozen, and, as it happened, that was the only one killed that day. There is no use to hunt after 9 or 10 o'clock, as they do not travel later. Our tent, which was large enough for us all, was pitched on a little knoll close to the road. We had our camp fire in front, and within ten feet of a clear cold spring of pure water. We get in camp about 11 A. M., and get dinner. Then those that like to fish spend the afternoon in wading up or down the Santiam, catching plenty of the speckled beauties. Sometimes as we sit on our rustic seats in front of our camp fire, we see emigrants coming in to the central valley from all parts of the West and South. Those from Iowa have nice large horses, and good outfits generally, while those from Arkansas and Missouri are the reverse. Now here comes a large band of Warm Spring Indians, with their small ponies well loaded down with camp utensils, papooses and squaws, all bound for a whortleberry patch over in the mountains; they come from their reservations about eighty miles east from here. They have always been friendly and helped to end the Modoc war in '72. They dry berries, and take them home for winter. We have splendid luck hunting, having killed thirty-two deer in ten days, and plenty of trout. We start for home, where we arrive all safe in iess than two days from camp. Our deer meat and hides sold for $70.00 in Albany, besides what we kept for our own use. So ended one of the pleasantest trips I ever took. Yours, etc.,

PREDICTING STORMS.—"What is the method of ascertaining the approach of a storm so long in advance as this last one?" was asked of Capt. Howgate of the Weather Bureau. He replied: "There is no method—it's purely problematical. Mr. Vennor is not connected with the Weather Bureau of Canada. The realization of one of those storm predictions creates considerable talk, but no one seems to heed the numberless failures. Our duties and aims are to give the approach of any storm as soon as it comes within range of our stations, and to point out its course and power, that every one can provide against disaster. To attempt anything else would be no more worthy of credulity than fortune telling."

EASTERN RAILROAD.—The Eastern will go into the beach business next summer, by building a narrow guage road, to be known as the Eastern Junction, Broad Sound Pier and Point Shirley Railroad. The road will start from the main line nearly opposite the pavilion at Revere Beach, cross the Lynn and Boston narrow guage at an elevation, run to Broad Sound Pier, thence to Beachmont, whence a branch track will be laid to Grover's cliff, the main track continuing to Winthrop beach, Ocean Spray, Crystal Cove to Point Shirley. A long, covered iron pier will be erected at Broad Sound for a steamboat landing. It is expected the line will be in running order by the first of June.

The Trustees of the Danvers Hospital report the rate for board of patients, fixed by the Legislature at $3.25 per week, as insufficient to meet the expenses, which are necessarily large on account of the great numbers of acute cases, requiring attention far beyond chronic cases. The admissions during the year have been 531—five more males than females. Of the whole number of cases (1114) treated during the year, 165 were discharged recovered, 106 improved, 151 unimproved, 83 died. About 90 of the present patients are at liberty to leave their rooms any time of day, provided they do not leave the grounds. The only forms of mechanical restraint in use are leather wristlets worn by four patients, who have lately made attacks upon attendants.

Mr. Atkinson is sole owner of "A Poetical Wooing," which has been aptly termed "a sparkling dramatic novelty," and in which he has appeared more than one hundred times. Gems of dramatic thought from the best writers are woven into an interesting, laughable and symmetrical plot, so that the two lovers woo in the language of some poets, quarrel in the language of other poets, and make up in the language of other poets—the author having discovered an apparently inexhaustible fountain of poetry.

The sleigh makers who consulted Vennor and Tice, last Autumn, on the chances of snow are no doubt zealous disciples of the weather prophets by this time. Whatever may have been the supply of sleighs they made up on the strength of the predictions, they probably have locked up no useless capital in their stock this winter.

It must be a matter of congratulation to our citizens that the graceless author of the following piece of epistolary depravity could not have belonged to any of the Sunday Schools of the town, and yet the circumstances of the original coming into the possession of a steady and worthy townsman, seem to indicate that its writer must have passed through our streets, and could not have lived far away:

NO. READING, Jan. 5, 1881.

In the case of Mr. John C. Allen, late of North Reading, and in the employ of Mr. H. A. Upton as a butcher, in justice to all parties concerned and the public, I think it right that I make the following statement: While I have no doubt that the phlegmonous Inflammation which occasioned the loss of Mr. Allen's hand and his life was caused by the introduction into his system of a septic animal poison, it is in my mind a matter of uncertainty when, how, and by what means this poison was introduced. Putrid blood, offal, hides, and other refuse of a slaughtering establishment, which a man engaged in this business would be likely to handle—all these in my opinion are likely to have been in this case a material that would convey the poison into the system, had a man abrasions upon the skin of his hands and arms.

The heifer that Mr. Allen slaughtered, and which some supposed to be the source of infection, was killed by him at least twelve days before the disease showed itself in his hand. I do not know by personal experience or observation how long a poison of this character may be in the system before declaring itself; but all authorities I have access to limit the time to three or four days. This, in my judgment, precludes the possibility of Mr. Allen's death having been caused by any poison introduced into his system in slaughtering the beef in question. I attended Mr. Allen professionally from the beginning of his disease till his death, and make this statement with no bias in favor or against any of the parties concerned. WM. P. DAVIS, M. D.

WAKEFIELD, Jan. 3d, 1881.

This certifies that I was called to see John C. Allen of No. Reading, with Phlegmonous or Gangrenous Eresipelas, which was supposed to have been caused by coming in contact with diseased animal matter when butchering for Henry A. Upton. This must have been impossible, for the disease did not appear until one week or more after handling the supposed diseased animal.

READING, Jan. 1st, 1881.

Mr. H. A. UPTON, No. Reading.

Dear Sir:—Basing my opinion on your statement concerning the alleged case of blood poisoning, I will say: The fact that Mr. Allen continued in his usual health for ten days after killing the heifer, (Nov. 10), and became ill twenty-four hours after receiving a scratch from a foul brush that had been used on diseased horses, is strong presumptive evidence against the theory that his death was due to matter innoculated from the heifer.

Respectfully yours,
GEO. E. PUTNEY, M.D.

SALEM ITEMS.—Ms. S. B. Hathaway, and not Mr. Hart as erroneously stated, has been appointed Keeper of Salem Jail. Mr. Hart was offered the position, but declined.

The Salem Police Relief Association held their Fourth Annual Ball at Mechanic Hall, on Friday evening last. Over 800 tickets had been sold, making the affair a complete success. All the available space on the floor of the hall was occupied by the dancers, and the gallery and balconies were crowded with interesting spectators until a late hour.

A promenade concert by the Salem Cadet Band, which lasted for an hour, and contained some very fine selections, was a pleasant feature of the evening. The hall decorations which were of a very beautiful and costly nature, were under the direction of Lamprell & Marble of Boston.

Frye's Mills have been purchased by the city for the sum of $11,000; this, in connection with other contemplated measures, is regarded as a move in the right direction.

The loss by fire during the year 1880 in this city, was only $1640, which is the smallest for ten years.

Commencing with the first of January, 1881, the price of gas has been reduced 20 cents on a thousand feet.

The East (Unitarian) Church held a Christmas Festival on Wednesday evening of last week. Dancing and other amusements occupied the evening.

The Naumkeag Clothing Company have a "broadside" in the PRESS to-day. Mr. Gallup, the gentlemanly manager of this house, makes the announcement, that the Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Clothing commenced January 3d, and their large and excellent stock which is made of the very best material and in the latest styles, is being sold at bottom prices. Another feature is, that, at the "Naumkeag" you may depend on finding everything just as recommended.

AN AGGRAVATING CASE.—In the Superi or Civil Court, on Wednesday, the jury returned a verdict of $1999 in favor of Mary Kelley for injuries received from Miss Lucretia P. Massey's carriage on a street in Danvers. The case is a singular one. Miss Massey, the defendant, resides in Danvers, near the Middleton line, and loaned her carriage to her servant to ride to the Catholic Church at Danvers. The plaintiff alleged that in crossing a street the defendant's carriage knocked her down and broke her arm, with other injuries.

That lots of good resolutions were made last Saturday.

That many of them are already broken.

That our office is the best place to get your printing done.

That the people hereabouts are fast finding it out.

That the busy presses there is evidence of this fact.

That several people have written 1880 this week when they meant 1881.—Gloucester Bulletin.

On Thursday evening last, an accordeon played Yankee Doodle and other airs, at 242 Washington street, Boston. It was accompanied with the bones played in the office of the Post in Salem, and the music thus blended and in good time, was listened to by various people in Salem, Lynn, and Lawrence, and appearing to them as if played together in one room. Such are some of the wonders of the telephone.—Salem Post.

The people who have settled it in their own minds that 1881 is going to be a terrible year will probably extract a certain gloomy satisfaction from the news that famine is now destroying thousands of lives in Russia.

We are in hopes that the next issue of the PRESS will appear "on time," and when our mechanical arrangements are completed, we shall give more attention to the editorial and local departments.

Real estate is going to take a good start next spring, and such property will soon be immensely valuable—says the Cambridge Press.

Seven already! Why, I know
'Tis not very long ago
You were only four or so!
And a little while before
You were only three or more!
And a little earlier you
Registered as one or two!
Yes, in brief, the time's but small
Since you didn't count at all.

Seven! It is a week of years;
One for every day appears.
Sunday—ah, you rogue!—you kept
Like a deacon; for you slept!
Monday, teeth began to come
Pricking through your little gum;
Thursday you set out to walk;
Wednesday, oh, how you did talk!
Thursday, you left baby suits,
Donning pantaloons and boots;
Friday you with ardor ran
After a hand-organ man;
Saturday—why, that's to-day,
And you're seven years old, you say!

Seven kisses you must take;
Seven candies on a cake;
Seven cents—what say you, sir?
"Dimes or dollars" you prefer?
Well, I never! In my time
Boys saved up to get a dime;
Nowadays a dime is spent
In a minute, like a cent!
Well, considering the day,
We would let you have your way;
Yet, considering the times,
We must keep you down to dimes.
"Dollars of the Fathers" don't Circulate as they were wont;
Or, though some may get their shares,
Here's a father finds them scarce.

Seven years old! And soon, no doubt,
Whiskers will be coming out!
(Don't you feel a slight moustache
In the way of soup or hash?)
Presently you will be able
To employ a livery stable;
In a buggy you will ride
With a lady by your side,
While the folks say to their wives,
"Goodness gracious! how he drives!"
You are blushing—ah, the lady?
What! you've picked her out already?

To a person so mature,
I need not suggest, I'm sure,
That all quarrelling with sisters,
Crying over bumps and blisters,
Disobeying mother's rule,
Telling fibs at home or school,
Selfishness or manners rough,
Must be counted childish stuff;
For, of course, you'll leave such tricks
To the boys who are but six;
They will not be thought of even,
By a gentleman of seven!

Miscellaneous.

A LIBERAL EDITOR.—We were grieved to read the other day of the death of one of Michigan's jolliest pioneer editors—almost the last man of a band who published weeklies in the state when a coon-skin would pay for a column "ad," and three bushels of corn dumped on the office floor stood for a year's subscription. Never a publisher was more liberal with his space. It was hard work for him to charge for anything except the tax list and mortgage sales, and he measured short even on them. One day in the years gone by, his paper copied an attack on a county official, and old Mark was dozing at his desk when the injured party stalked in and began:

"You're a coward, sir, a —— coward!"

"Mebbe I am," was the editor's' complacent reply.

"And I can lick you, sir—lick you out of your wrinkled old boots."

"I guess you could," answered Mark, as he busted the wrapper off his only exchange.

"I'm going to write an article calling you a fool, liar, coward, slanderer, and body-snatcher, and go over to Ionia and pay five cents a line to have it published."

"Hey?" queried the old man as he wheeled around.

"Say, let me tell you something,' replied Mark. "I've got 200 more circulation than the Banner, and I'll publish your attack on me for four cents a line and take it out in mill-feed or corn stalks? Don't trot over to Ionia when you can help build up your own town!"

Mark would have published it word for word, just as he said, and thrown in a cut of a horse or a stump puller free gratis, but the official cooled off.—Detroit Free Press.

GIVE ME RAGGLES.—The Boston Commercial Advertiser tells this story: A well-known lady artist, resident in Rome, relates that while standing one day near the statue of the Appollo Belvidere, she suddenly became aware of the presence of a countrywoman. The new-comer was a well-to-do looking American woman, and introduced herself as Mrs. Raggles of——, Missouri, and then asked:

"Is this the Appollo Belvidere?"

Miss H—— testified to the identity of the work, and the tourist then said:

"Considered a great statue?"

The interrogated lady replied that it was generally thought to be one of the masterpieces of the world.

"Manly beauty and all that sort of thing?" said that lady from the land of the sitting sun.

"Yes," responded the now amazed artist. "It is said to be one of the noblest representations of the human frame."

"Well," exclaimed Mrs. Raggles, closing her Badeker, and with arms akimbo, taking a last and earnest look at the marble, "I've seen the Appollo Belvidere and I've seen Raggles, and give me Raggles."

NOVELS. — Whether it is right or wrong to read novels, people will do it. And, as a rule, three-quarters of the novels are read by people who ought to read books which give useful information, and three-quarters of the books of solid information are read by people who might derive benefit from reading a good novel now and then. The trouble with novel reading comes chiefly from the bad or indifferent qualities of the novels which are read, which are worthless, if not worse. It comes also in large part, from the fact that fiction constitutes almost the reading of a great and increasing class of persons who need actual knowledge and discipline of mind, and the more novels they read, the less they are inclined to read anything else. Parents and teachers may try in vain to pre vent the reading of novels, but they can and should cultivate a taste for reading other and more useful works, from which real and lasting benefit can be derived.

IDLENESS.—Many young people feel that an idle life must be a pleasant one; but there are none who enjoy so little, and are such burdens to themselves, as those who have nothing to do. Those who are obliged to work hard all day enjoy their short periods of rest and recreation so much that they are apt to think if their whole lives were spent in rest and recreation, it would be the most pleasant of all. But this is a sad mistake, as they would soon find out if they made a trial of life they think so agreeable. One who is never busy can never enjoy rest, for it implies a relief from previous labor; and if our whole time were spent in amusing ourselves, we should find it more wearisome than the hardest day's work. Recreation is only valuable as it unbends us; the idle can know nothing of it. Many people leave off business and settle down to a life of enjoyment; but they generally find that they are not nearly so happy as they were before, and they are often glad to return to their old occupation to escape the miseries of indolence.

FROM A DIME NOVEL.—"Grizzly Dan" has led a wonderful life. In Montana he was once set upon by a whole tribe of howling red devils and was obliged to run for his life. He headed for the brink of a cliff about 700 feet high, dodging the bullets fired at him, being able through long practice to tell the course of a ball by the sound as it approached from the rear. Grizzly Dan unhesitatingly leaped over the cliff, to the amazement of the Indians, who gathered in a row to watch his fall. Dan turned in the air as he was falling, raised his Winchester rifle to his shoulder and pulled the trigger. An Indian toppled over with a ball through his left eye, and Dan kept pulling the lever and trigger until seventeen red devils had balls through their left eyes and were falling over the cliff after him. The 18th shot only carried away an Indian's nose, as the air was so full of falling Indians between Dan and the top of the cliff that his aim was a little confused. He struck feet foremost in the river below, and swam ashore uninjured.

LOOK AT THIS AND THEN AT THAT. Miss Blanche Murray is a very proper young lady. Last week she caught her little brother smoking.

"You terrible thing," she hissed. "I am going to tell father on you."

"This is only corn silk," murmured the boy, penitently.

"I don't care what it is. I am going to tell on you, and see that you don't get into that beastly, horrid, degrading habit."

II.

It is evening. Miss Murray is sitting on the front stoop with Algernon. It is moonlight, and the redolent spirits of the honeysuckle and syringa are wafting bliss to their already intoxicated souls.

"Would little birdie object to my smoking a cigarette?"

"Not at all," replied Miss Murray. "I like cigarettes. They are so fragrant and romantic. I think they are just too delicate for anything."

"Then I'll light one."

He lights a cigarette, and they talk about the weather for two hours and a half.—Petroleum World.

A singular accident occurred in a kindling-wood factory at New York, the other day. A circular-saw, which was making 800 revolutions a minute, suddenly split, and one of the fragments struck a steam boiler near by, making a rent from which the steam rushed and fatally scalded the man who was tending the saw. The accident threw the balance-wheel out of gear, whereupon it broke into several pieces and went whirling in every direction. One piece, weighing ten pounds, flew out of the roof and out of sight in the air, coming down in an apartment in a neighboring street, narrowly escaping a fall upon the heads of a woman and a child, who were within a few feet of where it struck.

Why does a young lady in love act like a prize fighter to her best man?—Because she puts a head on him.

Book Notices.

LITERARY NOTES FROM SCRIBNER & CO. The charming little operetta "The Land of Nod" has proved a popular hit for the Christmas number of St. Nicholas. It is easily gotten up, at slight expense, and proves a delightful entertainment, adapted to any season of the year.

It is already in active preparation in many places, and attractive additional music has been written for three or four of the recitations, which Scribner & Co. will send to those desirous of bringing out the operetta.

INSHTATHEAMBA.

A pleasant announcement made by the Editors of St. Nicholas is that they have secured for their next number a story of Indian life by Inshtatheamba (Bright-eyes), the drughter of a Omaha chief, who has been travelling through the States during the last two years under the protection of two of her kinsmen, trying to rouse the conscience of the whites to the rights of her race. Miss La Flssche (for this is her English name) makes now, we believe, her first essay as an author, but she cannot but succeed if she gives as dramatic pictures of the daily domestic life of her people as she has hitherto done in her addresses. She has broad culture and keen perceptive faculty, and she has given herself up to the cause of her people with a simplicity and passionate singleness of heart that must rouse sympathy in every man and woman whose own instincts are true and pure.—N. Y. Tribune.

Now is the time to subscribe to The Sunday Magazine. The January Number, which commences a new volume, is a very brilliant Holiday one, opening with a poem, "Christmas," and followed by "Christmas Carols and Customs," "The Children's Carols," "St. Nicholas, the Patron of Christmas," "Christmas Eve in Madrid," "Christmas in the Far West," etc., etc. A new and powerful serial is commenced, entitled, "Out of the World," by Mrs. Robert O'Reilly; there are several interesting short stories, sketches, essays and poems, in fact, the 128 quarto pages are filled with highly entertaining and instructive articles, and the embellishments are numerous and beautiful. The Sunday Magazine has now reached its ninth volume, and has deservedly a large circulation; it pleasantly inculcates religious, moral and virtuous sentiments, and should be found in every family in the land, for it is essentially a family magazine. The price of a single copy is only 25 cents, and the yearly subscription $3; six months $1.50 and four months $1, sent post-free. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

We are in receipt of the initial number of the New England Pictorial. It is published by the Photo-Electrotype Co., 171 Devonshire street, Boston. It starts as a monthly, but it is hoped will soon be issued weekly. Each issue will contain sixteen pages, seven and a half of illustrations. These will be mostly of New England affairs, but will also present the spirit of the European press. Its corps of artists will number fifteen, and its other appointments and facilities will be proportionate. It owns the Mumler process of photo-engraving by which fine engravings are produced at reasonable expense. Its politics will be independent. A department will be devoted to matters interesting to the ladies, and a serial story will be included, with light and attractive reading.—Terms one dollar per year. Among other fine illustrations, the first number contains a splendid illustrated map of Boston.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE.—Of the many Guides and Seed and Plant Catalogues sent out by our seedsmen and Nursery-men, and that are doing so much to inform the people and beautify and enrich our country, none are so beautiful, none so instructive as Vick's Floral Guide. Its paper is the choicest, its illustrations handsome, and given by the hundred, while its Colored Plate is a gem. This work, though costing but 10 cents, is handsome enough for a Gift Book, or a place on the parlor table.—Published by JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

PURDY'S SMALL FRUIT INSTRUCTOR. NEW EDITION.—Within the past winter (1879-80) we have overhauled and revised our 64-page Small Fruit Instructor, taking out about half of the old matter and inserting in its place more practical information, so that the contents or headings now are about as follows:

"Small Fruit for the Family," "Advice to New Beginners," "What we would do with Ten Acres," "Profits of Small Fruits," "Marketing Small Fruits," "Gathering the Fruit," "Drawing and Shipping Fruit," "Berry Baskets and Crates," "Plans for Laying Out Large and Small Grounds and Planting Same," "Stands for Gathering the Fruit," "Protection from Winds," "Raising New Sorts," "Manures," "Strawberries—Time to Set—Preparing the Soil—Mulching — Winter Protection—Transplanting (with drawings to illustrate)—Different Methods of Culture," (with drawings to illustrate) "Raising Seedling Strawberries," "Potted Strawberries," "Forcing Strawberries," "Strawberries for Forcing," "Strawberries on House-tops," "Small Fruit and Poor Soil," "Kinds that Yield Well for Years," "Does it Pay?" "Renewing Old Beds," "Raspberry and Blackberry Culture—Planting — Growing — Trimming — Protecting — Gathering—Drying, etc." The same, too, with Grapes, Currants, Gooseberries, etc. "Different Plans of Trimming, Training and Growing the Grape," (with drawings to illustrate) "Forcing Grapes under Glass," "Grafting the Grape-vine," "Drying Fruit," (with two plans illustrated and described) "Fruit Growing versus Small Farming," etc., etc., etc.

Paper cover, post-paid, 25 cents; cloth cover, post-paid, 50 cents. Postage stamps accepted if change cannot be made, or if you send us a $2 order for plants you can choose the paper covered as a premium, or for $5 worth of plants you get the cloth covered edition.

Purdy's 24-page catalogue of trees and plants sent free on application. Address, A. M. PURDY, Palmyra, N. Y.

BUCKLE'S explanation of the decline of the spirit of religious persecution, was that in modern times faith had undergone an eclipse, and men could not bring themselves to persecute others into believing that whereof they were themselves skeptical. The inadequateness of this explanation of one of the most striking social phenomena of our time, is forcibly shown in the North American Review for January, by Prof. John Fiske, who assigns a number of other causes that have been at least as influential in bringing about this most desirable result. First, there is the decline of the martial spirit and the greater devotion to public industrial pursuits. Then, as men rise in the scale of civilization, they are less disposed to be domineering. Finally men in modern times have quite lost the sense of corporate responsibility—the belief that a whole community is liable for the offenses of ach individ ual comprised in it. These points are established with all the ingenuity of reasoning and wealth of learning for which the author is so distinguished. The other articles in this number of the Review are: "Controlling Forces in American politics," by Senator Geo. F. Edmunds; "Athism in Colleges," by President John Bascom; "The Ruins of Central America," by Desire Charnay; "Partisan Government," by William D. Le Sueur; "Popular Art-Education," by Prof. John F. Weir; "The Limitations of Sex," by Nina Morals; "The Mission of the Democratic Party," by Senator William A. Wallace; and finally, a review of Recent Philological Works, by Prof. F. A. March.

The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

Vennor's Weather Almanac shows very little of the information usually found in almanacs, and contains, in large proportion, the element of prophesying, the weather for every month in the year being given in advance, or rather, given in detail up to the fourth month, and in the form of probabilities thereafter. Vennor has evidently one peculiarity to strengthen his popularity as an oracle—he believes in himself.

GEN. GRANT is writing an article for the February number of the North American Review, advocating the Nicaragua Canal Scheme. The same number of the Review will contain a contribution by Judge Tourgee, author of "The Fool's Errand," entitled "Aaron's Rod in Politics," and one by Oliver Wendall Holmes, on "The Pulpit and the Pew."

THE English publisher of Scribner's Monthly telegraphs for seventeen thousand copies of the coming Midwinter (February) number, an advance of six thousand upon his orders for the same issue last year. The Midwinter Scribner will be, as usual with this issue, a number of especial interest and pictoral beauty.

Hall's Journal of Health apparently retains the popularity which it achieved during the life-time of the distinguished individual who founded it, and comes always filled with suggestions and informing articles. The December number treats of catarrh, diphtheria, measles and other health topics, which just now especially interest so many communities.

Anecdotes.

A TERRIBLE REVENGE.

The Paris Figaro has lately told a terrible story of a headsman's revenge. Fourteen years ago the murderer Avinain was condemned to death. When, on the morning of his execution, "Monsieur du Paris" entered his cell for the purpose of making the usual preparations for conveying him to the scaffold, the culprit received him with an outburst of abuse, couched in the foulest imaginable language, to which the "executor of high works" listened impassively, apparently paying no attention to the torrent of insults and imprecations that flowed from Avinain's lips. Arrived upon the scaffold, however, he bound his "patient" to the plank, and then deliberately lowered the death-dealing knife to within a few inches of the murderer's neck, examined its edge, raised it again to its usual height, and finally loosened the catch, with the customary result. As the remains of the decapitated assassin were being removed from the scaffold, one of the officials present observed to the executioner that he had not performed his task as quickly as usual. "No," replied the latter, with an indescribable smile; "I let him wait a little." Experience had taught the practiced headsman how dire is the agony of the last few moments preceding the dreadful passage from life to death; so, mindful of the wrong inflicted upon him by the doomed man's insults, he avenged the outrage with hideous completeness by "letting him wait a little."

A TRAGEDY IN HUMBLE LIFE.

Among the daily list of suicides reported in the columns of the Paris press, there was one recently which, in the few lines left by the man who cut short his own life while still in the prime of manhood, had a touch of pathos about it. The deceased, who was an artisan, was left a widower at the age of 37, with five young children to support, As he he was able-bodied, it was incumbent upon him to find work to feed and clothe his family without assistance. Whether from his own fault or ill-luck, the man, however, failed in all his efforts to obtain employment, and seeing his motherless children starving around him, philosophically determined to render them orphans that their wants might be supplied by State charity. Before killing himself he took a piece of chalk and wrote on the garret door his justification. "See," he wrote, "the chef d'œuvre of society; since it is better that the father should die in order that the children should be aided to live, he is dead. It is cowardly as a general rule to die by one's own hand; in my case it is brave. I die; may they be happy and benefit by my death. As it was the father who was in the way, he disappears." Having saddled society with the responsibility of his rash act, he shut himself in his room and divested himself of the burden of life in the French fashion by the fumes of charcoal.

BAVARIAN OFFICERS.

German naval and military officers have for many years past labored under a variety of quaint disabilities, imposed upon them by their respective sovereigns with a view to enhance the dignity of their social status. It has been sought to inspire them with a proud conviction that, in virtue of their right to wear the sword knot, they are, as it were, set apart from the rest of humanity. They may not appear in the streets or salons of the towns garrisoned by their regiments, or of the port in which their ships are stationed, clad otherwise than in complete uniform. They may not sit in the stalls of a theatre, dressed in plain clothes, the wearing of which is strictly prohibited to them. They may not respond to civilian insolence otherwise than by drawing sword and cutting down the audacious person. And now, to their already numerous disqualifications from doing as they please, when off duty, is added another. A general order has just been promulgated by the military authorities at Munich, strictly forbidding the officers of the garrison to use the horse-cars of the Bavarian capital, on the ground that "it is not decorous that officers should show themselves in public conveyances utilized by all classes of the people." Ordinances of this kind are scarcely calculated to increase the German officer's comfort or augment his popularity among his civilian compatriots.

HOW HE WAS CURED.

The following story is told of "Fighting Fitzgerald," a celebrated beau, gambler, horseman and duelist. After his return from Ireland, an old gentleman declared his intention of trying to cure Fitzgerald of his love of dueling, and one day provoked him to a contest. His friends tried in vain to persuade him not to go out. "Leave me alone," he said, "I'll settle him. I have got the choice of arms. Each of us shall be mounted, each shall choose his own weapon, a space shall be marked out, and whoever first crosses the boundary shall be declared vanquished." Fitzgerald being informed of these strange proposals, did not like to refuse, and confident in his admirable horsemanship and skill with all weapons, accepted. He appeared on the ground superbly mounted on a fiery steed and armed with pistols. To the surprise and mirth of all, the old gent trotted up on a donkey, carrying a bladder with dried peas inside, and a scarlet cloak in his hand. Waving the cloak and shaking his rattle, he rode into the space; off started the fiery courser, and before Fitzgerald knew where he was he had crossed the boundary and lost the duel. The ridicule was too much for him, and he never "went out" again.

The covetous man lives as if the world were made altogether for him, and not he for the world; to take in everything and part with nothing.

THE SORROWFUL MAN FROM COLUMBUS.

At the Union depot, the other morning, officer Button observed a tall, long-legged stranger, who seemed to be clothed mostly in a linen duster, wipe his eyes and blow his nose like one suffering mental distress, and he approached and asked the cause.

"Oh, lots of things," reptied the man, as he shook out his handkerchief. "Is there a camp-meeting anywhere around here?"

"Not that I know of."

"And they don't have any prayer-meetings here in the daytime?"

"No."

"There isn't anybody around the depot who makes a specialty of singing Gospel hymns, is there?"

"Don't know of anybody. Has your wife run away?"

"No; I never had one."

"Lost your wallet?"

"No; I never carry a wallet."

"Anybody abused you?"

"No; everybody is kind to me."

"Then why this sorrow and these tears? Strong men do not weep without strong cause."

"I weep—I weep because the world is cold—because it is wicked—because human nature has become suspicious. I weep because another sun has risen on the evil passions of men."

"Are you naturally sorrowful?"

"I am. I sometimes wish I wasn't that way. How long before the Lake Shore train goes?"

"About twelve minutes."

"Then I will spend eleven minutes in further weeping. Have you a private room in which I can sit and cry?"

"Say, old man, what's your lay?" asked the officer, after looking him over.

"My lay is weeping. I am the sorrowful man from Columbus."

"That's too thin. What's the particular racket this morning?"

"Won't you give me away?" asked the man, after a fresh dig at his eyes.

"No."

"I'm dead broke and I want to get to Toledo. The conductor who goes out on this train stands over there, and I'm weeping for his benefit. He has already remarked my grief, and he wonders what ails me. When he asks for my ticket I'll either be a missionary who weeps over the avarice of railroad corporations and appeal to his charity, or a country parson who lost his money on the confidence game. Now let me weep some more."

He wept some more, and then said:

"It's the best lay in the world. It's a hundred times ahead of cheek or riding on the springs, and it costs me nothing, and is always ready. I cried my way from Columbus to Indianapolis, wept from there to Chicago, and then sobbed myself along to Detroit. I now weep that I may see Toledo, and I shall depend upon emotion to scoot me through to Columbus in good style. I will now edge along toward the conductor and give way to an extra burst of mingled grief and contrition. Ta-ta, old blue-coat—don't give away a man who couldn't raise a nickel if his eyes should give out to-morrow."—Detroit Free Press.

MARIE ANTOINETTE'S COURAGE.

The Revue de France publishes several curious extracts from the memoirs of Klindworth, well-known in the political world from his long connection with Talleyrand, Wellington, Metternich and Guizot. The most interesting passage relates to an incident in which Marie Antoinette plays a part, namely, the mission entrusted by Robespierre to M. Grandidier in 1793, the object of which was to separate Austria from the anti-French coalition. This brings out the fact that the hapless Queen might have got back to her native country, and so escaped her tragic end, but for her own devotion and heroism. An agreement in the sense desired was all but concluded by M. Grandidier with the Austrian Government on the condition, assented to by Robespierre, that Marie Antoinette and her daughter should be restored to their family. The Queen's consent to the plan could not be obtained. On M. Graudidier submitting the matter to her at an interview in the prison she said:

"Please thank the Emperor and Empress for their kind consideration for me, but tell them that I desire to die in France like my husband, and I am impatiently looking forward to the moment when I shall be united to him forever."

"She is right," remarked Robespierre, on her words being repeated to him. "What has that woman to do among the living?"

Thus Austria remained one of the adversaries of the French Government, and Marie Antolnettee went to the scaffold.

A PLUCKY PAIR.

A young man from Texas married a girl in North Carolina, and then proposed to leave her while he worked his way back to his Texas home, in the hope of there earning money enough to send for her. She said, however, that she would rather accompany him afoot. They therefore made the journey of one thousand six hundred miles as tramps; but their good appearance gained for them considerable help along the way, and for the last fifty miles they rode triumphantly in a carriage, provided by an enthusiastic admirer of their pluck.

Wisdom and truth are immortal; but cunning and deception, the meteors of the earth, after glittering for a moment, must pass away.

Wound no one's feelings unnecessarily; there are thorns enough in the path of human life.

Backwoods Jollity.

CHRISTMAS DAY IN A CABIN IN ONE OF THE BACK COUNTIES OF MISSOURI.

It used to be the saying in the army: "When a soldier is riding a hoss, and the hoss plays, the soldier is played."

When my mule played out after an all-day's ride through a Missouri snow-storm, I dropped off into snow a foot deep and more coming, and felt a bit discouraged.

It was in a back county, if there are any back counties in that State, and the settlers had located their cabins just six miles apart to a rod. When I set out to walk and pull the mule to boot he looked up at the sky, around at the woods, and keeled over in despair. I was trudging along in the snow over my boot-tops, thinking how much easier it was to drown than to freeze to death, when the sound of a fiddle reached me between the snowflakes, and I discovered that I had reached a six-mile cabin.

"Come in, old hoss!" sang out a voice as I fell against the door.

When I opened it I was in a room about sixteen feet square; the only one in the house. The big fireplace gave light, and the furniture was home-made. A gaunt, long-haired pioneer sat on a shake-down bed playing the fiddle, a gaunt, slim woman was dancing in the centre of the floor, and several children were scattered around as spectators.

"Keep it up, ole woman—'deevning, stranger—be through in a minit; find a cheer. Go in for all yer worth, Mary!" called the fiddler as I shut the door behind me.

As I walked to the fire one of the children wheeled up a block of wood, and the father remarked:

"Powerful storm outside, stranger—keep them feet gwine, old lady—you children wipe off yer mouths and sing with me:

"I was forty miles from Pike,
And the road was full of snow,
And the wind was gettin' ready
Fur to hump itself and blow."

"Faster now—change off—kick higher—up with them hoofs—round with ye—hoe 'er down—ladies change—that's all—stranger, howdy!"

I was made at home.

"Well, now, but this seems to be the hand of Providence," said the old man as I drew up to the table. "Here ye are, snowed in and here we are chuck full of pervishuns and happiness, and to-morrow is Christmas. Stranger, I'll show ye more high steps, more hoots and yells, more music, and feastin', and dancin', and gittin' up sta'rs to-morrer than ye ever saw in all yer born days! Ole woman, if this haint the Lord's doin's then I'm a petrified reptile, and never got religiun."

"Ben, yer right!" added the wife, as she poured out another cup of burnt-corn coffee. "We is a hos-pit-able family. When we can't whoop'er up fur a stranger on Thanksgiving or Christmas or New Year's, nobody else need try."

After supper one of the boys took the fiddle, and the rest of the family limbered up for Christmas. When this process was ended it was time to go to bed, and the old man said:

"Now, then, ye kin see that we hain't bilin' rich. Here's two beds, and nine of us. Me and the old woman take one, you take t'other, and if the children can't keep warm afore the fire I'll 'liven their blood with a gad. Git right into bed, stranger, and if the children git to fightin' in the night heave yer boots at 'em!"

If the children got into a row, I didn't hear them. It didn't seem as if I had slept an hour, when the pioneer shook me by the shoulder and called out:

"Say, stranger, daylight has arove, and Christmas am here. Git up, and prepar' to jine in the festivities."

The snow was four feet deep and still coming, but the prospect delighted my host, who cracked his heels together and exclaimed:

"If this hain't divine Providence biled down, then I don't like coon and corn. You children, stop that quarreling! Thomas Jefferson, did you forget to say yer prayers? If you did, I'll wallop ye like blazes!"

We had coon-meat, corn-dodgers, apple-sauce, and coffee for breakfast. Seats were found for the pioneer and myself, and the mother and children stood up. There was a long and embarrassing pause after we were all ready, and the man said:

"Stranger, I was givin' ye a chance to throw yerself on a blessin', but ye didn't tumble. Old woman, reel off suthin' purty!"

She closed her eyes and uttered the following as if she had repeated it a thousand times: "Now I lay me down to sleep, and bless this meat and bread and sass. We are thankful for what we've got, and not jealous of our betters. Keep us in good health, make coons plenty, and cause us to escape the itch and measles. Amen!"

When the table had been cleared away, the pioneer and wife held a consultation in a corner, and when it ended the man approached and asked: "Stranger, are ye willin' to help us make this a whoopin' old day?"

"Yes."

"Good! as a family, we are 99 per cent. on a rough-and-tumble. I'm about twice yer size and heft, and it wouldn't be a fa'r show, but the old woman is a pretty even match, and she's just achin' to lay ye on yer back!"

"But I never wrestled with a woman in my life."

"Well, it's a good time to begin. She's wiry and quick, and she'll lay ye if she can. Stand right up, stranger, and do yer level best, to oblige me."

I obliged. The situation was new and novel, and in twenty seconds I was thrown over one of the shake-downs with a crash that jarred the house. The woman cracked her heels together and crowed lustily, the children laughed, and the pioneer helped me up with the explanation:

"Stranger, she's practiced this fur ten years and she'll down any man in this country 'cept me. I knowed how it would be, but I'm much obleeged for your great kindness. The hull fam'ly will now swarm for their paternal dad."

I retreated to a corner, and the old woman and her six children made a rush for the father. They were seven to one. They attacked him on all sides with great vigor, and were picked up and flung ten feet without being a bit discouraged. They finally got him foul and brought him down, and as he lay on his back he observed:

"Children, ye may well feel proud over this. It shows that ye are healthy and full o' pluck, and that the itch has no bizness in a family like this."

We had hickory nuts, poy corn, cider and apples for lunch, and at dinner we had bear meat, pumpkin pie, roast woodchuck, apple butter and gingerbread. After the meal a half tame bear, about a year old, was brought in, the floor cleared, and a grand hugging match took place. The old woman led off. Standing face to face with the cub, he hugged and she squeezed. It was nip and tuck. She sighed and coughed, and he growled and strained; but at last he whined, in token that his ribs could stand no more. Then the two big boys tackled him, but Bruin laid them both out.

After the bear we had a jumping match, in which the old woman beat the crowd. Then followed a target-shoot, in which every one beat me. Then the bear and the dog had a bout, and the dog was used up. In the evening we had a dance, played old sledge, and drank hot cider; and as we got ready for bed the old woman read seven or eight lines from a battered Bible, and the man knelt down in all seriousness and prayed:

"This 'ere day has drawed to a close, and we are one peg nigher to the grave. A stranger cum along and we took him in. We've fed on the fat of the land, had a bustin' old time, and expect to sleep like a load of brick. Keep us from growin' pizen mean, continue our whoopin' good health, and reserve plenty of room in heaven for us all. That' about all, onless ye want to put it into the mind of the stranger to offer me his watch even up for my old mule. Amen!"—Boston Evening Star.

BEWARE OF ALCOHOLIC BITTERS.—Thousands have been ruined for life by drinking popular nostrums, the principal ingredient of which was alcohol. Such "bitters" are deceptive in their effects; they cause intoxication and temporary relief, while they foster the drunkard's appetite. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" contains no alcohol. It does not heat and inflame the blood; it cools and purifies it. Better than this even, it has cured many a raving appetite for drink. It will do you good, not evel, all the days of your life. All druggists sell it. Dr. David Kennedy, Proprietor, Rondout, N. Y.

The youngest devil wanted to go to the play, and his boss wouldn't let him. "You had better stick to your work, Tommy, and you may be Lord Mayor some day." Said Tommy, "there's over two thousand printers in London isn't there?" "Y-e-s," said the boss dubiously," I suppose there is." "And everyone of 'em stands a chance of being Lord Mayor?" "Yes." "Well, I'll sell out my chance for a ticket for the play, and risk it."—Paper and Printing Trades Journal.

There was a man in our town,
He was so wondrous wise,
He thought his business would run itself
And he didn't advertise.

Well, business was dull at first,
But better times came, and it's queer,
One day with a rush he sold all his stuff,
But the sheriff was auctioneer.

Old officer to new footman: "Now then, Patrick, call me a cab." Pat: "Och, no, yer honor! It's not for the likes of me to be calling you names, at all!"

A PERSIAN LADY.

I will here give a description of my hostess and her dress. She wore a bright red satin skirt, richly embroidered with gold lace. It was very full and short, barely reaching her knees; a loose jacket of blue velvet, also much trimmed—this time with silver lace; the sleeves are made of Cashmere shawl, buttoned by about twenty small steel buttons. She wore several necklaces, most of them very massive, and studded with fine turquoises. On her head she wore a white shawl, with a band of jewels round her forehead, and at one side a large pearl star. She had on both arms at least a dozen bracelets—some handsome ones, some only bands of colored glass. Her feet were covered with coarse white socks; her shoes, green leather, with scarlet heels. Some of the ladies wore bright red trousers, reaching to the ankle; but this was quite the exception. They wear a long veil, reaching from head to foot, generally made of some smart print or muslin. I ought to mention that every lady wore a small leather case round her neck, containing some earth from Mecca and verses from the Koran. The face of my hostess and friends were much decorated, the eyebrows broadened and carried quite across the nose. Some had small designs tattooed on the cheeks. The hair is very long and thick, generally dyed red; it is worn plaited in many thin tails, twisted with gold thread. The hands are well shaped, but nails and palms are stained a dark red.—Tinsley's Magazine.

"DEFENSIVE WAR."

When the American army entered Philadelphia in June, 1778, upon the evacuation of the English troops, there was a want of paper fitted for the construction of cartridges. It was advertised for, but only a small quantity procured. An order was then issued demanding its instant production by all the people of the city who had it. This still produced but little, probably on account of its scarcity. A file of soldiers was then ordered to make search for it in every place where any was likely to be found. Among other places visited in July, 1778, was a garret in a house in which Benjamin Franklin had previously had his printing office. Here was discovered about twenty-five hundred copies of a sermon which the Rev. Gilbert Tennent had written (printed by Franklin) upon "Defensive War," to rouse the colonists during the French troubles. They were all taken and used as cases for musket cartridges, and at once sent to the army; and most of them were used at the battle of Monmouth. The requisites in cartridge-paper were, of course, thinness, strength, pliability, and inflammability, and such paper was necessarily scarce then.

This is a story Philadelphians always tell as a set off to that of the Sons of Liberty upsetting George the Third, in the Bowling Green, New York, and making bullets of him to feed his lobster backs on.

HOW AN OWL'S HEAD REVOLVES.

A writer in a cotemporary who had read a story of an owl wringing its own neck off by looking at a man who was walking around him, tested the matter by experiment. He obtained a specimen and placed him on top of a post. "It was not difficult," says the writer, "to secure his attention, for he never diverted his gaze from me while I was in his presence. I began walking rapidly round the post, a few feet from it, keeping my eyes fixed upon him all the while. His body remained motionless, but his head turned exactly with movements. When I was half way round, his head was directly behind. Three-quarters of a circle were completed, and still the same twist of the neck and the same stare followed. One circle, and no change. On I went, twice round, and still that watchful stare and steady turn of the head. On I went, three times round, and I began really to wonder why the head did not drop off, when all at once I discovered what I had failed to notice before. When I reached half way round from the front, which was as far as he could turn his head with comfort, he whisked it back through the whole circle so instantaneously, and brought it facing me me with such precision that I failed to detect the movement, although I was looking intently all the time.

DESTRUCTIVE INFLUENCES.

Doubtless countless myriads of living creatures come into existence of which by far the greater part must be destroyed. One aphis may be the parent of 5,904,900,000 individuals in five generations, and when these are swallowed up by lady-birds and other enemies in mass, it is no individual variation that can avert their fate. The uncheckered produce of one pair of herrings would stock the Atlantic in a few years, until there was no room to move; and when these are engulfed by shoals as a mouthful for the balœnoptera, they can make as little struggle for their existence as the grass can make that the ox licks up, or the vegetation of a district that is devastated by locusts. It is the unwritten law of Nature that one race must die that another may live; this other, in its turn, subserving the same end, and so on constantly until the cycle be complete. Without this law, against which there is no appeal, Nature would be a chaotic impossibility. The destructive influences are so predominant that the carnage is indiscriminate and without struggle.

That life is long which answers life's great end; the tree that bears no fruit deserves no name; the man of wisdom is the man of years.

Hope is like the wing of an angel, soaring up to heaven and bearing our prayers to the throne of God.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!
Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.
Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:
I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.
II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.
III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.
IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.
V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.
VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.
Our terms are as follows:
For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.
The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.
The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,
Publisher of THE SUN. New York City.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, JAN'Y 5, 1881.

Blaine of Maine.

All the rumors connecting Mr. Blaine's name with Gen. Garfield's Cabinet may be summed up in the simple statement that the Senator from Maine was recently invited to select his own place in the new Administration, and that he has chosen the Department of State. Unless something unexpected happens he will be Secretary of State after the fourth of March, and it is very certain that neither Messrs. Conkling, Cameron, Logan or Grant were consulted in regard to this intended appointment. Mr. Conkling, perhaps, may be prepared for the transfer of Mr. Blaine from the Senate to the Cabinet, and, as a politician, will doubtless adapt himself to that change without any demonstration; but Gen. Grant, who—it has been asserted—has become exacting and extremely intolerant of contradiction, will, no doubt, take Mr. Blaine's appointment in bad temper. He makes no concealment of hostility to the Maine Senator, and does not hesitate to disparage him publicly, for he is well aware that Mr. Blaine was the means of defeating him at Chicago. His retirement from the Senate will, perhaps, relieve the jealousies and discontent which have disturbed the Republican party of late years in Maine. Instead of a struggle over one Senatorial vacancy, there will be two seats to fill and two interests to satisfy. Hale and Frye can both be provided for, without a bitter rivalry, and a contest that might have left many heartburnings behind it.

Many think that Mr. Blaine will make a great mistake in accepting a position in the cabinet of the incoming administration; that he is not fitted for it by training or by taste. Personally, no doubt, he will be agreeable to the diplomatic body and to all with whom he may be brought into official intercourse, because his genial nature, his easy manners, and his freedom from assumption cannot fail to make a favorable impression.

The sphere in which Blaine has figured to most advantage was the House of Representatives, where, as a dashing and daring debater, he played a part for which his ardent temperament peculiarly fitted him, while his knowledge of parliamentary practice and his readiness of resource were aids that few commanded. For twelve years he was a conspicuous figure in the House, and an influential leader in the Republican party. The young Republicans outside of this State regarded him as their chief, and in 1876 he needed only the vote of Massachusetts to nominate him for the Presidency at the Cincinnati Convention.

NEW DRESS.—The Lynn Transcript appeared last Saturday in a new dress—looking finely. When the Transcript first appeared, fifteen years ago, the only paper in Lynn was the Lynn Reporter. Now there are five weeklies and two dailies printed there. We trust the publishers are all rich; for in their endeavors to please the public they work hard enough to be millionaires.

We are happy to announce the arrival of a girl in the family of Brother Wm. B. Hammond, of the Georgetown Advocate. It is said that the subscription price of the Advocate will not be increased because of this increase.

"BOYCOTTING."—Captain Boycott was an agent of the landlords who lived in England, who, by his petty exactions, became extremely unpopular. When he sent for the tenants in the last harvest to work for him at a certain rate, they determined to demand a greater price. Swearing that he wouldn't be dictated to, Boycott took his wife and daughter and went out to reap his oats. Again, in the fall the peasants asked to have their rents reduced, which Boycott refused, whereupon they said good day and walked off. The agent then got out fifty-four writs of ejectment, and undertook to have them served. This was resisted in various ways. Finally the tenants agreed to ask everybody on Boycott's place to strike, and they did so, so that not a soul was left except his own family. Then the traders all agreed to sell him nothing to eat. Boycott then thought of Protestants in another county whom he could get to work for him, but the British government had to send troops to protect them, and it cost $15,000 to dig his potatoes. This policy has spread since then all over the island. It is merely social ostracism.

MAYOR CALLEY in his inaugural address urges early and effectual measures towards the suppression of the offensive odors arising from North River during the warm weather, and accordingly recommends the removal of obstructions at Frye's mills, and the creation of a direct channel to the Peabody line; the sanding and graveling of the shores, and filling in wherever it may be deemed necessary; the extension of all sewers to the channel, or to permanent water, wherever practicable; the construction of a water gate at North Bridge so that the flats above may be flooded in hot weather. Also the laying out of two or more streets on each side of the channel along the course of the river; to be built at some future time.

THE COLD WAVE, which swept down from Manitoba the first of last week, dropping the mercury to 41 degrees below zero, has gradually worked eastward, and reached the Atlantic coast Wednesday and Thursday of last week. It was here preceded by a violent gale, which raged on Sunday, causing a turbulent sea along our shore, whose restless tossing many people witnessed. A slight fall of snow accompanied it, which has been reinforced from time to time since, until we have enough to make good sleighing. On Thursday morning the mercury marked 10 degrees below zero at some points in this neighborhood, and remained at or below zero, we believe, nearly or quite all day, with a bright sun and cloudless sky.—On the New Jersey coast the storm did great damage.

We have received a copy of "Reminiscences of a Nonagenarian," lately issued by Wm. H. Huse & Co., of Newburyport. It is an interesting sketch of old times and people of those times in Newburyport and vicinity. All who enjoy chatty stories of the days gone by, all who are interested in the local history of the places spoken of, all who desire a very readable book, will do well to secure a copy, which they can do of the publishers. We are not positive about the price, but think it is mailed for two dollars.

Of Mr. Atkinson and Miss Ellard the Lynn Transcript says many of their selections, especially those of a humorous character, were exceedingly fine and were repeatedly encored.

It is predicted that we are shortly to have another cold snap. We hope not, for this weather is death on our coal bin.

Him what steals what isn't hisen, if cotched will surely go to prison. Him what steals a subscriber's Post, will, when he's dead, be put to roast.—Salem Post.

The sun will set later every day, but it will not begin to rise earlier until January 9th.

Sleighing.

Jingle, jingle jingle!
'Tis the feast of Love.
Crystal snow below us,
Crystal stars above.
Like a globe of silver
Gleams the white-faced moon.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Oft-repeated tune.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Hearts and cheeks aglow!
Steel-encompassed runners
Cutting through the snow.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
See the vapor rise
From our steeds, like incense
From a sacrifice.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Jingle everywhere!
Hear the liquid laughter
Pouring on the air.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Hear the whip's sharp crack,
Hear the merry voices
Greet us on the track!
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Through the frosty night,
To prevent her falling
I must clasp her tight!
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
And the sound impels
Thoughts as sweet as twilight
Of our wedding bells.
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Heaven speed the day!
May we glide into it
Smoothly as our sleigh!
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Jingle everywhere!
Sweetest sound the sleigh bells
Ringing for a pair!

The themes chosen for the "Week of Prayer" by the Evangelical Alliance, which is now being held, are as follows:

Monday, January 3d.—Thanksgiving for the blessings, temporal and spiritual, of the past year, and prayer for their continuance.

Tuesday, 4th—Humiliation and confession on account of individual, social, and national sins.

Wednesday, 5th—Prayer for the church of Christ, its unity and purity, its ministry; and for revivals of religion.

Thursday, 6th. — Christian education: Prayer for the family, Sunday-schools and all educational institutions, for Young Men's Christian Associations, and for the press.

Friday, 7th.—Prayer for the prevalence, of justice, humanity, and peace among all nations; for the suppression of intemperance and Sabbath desecration.

Saturday, 8th.—Prayer for Christian missions and the conversion of the world to Christ.

Sunday, 9th.—Theme: On the ministration of the Holy Spirit.

Mr. Charles Atkinson and Company's entertainment at the Institute has been postponed, on account of the illness of Mr. A. and the bad weather, till Wednesday, Jan. 19th. This entertainment is very highly spoken of by the press everywhere. At Danvers they gave such good satisfaction that they were immediately engaged by the lecture committee, and will appear again in the free course.

The entertainments given in Mr. Hooper's course are of a class that not every manager would dare to bring to Peabody; and when such entertainments as "Deacon Crankett," "Joshua Whitcomb," "The Chimes of Normandy," etc., are promised, it is nothing more than fair that they should receive a liberal patronage.

POLICE NOTES.—Wm. Connors celebrated the New Year in a spirit-ed manner. The judgment of the Court was that $1 would pay for his amusement. William could not raise it, and now is residing at Salem Jail.

4th. John Riley, charged with being a vagrant, and found guilty, was permitted to accept board, at the expense of the State, at the House of Correction for 3 months.

6th. Patrick Sweeney once more came up smiling to receive sentence for drunkenness, 2 months in House of Correction.

John Cronan for assault depressed his pocket book to the extent of $10.15.

Mr. John A. Enos has relinquished his interest in the flour business in favor of Mr. Samuel W. King. Mr. Enos has associated himself with Mr. J. E. Clement at the Peabody Machine shop in the manufacture of a new whitening machine, which he has recently patented. This machine is said to be more compact and simple than the other invented by him, and can be manufactured at a great deal less expense.

Peabody has long felt the need of a chiropodist. We announce to-day that Mrs. E. G. Ward, who comes highly recommended from Salem, will open an office at 50 Main Street for Wednesdays of each week.

Mr. Jas. Redpath will lecture under the auspices of the Land League at Peabody Institute, Jan. 24, upon What I Know about Boycotting.

Rev. Mr. Sperry had a telephone placed in his house for one year, as a Christmas present.

The snow on Tuesday night was just what was wanted to patch up the sleighing.

THE DANGERS OF ABSINTHE. — The habitual drinker becomes at first dull, languid; is soon completely brutalized, and then goes raving mad. He is at last wholly or partially paralyzed, unless, as often happens, disordered liver and stomach bring a quicker end. The liquor is dangerously seductive, because it seems, in the beginning, to help the digestive organs, when it really hurts them, and very seriously. Many persons have been induced to take absinthe for indigestion, and have thus gradually fallen under its baleful influence. The drinker is in most cases in seeming good health, having no thought of his peril, until the hour when illness has declared itself. He is apt, indeed, to believe that he is remarkably well, and to consider all the stories about absinthe mere bugaboos. The earliest symptoms of ailment lead to an examination, and to the knowledge that his entire system is deranged, usually beyond restoration. His first illness is apt to be his last, and death is a welcome relief. Absinthe has not long been known; in fact, it was not made a century ago. Some ninety years since a French refugee, Dr. Ordinaire, settled at the small village of Couvet, Switzerland, and acquired a very fine practice in the neighborhood. He prepared his own medicines, one of them being an extract of wormwood, which he held in high esteem and compounded with his own hands. He prepared it from a private recipe, and administered it to his patients with excellent effect. Before his death he imparted the secret to others, and the extract was extensively made and sold to pedlers. It was prepared from the yellow flowers of the common wormwood, and it was gradually improved, or rather deteriorated upon, until the present liquour had been obtained. In the Val de Travers, Canton of Neufchatel, about 100,000 gallons of this most alluring poison are annually distilled.

W. C. T. U.—A full attendance of the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is requested at the meeting on Friday, Jan. 7, at 3 o'clock, which will be held in their new room, over A. H. Whidden's store.

"Yes," said the Rev. John Pierpont, "you have a license, and that is your plea; I adjure you to keep it; lock it among your choices jewels; guard it as the apple of your eye; and when you die and are laid out in your coffin, be sure that the precious document is placed between your clammy fingers, so that when you are called upon to confront your victims before God, you may be ready to file your plea of justification and to boldly lay down your license on the bar of the Judge. Yes, my friend, keep it; you will then want your license signed by the county commissioners and indorsed by the selectmen."

From Jan. 1, 1881, there will be a discount of fifty cents per thousand feet of gas, on all bills paid within fifteen days from their presentation by the collector, or at the Salem Gas Office. This reduces the net price from $2.70 to $2.50 per thousand feet.

Mr. Otis F. Putnam, of Danvers, has been unable to fill his houses so far this winter. There is ice enough on the pond, but there is not a sufficient amount of water to run the necessary machinery.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

G. A. R.

There was a very pleasant meeting at the headquarters of Union Post 50, last Monday evening, the occasion being the installation of its officers for the year ensuing, some one hundred comrades being present from Posts 90 of Danvers and 89 of Beverly. The ceremony of installation was performed by Past Commander John W. Barnard of Post 90, in a pleasing manner, the officers being as follows:

Commander—Windsor M. Ward.
S. V. C.—Thomas Riley.
J. V. C.—Alfred E. Johnson.
Adjt.—William H. Hildreth.
Q. M.—Edward C. Spofford.
Surg.—Chas. C. Pike.
Chap.—Eben H. Davis.
O. of Day.—Wm. R. Armstrong.
O. of Guard.—Wm. C. Beckett.
Sergt. Maj.—Geo. Pierce.
Q. M. Sergt.—Wm. H. Hall.

After closing the session of the Post in due form, an excellent musical programe was given, which was received with rapturous applause. Com. John W. Barnard presided at the piano with admirable skill and taste. Charming music was played upon the cornet, and skillful and pleasing selections given upon the violin. The whole instrumental portion was worthy the attention of a large and critical audience, and contained stirring music particularly upon the cornet, which awakened the enthusiasm of the comrades. Messrs. Frank P. Farnsworth and Horace A. Wilson, both excellent singers, entertained the company with humorous songs, which were heartily encored.—A banjo accompaniment was furnished in a manner which leaves us to regret that the young man did not give a specimen of his playing alone.

After the entertainment a line was formed, and the comrades tramped, tramped, tramped to rooms where appetising chowder, with proper sundries was furnished.

At the proper order a charge was made, and some made a second attack. After the heat of the conflict the air grew smoky, and the sound of tongues busy. It was a very successful gathering.

Post 50 visits Beverly Thursday evening, on a similar occasion.

READINGS BY MISS BROWN.—The readings in the Institute Course by Miss Nella F. Brown, on Tuesday evening, were listened to by a crowded house. It seldom happens that one has the opportunity of being so well entertained. Miss Brown is doubtless the most popular and attractive lady reader now before the public. Her success South and West has been most decided. Miss Brown has the faculty of adapting herself to various sentiments so that she can scarcely fail to succeed before any intelligent audience.

Her rendering of the Scene between King Henry V and Catharine was especially fine. "Good Night Papa" and "How the Old Horse Won the Bet" were given with much effect.

Miss Brown reads here again this season, when, we hope, she will have another crowded house.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY. — The following item from the will of the late Mr. HENRY POOR will be read with pleasure by all interested in the Ladies' Benevolent Society, whose members cherish with gratitude the memory of him who for many years generously aided them in their work:

"I give to the aid of the Female Benevolent Society of Peabody the sum of Three Hundred Dollars, to be invested by the officers or managers of said society, so that the income of the same may be used for the same benevolent object that the society has ever had in view."

The recent contributions in aid of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, from the Universalist and Unitarian societies, amounted to $57.16.

ANIMAL POISONING.—The sad death of Mr. John C. Allen, of No. Reading—who was well-known to many of our citizens—having called forth many disparaging comments against his employer, Mr. H. A. Upton, the latter has caused a thorough investigation to be held in regard to the sad affair by medical experts, and their statements are given elsewhere.

SURPRISE PARTY.—Mr. Geo. Randall was surprised, on New Year's evening, by the young ladies of his Sabbath School class calling at his residence and presenting him with copies of Byron and Bryant. As the pastor, Rev. G. M. Harmon, chanced to be present, a very enjoyable evening is reported.

Lots of gay sleighing parties are seen on our streets every evening, as they pass through the town enjoying this delightful sleighing.

A word to the wise—advertise.

A largely attended meeting of Holten Lodge, No. 104, I. O. O. F., was held at the Lodge room, last Tuesday evening, for the purpose of installing their newly elected and appointed officers. The ceremony was conducted by Worthy Grand District Deputy Wm. M. Hill and suite, and the officers installed were as follows: N. G., T. P. Teague; V. G., O. B. Chadwick; Rec. Secretary, G. H. Manning; Per Secretary, ——; Treas., Geo. E. Lewis; Ward., John Handel; Con., Robert Whittaker; O. G., Wm. H. Pingree; I. G., Geo. Miller; R. S. N. G., N. C. Patterson; L. S. N. G., W. F. Wiley; R. S. V. G., A. E. Southwick; L. S. V. G., G. E. Parker; R. S. S., H. N. McCulley; L. S. S., H. N. Batchelder; Chap., J. S. Paul.

After the installation remarks on the "good of the order" were made by the grand officers. At about ten o'clock the visiting brothers were invited to assist the members of the Lodge dispose of an excellent oyster supper at Baldwin's Hotel, and an hour was spent at the social board.

We were reminded again at the readings of Miss Nella Brown, at the Institute, last Tuesday evening, that those young fellows, whose conduct indicates that they belong to a class who should not be permited to run at large in a civilized community, were out in full force. They disturbed the reader and the audience with their hideous yells, hisses, etc. Their conduct has become such a positive nuisance to decent people as to call for their early suppression. If the police would make an example of one or two of them, we think they would only be doing their duty, and certainly the effect would be beneficial.

The suit of Asenath Wilson against the Naumkeag Street Railway has just been finally decided in her favor. It was brought for injuries received by her by being thrown from a horse car in August, 1876. It was tried before Judge Morton in the Supreme Judicial Court in May, 1879, and he found for the plaintiff in the sum of $1000. The defendant moved for a new trial. This motion was heard last month in Boston, and has now been overruled. H. Wardwell for the plaintiff. S. B. Ives, Jr., and J. T. Mahoney for the defendant.

We have received the Register and Circular of the State Normal School of Salem. In looking it over we see that Peabody is represented by the following young ladies: Nellie M. Boynton, Mary C. Chandler, Sarah E. P. Towne, M. Alice Bartlett, Annie Poland, H. Florence Taylor, Lelia I. Tilton, Augusta S. Wilson. The next term of this school will commence with an examination for admission on Tuesday, Feb. 8th, 1881.

Rev. C. C. Carpenter (recently of South Peabody) sends us the Annual Record of the Congregational Church of Mount Vernon, N. H., over which he is now settled. The total membership of the church is 133; Sunday School, 140; average attendance, 75. There have been 10 deaths in the parish, during the year, the ages averaging nearly 74 years. A healthy place to live in, we judge.

The Spiritualists have secured for their meetings in Temperance Hall, next Sunday afternoon and evening, Mr. Eben Cobb, of Boston, who comes highly recommended as one of the very best test mediums in this vicinity; and those who attend will be favored with a good soul-awakening and mind-convincing entertainment. He will be ably assisted by Mrs. A. L. Pennell.

Duputy Sheriff Stephen Upton has been re-commissioned. He is the oldest deputy of the county, having received his first commission in 1823, and has been, with the exception of half a dozen years, continuous, thus making more than a half century's service, and is still hale and hearty. He has held commissions from six sheriffs.

Messrs. Beggs & Cobb, of Woburn, have leased of Mr. Stephen Blaney the currying shop on the Crowninshield Place — recently occupied by George Plummer & Co. We understand the new occupants will manufacture grain leather, and will run the place to its full capacity, turning out some 800 sides a week.

In our local items of the last issue, we should have acknowledged the present of a fine fifteen pound turkey—the gift of Mr. Horace Poole, of Dubuque, Iowa. This is not the first time we have had occasion to thank our generous friend for similar favors.

Mr. H. P. Gale, station agent at the depot, has been forced by failing health to resign his position. He has many friends whose sympathy will follow him wherever he may go. Mr. G. M. Fasset has taken the position.

The long winter evenings can be made a little more enjoyable by subscribing for the PRESS, if it is not already among your home comforts.

SWEEPING MARK-DOWN SALE

— OF —

MENS', YOUTHS', BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S

OVERCOATS,

ULSTERS,

ULSTERETTES,

SUITS AND PANTALOONS.

Take Time and read this bill through carefully.

According to our usual custom we shall inaugurate on MONDAY, JANUARY 3d, our great Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Men's Youths', Boys' and Children's Clothing.

The unparalleled success and the large increase in our sales for 1880, has proved beyond a doubt that we give better clothing for the money than any other dealers in Essex County. We are now prepared to offer some of the most wonderful bargains ever known in the history of the clothing trade. As we are manufacturers of our own clothing and do all our business for cash, paying cash for our purchases, we secure the best goods at the very lowest prices; and as all our sales are made for cash we can afford to offer superior inducements to our patrons; it will pay you to come a hundred miles to purchase clothing at this great mark-down sale.

We give below a list of a few special bargains.

— $3.00, 4.00, and 5.00 —

"Letters pour in daily, sometimes by dozens, scores and hundreds, to Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., in grateful acknowledgment of the great benefits received from his "Favorite Remedy." These are all read with care and interest by him, as they frequently illustrate the power of the medicine in some new, and, perhaps, hitherto untested phase of operation. But it is when a sufferer comes miles to tell the story of his deliverance in person, to grasp the doctor by the hand and greet him as a true and valued friend, that the interest in his case deepens and multiplies."

Turks are arrested and examined, and encouraged to speak the truth by the application of red-hot irons to the soles of their feet.

The second small locomotive for a narrow-guage railroad in Japan was finished recently at Lawrenceville, Pa. It is a beautiful little engine, with a gauge of only twenty inches. The ordinary width of a narrow-gauge railroad is thirty-six inches; so that this is sixteen inches smaller than the usual size. The dimensions of the locomotives's cylinder are twelve by sixteen inches. During five years he was practically a member of her tribe, leading their rude life and hardly ever seeing a white man. He died recently. To a former white companion he said that his marriage had been exceedingly happy and that he had never desired to leave his savage surroundings.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

INVALID LADIES

Who will send a postal card, simply bearing their address, will receive, prepaid by mail,

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

237 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend it to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy, and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere Houte, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is praising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rheumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the applicatton is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

ASSABET MILLS,
MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

FEMALE MIDDLE CLASS EDUCATION GERMANY.

The culinary art forms part of the education of women in Germany. The well-to-do tradesman, like the mechanic, takes a pride in seeing his daughters good housekeepers. To effect this object, the girl on leaving school, which she does about fourteen years of age, goes through the ceremony of confirmation, and is then placed by her parents with a country clergyman, or in a large family, where she remains one or two years, filling what may almost be termed the post of servant, and doing the work of one. This is looked upon as the apprenticeship to domestic economy. She differs from a servant, however, in this, that she receives no wages; on the contrary, her parents often pay for the care taken of her, as well as for her clothing. This is the first step in her education of housekeeper. She next passes, on the same conditions, into the kitchen of a rich private family, or in that of some hotel of good repute. Here she has the control of the expenditure, and of the servants employed in it, and assists personally in the cooking, but is always addressed as Fraulein, or Miss, and is treated by the family with deference and consideration. Many daughters of rich families receive a similar training, with this difference, however, that they receive it in a princely mansion or a royal residence. There is a reigning queen in Germany, at the present moment, who was trained in this way. Consequently, the women of Germany are perfect models of order and economy. The richest lady, as well as the poorest woman, is well acquainted with the market-price of provisions; and it gives one real satisfaction to see her bustling about from one part of the house to another; now peeping into the nursery to see how the children are going on, then looking into the kitchen to see that the cook is doing her duty, and that everything is perfectly clean, and generally giving an eye to everything and everybody, and keeping all well up to their work. In short, she is the very soul of the house.

OLD TIME VALUE OF GREYHOUNDS.

The existence of dogs which hunted by sight and not by scent is mentioned by Arrian, who is also known by the name of the younger Xenophon. What the precise class of dog was to which he refers cannot now be discussed, but the fact remains undisputed that dogs existed in the second century which hunted by sight, and this is one of the characteristics of the modern greyhound. From the frequent reference, moreover, to this class of dog in the writings of all sporting authors from the most remote periods, it is evident that greyhounds were always the popular dog with sportsmen; and it is further noticeable that they were employed in the capture of animals other than hares in those days. The wolf and the wild boar were both hunted with greyhounds, who must presumably have been both larger and more powerful dogs than those of the present day, or they would have been unable to have coped with such powerful foes. As a proof of the value set upon greyhounds, it is remarkable that prior to the signing of Magna Charta by King John we learn that the destruction of a greyhound was looked upon as an act "equally criminal with the murder of a fellow man." We are further informed that greyhounds were "frequently taken in payment as money by the kings for the renewal of grants, and in the satisfaction of fines and forfeitures." One fine paid to King John, in 1203, consisted of 500 marks, ten horses and ten leashes of greyhound; another, seven years later, was one swift running horse and six greyhounds.

RUNAWAY HORSES.

The horse that has once acquired the habit of running away, says "The Book of the Horses," will bolt on the first opportunity. If you suspect his intention, the best plan is to check it the moment he begins to move, taking hold of one rein with both hands, and giving it one or two such violent jerks that the rogue must pause or turn round. Then stop him, and, if you doubt your being able to hold him, get off. Perhaps a too vigorous "plug" may make him cross his legs and fall—not a pleasant contingency, but anything is better than being run away with in a street. In open country you may compel the runaway to gallop with a loose rein until he is tired, or to move in a constantly-narrowing circle until he is glad to halt. A ten-acre field is big enough for this expedient. But the great point is to stop a runaway before he gets into his stride; after he is once away few bits will stop a real runaway—a steady pull is a waste of exertion on the rider's part. Some horses may be stopped by sawing the mouth with the snaffle, but nothing will check an old hand. Another expedient is to hold the reins very lightly, and on the first favorable opportunity, as a rising hill, for instance, to try of succession of jerks. But the cunning, practised runaway is not to be so much feared as the mad, frightened horse. The mad horse will dash against a brick wall, or jump at spiked railings of impassable height. I once saw a runaway horse, after getting rid of his rider, charge and burst open his locked stable door.

Let us remember that no earnest man, in any time, ever spoke what was wholly meaningless; that, in all human convictions—much more in all human practices—there was a true side, a fraction of truth, which fraction is precisely the thing we want to extract from them, if we want anything at all to do with them.

Self-love is at once the most tenacious of our sentiments—a mere nothing wounds it, but nothing on earth will kill it.

HAPPY CHILDREN.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Parties living at a distance, (except in surgical cases,) by sending a statement of their case can be treated at home.

Miscellaneous.

A BOHEMIAN OF PARIS.

Emile Durandeau, who died a short time ago at Asnieres, was a typical Bohemian to the very last day of his life. He had enlisted in the Zouaves, and when he left the army he brought with him all that sharpness which enables the Zouave to live better than the rest of his comrades on the same pay, while his habits of industry had not received any remarkable stimulation during his period of military service. His capacity for drawing caricatures was undeniable, but, like the rest of his friends, he did not believe in earning his livelihood until stern necessity compelled him to execute orders given him and neglected by him. He was one of the few who could boast of having boarded gratis at the famous establishment of Dinocheau, who provided the meals of artistic and literary Bohemia, and had a talent for extorting payment from even the most recalcitrant or impecunious customer.

When he went round after breakfast or dinner to collect the money, and found that neither threats nor persuasions could extract a single coin from the pockets of one of his customers, he appealed to the company present to subscribe the sum due among them and spare their comrade the shame of going away with a dinner for which he had not paid. Usually this stratagem was crowned with complete success, but Durandeau was the most difficult debtor the astute Dinocheau ever had to deal with. For fifteen long years Durandeau patronized the establishment of his friend Dinocheau, whose mother, who was his cashier and bookkeeper, is said never to have got over her surprise when she found that Durandeau owed nearly £800 for breakfasts and dinners which had been placed against his name. Dinocheau one day persuaded him to give him a bill at three months for £20 on account. His consent was wrung from him with some difficulty, and was only given in exchange for a promise that the bill should not be discounted.

Each day he was reminded of the time when the bill fell due, and as it drew nearer and nearer, and he was quite confident of doing what he had promised to do, his credit increased, and the restaurateur regularly petted him. On the appointed day Dinocheau took the bill out of his portfolio, and, placing it in his pocket, called on his debtor. He entered the apartment of Durandeau and asked him if he was ready to carry out the engagement. Durandeau said he was, and telling his friend to sit down, began to talk about the money he owed him. The restaurateur acquiesced in every remark made, but at last, anxious to return home, he asked for the sum named on the bill. The caricaturist expressed surprise at such a remark, and begged his interlocutor to read the promise written on the stamped paper. The word "parlerai," had been put in instead of "paierai," consequently the signer of the note had only promised at the end of three months to "speak" to M. Dinocheau of the £20 he owed him. The latter was furious at first, but soon cooled down, thanking his lucky stars that all his customers were not Durandeaus.

MAKING FLAD BROD.

We dismounted at Gjelde, and found ourselves in a mountain hut or cottage, the interior so dark that we could scarcely distinguish the long deal table and a rough chair or bench here and there, and a bed in the recess. A woman, the sole occupant, appeared glad to see any one coming up from the world, though that world might be no larger or more important than Aardal. Opposite this hut was another, where sat a woman and a girl near a braize fire in a chimney almost as large as the hut itself. The woman was rolling out some oat-cake dough into the thickness of a sixpence, large and round, about two feet in diameter. When rolled it seemed tough and hard, more like paper than anything else. This, with acrobatic dexterity and the aid of a long thin stick, she tossed upon a large flat piece of iron, a sort of frying-pan without sides, and placed it upon the embers. When baked it is tossed again on to a pile lying beside her. This was called "flad brod," and flat it certainly was in every sense of the word; tasteless, and containing, one supposed, a small amount of nourishment. But the Norwegians seem able to keep life in the body with what would be gradual starvation to other people. No doubt their free, healthy life, which calls for the smallest possible wear and tear of the nervous system, counts for a great deal in the matter. For, with it all, they are hardy and contented. The old woman sitting near her braize fire, baking her bread, was a veritable picture; a strange picture of life, full of rough power; a certain silent eloquence that carried its lesson, if one choose to see the application. She looked at us in a kindly manner, and nodded, but never moved from her position, or ceased from her work.—Good Words.

AN ELEPHANT TAKES A WALK.

A large elephant escaped recently from a circus at Versailles, and indulged in a short promenade through the streets, to the dismay of the passers-by, who hastily took refuge in the nearest houses. The animal walked into the garden of the Hotel de France before steps could be taken for his removal to the circus. A whole body of police tried in vain to coax him from his retreat, and the voice of his tamer, who soon arrived on the scene, was equally ineffective. At length it became evident that force would have to be used. Accordingly a number of stout ropes were fetched, and the elephant, being firmly bound in them, was with a great deal of trouble partly pulled and partly pushed to his stable.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physicians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Water town, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough—and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

ABSENT-MINDED.

One of the most amusing cases of absent-mindedness of which we have heard for some time, occurred in this city recently. A prominent and very successful business man, whose place of business is in the Fourth Ward, being requested by a lady friend of his, who is a stranger in the city, to go with her to the post office, where everything was made satisfactory. Our man of affairs had hired a small boy to hold his horse until he would transact his business in the post office.

After satisfying the clerk as to the identity of the lady, he took the mail out of the box and hurried back to his place of business on foot, leaving the small boy still guarding the horse. Arriving at his office, he proceeded to digest the contents of the numerous letters, and then with characteristic promptness answered those that needed replies, and started back to the post office. As he approached the latter place he noticed, standing at the sidewalk, a horse that struck him as being remarkably like his own elegant roadster.

He wondered who could be the fortunate possessor of an animal so completely resembling the one that was the pride of his heart, and immediately the thought that he would like to secure this one, and thus be able to turn out with a match team that would make him the object of envy of all horse fanciers in the country, took possession of him, The more nearly he approached, the more striking became the resemblance, and the more anxious he became to purchase, until his memory startled from its slumber by the piping voice of the small boy who held the horse inquiring:

"Mister, are you pretty near ready to take your horse?"

There that faithful youngster had been standing in the broiling sun for an hour or more holding that horse, while its owner was entirely oblivious to the fact that he had driven it there that day. The feelings of that business man may be imagined, but not described. It may reasonably be supposed that if kicking himself would do any good, he would not be able to sit comfortably for a week.—Hartford Courant.

NOT A POLICEMAN.

The other night two rough-looking customers got into a quarrel about 12:30 o'clock on the corner of a Galveston street. They were both bad men, who ordinarily did not know what fear was, but they knew each other's prowess, and hence they were unwilling to bring on the conflict. They were the two hardest cases on the Galveston Island. They walked around each other like two lions, gritting their teeth, with their fists doubled up, and muttering curses. A man in dark clothing was standing near the lamp-post, quietly watching the progress of events.

"If it wasn't for that policeman there I'd have your heart's blood," said one, edging up closer to his antagonist and gritting his teeth.

"Your lips would be closed in death now if it was not for that same policeman," said the other, glaring like a tiger.

"Gentlemen, I am no policeman; I am just looking on," said the spectator.

The two gladiators drew closer to the man to satisfy themselves that they could rend each other unmolested. The man smiled and said: "Sail in gentlemen, I won't hurt you."

Having satisfied themselves that the spectator was a harmless, timid man, one of the gladiators reached out from the shoulder and sent the amazed third party reeling into the street.

"Hit him agin, Jimmy," yelled the second ruffian, planting a well directed kick that lifted the flying man off the ground.

The spectator ran like a turkey, and finally made his escape, closely pursued by the two deadly enemies. When explaining to his friends how he came by the black eye, the victim tells a very different story, and deprecating the inefficiency of the Galveston police, says he shall regret to the last day of his life that he did not have the legal authority to arrest the ruffians, and take them both to jail.—Galveston News.

GOOD ADVICE TO MARRIED PEOPLE.

A worthy wife of forty years' standing, and whose life was not all made of sunshine and peace, gave the following and impressive advice to a newly-married pair of her acquaintance. The advice is so good and well suited to all married people as well as those entering that state, that we here publish it for the benefit of such persons:

"Preserve sacredly the privacies of your own house, your married state and your heart! Let no father, mother, sister or brother ever presume to come between you or share the joy or sorrows that belong to you two alone. With mutual help build your quiet world, not allowing your dearest friend to be the confidant of aught that becomes your domestic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur, be healed at once. Never, no never, speak of it outside, but to each other confess, and all will come out right. Never let the morrow's sun still find you at variance. Renew and renew your vow; it will do you good, and thereby your minds will grow together, contented in that love which is stronger than death, and you will become truly one."

Those who speak always, and those who never speak are equally unfit for friendship. A good proportion of the talent of listening and speaking is the social virtue.—Lavator.

Modesty is the appendage of sobriety, and is to chastity, to temperance and to humility as the fringes are to a garment.—Jeremy Taylor.

THE CHINESE are terror to the people of the Pacific coast as immigrants to this country, and there is a general sentiment there that they must go. But the Newburyport Herald declares that the evil and the danger have been greatly exaggerated, as the people of that part of the country have suffered manifold more from the gambling style of doing business, fostered by mining interests, than what they have from Chinese cheap labor, or Chinese filth and disease. There is a greater danger to the ship building and commercial interests of this country and Europe from the Chinese at home. They are not an inventive people, as they must have been at some period in their history, but they are exceedingly patient, skillful, industrious, and ready to learn of others. A Chinese mechanic can make anything which he has once seen made, and a Chinese merchant or statesman is exceedingly quick to learn any superior method in business or in diplomatic management. The government has been sending the bright young men, of late years, to Europe and America to be educated, and while they have learned the Western culture and methods they have not ceased to be Chinese. This has been done for a purpose, and it is not far to seek. The British government, for its own selfish purposes, opened China to trade, and the French and Americans, very shortsightedly, helped in this movement for the British advantage. The Chinese government found that it must learn the methods of the Western devils in order to compete with them on common grounds, and they have been learning ever since. The Chinese Empire comprises about a third of the population of the world, and if its military power were as great as its political wisdom it would be irresistible by any combination of people of the outside world. There is a more peaceful way of competing with the outside barbarians, and it is reported that the Chinese government is getting ready for a general industrial movement, building more and larger ships, and announcing a determination to enter the lists with foreign ships for the carrying trade of the world. It is feared by those who understand the movement that no other nation will be able to compete with the Chinese for the carrying trade at rates which they will be willing to accept. They have already made a beginning in sending a steamship to San Francisco, which was well built and well furnished with engines and boilers, and it was admitted at custom house charges as favorable as those of the most favored nations. The revolution thus threatened is of much more import than the question of Chinese immigration, where the immigrants do not bring their wives and families, but come to work for a few years and then return, and where also it has proved that the invasion has decreased and is decreasing, and there are fewer Chinese within the territory of the United States at the present time than there were one, two or three years ago.

For years old John Koop of Houston, Texas, has been known as a miser. He died a few days ago of starvation, refusing food up to the last moment. He left at least fifty thousand dollars in real estate and in money. He was a hater of mankind, and hated women so much that he would not even rent his house to one of them. The miser lived in a two-roomed hovel. When he was dying the room was so dark that the doctor, who had come voluntarily to attend the man, ordered another candle lighted; but old Koop raised his head and with his dying breath expostulated and forbade the extravagance.

Remark by Dana in the Sun.—"The truth is, Universalism is becoming a part even of Orthodoxy; and when Orthodox ministers join in the exercises at Dr. Chapin's funeral they will not need to indulge in apology for their conduct. So far as concerns the doctrine which nominally separated the dead clergyman and orator from them, they are in substantial agreement with his views. They have given up hell as it was formerly preached, and their churches are filled with Universalists."

The next rehearsal of the Oratorio Society will be on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18th, when they resume the rehearsal of St. Paul.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

VARIOUS ITEMS OF MORE OR LESS INTEREST, CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

A CAT STORY.—Some time the first of the week, a cat belonging to Goss & Bird's store in the Lyceum Building was missed from the premises, and it was supposed had been stolen. On Wednesday the mew of a cat was heard in the cellar of the building where the heating apparatus is located, and, after a search, it was discovered that the animal was in the dome of the furnace. The janitor of the hall was notified of the fact and measures were taken to release the prisoner. The only means of communication with the air chamber is by the register on the stage through the heating flue. A basket and rope were procured and lowered down the pipes to the furnace, a distance of some twenty feet, when pussy jumped in and was hoisted from her prison, evidently gratified at having escaped cremation.—Marblehead Messenger.

The well water famine in this city continues. We hear of many families who do not take city water, being compelled to melt snow to use both for drinking and all other domestic purposes.—Lawrence Sentinel

INTOXICATING COMPENSATION.—We are informed upon good authority that the pay of a Signal Service officer for the proposed new station on High Rock in this city is twenty-five cents a day! For this princely sum he is only required to be at the station every midnight, and may loaf around the rest of the twenty-four hours—that is, provided the elements are quiescent; but even if they are unruly, he has only to rush to the Rock from Kite-End, or Wapping, Woodend, or Pinter-Town, or wherever he may happen to be at the call of the telegram, hoist the signal, and be happy. Oh there'll be a rush for that office.—Lynn Transcript

Social circles have been somewhat exercised during the past week, by the withdrawal from home, on Thursday afternoon, of Mrs. Lillian B. Abbott, wife of Mr. Nathaniel Abbott, and the disappearance of several valuable articles of jewelry and silver ware from the house. A warrant was issued for her arrest, and she was brought from Boston to Salem early on Friday morning, and gave bail for her appearance at the District Court on Tuesday morning, C. T. Jenkins, Esq., and Miss Dr. Sherman becoming bound for her. The articles, or most of them, taken from the house were recovered by the officers.

Later, a warrant was served on Mr. Abbott and an attachment levied on property to a large amount, to await the issue of a libel suit for divorce entered by Mrs. A., returnable at the April term of the Supreme Court. These are generally understood to be the simple facts in the case, the merits of which are to be decided by the courts. Meanwhile, gossip, as usual, is very busy, but not always reliable.—Register.

Gates Russ, a former tenant of the town farm, but who has lately occupied a shanty in that vicinity, froze his feet so badly during the cold snap that it is feared amputation will be necessary. He has been taken back to the town farm.—Lawrence American.

Mead & Webb have leased the store formerly occupied by J. M. Bassett, and are now moving in their goods. Friend David is to follow soon with the post office. We understand parties from Peabody will open a dry goods store in the same building soon.—Mirror.

The bill of General Butler for legal services rendered the town of Danvers in the suit by the Ipswich Mills, is only $150 a day, or $825. The town had better have bought the Mills at the start, even if it wins the suit. It is thought that Butler helped the case fully as much as our wife's grandmother would have done.—Danvers Mirror.

As Brother Shepard has no wife, we infer that Gen. Butler's services did not help the town a great deal.

The course of Mr. Parnell in walking out of the court that is trying him on the grave charge of conspiring to incite the people to revolt, going to London, and taking his seat in Parliament, is about as contemptuous both toward the Court and the Crown as any act could well be. It shows the tremendous strength of the Land League party. So also do the broad concession of the Queen's speech. Very grave complications will arise before this question is settled.—Sun.

SALEM.

SALEM FRATERNITY.—During the year 1880 the Library of the Fraternity has received by purchase or gift 697 books and 1589 magazines and pamphlets. In the Reading Room may be found the Boston daily papers, all of the Salem papers, most of those of the county, and large numbers, both secular and religious, from the different sections of the country. The total number of persons visiting the rooms during the year has been 45,938, of which 14,291 visited the Amusement Room, 11,620 the Reading Room, and 2980 the Woman's Room. About 1200 persons have patronized the Library, and 14,767 books have been taken out. The officers of this institution would be mast grateful for donations of money, books or magazines. They receive no appropriation from the city, and depend entirely upon the help of the generously disposed for the increase and improvement of their library.

Hose Two held a very pleasant Social Assembly at their house on Thursday evening last. Mayor Calley and others of the city government were present, and a good time and excellent supper were enjoyed by all. Their next will be a White Apron Party, and will occur on the evening of Jan. 20th.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Naumkeag Street Railway, the following Directors were chosen: Abner C. Goodell, (President) Wm. Mack, Chas. T. Jenkins, Henry Wheatland, Richard P. Waters, Nathan Nichols and Charles Odell.

The Mechanic Hall Corporation has elected the following named gentlemen as Directors for the present year: F. C. Butman, L. B. Harrington, Daniel Potter, B. Shreve, Charles Harrington, I. P. Symonds and Albert Day. Chas. Harrington was chosen Treasurer, and A. A. Smith, Clerk.

Bennett & Moulton's Juvenile Opera Company will present H. M. S. Pinafore at Mechanic Hall, on Thursday evening, Jan. 13th; and Bells of Corneville on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, Jan. 14th and 15th.

Extensive alterations are soon to be made in the Osborne building, corner of Central and Essex streets. It is leased to new parties, and the present hat store will be turned into a gentlemen's furnishing goods establishment. The Register will be called up higher.

A large number were present at the uniform party of the S. M. L. Infantry, at Armory Hall, on Wednesday evening last. It was given in honor of the visiting Gloucester company, and was highly enjoyed.

Opinions to the contrary notwithstanding, we believe that Pickering's, 200 Essex street, is the best place in Salem to obtain a soft or stiff hat.

Foster's Philadelphia Candy store, 244 Essex street, Salem, is an attraction to all who visit Salem. Such candies are found at no other store this side of Boston.

The Naumkeag Clothing Company announce that their store will be open every evening. This is owing to such an unprecedented trade, that they as public benefactors feel it their duty to accommodate.

Some weeks ago, Sir John Astley offered to wager $10,000 that he could name two English pedestrians, one of whom would defeat any man in America in a six days' go-as-you-please contest, and the other of whom would defeat any American in a six days' heel-and-toe match. He named Charles Rowell for the go-as-you-please match, and Harry Vaughan for the heel-and-toe contest. O'Leary yesterday forwarded a draft for £1000 to the London Sporting Life, to cover the stakes deposited by Astley. O'Leary named himself as the contestant in the heel-and-toe match with Vaughan. The match will take place at New York, the second week in April.

Sara Bernhardt still proclaims that if any preacher libels her from the pulpit she will sue him. She is right. The only libel which is privileged in this country is that committed by a lawyer under the shadow of the Court, and in the interest of his client. Outside of the temple of the law a lawyer who would libel his fellow-citizen would be subject to the usual penalties, but inside of the court-room it seems that, in petition, or brief, or argument, any lawyer may commit any libel with impunity.—Shoe & Leather Reporter.

PEABODY.

WEST PEABODY FARMERS' CLUB. The first meeting called by Mr. E. C. Farwell to form a Farmers' Club in West Peabody, met at School House Hall, on Saturday evening, Jan. 1st. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Horatio Bodge. Mr. John E. Herrick was chosen chairman for the evening; and Mr. L. B. French, secretary pro tem. A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. W. P. Upham, E. C. Farwell and D. A. Small, was appointed to prepare a copy of the Constitution, which was finally presented and accepted. A committee of three—Messrs. J. F. Ingraham, Joseph Shed Needham and T. E. Durkee, was appointed to present a list of names for permanent officers, and reported the following list:

President—John E. Herrick.
Vice Presidents—D. A. Small, W. P. Upham.
Secretary—E. C. Farwell.
Treasurer—T. C. Durkee.

The club at present consists of twenty-three members, and many others have signified their intention of joining.

The following question was presented for discussion for Friday evening, Jan. 7th: "Can market gardening be made successful in this county in the face of Southern competition?"

The meeting was well attended, and the question ably discussed by Rev. Willard Spaulding, Jos. Shed Needham and J. F. Ingraham.

There seems to be a general interest among the farmers and citizens generally to promote the success of the club. Meetings will be held every Friday evening until further notice.

We clip the following from a New Hampshire paper, bearing date of Jan. 7th, concerning Rev. Mr. Colwell of Pittsfield, N. H., who has received and accepted a call to preach at the Chapel in South Peabody, and will commence his labors there February 1st:

Rev. J. W. Colwell preached a retrospective sermon at the Congregational church, on Sabbath last, which was of deep interest, as it contained many church statistics as well as timely allusion to prominent events of the year just closed. With the boldness of Christian manhood, yet with eminent grace, he frowned upon the vicious practices of our time, and his allusions to the recent election were truly refreshing, especially to one who could confidently say in answer to all the charges, "It is I." We love to hear the hot shot of reproof rattle around the ears of a God forgetting congregation, and only wish we had more ministers in the land who are not so firmly anchored to their salaries as to dare to preach the entire truth.

The cutting and pasting of our paper calls to mind the following story told by a Chicago paper, that had been making similar improvements: A subscriber of twenty years' standing called at the office soon after the sheet appeared in its cut and pasted form, and sadly said: "I've been takin' your paper ever sence the big cholera year, but I'll have to stop it now." "What's the matter?" inquired the clerk. "The matter is that the paper ain't no account to us any more. It used to fit the pantry winder exactly, and made a good curtain, but the way you've got it all pasted together now spiles it for our use. The boys can't even make kites out of it. It's all right, I s'pose, but it don't suit me. I won't cut down the size of my pantry winders for any newspaper in creation."

The annual meeting of the Essex County Odd Fellows Mutual Benefit Association was held at Odd Fellows' Hall, Newburyport, last Thursday.—Officers were chosen for the year ensuing. Several amendments to the by-laws were adopted. During the year $14,238 have been paid to the families of deceased members. Holten Lodge of Peabody has eight members who belong to this Benefit Association. Assessments are now due in Class A and R, on account of the death of Dr. Moses B. Kenney, late of Lawrence, and Benj. H. Jacques, late of Newburyport.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.—We find that the Unitarian Society's contributions in aid of the Society, for the past six years, average $43.15 per year.

WHERE'S TOM?—There is an ugly story floating about town to the effect that Mr. Thomas J. Goodwin, of the firm of Goodwin & Smith, eloped, during the latter part of last week, with a woman known as the "Widow Pope," who is a widow, and yet not a widow, having lost one husband last August, but still has another one left in Nova Scotia. Mr. Goodwin is a married man, his wife being in feeble health, and, it is said, in destitute circumstances. Before leaving, Mr. Goodwin collected between three and four hundred dollars of the firm's money, but by the aid of Mrs. Goodwin, Mr. Smith, the junior partner, secured most of it the day before Mr. Goodwin left. It was known that he had in his possession two tickets for Chicago, and it is presumed that he is traveling with his paramour in that direction. It is asserted, too, that within a short time he has borrowed sums of money from various parties in town, with an eye, probably, to a sudden departure, and also leaves many unpaid bills behind him. We are sorry to be obliged to chronicle such stories, and sincerely hope that in our next issue we shall be obliged to take it all back, and say instead, that Tom, in his sudden departure from our midst, had not the slightest idea of leaving his family and friends for good, and merely went to see some of his "cousins and his aunts," or to attend a convention of horse-shoers in the West; but circumstances at present look as though we shall have no occasion to make retraction.

JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA.—The agent, Mr. W. H. Fentress, who represents the Publishing House of A. J. Johnson & Co., of New York, has been in Salem with this great work since May 1st, 1880, and has delivered over 220 sets to subscribers in that city. He now takes Peabody in connection with Salem, and our citizens will have an opportunity of examining the finest work of reference in our language. The terms are the most liberal ever offered upon any work of like character, and it comes within the reach of almost every one. Mr. F. comes with the very highest recommendations from prominent gentlemen of Salem and elsewhere as to his personal character, and the fair manner in which the business is conducted by his house. The work bears the highest recommendations from the leading scholars in our country, and many in our midst, including Professor Hagar, Dr. Bolles, Prof. Perkins, Supt. of Schools Mr. Small, ex-Mayor Oliver, etc., etc.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.—Rev. M. J. Masterson read to his congregation the financial standing of the church, and delivered an account of the work done during the past year. The total expenditures for 1880 were over $10,000. $80,000 have been paid during the last ten years, and $31,000 of this amount have been paid during the last 3 years, There now remains a debt of some $18,000 on the church.

It is rumored that the choir in St. John's Church will have a sleigh ride, on Tuesday evening next. They will probably go to Chebacco.

The popular manager, H. B. Hooper, is making arrangements to have a false stage one foot higher than the present one, so that every person at the Institute shall be able to see. The Bells of Corneville, by Bennett & Moulton, will be the first company to act upon it. Mr. Hooper surely is doing everything in his power to bring first-class companies here, and we hope our people will appreciate his efforts, and give him a packed house, as he deserves. Deacon Crankett comes in February.

Mr. William H. Lunt, of Shanghai, China, son of Wm. J. Lunt, of Malden, formerly of this town, has arrived home after an absence of nearly ten years. He has been in the employ of the East India Steamship Company, and holds the position of first officer of one of the steamers plying on the coast of China.

The new room of Women's Christian Temperance Union, over A. H. Whidden's store, will be dedicated by appropriate services from the clergymen of the town, on Friday, Jan. 14, at 3 P. M. All interested in the cause are invited.

Choice New Orleans Molasses at Donnell & Bradford's.

The Commissioners of this county have paid, this year, $65,000 of the county debt, and nearly $160,000 more remains unpaid, $25,000 of which can be liquidated next year, without incurring increased taxation. By the recent law of the legislature, fixing cases of simple drunkenness at $1, the county has lost $5000 from last year. The net proceeds from the labor of prisoners in the county houses exceeds those of other years, and there has been quite a falling off in the number of prisoners. The work done too, has been far better than in other years. The receipts will show a balance of $3000 over the expenditures of the year just closing.

The following complimentary notice of a former employe of this office, appeared in the Brockton Advance:

Mr. Philip A. Putnam, who for some time past has held the position of foreman of the Advance office, has resigned his position and returned to his home in Danvers. We have found Mr. P. an excellent workman, and hope his lot may be "cast in pleasant places."

Mr. Calvin Pierce, for several years past foreman for Mr. Charles G. Folsom, has taken the shop on Nichols Lane, recently occupied by C. P. Bomer, and will continue in the carpenter and millwright business.

During the "slippery" spell the past week there was a good opportunity for men to show their christianity by scattering ashes upon the sidewalks in front of their respective property.

We have a new carrier on the Lowell and Franklin street route, and any one who does not receive his paper regularly will confer a favor by communicating immediately with the office.

At a meeting of Holten Lodge, I. O. O. F., last evening, Mr. Charles A. Sanger was elected Permanent Secretary, in place of Mr. George A. Whitney, who declined serving.

There will be an evening service next Sunday at the South Congregational Church, at seven o'clock. Sermon to young men by Rev. Mr. Sperry. Seats free.

Mr. Charles M. Poor has gone into partnership with Mr. Wm. F. Wiley in the currying business. A good firm, and we hope they will do a good business.

That "boss compositor" is a great bluffer, if all we hear is true. He generally tackles small boys or men who are religiously opposed to betting.

Mr. Phineas Wiley, father of the late H. O. Wiley, of this town, died at his home in Roxbury, Vt., Jan. 1st, at the advanced age of 91 years.

Mr. William F. Sawyer has been busy as District Deputy Grand Master in installing the officers of the several I. O. F. Lodges in Salem.

Don't forget this is only the second week after New Year's. If you "swore off," it is a duty you owe to yourself to stick.

Nothing Remains.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

Nothing remains of unrecorded ages
That lie in the silent cemetery of time;
Their wisdom may have shamed our wisest sages,
Their glory may have been indeed sublime.
How weak do seem our strivings after power,
How poor the grandest efforts of our brains,
If out of all we are, in one short hour
Nothing remains.

Nothing remains but the Eternal Spaces,
Time and decay uproot the forest trees,
Even the mighty mountains leave their places,
And sink their haughty heads beneath strange seas;
The great earth writhes in some convulsive spasm
And turns the proudest cities into plains;
The level sea becomes a yawning chasm—
Nothing remains.

Nothing remains but the Eternal Forces,
The sad seas cease complaining and grow dry,
Rivers are drained and altered in their courses,
Great stars pass out and vanish from the sky,
Ideas die, and old religions perish,
Our rarest pleasures and our keenest pains
Are swept away with all we hate or cherish—
Nothing remains.

Nothing remains but the eternal Nameless
And all creative spirit of the Law,
Uncomprehended, comprehenseless, blameless,
Invincible, resistless with no flaw;
So full of love it must create forever,
Destroying that it may create again—
Persistless and perfecting in endeavor,
It yet must bring forth angels, often men—
This, this remains,

Hope.

What is hope? A smiling rainbow
Children follow through the wet;
'Tis not here, still yonder, yonder;
Never urchin found it yet.

What is life? A thawing iceberg
On a sea with sunny shore.
Gay we sail; it melts beneath us:
We are sunk and seen no more.

What is man? A foolish baby,
Vainly strives, and fights and frets;
Demanding all, deserving nothing;
One small grave is all he gats.

Selected Story.

Dr. Bistour's Night-Watchman.

"Tell you what, doctor, you'll be getting robbed and murdered one of these days; you will, upon my word."

"Hardly, my boy. You aught to know by this time that its the province of us doctors to kill other people, not to be killed ourselves," and with a thick chuckle at his own wit, Dr. John Hunter Bistoury settled himself comfortably in his chair, and began to peel his third orange as carefully as though he was taking off a limb.

"Look here, doctor, I'm not joking—I'm not indeed! Everyone knows that you are a rich man; and it's got abroad that there's a room in your house which is always shut up—the very thing to make people think there must be something very valuable stowed away there; and yet, after all that, you go on living in this big house without a soul near you except the cook and old Sam yonder, who wouldn't be worth a cent in a real serimmage!"

"Well, my boy," said the doctor with a curious smile, "would it tranquilize your mind if I were to engage a night-watchman?"

"I should think so. That would be just the thing."

"Very good. Consider it done."

This room, of which Harry had spoken as being "always shut up," was a standing puzzle to the doctor's few intimates. Not a man of them had ever crossed its threshold; and its master when questioned on the subject, answered oddly by some joking evasion. Rumor whispered that one adventurous gentleman, rendered desperate by his wife's threat to give him no peace till he found out "what Dr. Bistoury kept hid in that room ot his," had actually attempted a burglarious entrance; but the attempt, if ever made, had been unsuccessful. It is needless to say that countless conjectures, and not a few heavy bets likewise, were constantly made respecting the contents of this Bluebeard chamber.

Against this ingenious theory there was only one thing to be said—the doctor had never had a wife to immure. The flagrant treason against the sex was the more unpardonable inasmuch as he had abundant opportunities of changing his condition, had he but chosen to avail himself of them. To most of those who questioned him on the subject, he replied that he was wedded to his prosession, and that any other union would be flat bigamy; but to his friend Harry Everette, in a moment of after-dinner confidence, he told a very different story.

"My medical cousin Alice was the woman who ought to have been Mrs. Bistoury, and an admirable fellow-practioner she would have been for me. The way in which she once cut a splinter out of my thumb, did equal honor to her hand or heart; and when she was only thirteen, she bought a skeleton with her uncle's birthday gift of five dollars—a fact—and articulated in a manner that was really masterly. But in an evil hour she became tainted with a fancy for homeopathy; and after that of course all was over between us. Such is life!"

The doctor'o agreement to engage a night-watchman quieted Harry's apprehensions for the time being, but a few weeks later he returned to the attack once more. "I say, doctor, have you got that night-watchman yet?"

"Yes, some time ago."

"Well, he don't seem to do his duty, then, for I've passed this way at all hours of the night, and never seen him. Are you quite sure he's to be trusted?"

"Wait and see," said the doctor, oracularly.

And Everette waited but did not see. The invisible watchman remained as invisible as ever; and Harry, out of patience with his friends seeming infatuation, had almost decided to take some decisive step on his own authority, when a new complication introduced itself into the drama. This was nothing less than the temporary retirement of the doctor's veteran man-servant—popularly known as "Old Sam"—whose health had begun to give way so manifestly that his master insisted on sending him into the country on a three month's holiday, replacing him with another man, who had volunteered as promptly as if he had been keeping his eye on the place for a year past. The new comer was a grave, smooth-faced tactiturn man who moved as noiselessly as a shadow, and seemed a living combination of the two proverbial requisites of a good servant, silence and obedience.

But although the doctor and his friends highly approved of this model domestic, there was one man who did not. That one was Harry Everette, who lost no time in announcing his opinion. "Look here, doctor, I don't want to be always bothering you about this robbery idea, but it's a fact that that new fellow of yours is up to some mischief. I was coming home pretty late last night, when I caught sight of him standing at the garden gate, talking to a couple of men. One of them happened to turn his face to the lamplight as I passed, and I knew him at once for a noted thief who goes by the name of 'Badger Bill.'"

"Indeed! Are you sure of that?"

"Quite sure. You know I never forget a face I have once seen."

"Ah! In that case it is time for me to act."

The last word was so curiously emphasized, that Harry, who was not wanting in shrewdness, began to suspect that his persistent warnings to the doctor had been superfluous, after all, and that the old gentleman was quite equal to the emergency.

This suspicion was confirmed one evening about a week later, when the doctor dropped in on him unexpectedly, saying:

"Give me some dinner, my boy. You have no engagement for this evening, I know, so I'm going to be very benevolent, and find you some amusement myself. Have you ever read the Count of Monte Christo? because you're going to see a character of it dramatized to-night, and pretty effectively, too."

"What do you mean?" asked Everette, staring.

"Why, you see, I told my servants a few days ago that I should be away from home to-night, and my cook naturally seized the chance of getting an evening out; consequently the house will be under the sole charge of that worthy man-servant of mine, against whom you are so unaccountably prejudiced. It's quite possible the two honest gentlemen with whom you saw him talking the other night, may be kind enough to enliven his solitude with a visit; and so—"

Harry sprang to his feet and cut a caper worthy of a dancing dervish, snapping his fingers by way of accompaniment.

"Capital! first rate! I see it all now! But come now doctor, why on earth couldn't you tell me before that you were up to the whole game, instead of letting me make a fool of myself by preaching to a man that is as smart as any six of me?"

"Never mind, my boy," said the doctor, laughing. "Your warning was kindly meant, all the same. Eat your dinner—you'll want it before the evening is over, I can promise you—and then we'll have our talk."

"Dinner over, the doctor lit one of his incomparable cigars which were his sole luxury; and proceeded to expound his plan of action.

"I've locked up the outer room that opens into my mysterious chamber, which puts two strong doors between it and robbers. My estimable servant will warn them of this, and they'll try the window instead. He'll let them in by the garden door, and give them the ladder that lies beside to mount it by. We'll hide in the stable, which—thanks to my keeping my brougham elsewhere—has been unused so long that no one would dream of suspecting it, but I can open the door easy enough."

"And then," broke in Harry, eagerly, "we'll go for them the minute they appear. It'll be a fine chance to use my new revolver."

"Better leave it at home," said the doctor, quietly, "we shall want no weapons for this job."

"Why, are you going to mesmerize the fellows?" asked Everette, completely mystified.

"Wait and see," chuckled the doctor. "We needn't be there till eleven, for my honest domestic will make sure, before giving the signal, that I'm not coming back, and besides, an experienced burglar seldom begins work till after midnight. The only thing to be sure of is that nobody sees us getting in."

But in this for tune favored them, and as the doctor had fortold, the lock of the stable door, rusty as it looked, moved without difficulty, and the two conspirators glided in unseen and unheard.

Weary, weary work, crouched there in the darkness, with ear and eye strained to the utmost for the sign of the coming danger. Dr. Bistoury's practiced nerves bore even this prolonged trial easily enough, but to the impulsive, excitable Everette it was absolute torture. Like all young soldiers, he found the suspense before the action infinitely more trying than the fray itself. The stable opened on the street, close to the garden door, and its farther windows, at which the two watchers had posted themselves, commanded the whole side of the house, the blackness of which was relieved only by a solitary light in one of the upper windows. Suddenly the light vanished and re-appeared a moment later—a performance repeated three times in quick succession.

"That must be the signal," whispered the doctor. "Now keep your eyes open, Harry."

Courageous as Everette was, he felt his pulse quicken; and his hand went instictively to the revolver which, despite the doctor's verdict, he had persisted in bringing with him.

"Hark! Was that a stealthy footstep outside?"

The next moment came a long whistle, instantly answered from the house, and then a shadowy figure issuing from the building, glided noiselessly to the garden door and opened it to admit two others.

"They've got the ladder," whispered Dr. Bistoury, as the three phantoms glided across the garden. "Be on the lookout, my boy, you're going to see something worth seeing!"

The ladder was soon placed against the mysterious window, and Badger Bill after whispering to his comrade to "keep an eye" on their worthy confederate, ascended, and cutting out a pane so dexterously that the sound was barely audible, put his hand through and shot back the hasp. His two assistants mounted after him, and Bill stepping cautiously into the room, turned the bull's-eye of the lantern upon its interior.

Instantly the treacherous servant recoiled with a stifled cry: "Ain't that a coffin over yonder?" whispered he, tremulously. "Good gracious! suppose there should be a dead person in it, and—"

"S'pose you should be a thunderin' big fool" growled Bill, savagely. "Shut yer mouth, will you, or thar'll be another dead man somewhere round soon. I'm goin' right in—I am!" and he stepped resolutely forward.

Crash, the coffin-lid burst open, a skeleton, thrown out in ghasily relief by the red light that flamed in its eyeless sockets, started up with a hideous rattle, thrusting forward its bony arms and grinning jaws as if about to spring upon them. The sauve qui peut of Napoleon was not more decisive. The honest servant gave one yell sufficient to wake the whole neighborhood, and rolled on the floor in convulsions. The second burglar leaping backward, dashed his head with such force against the corner of a bureau, that he dropped as if felled with an ax, while Badger Bill, making a frantic rush for the window, overturned the ladder and fell crashing along with it, breaking his leg in the fall.

"You see now, Harry," said the doctor, as they went up stairs after seeing their unbidden guests marched off by the police, "that my night-watchman did know his duty, although there is nothing more unearthly about him than a few concealed springs, which are released upon the approach of anyone, and a little phosphorus. As for this wonderful room, you see it's only a laboratory, after all. But the stories that people told about it amused me so much that I must plead guilty to having given them encouragement. Now, let us be off to bed; and I think you may sleep in peace after this, for it strikes me it'll be some time before anybody robs my house again."

And indeed, no one has ever attempted it since.

Ladies' Department.

Tam O'Shanters are now made with plaid crowns crossed by puffs of plain color.

Fringes, having each strand finished with a jet ball, are used to trim satin dresses.

Plush-covered bottles of hot water are carried in the muff to keep the hands warm.

Collars and cuffs for morning wear are made very large and are embroidered in colors.

White, yellow and read are the colors most in vogue for evening crosses this Winter.

Kerchiefs of black hernant, edged with fringe, are worn with mourning costumes.

A pretty design for a bronze represents a little child trying to lift a heavy Greek vase.

When you see an ulster out in the rain be sure that the wearer will have a cold the next day.

Apron fronts are either embroidered or trimmed with shirring and applications of jetted lace.

White plush is the newest trimming for bridal robes. It is becoming and stately in effect.

House dresses are made to fit rather tighter than last Winter, and no longer suggest dressing gowns.

Sicilienne and brocade, in pale colors, are the favorite materials for young ladies' evening dresses.

Sugar plums may be packed in wooden buckets with satin covers, if one wishes a pretty case for them.

Illusion sleeves, with puffs separated by hands of the dress material, are still worn for evening dress.

When the Elizabethan ruff is worn on a dress, frills of crepe lisse and lace are always set inside of it.

The peasant dresses have the merit of being exceedingly cheap, very little trimming being required for them.

Little garlands of Pompeian red flowers are worked on the long evening gloves that reach above the elbow.

The prettiest way to wear a fur boa is to have it make the upper border of a pretty hood of satin edged with fur.

The gilding ink which is used for decorating baskets and fans is bought by the bottle, and is very easily applied.

Shell jewelry is fast going out of fashion, and the imitation of it is bought by the very few persons who wish to wear it.

Anecdotes.

HOW A MEAN MAN GOT BEATEN.—Yesterday morning a poor man who had just arrived in Little Rock, and who didn't have enough money to buy a cheese sandwich at half price, borrowed a shovel, and, stopping in front of a wealthy man's house, shovelled the snow from the sidewalk. Then he rang the door bell. Colonel Slippery, the owner of the mansion, came to the door. "If you please," said the poor man, "I have shovelled the snow from your sidewalk." "If I please?" "Yes, sir, if you please." "Well, what are you going to do about it?" "Being very hungry I thought that you would give me 25 cents." The Colonel is the stingiest man in Arkansas, and the idea of surrendering 25 cents was a desperate one. "See here," said the Colonel, "I wanted that snow to stay where it was. If I hadn't wanted it on the sidewalk, I should have put up a shed. I wish, sir, all the snow in town had fallen here; for I was raised in the North, and this snow is the only Northern idea that I have ever seen introduced here, I am half inclined to have you arrested for trespass. Put that snow back where you found it. Put every flake of it back." The poor man turned and scooped up a shovelful, when the Colonel exclaimed: "Go ahead; I'll let you off." The poor man went away, and the Colonel chuckled over his breakfast. "I've saved twenty-five cents," he mused, as he passed through the gate and started up town. "I was just thinking about hiring some one to clean it off." The poor man went away and after awhile returned with a lot of tramps and shovels. When the Colonel came home to dinner he found a bank of snow ten feet high in front of his door. He paid three dollars and a half to have it removed.

Miscellaneous.

THE COMMISSARY IN QUEEN BESS'S TIMES.

The average cost of the pay and entertainment of each soldier appears to have been at this time 4s. 8d. a week. The title of Lieutenant is now generally substituted for that of Peticaptain. As might be expected, the course of warlike operations in the last three reigns is chiefly traced through the accounts of army contractors. These are interesting in themselves, as displaying the enterprise of English merchants, as well as the price of commodities and their distribution in the counties. The importance of this subject cannot be over-estimated when we remember how large a share of the difficulties of the nation at the time of the Armada was caused by defective commissariat arrangement. A very regular table of the average wholesale prices of grain, cattle, &c., might be compiled from these accounts. The localities of their production, too, are fairly uniform; thus the midland counties supply cattle, the eastern grain, and Suffolk butter, cheese and bacon, and the north coal. Much cost and labor were expended in conveying fuel to distant garrisons. Thus timber had to be exported to Ireland, fagots and coal to the Channel Isles, Scotland and France. With regard to this subject a curious exaction is extant in an account in the reign of Henry VIII. of the costs of making "Talwoode, Billettes, and faggots, as wel within H. M. owne woodes as in all other woodes to whomsoever they apperteyne within the county of Kente." With respect to rations, the troops do not appear to have fared very sumptuously. The following are some of the allowances to the army in Ireland between 1598 and 1604: Beef (salt or fresh) or pork, 1 to 2 pound per man once a week; Newland fish and John Dory, 1½ fish, or 6 to 8 herrings, or 1 ling among 5, once a week. One to 1½ pints of peas or oat-meal or 1½ pound rice once a week. One-half to ¾ of a pound of butter twice a week. One pound of cheese once a week. One pound of biscuits of a day. The clothing was somewhat expensive for the times, though noticeable for the small difference in price between the uniform of the officers and privates. That of the former cost from 53s. 10d. to 62s. 10d.; of the latter, from 32s. 10d. to 41s. 2d. In connection with the clothing of the Irish army at this period, we meet with the names of two contractors—Ury. Babington and Robert Bromley, both London merchants—notorious as the perpetrators of one of the most gigantic frauds in the history even of our commissariat. The particulars of the case will be found in the "Exchequer Decree Book," 12 and 13 James I. It will be sufficient to mention here that these worthies pocketed £180,000 of public money, by keeping nearly half the troops for a number of years without clothes, suppressing the evidence of the officers by a lavish distribution of hush-money.—The Antiquary.

A RICHARD III.

On one occasion I was acting the principal character in an equestrian adaptation of "Richard III.," in which every arrangement had been made with the view to a grand striking display at the close of the piece, immediately after the encounter between Richard and the Earl of Richmond, in which the monarch is killed. About forty horses and a body of supernumaries representing the rival armies are massed within the ring, forming an imposing tableau. The dead King, being thrown across a horse, the procession winds slowly out. The fight commenced. My fierce and relentless opponent Richmond was represented by Miss Ada Jacobs—once famous as Mazeppa—who, after a long and terrible passage of arms, thrust her cruel blade between my left arm and my side, and I fell to the ground as dead as Julius Cæsar. My eyes were closed, but I heard the tramp of the horses' hoofs as they entered the ring, some of them coming unpleasantly close to my head. I was wishing that they would not come quite so near, when suddenly a foot came down firmly upon my chest. I struggled over and sprang up—I, the dead monarch!—and in doing so, well nigh upset my opponent Richmond, who, to add an unrehearsed feature to our tableau vivant, had set her foot upon the breast of her fallen foe! The reader may imagine the burst of laughter which greeted this absurd conclusion of a highly tragic display; nor was the merriment confined to the audience, for the performers joined most heartily in it, though they knew that for a moment it had given me a terrible fright. However, "Richard was himself again" with a vengeance, though at the wrong part of the performance, and his humble representative had proved anew the truth of the adage that there is but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous.—Chambers's Journal.

USE GOOD LANGUAGE.

A writer, advising the youth to abandon slang and acquire the habit of writing and speaking good plain English, says: "The longer you live the more difficult the acquisition of good language will be, and if the golden age of youth, the proper time for the acquisition of language, be passed in abuse, the unfortunate victim of neglected education is very probably doomed to talk slang for life. Money is not necessary to procure this education. Every person has it in his power. He has to use the language he reads instead of the slang he hears; to form taste from the best speakers and poets of the country; to treasure up choice phrases in his memory, and habituate himself to their use, avoiding at the same time that pedantic precision and bombast which show rather weakness and vain ambition than the polish of an educated mind.

Earthly pride is like the passing flower—springs to fall, and blossoms but to die.

NANTUCKET'S JAWBREAKERS.

We doubt, says the Literary World, if other forty square miles of civilized American territory are to be found more crowded with unpronounceable names than Nantucket. The island, discovered by Gosnold in 1602, settled by the English half a century later, distinguished forty years ago as having the largest whaling port in the world and now fast taking on the proportions and style of a fashionable summer resort, still holds its own out of the remote past remarkably. Its nomenclature establishes its pedigree. Beginning with Indian times, we find it divided into the territories of the Four Sachems—Potconet, Autopscot, Wauwinet and Wanackmamack. Sankaty, Nobque, and Nauma, are its three extremities. Coskata, Coatue, Pocomo, Vnaise, Squam, Polpis and Madequet are among its precincts. Its numerous ponds of fresh water are known by such names as Capaum, Waqutuquaib, Mioxe, Miacomet, Nebadeer, Wewedeer, Madequecham, Toupchue and Sachacha; and Weecodnoy Neck, Napchecoy Head, Chappemis Valley, Sconcet Bank, Nahuma's Neck, Wannacomet Field, Shawkemo Field, Masquetuck Land, Nashayte Neck, Herecater Swamp, Shawkemo Hills, Tashana's Island, Massasoit Bridge, Popsquatchet Hills, Shimmo Creek, Taupawsha's Swamp, Tetaukimmo Moona, Okorwaw, Tautemo and Colockta are some of the names which the stranger on Nantucket will have to learn before he can know where he is and find his way around. We have spelled them as nearly right as we can, and if there are not enough we will furnish more on application.

A FRENCH HEROINE.

One of the celebrities of the Paris markets is a woman who keeps a vegetable stall and who wears the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor. This woman, Annette Drevon by name, was formerly cantiniere to the Thirty-second regiment of infantry and to the Second regiment of Zouaves, which she accompanied through the campaigns of Africa and Italy and during the war with Germany. Of the seven or eight female members of the Legion of Honor she is the only one who has received the distinction for an act of valor upon the field of battle; and she was decorated after the battle of Magenta for rescuing the regimental colors from two Austrian soldiers who had captured them. During the war with Germany she was with the Thirty-second regiment in Metz, and upon the surrender of that fortress she was sent off to Germany with the survivors. Just outside Metz, a Bavarian soldier insulted her, and she pulled out her revolver and shot him through the heart. For this she was condemned to death, and she would have been shot but for the intervention of Prince Frederick Charles, who, hearing that a woman was to be executed, made inquiries into the case, the result being that Annette Drevon was set at liberty. She lived in great poverty for some time, but Marshal MacMahon happening to hear about her gave her a sum of money sufficient to enable her to set up the stall at which she now sells carrots, turnips and other aids in digestion.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE HUMAN MANUFACTORY.

A man may eat and drink heartily all day, says an unknown writer, and sit and lounge about, doing nothing, in one sense of the word; but his body must keep hard at work all the time or it will die. Suppose the stomach refused to work within ten minutes after a hearty dinner, the man would die in convulsions in a few hours; or cholera or cramp-colic would rack and wreck him. Supposing the pores of the skin—meaning thereby the glandular apparatus with which they are connected—should go on a "strike," he would in an hour be burning up with fever; oppression would weigh upon the system, and soon become insupportable. Suppose the liver became mulish, food would be loathed, torturing pains would invade the small of the back, and the head would ache to bursting. Suppose the kidneys shut up shop, and danger most imminent, sufferings unbearable, and death more certain would be the speedy and unenviable result. If the little workshops of the eye should close, in an hour he would not shut or open them without physical force, and in another hour he would be blind; or if those of the tongue should close, it would be as dry as a bone and stiff as steel.

NATURE AND SILVER-PLATING.

Nature can do her own silver-plating. In the Lord of Lorne mine, of the American Flat section, the sides next to the veins and the hanging walls of the ledge are covered with a thin coating of natural plating of pure silver as smooth as glass. The vein itself is narrow, and is being prospected by means of a tunnel. The Superintendent says this peculiar feature of the inclosing walls is observable so far as the tunnels has followed the ledge. The ore of the vein itself is of a soft, easily-worked nature, showing considerable chloride as well as sulphurets, yet not giving very high assays. The filmy deposit of silver on the walls was evidently condensed and forcibly deposited there under immense pressure, as it has a smooth, burnished appearance.

Never hold any one by the button or the hand in order to be heard out; for, if people are unwilling to hear you, you had better hold your tongue than them.—Chesterfield.

As sins proceed they ever multiply; like figures in arithmetic, the last stands far more than all that went before it.—Sir Thomas Browne.

HINTS TO BARBERS.

It is safe to say that nine out of ten of the men one meets in the streets in our cities shave, or rather are shaved. Some shave the mustache, some shave the chin, some the cheeks. Indeed, one must go into mathematics to the tables of permutations and combinations to find how many varieties of shaving are possible. Woman is accused of being the party who devotes her time to appearances and frivolties of the mirror, but, after all, man does his share of it. The reason he escapes the charge is that he blandly sets down his decorative work as being a matter of necessity. And it is true that shaving is a very old custom, nor have we anything to say against it, except that it is unnatural, and is, and should be acknowledged to be, a concession to the looking-glass and to vanity. But the point is that old as is the art it is a singular thing how few know how to shave. "Nearly all men shave in the passive voice." This may be taken as the grammatical phrase or as an acknowledgment of the voice of the barber which they have to endure. Each signification is true. And while nearly all consent to refer their shaving to a few who make it their business, only a fraction of that few understand their art. There is a financial blunder at the bottom of it that makes trouble all through. The dogma that a shave is a shave is a mistake. One man with a stiff beard and a full face will choose to have his whole expansive countenance clean shorn; another will shave on his upper lip. To each it is "a shave" and each is charged alike. One may require thirty minutes' attention, the other ten minutes. The first will dull a razor, the second not affect its edge. To each it is ten cents. Now, a barber's working day we will assume is ten hours long. If he is occupied three-quarters of the time he must be busier than usually appears. This gives him seven hours' labor, and if he struck a day of half-hour faces his whole receipts would be $1.40. If his luck gave him ten-minute cases he would take in $4.20. Even this would not pay were it not for the seductive side issues—the hair cuts and shampoos of the trade—that bring in more per hour than the fundamental industry. Now, as the price and the circumstances of shaving go, it is a constant hurry to finish a man, as shaving scarcely pays at the best, and if he is one of the most absorbing subjects, full shave and a stiff beard, it is a loss to work upon him. To shave him carefully takes too much time and costs the edge of the razor. To skim over his face, cutting off sections of beard here and there, and leaving odd cases of hair along the deserts of the cheek, saves the razor and spoils the person who pays for the operation, and who should not be entirely forgotten. The scale of prices ought to be regulated by what one gets, and barbers ought to have the courage to charge for what they do. This done, a revolution in the art would follow. Speed would not be the great aim. Attention could be given to the removal of the beard, which, in old times, it was as important to remove as the lather, and the man who went out of the barber's shop would leave satisfied, instead of hoping that the next time it would be better. We recommend these considerations to the trade without charge for the advice. Shaving is a custom of civilization; playing with soap bubbles is a game of childhood. It is now a matter of luck which of these operations falls to the barber's patron to-day.—Mark Twain.

ANIMAL DOCTORS.

Certain animals, including especially the dog, horse, mule, elephant and cat, but also the chimpanzee, orang, various apes or monkeys; the pike or other fishes; sheep and other animals, not unfrequently become voluntary patients, and sometimes notably patient or submissive, quiet and uncomplaining, as well as intelligent, patients of the physician or surgeon. Not only so, but having themselves experienced the benefit of man's medical or surgical skill, they bring their young or their fellows as patients to him, and they co-operate with the physician or surgeon in his treatment, either by showing the patients what to do, or by compelling their acquiescence in man's arrangements for their behoof. As medical or surgical patients, moreover, some of the lower animals stand in the most favorable contrast to man—in respect, for instance, to their sagacity, self-control, fortitude, gratitude or other virtues that are brought into prominence by suffering and its relief. There are many instances of war or regimental elephants in India going regularly, day after day, of their own accord, to military hospitals, to get wounds dressed, usually after having been taken there once or twice by their mahouts. They submit themselves to any necessary operations; understand the surgeon's object and co-operate with him; express pain and relieve themselves by plaintive groans, though obviously regarding the infliction of pain as a necessary or unavoidable part of the operation, prepare themselves for suffering by drawing in the breath as man does, recognize and put confidence in the surgeons' voices and persons as those of friends. Of an adult male elephant we are told, "That the surgeon might operate, he readily extended himself on the ground and bore with patience the application even of burning caustic. The acuteness of the pain would sometimes force from him a plaintive groan. But to the doctor, who, by inflicting momentary torments, sought to accomplish his cure, he expressed the liveliest emotions of gratitude."—Our Dumb Animals.

COST OF BRINGING UP A BOY.—A clergyman who has been discoursing about boys has devoted considerable attention to the cost of these somewhat necessary individuals, and he estimates the expense of bringing a good boy, with all the advantages of city life, to the age of fifteen, at about $5.000.—These figures are about doubled by the time the boy is of age, if he goes through college. A bad boy, arrived at the age mentioned, costs fully as much, even if he has not been to college, and the computation, as the reverend gentleman suggests, does not include the value of mother's tears and father's gray hairs. Most men who have brought up boys will agree that the estimate is not too high.

☞ A LIVING CLOCK.—The human system is a kind of machine. If one part is seriously out of order the whole goes wrong. The blood in circulation is the mainspring. Keep this all right and you will not suffer from kidney and liver disorder, piles and constipation. And in offering you Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" as the most successfully regulator of the human machine ever discovered, we oblige the sick and suffering more than we oblige Dr. Kennedy. Invest one dollar for a bottle at the store, or walk all the way to the doctor's office at Rondout, N. Y., rather than not get it.

We sometimes hear it sneeringly said: That man's father was a bootblack; or that lady's mother was a washerwoman! The sneers, of course, are directed against those who are trying to make some figure in the world. Would it not be well for us all to put on the robes of humility? The ancestral beginning of every one of us was hardly worth bragging about, and what is worse, we greatly fear, that our posterity a thousand years from now will be heartily ashamed of us.—Health Monthly.

It is to the credit of the New York Sun, strongly democratic as it is, that it refused the publication of the Morey letter, which was offered to it, believing it to be a forgery.

Once in four years the papers all announce that immediate steps will be taken to crush out that hydra-headed monster — polygamy. Every able-bodied Mormon immediately takes a new wife and says yum-yum.

The Farmers' Gazette is authority for the statement that fence posts, if placed in the ground inverted, or in the opposite direction to that in which the wood grew, decay very much slower than when placed in what might be called the natural position.

Book Notices.

THE SCORE for January has seven musical pieces of varied character, all good of their kind, and criticisms by Louis C. Elson on Berlioz's Symphonie Fantastique and Liszt's Faust Symphonie. The music in this number is worth three times the dime it costs. Published by John F. Perry & Co., Boston, at $1.15 a year.

LEAVITT'S FARMER'S ALMANAC for 1881 is the 95th number of this favorite annual, and still it is bright and cheerful, carrying pleasure to thousands of households. It is published by Edson C. Eastman, Concord, N. H. The name of Dudley Leavitt will forever mean a reliable almanac.

The January number of the Musival Herald is at hand, replete with its usual amount of good music, able criticisms, and items of interest. With this number it begins the second year of its existence, and with its able corps of writers, the musical public may look forward to its sustaining the high reputation it has made during the last year. The subscription price has been placed at $1.50, the subscriber having the privilege of selecting music to the value of $1.50 from a list of more than five thousand pieces free.

We have received from the publishers an advance copy of the Baltimore Sun almanac. It is a neatly got up book of seventy-two pages embodying a great variety of new and valuable facts bearing upon matters of general public interest.

The BOSTON HOME JOURNAL, always one of that city's most popular family papers, will be greatly improved for the coming year, having new features and several additions to its interest. George M. Towle, the popular lecturer upon our celebrated cotemporaries, will contribute a series of articles upon "Famous men of our age," which will prove a great attraction. Kate Keith, from Washington, and Percival, from New York, will continue their interesting letters, and the other departments will be kept well up to the high standard established heretofore. The readers of the JOURNAL have great treats before them.

Liberal inducements are offered by the proprietors to any person in this town desiring to get up a club. It is a good chance to make money.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!
Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Semiual Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.
Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:
I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.
II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.
III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.
IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.
V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.
VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.
Our terms are as follows:
For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.
The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.
The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,
Publisher of THE SUN, New York City.

THE NEW YORK
EVENING POST
FOR 1881.
In Its Eighty first Year.
The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.
1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.
2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.
3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first-class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents, not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their complete ness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.
4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.
5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions, which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, JAN. 12, 1881.

Grave Statistics.

In New York city during the past year (1880) there were 1360 deaths by violence. One person was killed by lightning during the year, 256 by drowning, 237 by fractures and other wounds, 158 by vehicles, 96 by scalds and burns, 240 by falls, and 30 by suffocation; and 155 individuals took their own lives. That is, violence was responsible for about one in twenty-three of the deaths, and suicide for about one in 205. The deaths from all causes numbered 31,866, or 3524 more than in 1879. Of these 5,868 were victims of consumption, 3960 of diarrhœal diseases; 2976 of pneumonia; 2732 of cerebral and nervous diseases; 1473 of Bright's disease; 1450 of diphtheria; 1441 of bronchitis; 1192 of heart disease, and 10,765 of about every disease that flesh is heir to."

Consumption carried off more than fifteen hundred more people in 1880 than in 1879—5,868, against 4,343. There were also over four hundred more deaths from pneumonia—2,976, against 2,554; and bronchitis was more fatal, the deaths from it being 1,441, against 1,263. Cerebral and nervous disorders continue to furnish nearly ten per cent. of the mortality. Bright's disease carried off about a twentieth of those who died, and cancer, which both there and in New England seems to be on the increase, was the cause of about one death in every forty-four.

THE OLD WORLD.—The Land Bill for Ireland, it is reported, will certainly include provisions for fair rents, free sales, state aid for the purchase of land, and probably for fixture of tenure.

A coercion bill is to be introduced into Parliament, permitting the partial suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in Ireland, and ordering the suppression of "Boycotting," if necessary, by the aid of troops.

Lord Beaconsfield's speech at the opening of Parliament was very weak, and he appears broken in health and spirits.

Secret societies of various sorts are very active in England, some of which are supposed to be connected with the Land League, and some with the Russian Nihilist movement.

Mr. Tennyson's new play, "The Cup," has achieved a wonderful success in London. The fashionable and unfashionable world alike throng the theatre and fill every inch of space.

American securities are in the greatest demand in the London stock market.

War between Turkey and Greece is said to be inevitable.

Mr. Shaw, of the Irish Land Commission, has made a startling speech in the British House of Commons in favor of the Land League which it was expected he would condemn.

The Republicans in France are victorious in most of the municipal elections. Not one Communist has been elected.

A syndicate has been formed in Calcutta to introduce the East Indian tea into the United States.

Peabody's Fireside Favorite commenced its fourteenth volume with improvements. A handsome new head and running titles at the top of each page are among them.

The gem of the evening was the "Poetical Wooing" by Mr. Charles Atkinson and Miss Clara Ellard.—Boston Courier.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.—The Lowell Mail has been looking over the messages delivered on Monday by the several Massachusetts mayors to ascertain what each had to say on the liquor question. The mayor of Lowell hoped "that the labors of the mayor and aldermen may contribute in some degree to evoke from the contention, temperance and virtue." The mayor of Springfield recommends that the number of licenses should be diminished. "No one," he says, "can claim a license as a right, or justly complain if his request for it is refused." The mayor of New Bedford "hopes the aldermen will guard the sale from abuse, by requiring the shops to be closed on the Sabbath, reasonably early at night, and the entire absence of screens, etc."—The mayor of Fitchburg boldly declares his belief that "the liquor tariff can be better regulated under a license than under a prohibitory law." The mayor of Haverhill recommends that "the act of 1880, providing that druggists and apothecaries may be licensed for a fee not to exceed one dollar, be ignored, and urge the aldermen to take such action on the question of granting licenses to other dealers as shall best promote the cause of temperance, morality and the public welfare." The mayor of Holyoke thinks "our sense of what is right and proper will not permit us to grant licenses to those who keep disorderly and disreputable places," and he hopes the question will be settled in a manner satisfactory to the friends of temperance and good order, and at the same time do no injustice to any whose interests are involved. The mayors of Boston, Lynn, Lawrence, Worcester, Cambridge, Gloucester, Newton, Taunton, Salem, Chelsea, Somerville, Newburyport and Fall river are reported to have made no mention of the question. The prohibition current does not seem to be setting in very strong in the cities of the commonwealth.

THE MESSENGER.—We congratulate the citizens of old Marblehead upon having the handsomest, neatest and best printed paper in this county. The Messenger enters upon its tenth volume enlarged and improved. We have always felt a parental interest in the Messenger, as its early life was begun in this office. Its vicissitudes have been numerous since it was launched upon the field of journalism, but through the enterprise and push of its present owners, N. Allen Lindsey & Co., has been steered over the shoals which threatened disaster until now it stands in the front rank of Essex County newspapers.

THE POPULAR VOTE.—There has been some interest as to the popular vote for President; the Chicago Times, independent paper with Democratic proclivities, some time since figured out a plurality for Hancock. Recently, it has revised its table, from additional official returns, and now concedes a plurality of 2300 for Garfield. We give its report, as follows: Total vote, 9,210,695; Garfield, 4,445,838; Hancock, 4,443,535; Weaver, 308,486; Dow, 10,835. The small scattering vote is not mentioned. These figures are not all official; but it is apparently safe to conclude that Garfield has a small plurality.

We have received the first number of the Essex Statesman, (which we are pleased to place on exchange) a new 32 column newspaper, published at Marblehead by Mr. Charles H. Litchman. We do not think Marblehead is large enough to support two local papers, but as we understand it, the Statesman will be published in the interest of the Greenbackers—who have no paper in this county, except an apology for a newspaper in Danvers, the Essex County Review—and as such we believe they have a good field, and wish them success.

ICE.—The steady cold weather of this winter so locked up the ponds as to give a thickness of ice that gave our ice dealers a big enough field for harvesting without being obliged to obtain a source from the waters of New Hampshire, as was the case last year. One result of this abundance should be that the price could be put at a figure that will admit of the laboring classes purchasing it. If that result follows, then there will be some compensation for the suffering from the bitter cold weather.

In the case of the Ipswich mills against the town of Danvers, for compensation on account of damages arising from the use of the water of Middleton and Swan's ponds by defendant, the committee has awarded to the petitioner $5495 for the diversion of the water from the former and $2500 for that from the latter pond. The finding in the Swan's pond case depends upon a contingency yet to be settled.

Mr. Henry Wardwell, our Representative to General Court, has been placed on the Judiciary Committee, with Cogswell of Salem and Lodge of Nahant.

Almost everybody who had a horse was out enjoying the fine sleighing on Sunday.

WE ADVERTISE TO-DAY

That the New York Evening Post, which is in its eighty-first year, will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York. Read the prospectus on the third page.

That Mr. Joseph Poor, trustee of the estate of the late Sarah Poor, will present for allowance the account of his trusteeship on the first Monday of February.

That an entertainment in aid of the Ladies' Benevolent Society will be given at the Unitarian Chapel, Wednesday evening, Jan. 19th, consisting of music and the "Elixir of the South," a monologue by Miss Susan Hale. The object of this society is so well known we have no doubt the entertainment will be well patronized.

That Miss A. S. Teele will give some illustrated readings in the Unitarian Chapel, next Friday evening.

That the co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm name of Goodwin & Smith, is dissolved, and that the blacksmith business will be continued by Mr. Jessie H. Smith.

That William Donnell retires from the firm of Samuel Donnell & Son, and that the business will be continued by Samuel Donnell & Samuel Donnell, Jr.

That parties wishing to solicit votes for the numerous articles to be disposed of at the G. A. R. Fair, may obtain books of W. W. Reed, Chairman on Prizes.

That the next of kin and all others interested in the estate of the late Abel Proctor are notified to appear at a Probate Court in Salem on the first Monday of February.

That Henry Peirce has been appointed assignee of the estate of B. B. Humphrey, insolvent debtor, and that the second meeting of creditors will be held on the eighth day of February next.

That F. Torrey Upton, Pianist and Teacher of Music, will visit pupils at their residences in Peabody.

That the building in the rear of Mr. C. A. Thomas' provision store is offered to let.

The New York Sun comments as follows on the new law regulating the fine for drunkenness: "A law reducing the fine for public intoxication to $1 for each offence has been in force a year in Massachusetts, and is an acknowledged failure. The idea was the lightness of the penalty would cause it to be inflicted in every case, and thus drunkenness would be reduced. The period of imprisonment was lengthened to thirty days or more, with a view of incarcerating habitual drunkards." The Springfield Republican says: "The State has lost about $250,000 in fines and costs which would otherwise have been paid by the drunkards. This would have been no loss, perhaps, if the offenders had been put in the way of restraint, but, as it is, little remedial influence has been derived from the law."

England's eye seems to be in a Fenian frenzy rolling. The precautions taken in England against the seizure of arms or the seizure of sentries on guard by somebody, are very much the same as in Ireland, and the country is the prey of war's alarms. The reports we get from day to day by cable of fires set in lumber yards, and of imaginary torpedoes put under ironclad ships, show very clearly in what a state of trepidation the country is. If a little powder is blown up on a window sill, it becomes a grave matter of investigation. It is only a question of time when innocent tourists from this side of the water will be dogged by detectives, and when nervous announcements will be made that men with beards cut in the American fashion have been seen hanging about old castles, and making memoranda of their weak points in note books.—Sun.

YOU WILL NOT BE SORRY.—For being courteous to all;
For doing good to all men;
For speaking evil of no one;
For hearing before judging;
For holding an angry tongue;
For thinking before speaking;
For being kind to the distressed;
For asking pardon for all wrongs;
For being patient toward everybody;
For stopping the ears of a tale-bearer;
For disbelieving most of the ill reports.

The Legislature convened on Wednesday. President Bishop of the Senate and Speaker Noyes of the House were re-elected without opposition.—Stephen N. Gifford of Duxbury, was re-elected Clerk of the Senate for the twenty-second time, and Rev. Edward Dowse, Chaplain. George A. Marden of Lowell, was re-elected Clerk of the House, and Oreb F. Mitchell of Bridgewater, Sergeant-at-arms.

The highest salary ever paid in Boston was that of the late J. Wiley Edmands, who, at the time of his death, was receiving $50,000 per annum as treasurer of the Pacific mills of Lawrence. The highest salary paid to a bank president in Boston at present is $10,000, and the highest to a cashier is $3,500.

Torchon laces at Peabody's.

It is never too late to mend, unless, indeed, we accept the dogma of the possibility of "Sinning away the day of Grace," and it is a hopeful sign that the President is interesting himself in the Ponca Indians, with the view of wiping out the blackest stain that ever smirched our fair scutcheon. There are two sides, at least, to most questions, and as a set off to the traditional injustice of our government towards the Indians are the fiendish barbarities which the frontier settlers, men, women and children have suffered from their hands. But in regard to our treatment of the Poncas there is but one side, and that is wholly the wrong side, and no ingenuity of sophistry could torture language into a plea in our defence. They are not savages, but civilized and christianized men and women, having farms, workshops, good houses, schools, churches, and all the appliances of the most advanced condition to which the red man has ever attained. Their lands were solemnly confirmed to them by the deliberate act of the Government, and no real estate owner in the country has a more indefeasible title to his house or land, according to every recognized principles of law than had these people to their territory. Yet with the grossest injustice unparalled in the history of civilized nations, aggravated by the most wanton and heartless cruelty, our soldiers were instructed to drive them away, and they were driven at the point of the bayonet, their cultivated fields, their houses, cattle, utensils and household stuff being left to the spoilers. Hundreds of the women and children perished from exposure and ill treatment, and men and even chiefs, who had always been friendly to the whites, fighting for them against the neighboring savage Sioux, were shot down for no other provocation than that they dared to protest in words against the outrage. Universal indignation has been excited throughout the country and the world that a Christian nation should thus disgrace itself, and at last even red tape gives way and there is a prospect that those of the tribe who survive their treatment may receive some show of justice, and also that there will be a general remodelling of the Indian service.

RESOLUTIONS.

At the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Warren National Bank of Peabody, Jan. 11, 1881, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, Dr. George Osborne has felt it to be his duty, on account of advanced age and infirm health and strength, to resign his office as Director of this Bank,

Resolved, That we accept with feelings of sorrow the decision of Dr. Osborne not to continue longer in the position he has held for the last thirty-five years.

Resolved, That we regard the services he has rendered throughout this long term, as having been conspicuously useful, and creditable alike to himself and the Bank. Taking broad and liberal views of subjects appertaining to the interests of the Institution, and always striving to promote its welfare, his opinions and counsels were most highly valued, while his particular attention to, and conscientious discharge of, every duty devolving upon him, demands our grateful acknowledgment and thanks.

He has endeared himself to those who have been associated with him in the management of the Bank, by the kindly feeling he at all times manifested, and will leave with them pleasant recollections of their meetings together.

Ordered, That these Resolutions be entered on the Records of the Bank, and that a copy be sent to Dr. Osborne.

Attest,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER was observed in Peabody by union meetings of the Old South, the Baptist and the Methodist Churches—two nights with each church—and alternately led by the pastors of the above churches, respectively. The subjects were the same as given by The Evangelical Alliance of the World, and which appeared in a notice of the meetings given in this paper.

The meetings were very well attended. The Institute lecture somewhat affected the attendance on Tuesday evening, as did the storm on Thursday evening, and some were kept from attending on Saturday evening on account of those duties which usually occupy attention at the close of the week. But there were a goodly number present, even on those evenings, and the interest in the different subjects was kept up throughout the week.

On Sunday evening, there was a union meeting in the Old South Church, which well filled the body of the house, and which was led by all three of the pastors, each of whom made addresses on "The Ministration of the Holy Spirit." The subject was very interesting and the attention of the audience profound.

On that evening it was thought best to confine the addresses to the clergymen, but in all previous meetings a goodly number of the laymen in the different congregations participated, and the remarks were uniformly prompt, brief and interesting.

Of the comparison of the union meetings this year with those of former years, the writer cannot speak, as he was not then a resident of Peabody.—But while the spiritual results of the meetings are not yet as large as could be wished, the meetings certainly evinced an unanimity and a good feeling among the churches and their pastors which can be productive only of good, and at the close of the meetings the remark was frequently heard, "I wish these meetings were to continue." The same era of good feeling no doubt holds true in reference to the churches of all the denominations in town. With the churches of Peabody presided over by efficient and appreciated pastors, with no "mortgages dedicated to Almighty God," (we believe), with a comfortable supply of this world's goods, with prevailing harmony and good feeling, and with a desire for spiritual growth and improvement, what wait we for, but a breath of that Spirit without whose ministrations, "Paul may plant and Apollo water," but in vain?

INSTITUTE LECTURE.—The last lecture of the Institute Free Course was given on Tuesday evening by A. A. Willets, D. D., of Philadelphia. The lecturer's subject was "Sunshine," and surely never was so bright a subject treated in a happier manner. The lecture abounded in happy hits on melancholy, dejected, morose and sour dispositions. As every cloud has its silver lining, so every untoward event and circumstance in life, has its redeeming features. We indulge too little in introspection and too much in circumspection. Each one should examine his own heart and conscience to find out what in him is the cause of his occasional or constant gloom. Pleasant days are not weather breeders nor are blessings harbingers of evil. The lesson taught might be summed up in the words of Burns:

"If happiness hae not her seat
And centre in the breast,
We may be wise or rich or great,
But never can be blest."

Dr. Willets kept his audience in a continual state of interested anticipation for an hour and a half, and there were few that would not have gladly listened longer. We hope we may be able to listen to the genial Dr. again at some future day.

Rev. Mr. Harmon gave the second of his course of Sunday evening sermons to young people, last Sunday evening, in the Universalist Church, taking for his subject, "Business." These sermons are very interesting and instructive, and will be continued every Sunday evening during the month. His subjects will be "Amusements," "Home," and "Church."

The Women's Christian Temperance Union have opened a free reading-room over Mr. H. A. Whidden's store. A neatly painted transparency has been put out, bearing the words: "Women's Christian Temperance Union. Open every evening." This work is very commendable, and should receive substantial encouragement from all.

Mrs. H. E. H. Carter and Company, who are to give the entertainment in the I. O. O. F. Course, on Thursday evening next, have just returned from a brilliant tour in the West, where they were enthusiastically received with crowded houses.

ACCIDENTS.—On Sunday morning while Mrs. Wm. Hayes was on her way to church, she slipped and fell, breaking both bones of her right leg near the ankle joint.

On the same evening Mrs. Michael Bresnahan, while leaving the house of her son, who resides on Hancock street, slipped and fell, badly fracturing her right leg near the hip joint.

As Mr. Joseph Reed, of Holten street, and a lady friend were crossing the horse car track in front of the Warren National Bank this (Wednesday) forenoon, the runner of the sleigh caught in the track. The sleigh was overturned, throwing out both of the occupants, who fortunately escaped injury. The horse became frightened, and ran a short distance up Central street, but was stopped. The sleigh was badly demolished. This is the second runaway of Mr. Reed's within a week.

The Lawrence train which leaves Peabody at quarter past seven, was disabled this morning at Danvers, causing a delay of a few hours to the other trains.

Mr. Sumner Southwick fell in Salem, Dec. 30th, and injured his wrist so severely that he has since been unable to use it.

Mr. Thomas Jackman was thrown from a pung yesterday, and had his wrist broken.

Several runaways are reported, but no damage done.

The stockholders of the Warren National Bank, at their annual meeting Tuesday, elected the following Directors: Lewis Allen, Franklin Osborn, C. Warren Osborn, Stephen Blaney, Rufus H. Brown, John Pinder, Alexander B. Merrill, Nathaniel Symonds, George S. Osborne.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Lewis Allen was chosen President, and C. Warren Osborn, Vice President.

There are twenty-six subscribers in this town to the Salem District Telephone Exchange. The following have been added since the new year: J. E. Clement & Co., Donnell & Bradford, J. E. Trask, S. Southwick, A. F. Clark; also at the residences of R. H. Brown, F. Stanley and Rev. W. G. Sperry.

All the large cities are connected with this exchange. The operator here, Mr. David S. Claflin, amused himself the other evening by conversing with parties at Providence, R. I.

Miss A. S. Teele, of Hyde Park, will read at the Unitarian Chapel next Friday evening. Miss Teele read in the same place some time ago, but owing to numerous other entertainments the attendance was not as large as desired. Those who were there speak of her as an excellent public reader, and we have no doubt those who attend will have an evening of real enjoyment.

A party of young people met at the house of Mr. William Gunn, on the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday. Mr. G. was taken by surprise, and had no intimation of the pleasure in store for him. A seasonable hour closed the festivities. We suspect it was Emma that put him in such a dilemma.

At a meeting of the Peabody Fire Club, held last Monday evening at the Exchange News Room, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Wm. H. Little; Directors, R. H. Brown, A. W. Bancroft, Warren Wilson; Secretary and Treasurer, J. N. Estes.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the South Danvers National Bank, held yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon, the following officers were elected: President, William P. Clark; Directors, Alfred A. Abbott, Jonathan King, Isaac B. Elliot, Henry H. Proctor, Geo. A. Osborne.

At the annual meeting of the Salem Mutual Benefit Association, held last Friday evening, Mr. W. B. Richardson, of this town, was elected one of the Directors. This association is under good management, and reported in excellent condition.

Rev. Samuel Davies, one of General Garfield's Colonels in the war, will preach in the Methodist Episcopal Church, on Sunday, Jan. 16th, at 2.15, on "The Dangers and Safeguards of Our Country."

Mrs. Mary E. Bagley, of Chelsea, a noted test-medium, has been secured by the Spiritualists for next Sunday afternoon and evening services, at Temperance Hall, at 2 and 7 o'clock.

Rev. L. L. Wood will preach in the Baptist Church next Sunday evening, upon "The Descent of the Holy Spirit."

Southwick's Fish Market has been connected with the telephone this week.

Have you tried that dairy Gilt Edge Butter at Donnell & Bradford's?

Snow Flake Haxall is all the rage. Donnell & Bradford sell it.

— OF —

MENS', YOUTHS', BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S

OVERCOATS,

ULSTERS,

ULSTERETTES,

SUITS AND PANTALOONS.

Take Time and read this bill through carefully.

According to our usual custom we shall inaugurate on MONDAY, JANUARY 3d, our great Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Men's Youths', Boys' and Chrildren's Clothing.

The unparalleled success and the large increase in our sales for 1880, has proved beyond a doubt that we give better clothing for the money than any other dealers in Essex County. We are now prepared to offer some of the most wonderful bargains ever known in the history of the clothing trade. As we are manufacturers of our own clothing and do all our business for cash, paying cash for our purchases, we secure the best goods at the very lowest prices; and as all our sales are made for cash we can afford to offer superior inducements to our patrons; it will pay you to come a hundred miles to purchase clothing at this great mark-down sale.

We give below a list of a few special bargains.

SWEETSER'S

DRUG STORE,

NO. 37 MAIN STREET,

PEABODY.

Drugs and Medicines of all kinds; Toilet Articles, Sponges, Brushes, Perfumery, &c., kept constantly on hand.

Prescriptions carefully and promptly prepared.

If an editor omits anything, he is lazy; if he speaks of anything as it is, people are mad; if he smooths down the rough places he is bribed; if he calls things by their proper names, he is unfit for the position of an editor; if he does not furnish his readers with jokes, he is stupid; if he does, he is a rattle-head, lacking stability; if he condemns the wrong, he is a good fellow, but lacks discretion; if he lets wrongs and injuries go unmentioned, he is a coward; if he indulges in personalities, he is a blackguard; if he does not, his paper is dull and insipid. In short, if he edits a paper properly, and sticks to truth and facts, he is a fool, and don't know how to edit a paper half as well as his readers could.—British and Colonial Stationer and Printer.

☞ There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Back-ache Plasters.

Gentlemen who are going to take a drive should not forget that an eight-page newspaper spread over the chest is the best chest protector that can be worn in cold weather. Put it between the under and overcoat.

For sweating feet try a powder composed of salicylic acid, 13 parts, and silicate of magnesia, 87 parts. It is a German army remedy.

Rev. Thomas K. Beecher says that the work of women is not properly appreciated by men until they have camped out and tried to wash and mend their own clothing, cook and clean up after meals.

☞ HELP ONE ANOTHER? — Of course. What else are we here for? For example: Mr. Asa F. Bearse, of Cotuit, Mass., had been troubled for years with diseased liver and could get no relief.—He was not fit for business, and carried his life like a burden on his back. Just then his friend, Capt. Handy, said:—"Asa, why don't you send to Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and get a bottle of his 'Favorite Remedy.' It will only cost you a dollar, and may do you good." Bearse did so, and after a short time was sound as the dollar with which he bought the medicine. To be sure, let us help one another. Sold by all druggists.

For several months 6,000 barrels of petroleum have been running to waste in the oil regions of Pensylvania every day for the lack of tanks to store the oil, and lack of demand for its immediate use.

Statistics say that there are 12,000 dentists in the United States, and that each year they drive half a ton of gold, worth $500,000, into dental cavities.—At this rate all the gold in circulation will be returned to the earth in three hundred years.

A modern illustration of vicarious atonement is found in the case of Dr. Legoff, of Paris, who allowed blood to be pumped from his own veins into the body of a wounded soldier—the operation being that of the transfusion of blood. The sick man recovered and the doctor's health failed. He tried change of climate in hope of improvement, but without avail, and he finally died from the effects of his generosity.

☞ A food and a medicine are combined in the most perfect manner in Malt Bitters.

One of those rascally city papers, the nasty thing, says: "It is funny to see a country editor asking for cordwood on subscription, and groaning in an adjoining column about "the glut of silver dollars."

Simple wedding gowns are fashionable. They cost about twenty-five dollars a yard, and their simplicity is in the sewing.

The Herald says the rattle of his false teeth, while preaching, was one of the exercabations which worried Dr. Chapin into his grave.

Full many a gem of spurious ray serene,
The spotless shirts of hotel clerks do bear;
Full many a simple, ignorant sardine,
Believes them purest stones of value rare.

An Iowa woman has been admitted to the bar of Indiana at Indianapolis without opposition. Divorces in that state will now be easier than ever.

Niagara is now in its glory. The Horseshoe Fall is frozen solid two hundred feet from either shore, and the ice mountains in front of the falls have reached a height of upward of 120 feet.

It is said that women need one hour more sleep than men. This hour, however, should be taken in the evening, so as not to interfere with their rising at the proper time to make the fire.

Heigh-ho, handle the dough!
How I do wish that dinners would grow.
A spongecake vine, or a doughnut tree,
What a refreshing sight to see!

Heigh-ho, measure and sew!
How I do wish that garments would grow.
Hn overskirt bush, or a roundabout tree,
AWhat a refreshing sight 'twould be.

Scientific.

How did we come to possess our present form of dress? This is one of the many questions answered by a reviewer in the Nature, who had under his notice the catalogue of the Gen. Pitt Rivers anthropological collection lately published. Clothing at first was almost entirely ornamental. The exceptions were such articles as belts from which instruments of various kinds could be suspended so as to be ready for use while the hands were left free. A savage does not enjoy the luxury of a pocket. Even at the present day a Japanese has to sling his tobacco pipe and pouch from his belt, and the only pockets he has are in his sleeves. The simple cincture was the germ, so to speak, of the clothing we wear. After some time a bunch of pandanus slips was added in front, and this was gradually extended until it made a complete fringe around the body. When the arts became so far advanced that man could make paper cloth or some woven material these latter were substituted for the primitive fringe, and the kilt was thus developed. Curiously enough, the dress of the Scottish Highlanders embodies these two stages of progress in the kilt and the sporran. As man advanced there were inconveniences attending the use of the kilt, which were abated by fastening that garment at one point between the legs, and the human mind was then fairly set upon the path to arrive at the attainment of a pair of trousers. When the back and shoulders needed protection the savage used the skin of some animal, and it is from this sort of covering for the upper part of the body that we have derived our coats, vests, shirts, &c. But the ancient cloak form is even yet retained, not only by such people as Zulu chiefs, but in all robes of ceremony by dignitaries of court and college of the most highly civilized nations on the face of the earth. The elaborate and varied head coverings of the present day all sprang from a very simple original tribe.

BALLOONING.—At a recent meeting of the Balloon Society of Great Britain, held in London, Mr. Simmonds reported some incidents of an ascent he had made at Bath a short time previous, under the auspices of the society. On this occasion the balloon entered the altitudes varying from four thousand feet to twelve thousand feet, and traversed a distance in one direction of sixteen miles in the same number of minutes. Allowing for the fact that the ascent and descent were both accomplished in a perfect calm, it follows that the balloon in certain stages of its career must have been impelled at a speed of not less than one hundred and twenty miles an hour—a very remarkable result. A somewhat animated discussion which followed, as to the best system of ballooning in the Arctic regions, was adjourned to the next meeting. The president stated that the present system of inflating ballons was very defective. Instead of employing coal gas different kinds should be used together, namely, coal gas, oil gas, and hydrogen, the former for partial inflating, the second for making the balloon gas tight, and the third for reducing the weight of the two former. He considered that the only means of determining the law of currents at high altitudes, as shown by the before mentioned trip of Mr. Simmonds, at Bath, was by means of balloons.

IN an article on steel boilers, the Engineer says: While we admit that excellent have been made of steel, we cannot shut our eyes to the truth that a great deal of an apparently admirable metal is quite unsuitable for this purpose. Thus Bessemer steel, it is said, cannot be used for boiler plates with any certainty of obtaining a satisfactory result, and the reason appears to be this: the whole process of clearing some five tons or so of iron from carbon, silicon and other impurities occupies only twenty minutes. When the contents of the ladle are under-blown or over-blown, the steel is unfit for boiler-making. In the Siemens-Martin process, however, the chances of spoiling the steel are much less. In working that system, if the metal be tapped half an hour sooner or later, the difference in the quality of the steel would not be so great as an error of a minute would produce in the steel of the Bessemer converter.

PROF. ARNOLD GUYOT holds that the most notable upheaval of the Catskill region probably took place at the time of the great revolution which raised the main Appalachian system, doubled the size of the early continent, and closed the carboniferous age. But the peculiar situation which sheltered it from the immediate effects of the force which was in play, the latest pressure arising from the sinking of the bed of the Atlantic, modified the hypsometric form of that portion of the Western plateaus.

THE Druggists' Circular says that a mass resembling India-rubber, and soluble in linseed-oil, may be prepared by heating in an iron kettle, which should be only half filled, ten pounds of sulphur and twenty pounds of rape-seed-oil, with constant stirring, until the sulphur is melted and the mass begins to swell, when it is poured into a mold dusted with some kind of powder, and allowed to harden. Linseed-oil may be used instead of the rape-seed oil, but then the quantity of sulphur must be reduced.

A FRENCH inventor has devised an electrical low water signal for steam boilers, which indicates the water-level at any distance from the generator, and when the water has sunk below a certain points rings a bell, while at the same time the sign "low water" appears on the indicating tablet.

No fears should deter us from doing good.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT,

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quincy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

337 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend it to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following:—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy, and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of Inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere Houte, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him.

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is raising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house ac Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rheumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, MASS., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

ASSABET MILLS,
MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

Miscellaneous.

SIX SHEEP MORE PROFITABLE THAN ONE COW.

By careful observation I have found that as a rule six Cotswold sheep can be kept on what will be required to keep a cow. A neighbor of mine who has a fine flock of grade Cotswolds informs me that by selling his lambs at $5.50 each, and wool at 36c. he has realized $11.15 a head. From my own experience I think we can safely count on 50 pounds of wool, and at least 8 lambs from 6 ewes. My flock has always exceeded that both in wool and number of lambs. Fifty pounds of wool at 40c. $20; eight lambs at $5 each $40. Five dollars may seem too high for grade lambs, but I can assure any reader who differs from me in these estimates, that a lamb that weighs 125 ponnds will find purchasers and will be a good investment at that price.

The amount invested in a cow and in six sheep is nearly equal, but when we compare the labor and care required to make either of the two industries a success, we shall find it incomparably in favor of the sheep. There is no business so rigidly exacting, connected with the farm as dairyman. Milking must be done twice a day, and should be done at regular hours and by the same person to secure the best result. Another item largely in favor of sheep is that their product is of such a nature that if the market is not favorable for selling, it can be kept until a more favorable market presents itself without its becoming unmarketable. But not so with butter and cheese. These must be crowded off on the market, however badly glutted that market may be, as it might as well be sacrificed abroad as spoiled at home.

It might be objected to by some reader, that our comparison is unfair because the sheep and wool business is buoyant, and that the dairy has for the past two years been unusually depressed. I would remind the objectors that in our calculations we have figured wool at 20 per cent. less than it is now worth and less than an average for the last ten years.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

THE WIFE'S CLAIMS.

You are a man of business, and have no time to show attention to your wife—few opportunities to converse with her; at least you make few. She submits to this unsocial state of things because she must, but is she happy? Probably not; no woman likes to be considered a cipher. Your wife ought to be your adviser. She ought to be your best confidential counsellor. The self-conceit of man amounts to genius. There are many husbands who would as soon think taking of advice of their children as of their wives. But it is only the fool who is too wise to seek counsel. A woman, you say, knows very little about business; nevertheless, her intuition is often better than a man's judgment. Your wife is your partner. You have earned the money, but she has saved and sacrificed and pinched and worried and worked to accumulate it. She has done her fair share toward making your property what it is, she has a right to be consulted how it shall be used. A double right has she to have her judgement weighed and measured in all questions relating to the disposition of the family and the training and culture of the children. Talk to your wife on all occasions. When you come home at night, tired with the care of the day, to find her equally fatigued, bring to her the news of the day; bring the latest, freshest thought. In buying your paper, or in subscribing for your monthly magazine, get what suits her needs and meets her tastes. There is more in that patient, quiet, silent wife of yours than you think; do not freeze her very individuality by your practical contempt of Women.—Women's Journal.

THE NORTH POLE.

The North pole, as seen by a Baltimore clairvoyant: "The pole is situated on an island, having a gradual rise from the water's edge to about the middle of it. On some parts of it appear only bare rocks; on other parts it has an abundant vegetation. About half of it, the east side, is covered with fruit trees. In some parts they grow in dense thickets; in some they grow not so close together, and have grass thickly interspersed among them. The fruit consists of oranges, lemons, bananas, cocoanuts and other tropical fruits. This part of the pole is inhabited by beetles, white and black ants, grasshoppers, and many other kinds of insects, all unusally large; also by many different species of the monkey tribe. On the west side of the island the vegetation is not so dense. It has many tropical fruits, but the trees are small. Among the natural products are the gooseberry, blackberry, grape, currant, raspberry and mandrake. But it differs from the east side in having monkeys, and in having vast numbers of birds of every size and plumage. Among them are the ostrich, swan, goose, duck, quail, robin and humming bird. On both sides are many small streams."

SIR WILLIAM JONES'S DISCOVERY.

Sir William Jones, in his voyage to India, found in the Island of Johanna, a secluded speck in the Atlantic, off the coast of Africa, this inscription, in Arabic, above the door of a mosque:

The world was given for our edification,
Not for the purpose of raising sumptuous dwellings;
Life, for the discharge of moral and religious duties,
Not for pleasurable indulgence;
Wealth, to be liberally bestowed,
Not avariciously hoarded;
And learning to produce good actions,
Not empty disputes.

HAPPY CHILDREN.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

A WONDERFUL GOBLET.

At a banquet recently given at Grosswardein, in celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the cathedral's completion, Bishop Lipovnicksy, in proposing the toast of "The Hungarian King and the Roman Pontiff," raised aloft a crystal goblet which had undergone a strange adventure a century ago. In the summer of 1780, Franz Hacker, a master carpenter from Ofen, who had superintended the construction of the Grosswardein Cathedral, emptied this very glass, standing on the roof of the huge edifice, to the health of the "King" of Hungary, Maria Theresa, and hurled the goblet from him with the intention of shattering it to pieces, so that, having served to do honor to his sovereign, it might never again be utilized for any meaner purpose. The glass, however, sustained not the least injury from its fall of nearly two hundred feet, and was picked up by a venerable ecclesiastical dignitary, Abbot Solomon, who proposed that the name of the "King" should be engraved upon it, and that it should be then sent to Vienna as a present to her imperial majesty. Before, however, the proposition could be carried out, Maria Theresa died, and the infrangible goblet was solemnly deposited in the treasure-chamber of the Grosswardein Chapter, where it has remained ever since, an object of popular admiration and reverence. On the occasion of the late jubilee it was produced for the special purpose above referred to, and once again, after a hundred years' honorable retirement, teemed with a loyal libation to the health and long life of a Magyar Monarch.

DYING TO LIVE.

The mortality of soldiers in barracks, notwithstanding the skill and care of their superiors, is not nearly so much under that of men engaged in actual warfare as might be supposed. Rust sometimes consumes faster than labor wears, and thus the probability of long life is comparatively small among the adults of that class of the population in which there is no impulse to active labor, owing probably to the diminution in these classes of vital intensity. The sudden withdrawal, too, of a wealthy manufacturer or merchant is often the precursor of sudden death. But there are classes of workers who find labor more fatal than the idleness of the idle. The average term of existence of the Sheffield fork-grinder is only twenty-nine years, although dry grinders of sickles live on an average thirty-eight. Next to the grinders in the scale are the English miners, of whom ten thousand are annually injured by accidents, and eight hundred and fifty die. The English miners are, however, the most fortunate of their class; for the comparative mortality in this department of labor is much greater in other countries, most of all in Prussia, where a life is sacrificed for every seventy thousand four hundred and fifty-one tons of coal raised, while in England the proportion is only one life for every eighty-nine thousand four hundred and nineteen tons.

INDIAN JUSTICE.

Says the Eureka Sentinel: A white man coming through from Pioche or Bristol stole an Indian's horse somewhere down in the vicinity of White River. The Indians followed the man to Hamilton, for the nearest constable, and tried to have the thief arrested. But the officer refused to do anything with the case, saying he could not act on Indian testimony. The Indians were not satsified, and resolved to have their horse. They followed to the neighborhood of Thirty-mile Springs, and stealing a march on the white man, they captured the mustang, and also gave the fellow who had him a most unmerciful beating, finally stripping him and leaving him naked on the plains. The horse thief had to travel two days in the scorching sun before reaching a place where he could procure an outfit of clothes. It is the universal verdict of all who are conversant with the circumstances that the redskins served him right. The nude one was blistered from head to foot when he reached a habitation.

EXCLUSION OF LADIES FROM THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A bill being under discussion which greatly affected the interests of a noble family of extensive connection, the galleries were daily crowded with the female relatives of the party, most of them, as may be easily imagined, full of the highest possible attractions, as youth, beauty, wit, etc. Upon which a member got up and begged to put the question to the speaker, "Whether the credit and character of the house did not most peremptorily require that in all their deliberations they should be free from any undue or extraordinary influence; and whether any of that honorable house could cast their eyes up to the galleries, and say they were so at that moment? He should, therefore, move that the bevy of beauties should immediately retire." The ladies obeyed, and have never been admitted since in the same manner.

'Tis said the truth is not always to be told, but do not forget idle silence is as culpable as idle words; therefore do not remain quiet when knowledge within your posseesion will clear away clouds or doubts hovering over those you are satisfied are misrepresented or misunderstood.

Not only say the right thing in the right place, but, far more difficult still, leave unsaid the wrong thing at the tempting moment.—G. A. Sala.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physcians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Watertown, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough — and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

Coasting.

The boys were coasting down Sycamore Street hill last evening, when John Sanscript and his wife came along. They had been up on Baltimore Street, visiting, and were on their way home.

"Just see them boys, now," said John, as he braced up at the intersection of Mulberry street. "It really reminds me of the days when I was a lad. Do you know, Jane, that I used to coast down hill on a sled that way?"

"Did you, John?"

"Why, yes; but that's fifty years ago."

Sanscript scratched his head contemplatively, and then muttered, sotto voce, "Durn my grand-daddy's buttons, if I don't try it!"

"Try what, dear?" anxiously asked Mrs. S.

"I'm going to coast just once, to revive recollections of fifty years ago."

"Now, John, if I were you—"

"But you are not me, so don't interfere. Here sonny (to a lad just puffed up the hill with his sled); here, sonny, I'll give you a quarter to let me slide down on your sled once."

The bargain was eagerly nailed and clinched.

"Be keerful, old man," urged the boy, as Sanscript squatted, somewhat awkwardly, on the sled; "be keerful I say, and don't let her flunk one way or t'other till she brings up, or you'll git smashed."

"Never mind, younker, assured John, "I've been here afore — some years afore, but—"

But what will never be known, for just then the sled, of its own accord, started down hill, and even John himself has not since been able to recall what he was about to observe. The surprise at the sled's unexpected movement was general.

"Look out," yelled the boy.

"Oh, John!" screamed Mrs. Sanscript.

"Whoa, there!" yelled John.

But the sled wouldn't whoa. It seemed to have set off down that hill to beat its best time. John had chance only to catch hold of both sdies and hold his breath for fear the wind would blow off the top of his head. The oniy thought that he had time to foster, was that the boy must have greased the sled's runners as a practical joke. And if this was coasting, he had never coasted if his recollection served him right.

Two-thirds the way down the hill the sled struck an ice-hummock, and immediately his course was changed to a parabolic curve.

Whack! bang! crash! clink!

The bringing up was awfully sudden and uncertain. Sanscript and the sled disappeared as abruptly as a shooting star. The latter lay shivered to atoms against a lamp-post, and Sanscript lay shivering in a grocery cellar just opposite. When the off-runner of the sled collided with the lamp-post and stopped the vehicle, Sanscript rose like a circus leaper and went right on turning 20 somersaults to the second. He went through the grocery window as the circus leaper goes through a paper hoop. All the gingerbread horses and candy apples and other Christmas luxuries were disarranged, of course. Sanscript's body struck a Western Reserve cheese on the counter, scattering the skippers in consternation. The old coaster bounded five feet at an obtuse angle, touching again for a second at the top step of the cellar stairs in the rear of the store, and then, continuing like a diver into the Plutonic depth below, he went feet foremost through the head of a hogshead filled with something soft. At first he was uncertain whether the contents were Orleans molasses or melted glucose. Before he had time to investigate, the grocer and two policemen came down. The unhappy old boy was lifted out of his sweet pickle and hauled off to the station house on a charge of malicious destruction of property. The grocer appeared soon after, and compromised upon John paying the following bill:

Window sash,	$10.00
Crushed cheese,	12.00
Hogshead molasses,	8.20
Christmas goods,	1.15
Total,	$71.35

Then the boy came in with a bill of $5 for his sled, to say nothing of the loss of a suit of clothes, a surgeon's bill for plastering sundry skinned surfaces, and the bill of a hackman who conveyed the fainting wife home. In the cooler moments of afterthought Sanscript reckoned it up and discovered that it had cost him $109.78 to recall recollections of fifty years ago, and it required but one minute and five seconds of Old Father Time in which to do the recollecting. — Cincinnati Inquirer.

Before dipping a new pen into ink, thrust it into a fresh cut potato, and the ink will never cling. When the pen is thickly gummed with dried ink, a few thrusts will clean it perfectly. When not in use, some accountants leave their pens sticking into a potato kept on the desk for the purpose.

A HOMELIKE SCENE.

TREATING 'HUBBY' TO A DOSE OF PILLS.

'That's better,' groaned Mr. Spoopendyke, as his wife arranged the cool pillows under his head; 'now I can die looking out upon the trees and sky,' and Mr. Spoopendyke assumed a resigned expression of visage, and gazed out of the corner of one eye upon a bare ailanthus tree and a half-dozen telegraph wires.

'Oh! you won't die,' said Mrs. Spoopendyke cheerfully. 'You're only a little sick, and you'll get over it.'

'That's all you know about it,' snarled Mr. Spoopendyke. 'To hear you talk one would think you only had to be fitted up with little beds and a bad smell to be a Government hospital. I'm down sick I tell ye, and I don't want any fooling about it.'

'Well, well,' cood Mrs. Spoopendyke, 'don't excite yourself. Keep quiet and you'll get well.'

'Much you'd care,' muttered Mr. Spoopendyke, turning on his side and resting his cheek on his hand, an attitude generally assumed by martyred spirits on the approach of dissolution.

'Will you take your drops again, dear?' asked Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'It's time for them.'

'No, I won't. They're nasty. I haven't had anything but drops for a week. From the way you administer drops one would think you was the trap door of a hanging machine. Gimme some figs.'

'But there ain't any figs, dear. I'll go and get you some,' said Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'That's it,' growled her husband. 'You only want an excuse to leave me to die alone. Why haven't ye got some figs? You might know I'd want figs. Got any citron?'

'No, I haven't any citron, but I won't be more than a minute away, and I'll get you any fruit you want.'

'Oh! Yes. You'd get it, I have no doubt. What you want is a rail fence around and a gate off the hinges to be a dod gasted orchard. Fetch me some strawberries.'

'Why, strawberries are out of season. There ain't any in the market now.'

'I suppose you'd say that,' moaned Mr. Spoopendyke. 'You've always got some excuse. If I should die, you'd have an apology ready. Gimme something to take the taste out of my mouth.'

'What would you like dear?' asked Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'Soap, dod gast it! Gimme soap, if ye can't think of anything else,' demanded Mr. Spoopendyke. 'Mebbe you ain't got any soap. At least you wouldn't have if I wanted it. Got any cherries?'

'No; they are out of season, too. There are some grapes in the closet.'

'Don't want any measly grapes. If I can't have what I want, I don't want it. Where's those drops? Why don't you give me my medicine? Going to let me die for want of a little attention? Wan't the life insurance, don't ye? Going to gimme those drops before the next election?'

Mrs. Spoopendyke ladled out the dose, half of which went down Mr. Spoopendyke's gullet and half over the front of his nightshirt.

'That's it,' he howled. 'Spill 'em. They're for external application. Put 'em anywhere. Pour 'em up the chimney,' and Mr. Spoopendyke fired the spoon across the room.

'Have a piece of orange to take the taste away?' asked Mrs. Spoopendyke pleasantly.

'No, I won't,' objected her spouse. 'Gimme a piece of muskmelon.'

'I don't believe they have muskmelons in November,' sighed Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'Of course they don't,' responded Mr. Spoopendyke. 'They don't have anything when I'm sick. It's a wonder they have houses. It's a miracle that they have beds. I'm astounded to think they have doctors and drug stores. I've got to hurry up and die, or they won't have any undertakers, or coffins, or graves. Gimme a piece of orange, will ye? S'pose I'm going to lay here and chaw on the taste of those drops for a month?'

'You'd like those grapes,' suggested his wife.

'No, I wouldn't either. What do you want me to eat 'em for? Got any interest in the grape trade? Got any commission on those grapes? Anybody pay ye to make me eat 'em? One would think you only wanted an iron arbor and four amall boys climbing over you to be a grape vine. Where's my pill"

'You took your pill, dear,' replied his patient wife.

'Oh, of course! A pill is out of season now. Can't even have a pill when I feel like it,' and Mr. Spoopendyke groaned in spirit and looked dismal. 'Now, sit down and don't move. I want to sleep. Don't you make a bit of noise if you want me to live.'

And Mrs. Spoopendyke held her breath and never rustled a feather while her husband lay and glared out of the window for an hour and a half.—Brooklyn Eagle.

LARD.—Choice Kettle Rendered Lard in tierces and tubs, for sale by CHARLES A. ROPES,
218 & 222 Derby Street.

Miscellaneous.

SIX SHEEP MORE PROFITABLE THAN ONE COW.

By careful observation I have found that as a rule six Cotswold sheep can be kept on what will be required to keep a cow. A neighbor of mine who has a fine flock of grade Cotswolds informs me that by selling his lambs at $5.50 each, and wool at 36c. he has realized $11.15 a head. From my own experience I think we can safely count on 50 pounds of wool, and at least 8 lambs from 6 ewes. My flock has always exceeded that both in wool and number of lambs. Fifty pounds of wool at 40c. $20; eight lambs at $5 each $40. Five dollars may seem too high for grade lambs, but I can assure any reader who differs from me in these estimates, that a lamb that weighs 125 ponnds will find purchasers and will be a good investment at that price.

The amount invested in a cow and in six sheep is nearly equal, but when we compare the labor and care required to make either of the two industries a success, we shall find it incomparably in favor of the sheep. There is no business so rigidly exacting, connected with the farm as dairyman. Milking must be done twice a day, and should be done at regular hours and by the same person to secure the best result. Another item largely in favor of sheep is that their product is of such a nature that if the market is not favorable for selling, it can be kept until a more favorable market presents itself without its becoming unmarketable. But not so with butter and cheese. These must be crowded off on the market, however badly glutted that market may be, as it might as well be sacrificed abroad as spoiled at home.

It might be objected to by some reader, that our comparison is unfair because the sheep and wool business is buoyant, and that the dairy has for the past two years been unusually depressed. I would remind the objectors that in our calculations we have figured wool at 20 per cent. less than it is now worth and less than an average for the last ten years.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

THE WIFE'S CLAIMS.

You are a man of business, and have no time to show attention to your wife—few opportunities to converse with her; at least you make few. She submits to this unsocial state of things because she must, but is she happy? Probably not; no woman likes to be considered a cipher. Your wife ought to be your adviser. She ought to be your best confidential counsellor. The self-conceit of man amounts to genius. There are many husbands who would as soon think taking of advice of their children as of their wives. But it is only the fool who is too wise to seek counsel. A woman, you say, knows very little about business; nevertheless, her intuition is often better than a man's judgment. Your wife is your partner. You have earned the money, but she has saved and sacrificed and pinched and worried and worked to accumulate it. She has done her fair share toward making your property what it is, she has a right to be consulted how it shall be used. A double right has she to have her judgement weighed and measured in all questions relating to the disposition of the family and the training and culture of the children. Talk to your wife on all occasions. When you come home at night, tired with the care of the day, to find her equally fatigued, bring to her the news of the day; bring the latest, freshest thought. In buying your paper, or in subscribing for your monthly magazine, get what suits her needs and meets her tastes. There is more in that patient, quiet, silent wife of yours than you think; do not freeze her very individuality by your practical contempt of Women.—Women's Journal.

THE NORTH POLE.

The North pole, as seen by a Baltimore clairvoyant: "The pole is situated on an island, having a gradual rise from the water's edge to about the middle of it. On some parts of it appear only bare rocks; on other parts it has an abundant vegetation. About half of it, the east side, is covered with fruit trees. In some parts they grow in dense thickets; in some they grow not so close together, and have grass thickly interspersed among them. The fruit consists of oranges, lemons, banannas, cocoanuts and other tropical fruits. This part of the pole is inhabited by beetles, white and black ants, grasshoppers, and many other kinds of insects, all unusally large; also by many different species of the monkey tribe. On the west side of the island the vegetation is not so dense. It has many tropical fruits, but the trees are small. Among the natural products are the gooseberry, blackberry, grape, currant, raspberry and mandrake. But it differs from the east side in having monkeys, and in having vast numbers of birds of every size and plumage. Among them are the ostrich, swan, goose, duck, quail, robin and humming bird. On both sides are many small streams."

SIR WILLIAM JONES'S DISCOVERY.

Sir William Jones, in his voyage to India, found in the Island of Johanna, a secluded speck in the Atlantic, off the coast of Africa, this inscription, in Arabic, above the door of a mosque:

The world was given for our edification,
Not for the purpose of raising sumptuous dwellings;
Life, for the discharge of moral and religious duties,
Not for pleasurable indulgence;
Wealth, to be liberally bestowed,
Not avariciously hoarded;
And learning to produce good actions,
Not empty disputes.

Sacrifice money rather than honor.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It has become a common practice for certain dealers to palm off Oil of inferior quality and fire test as Eclectic Oil. HAPPY CHILDREN.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Parties living at a distance, (except in surgical cases,) by sending a statement of their case can be treated at home.

A WONDERFUL GOBLET.

At a banquet recently given at Grosswardein, in celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the cathedral's completion, Bishop Lipovnicksy, in proposing the toast of "The Hungarian King and the Roman Pontiff," raised aloft a crystal goblet which had undergone a strange adventure a century ago. In the summer of 1780, Franz Hacker, a master carpenter from Ofen, who had superintended the construction of the Grosswardein Cathedral, emptied this very glass, standing on the roof of the huge edifice, to the health of the "King" of Hungary, Maria Theresa, and hurled the goblet from him with the intention of shattering it to pieces, so that, having served to do honor to his sovereign, it might never again be utilized for any meaner purpose. The glass, however, sustained not the least injury from its fall of nearly two hundred feet, and was picked up by a venerable ecclesiastical dignitary, Abbot Solomon, who proposed that the name of the "King" should be engraved upon it, and that it should be then sent to Vienna as a present to her imperial majesty. Before, however, the proposition could be carried out, Maria Theresa died, and the infrangible goblet was solemnly deposited in the treasure-chamber of the Grosswardein Chapter, where it has remained ever since, an object of popular admiration and reverence. On the occasion of the late jubilee it was produced for the special purpose above referred to, and once again, after a hundred years' honorable retirement, teemed with a loyal libation to the health and long life of a Magyar Monarch.

DYING TO LIVE.

The mortality of soldiers in barracks, notwithstanding the skill and care of their superiors, is not nearly so much under that of men engaged in actual warfare as might be supposed. Rust sometimes consumes faster than labor wears, and thus the probability of long life is comparatively small among the adults of that class of the population in which there is no impulse to active labor, owing probably to the diminution in these classes of vital intensity. The sudden withdrawal, too, of a wealthy manufacturer or merchant is often the precursor of sudden death. But there are classes of workers who find labor more fatal than the idleness of the idle. The average term of existence of the Sheffield fork-grinder is only twenty-nine years, although dry grinders of sickles live on an average thirty-eight. Next to the grinders in the scale are the English miners, of whom ten thousand are annually injured by accidents, and eight hundred and fifty die. The English miners are, however, the most fortunate of their class; for the comparative mortality in this department of labor is much greater in other countries, most of all in Prussia, where a life is sacrificed for every seventy thousand four hundred and fifty-one tons of coal raised, while in England the proportion is only one life for every eighty-nine thousand four hundred and nineteen tons.

INDIAN JUSTICE.

Says the Eureka Sentinel: A white man coming through from Pioche or Bristol stole an Indian's horse somewhere down in the vicinity of White River. The Indians followed the man to Hamilton, for the nearest constable, and tried to have the thief arrested. But the officer refused to do anything with the case, saying he could not act on Indian testimony. The Indians were not satsified, and resolved to have their horse. They followed to the neighborhood of Thirty-mile Springs, and stealing a march on the white man, they captured the mustang, and also gave the fellow who had him a most unmerciful beating, finally stripping him and leaving him naked on the plains. The horse thief had to travel two days in the scorching sun before reaching a place where he could procure an outfit of clothes. It is the universal verdict of all who are conversant with the circumstances that the redskins served him right. The nude one was blistered from head to foot when he reached a habitation.

EXCLUSION OF LADIES FROM THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A bill being under discussion which greatly affected the interests of a noble family of extensive connection, the galleries were daily crowded with the female relatives of the party, most of them, as may be easily imagined, full of the highest possible attractions, as youth, beauty, wit, etc. Upon which a member got up and begged to put the question to the speaker, "Whether the credit and character of the house did not most peremptorily require that in all their deliberations they should be free from any undue or extraordinary influence; and whether any of that honorable house could cast their eyes up to the galleries, and say they were so at that moment? He should, therefore, move that the bevy of beauties should immediately retire." The ladies obeyed, and have never been admitted since in the same manner.

'Tis said the truth is not always to be told, but do not forget idle silence is as culpable as idle words; therefore do not remain quiet when knowledge within your posseesion will clear away clouds or doubts hovering over those you are satisfied are misrepresented or misunderstood.

Not only say the right thing in the right place, but, far more difficult still, leave unsaid the wrong thing at the tempting moment.—G. A. Sala.

Church Services.

We give place in our columns to-day for the following brief synopsis of two sermons preached last Sunday, which are somewhat different from the general tenor, and which will be found of interest:

A large and attentive audience gathered in the Methodist Church, last Sunday, to hear Rev. Samuel Davies preach upon "The Dangers and Safeguards of our Country." Rev. Dr. Steele introduced the preacher with a few remarks, in which he said that Mr. Davies was a native of Turkey; that he belonged to a religious sect known as the United Brotherhood, a society that was little known in New England. but flourished in the West; that his father was a missionary to Turkey, and was murdered at the hands of the Turks; that he had occupied upward of seven thousand pulpits, which was probably more than any man in the world had; that he was educated in Austria, and had been preaching in this country for the past twenty-seven years, with the exception of four years which he spent in the Union army during the late war.

Mr. Davies began his remarks without a text. He said that it was fortunate he was born in a foreign country, so he could better appreciate the blessings and privileges of this country. He said that the stronghold of this republic was in the fact that it was a Bible land: that it was a land of free speech: was public school sustaining, Sunday observing, and a liberty loving land: that the danger which threatened it was from foreign infidelity and foreign priesthood. He associated communism and priestcraft together, and said that rule or ruin was their motto; that the Jesuits that are being expelled from Europe are Jesuits in this country; that what is Europe's gain is our danger. He said that he was the first to preach from any pulpit against the expulsion of the Bible from our public schools; that Catholicism had stopped its attack upon the Bible in the schools, but was making a direct blow at the free school system by establishing parochial schools, and compelling children of Catholic parents to attend by threats of excommunication from the church. He denied the right of any man to excommunicate any one, or the right of any man to enter our public schools and order children of Catholic parents to attend the parochial school, as was the case in Lowell and other places. He said that statistics would bear him out in the assertion that seven out of every ten who were arrested for breaking the laws of this country were brought up Catholics; that the political power of all our large cities was in the hands of the rumseller.

To illustrate this he said that last summer when the Methodist preachers met in convention at Boston, a petition was sent to the Aldermen of that city, asking that the band concerts on the common be discontinued on Sundays. What was the result? This petition so enraged a leading member of that board, who was himself a rumseller, that he immediately moved an appropriation for two more Sunday concerts, one at South Boston and one at Charlestown, and it was carried, thus showing that the political influence of one rumseller counted more than the whole board of Methodist preachers. He said our free institutions were surrounded by the smoke of (and there is no smoke without a fire) the Spanish Commune, German Socialist and Roman Priesthood. He was in receipt of a German paper, in which was an account of a man who was found guilty of arson, and the judge gave him his choice of sixteen years in prison, or go to America at the expense of the German government. He said he would go to America.

In conclusion he said the loyal citizens of this country must do all in their power to perpetuate our free school system, keep the Sabbath day inviolate, and have strangers who come here behave themselves and conform to our laws; and when we elect our officers put such men only into office that will enforce the laws. Mr. Davies was listened to attentively throughout, and left an impression on his audience.

On Sunday last, at St. John's Church, Rev. M. J. Masterson, who represented the Peabody branch of the Land League at the convention held in Buffalo, N. Y., last week, delivered a very eloquent and instructive discourse upon the work of the convention. He said it was one of the most joyful things of all his life to be able to be present at that meeting. On the first day of the meeting, there being 13 states represented, he was struck at the strong resemblance borne by the convention to the patriotic meetings of our forefathers, in the 13 colony days. He noted another singular coincidence: the gentleman chosen by the convention for their president was a living Daniel O'Connell, a clergyman from New York! The speaker thought of the feelings that must arise in the breasts of those in Ireland, when they read the dispatch forwarded them by the convention, and signed "Daniel O'Connell!"

On the second day every state in the Union was represented, either in person or by letters. The pastor was struck at the number of ladies present, each chosen by their own ladies' branches of the Land League to represent them, and he thought that a branch for the ladies of Peabody could be formed with good effect. He then announced his intention of calling the ladies of Peabody together in the course of a week and establishing a Ladies' Branch League in this town. The ladies were exhorted to come forward and work nobly in the cause, and vie with the numerous branches of their own sex, that have been formed all over the country and that are doing such good work.

While the convention was in session a Buffalo paper published a libelous article upon the meeting and its objects. Thereupon it was voted that every paper in the country that exerted its influence against the Land League, should be "Boycotted," and that every man in the convention, and that all persons who have the interests of Ireland at heart, should refrain from supporting any such journal, until it should retract.

He then paid a glowing tribute to the Land League, and expressed his firm conviction that ere another convention would be called, this object would be accomplished, and Ireland would be risen from the depths of degradation and woe into which she has been plunged. He said he would then expect a repetition of the scene that took place in England when, after our war for American Independence was over, a great statesman rose in the House of Commons, and exclaimed, "America is lost to you by the Irishmen of America." So now will another orator truly say, "Ireland is lost to you by the Irishmen of America."

A man with the enormous wealth now possessed by Mr. Vanderbilt could add to it very rapidly; in fact, it will double itself in twenty years if put into four per cent. bonds and let alone, save to add the annual interest. With the present "start" which Mr. Vanderbilt has in bonds and dividend paying stocks, it will be an easy matter for him to be worth at least $250,000,000 should he live twenty years hence. It is said that he is worth more than half that sum now.

New Fire Hats: The crew of steamer Col. William. R. Lee have provided themselves with new fire hats and belts. The hats are of black leather surmounted with a silver-gilt figure of a tiger. On the front fancifully wrought in different colored leather is the name and number of the steamer, the initials of the owner of the hat, and the office he holds. The belts have the word Marblehead on the front, and the office of the wearer and number of steamer on the back.—Marblehead Messenger.

The low water of the Merrimac doubles the expense of housing ice to the Holt Bros. These gentlemen have harvested the crop included in an area of 540,000 square feet; or, to speak in detail, of a block 1800x300 feet. Their present job has taken about ten days and about 10,000 tons are packed in their store houses. It is of excellent quality, being from 12 to 14 inches in thickness. There has been employed a ten horse power steam engine, 8 horses and 100 men.—Lawrence Sentinel.

A valuable horse was sold Thursday at factory village for $10; cutter sleigh for 12 cents. If the depression in the horse market continues, some of our local editors will soon be able to buy one. —Ex.

Essex County Indebtedness: We are indebted to Joseph O. Proctor, Esq., for the following figures giving the reduction in the county debt the past four years. Jan. 1. 1877, the indebtedness was $274,938.56; 1878, 265,209.14; 1879, 225,074.44; 1880, 195,026.64; 1881, 156,302.25. These figures show that the debt of the county has been reduced in the last four years $118,636.31, and we have not suffered for anything actually needed.

Burning of Oil Clothes: Wednesday morning passers by on Main street were surprised to witness smoke issuing from a bundle on Trask's express wagon.—Upon opening it, it was found to be a package of oil clothing which had caught fire from spontaneous combustion and were about ruined. The package had been in his office over night, and if the fire had caught then, might have proved disastrous. Too much care cannot be taken to having oil clothing thoroughly dried ere it is packed for shipment.—Gloucester Advertiser.

A boy, while digging in the cellars of a house on Mechanic street, Tuesday, unearthed the bones of a human forearm and hand. They appeared to have been buried for years. A medical student formerly lived in the house.—Lawrence Eagle.

Essex county boasts of a deputy sheriff who has held his office without interruption for fifty-eight years. His name is Stephen Upton of Peabody.—Lawrence Journal.

Three boys, Florence McCarty of Peabody, and Jeremiah Hayes and James Richardson of Salem, were arrested this week by our Police officers for stealing an overcoat from the school-house at Tapleyville, and caps from the school-house at Fox Hill. The Court sent Hayes back to the Plummer Farm School at Salem (from which he had ran away) during his minority; and Richardson and McCarty were released on bonds for good behavior.

On Thursday of last week, Frank Nimblet, while hanging up skins to dry at the factory of Hubbard & Blake at Tapleyville, slipped and caught a hook into his arm, tearing the flesh quite badly.

The Directors of the First National Bank of Danvers, elected at the annual meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 11th, 1881, are: Daniel Richards, Samuel P. Fowler, John A. Putnam, F. P. Merriam, Edwin Mudge, I. H. Putnam, G. A. Tapley.

The shop of a Dublin tobacconist, by the name of Lundyfoot, was destroyed by fire. While he was gazing dolefully into the smouldering ruins, he noticed that his poorer neighbors were gathering the snuff from the canisters. He tested the snuff for himself, and discovered that the fire had largely improved its pungency and aroma. It was a hint worth profiting by. He secured another shop, built a lot of ovens, subjected the snuff to a heating process, gave the brand a particular name, and in a few years became rich through an accident which he at first thought has completely ruined him.

SALEM.

Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West's mammoth minstrels, 40 performers, appear at Mechanic Hall this evening, Jan. 19, in an entire new performance.

The present term of the Normal School will close on Tuesday, Jan. 25. The graduating exercises will commence at 9.30 A. M. There will be a reception in the evening.

The Salem Light Infantry hold their next Sociable on Tuesday evening, Jan. 25th.

The sleighing, the last week, was never better on Lafayette St., which was thronged with teams yesterday afternoon. The Lafayette House, under the management of Landlord Kelley and his genial assistant "Steve," has every accommodation for those who wish to rest a few moments. His suppers are unexcelled.

Messrs. Almy, Bigelow & Webber commenced their annual sale of cotton underwear last Monday, and those in need should not fail to examine them. The bargains obtained annually at these sales have been such as to guarantee the purchasers that they could do better at this store than in Boston. Their stock consists of night robes, chemises, drawers, corset covers, skirts, etc. We hope the ladies will not neglect this opportunity to secure some of these bargains.

We can give our readers this week a piece of information that will please them, namely, that the eighth annual sale of cotton underwear, Hamburg edging, gents' white unlaundered shirts, etc., has commenced at Cousins' Bee Hive, 172 Essex street. Call early to secure bargains.

We believe that all our merchants and traders are doing a good, thrifty business, but the store of Mr. John P. Peabody, 227 Essex street, is unusually busy, he having determined to reduce his large stock of winter goods, housekeeping goods, etc. And how thoroughly the public appreciate his efforts is seen in the large and liberal patronage which he receives.

The correct thing to do when one has a cough, hoarseness or cold, is to at once use the most reliable means of cure. Among them are Foster's cough candies, such as hoarhound, anise, flaxseed and tar drops. Remember the place — Foster's Philadelphia candy store, 244 Essex street, Salem.

Miss M. E. Hutchinson, 251 Essex street, has constantly on hand samples of French laces, perfumery, soaps, direct from Paris, together with her regular line of gloves, etc. Kid gloves tried on and fitted before purchasing.

Mr. David Conrad, having made every preparation for the inauguration of his annual sale of cotton underwear, commenced last Monday by placing before his customers the largest stock ever offered by him, which is selling with a rush. The bargains offered are such as only a metropolitan establishment like his could afford to offer. This large stock will be exhibited on the second floor, where ladies can examine them at their leisure. It might be of interest to add here that Mr. Conrad has had a large experience in the selection of this line of goods, being the first to introduce these sales, not only in Salem but in New England. Read his advertisement on the second page.

Mr. C. C. Redman, of Salem, has on exhibition at the store of Willard Goldthwait & Co., a well executed painting of the summer residence of Mr. John P. Peabody at Rye Beach.

The art of lithographing was perfected through suggestions made by accident. A poor musician was curious to know whether music could not be etched upon stone as well as upon copper.—After he had prepared his slab, his mother asked him to make a memorandum of such clothes as she proposed sending away to be washed. Not having pen, ink and paper convenient, he wrote the list on the stone with the etching preparation, intending to make a copy of it at leisure. A few days later, when about to clean the stone, he wondered what effect aqua fortis would have upon it. He applied the acid, and in a few minutes saw the writing standing out in relief. The next step necessary was simply to ink the stone and take off an impression.

Mr. Atkinson's recital afforded a gratifying proof of the great histronic abilities he possesses.—Boston Journal.

PEABODY.

NEW ROOM OPENED. — The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Peabody, have long desired a room, which they could call their "Home;"—subject to their own control; made attractive and pleasant; and opened every evening. They have rented the room over Mr. Whidden's store, and through the kindness and generosity of friends of the cause, have fitted it up tastefully, and furnished games and illustrated papers, hoping to call some out of evil, and to help cultivate a taste for what is refining and ennobling in life. Money, wood and coal, a lamp, a mirror, a clock, pictures, books and papers, have poured in as donations from one source and another, to gladden our hearts; for all of which, the Union would hereby express their heartiest gratitude, and invite our friends to look in some evening for themselves, and see how their gifts are appreciated; and others, who have not yet contributed, can see there is still room for more gifts, the smallest of which will be thankfully received. The room was dedicated Friday, P. M., Jan. 14. Rev. Dr. Steele read appropriate selections of Scripture, and offered a prayer. Miss Sarah E. Perkins, President of the Union, gave a neat address, welcoming the clergymen and friends present to this our new Home. Rev. Messrs. Harmon, Sperry and Wood, offered words of encouragement. Miss Floyd, Mrs. Stevens, and Mrs. Waldron from Danversport, spoke briefly, after which the Doxology was heartily sung, and the benediction pronounced. So closed the propitious "Opening of the Room." God grant the work to be done therein may far exceed the expectations even of those whose faith is strongest in this direction. We quote the closing words of a sermon preached on Thanksgiving day, by a minister in N. Y. State: "Truly, I may take the language of the Apostle, and speak it here to you, 'Help those women.'—Help them with your manly sympathy in their work of pity and compassion. Help them with your loyal reverence for the noble motives which inspire their efforts, and help them with such votes and public actions as shall hasten the blessing for which they pray and labor."

The weekly meeting for prayer and business is held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

THE WEST PEABODY FARMERS' CLUB.—The third meeting of the Club was held at West Peabody School House Hall, Friday evening, Jan. 14; owing to the inclemency of the weather, about forty persons were present. Subject: "Hay Crop, or grasses for hay." The first speaker, Mr. T. C. Durkee, gave his practical ideas of preparing the ground for seeding, the kinds of seeds he generally used, the time of cutting his grass, and curing or making his hay preparatory to getting it into his barn. Succeeded by Rev. Mr. Spaulding, Mr. Needham, Mr. Bodge, Mr. Farwell and others. The subject was fully and well discussed, bringing out many good and practical ideas to grass growers. I think no more important function of Grange work can be named than that which draws the farming classes together in the work of the Club. All thoughtful minds realize the value of a Farmers' Club as a factor in agricultural success. It is a fact worthy of mention that the most successful and most flourishing agricultural districts are those in which the work of the Farmers' Club is most prominent. It should discuss questions concerning crops, how to plow, what fertilizers to apply and how to cultivate, how to feed and train animals, etc.—Ideas obtained in this way may save some one from making many mistakes, as it enables him, through the experience of others, to make selections with a certainty of their adaptibility to his wants, also gives valuable advice with reference to the building of new barns, whether or not it is advisable to build Silos and to what expense. It interests the farmer's wife, for the Club should discuss household matters, as well as how to build, arrange and furnish houses, for without the interest and efforts of the ladies, the farmer will meet with but little success. Some farmers can talk better than they can work, and these are of importance to the Clubs, while others can work better than they can talk, and these also may be valuable members. It is a satisfaction to know that the most progressive farmers are the most earnest supporters of the Farmers' Clubs, not only in this locality, but in other places.

THE ELOPEMENT. — There is now but little doubt that Thomas J. Goodwin and the Pope woman have left for parts unknown; but the story that one of them (Goodwin) had been seen on a train between St. Louis and Kansas City is discredited by many, yet it may turn out to be true. There is also a belief that the guilty pair are not outside of our State limits; but whether they are in Kansas or Massachusetts, there seems to be no disposition on the part of Goodwin's near relatives, or those he has wronged, to hunt for him and bring him (and his paramour) back for punishment, and the opinion seems to be general that it is good for the town to be rid of such characters; yet, for one, we cannot but feel that if any class of criminals deserve condign punishment, it is those persons, who, like Goodwin and Pope, are violating the laws of God and man.

POLICE NOTES.—Jan. 10th, Michael H. Kennedy, a vagrant, received a sentence of six months in the House of Correction.

13th, George Alley, for drunkenness, paid a $1.00 fine. He was something of a glass alley.

Edward Sweeney also came up for too much smiling, over a bar, and was also fined $1.00, which was paid.

Patrick F. Kenney was another bad penny. He paid his fine for drunkenness, and departed somewhat sobered.

17th, Charles Bloolgett and Michael Burns had the pleasure of depositing $7 each, for a too violent practice of the manly art.

Allen McKinniston, last but not least, tendered his contribution of $1 for imbibing too freely in ardent spirits.

We heartily agree with the following from the Peabody correspondent of the Salem Gazette: "The shifting of freight cars on the Square has become an intolerable nuisance, being dangerous to foot passengers and to teams. Some time ago the town petitioned the Legislature to have it stopped, and the railroad company said they were preparing a freight yard and it would soon cease to trouble the people; but they have failed to keep their promise. Something ought to be done to prevent the principal thoroughfare of the town from becoming a freight yard for the Eastern Railroad.

At the session of the General Court, Mr. Wardwell, of Peabody, introduced a bill last week, providing that all rights of redeeming real estate sold for the non-payment of taxes or other assessments may be taken and sold on execution in like manner as the right of redeeming mortgaged land may be taken and sold, and the debtor and those claiming under him may redeem the right so sold in like manner as if it had been a right of redeeming mortgaged land.

The Western Union and the American Union telegraph lines have been consolidated, and orders have been issued for the discharge of four thousand employes, who will draw thirty days' extra pay. It is thought Jay Gould has made eight millions of dollars out of his American Union Telegraph operations.

At the Universalist Church in Salem to-day a meeting will be held to organize an Essex Co. Sunday School Union, to embrace the Universalist Sunday Schools of Lynn, Swampscott, Salem, Marblehead, Beverly, Peabody, Danvers, etc. The meeting will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Harmon, of Peabody, and others.

Mr. Charles L. Sanborn, from Sawyer's Ranche, Silver Lake, Kansas, made a flying visit to this town on Monday. He will visit New Hampshire, and return to the West about the 24th of the month. Charles is looking nicely. He reads the PRESS regularly every week. His happiness is assured.

The entertainment by Mr. Chas. Atkinson and Company at the Institute, this (Wednesday) evening, will afford the people of Peabody an entertainment of rare merit. This company has gained for itself many friends, and should be greeted with a full house.

Mr. John Heylingberg is agent for Hursell's Camphor Ice, the best preparation for the face, chapped hands, etc. In fact, anything in the tonsorial line may be found at his shop.

Poet's Corner.

God Knoweth Best.

Some time, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars forevermore have set,
The things which our weak judgment
here had spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine out in deeper tints of blue;
And we shall see how all God's plans were right,
And what seemed reproof was love
most true.

And we shall see how, while we frown
and sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How, when we called, he heeded not our cry,
Because his wisdom to the end could see.
And even as prudent parents disallow
Too much of sweet to craving babyhood,
So God, perhaps, is keeping from us now,
Life's sweetest things, because it seemeth good.

And if, sometimes, commingled with life's wine,
We find the wormwood, and rebel and shrink,
Be sure a wiser hand than yours or mine
Pours out this portion for our lips to drink,
And if some friend we love is lying low,
Where human kisses cannot reach his face,
Oh, do not blame the loving Father so,
But wear your sorrow with obedient grace!

And you shall shortly know that lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift God sends his friend,
And that, sometimes, the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon his love can send,
If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery could find a key!

But not to-day. Then be content, good heart!
God's plans, like lillies, pure and white,
unfold:
We must not force the close shut leaves
apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if, through patient toil, we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loose, may rest,
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we will say, "God knew the best."

Vain Wishes.

"If nature had made me a boy," said Fan,
"Like Jem, I'd have tops and strings,
And clappers, and fish-hooks, and climb up trees
For apples, and nuts, and things."

"If nature had made me a girl," said Jem,
"'Twould have been the greatest of boons;
For then I'd have skirts to cover this patch
On the seat of my pantaloons."

Selected Story.

BARBARA'S SACRIFICE.

BY MARTIN W. HOYT.

'Oh, mamma, how can I?' and Barbara Hammond raised her tearful eyes to her mother's face. 'How can I give up all—everything? Indeed, I cannot. Then, too, it would be unjust to Howard, when he has resigned his position abroad just because I was unwilling to leave you and papa. No, mamma, there must be some other way—some way that will not wreck two lives forever. Is it indeed as bad as you say?'

'Yes, my child, it is. Your father can no longer meet his liabilities. The cloud has been gathering for many months; one after another of his obligations has been paid by Mr. Wainwright until his claims amount to nearly fifty thousand dollars. The amount is justly due him, and your father cannot pay it; so you can see that failure is inevitable.'

'And so Mr. Wainwright offers to cancel it on condition that I marry him, does he? Base wretch! to think papa would sell his daughter!'

'Hush, my child, you do the gentleman injustice. He made a proposal for your hand, and incidentally mentioned that should he become a member of the family he should not think of urging any pecuniary claims.'

'In other words, he offers fifty thousand dollars for the privilege of becoming your son-in-law. Generous man! Did papa accept his terms, think you?'

'He has neither accepted nor rejected them. He is to give him his decision to-morrow.'

'And have you any idea what that decision will be?'

'My child, he leaves everything to you, with the understanding that you are to act solely as your heart prompts you. He does not ask you to give up Howard against your will.'

'Dear, generous papa, how like his kind heart. Ah, let the crash come if it must. We will leave this hateful place, find a dear little cottage somewhere, and Howard and I will work for you and papa, and we'll all be so happy together.'

'Alas, Barbara, I'm afraid your dreams of happiness would never be realized should such a thing occur.'

'And why not, mamma? Is it such a very terrible thing to fail? Wouldn't you and papa and Howard still be left to make me happy?'

At these words of her daughter Mrs. Hammond buried her face in her hands and sobbed aloud.

'What is it, mamma, dear?' cried Barbara, throwing her arms around her mother's neck in alarm; 'there is something you are withholding from me; tell me what it is.'

'Oh, my daughter, forgive me for telling you, for your father never would if he knew I did so. Nothing but this could compel me to ask such a sacrifice of you. Could I do anything to clear away this dark cloud how gladly I would, even to laying down my life; but, alas, I can do nothing—nothing!'

'Mother, speak, tell me; what is it you would say?'

'Barbara, darling, child of my own heart, not your father's failure alone rests with you, but, I fear, his life also.'

'His life, mamma?'

'Yes, my child, his life. Listen. Last night I went to your father's room and found him with a loaded pistol at his temple.'

'Oh, mamma—heaven—have mercy!' and Barbara sank upon her knees, her face white as the petals of the flowers that rested on her heaving bosom, wringing her hands in agony.

'I snatched the murderous weapon from his hand and demanded an explanation. He told me all—his impending failure, Mr. Wainwright's proposal, and his own determination. He said you should never embitter your whole life for him. He said, too, he would meet death sooner than disgrace, and that he purposed taking his life before it came. I tried to reason with him on the folly of such a step, and got him to consent that I should lay the matter before you. There, child, you know all; but never divulge that I have told you of this contemplated crime; my husband would blame me for it. It is only my great love for him that has wrung the words from me, in the hope that you would save your father."

Barbara remained like one stupefied. The vernal sun sent its warm beams in through the roses covering the arbor above her, and the wind softly fanned aside the ringlets that drooped over her tear-moistened cheeks, as if striving to bring her back to herself once more; but she heeded them not as she knelt there long at her mother's feet, motionless as a statue.

Then as the hue of life began again to creep into her face, she uttered a sigh as of relief, and rising, exclaimed:

'Thank God that it is not too late! Poor dear papa, I will save him—I will! There is no sacrifice so great that I will not gladly make it that my darling papa be safe and happy. Tell him, mamma, I will wed Mr. Wainwright. Tell him I give up Howard freely, gladly—and may God forgive me the wrong I do him and myself. Go tell him, mamma, and leave me here to grow strong in my resolve—leave me alone with the glad knowledge that I have saved my father, that he is mine—mine by my own act.'

Mrs. Hammond's emotion was too deep for utterance. She strained Barbara to her bosom, pressed a warm kiss upon her lips, and left the arbor to return to the mansion at the farther end of the grounds. Somehow the sky seemed bluer, the flowers brighter, and all the music of nature sweeter than when, an hour before, she had sought out her daughter to ask of her a boon greater than life.

'Heaven bless the child," she murmured to herself, 'and give her happiness ten fold more than that she has given her poor mother.'

And Barbara, with a breaking heart, was silently imploring heaven for strength to take up the burden she had chosen—strength to cast from her her first and only love and become the wife of Silas Wainwright, a man whose years even exceeded those of her father.

He was a noble man, this Silas Wainwright, wealthy and kind-hearted, and respected by all who knew him. He had never married, for, until he met Barbara, he had never loved. But he did love Barbara, and he hoped to make her his wife, and he would so guard her that care nor trouble should ever dare approach her with their black shadows.

It was no trivial burden Barbara had elected to bear. She needed something more than human strength to keep her steps from faltering. Is it a great sacrifice to lay down one's life for another? What then shall we say of taking up such a life as Barbara's must be? To lie down in the grave would have been easy when compared with this living death.

It was not enough that she should deliberately put aside her deep love for Howard Clyde; no, she must assume wifely responsibilities towards one whom she did not care for — must school her heart to obey and honor and —love? Ah, could she ever do that? Not just yet, perhaps, but she prayed that love, too, might come in time. Brave, noble girl! hers was a sacrifice indeed.

When Barbara Hammond had entered the arbor on that eventful day, she was a child unscathed as yet by the bitter experiences of human life; when she came out she had become a woman, tried by the sharp flame of self-denial, and strong in her self-consecration to a noble purpose.

As she was leaving the little vine-wreathed structure she met Howard Clyde at its entrance. Half unconsciously she turned back and sat down on the rustic bench.

Howard had come to talk of their love, to plead for an early day for their union.

Barbara would not let him go on. With a low, tumultuous voice she told him she had chosen to take back her promise, to break her troth with him, and that henceforth their paths must lie far apart.

At first he could not believe she was in earnest; then as her pale face and broken accents testified to the terrible reality of her words, he could only burst forth in a fit of passionate pleading that she might turn aside from this self-immolation. It was all in vain; nothing could shake her resolve.

Then he reproached her with her cruelty towards him; he called her false and sordid, and said 'twas but the greed of gold that actuated her.

As he saw how this cruel thrust had wounded her, a sudden shame for his words seized upon him, and, taking her hand in his own, he strove to comfort her.

'Forgive me, Barbara, for those words. I knew not what I was saying, and did not mean it. You are all that is good and pure and noble, and I do not wish to reproach you. If we must part, it shall not be in anger. Though I lose you, I shall never forget you, but your image will be ever before me and shall lead me to become a less selfish and better man."

He raised her cold fingers to his lips a moment and whispered — 'Barbara, good-bye forever"—and was gone.

'Oh, Father in Heaven,' sobbed the poor girl as his footsteps died away, 'give me help lest I sink beneath this trial!'

How long she sat there Barbara never knew; but when she became alive to her surroundings the stars were shining overhead, and her hair was damp with the dew of night. She had not known it when, as she cried to heaven in the bitterness of her grief, a person stole out of the neighboring shrubbery and walked away, muttering—

'Curses on the man who could dare ask of that girl such a sacrifice! Silas Wainwright, you are an idiotic old curmudgeon, and some one ought to tell you so.'

* * * * * * *

The wedding day had arrived. The Wainwright mansion, where the solemnities were to take place, was decorated from top to bottom. No expense had been spared, and everything that money could obtain to make the occasion more magnificent had been procured.

It was not to be a public wedding, and only a few invited friends of the respective parties were present. All the guests had assembled in the spacious drawing-room of the old mansion, and were in a flutter of expectation.

At the appointed hour the great doors opened, and Isaiah Hammond led forward his daughter and stood before the clergyman called to officiate. Then followed Mr. Wainwright, a good-natured smile lighting up his grand features.

'My friends,' said he, 'I have a word to say before the ceremony commences. You are called together to enjoy the festivities of what I intend to be a glad occasion, and before proceeding further, I want to make this little girl a present I've been keeping for her all these days, and which, if I mistake not, will bring the roses into her pale cheeks. All ready!'

Again the door opened, and Howard Clyde, entering, stood beside Barbara.

'Shall we go on, Miss Hammond, or do you object to this change of grooms?' asked Mr. Wainwright.

Barbara, bewildered by it all, could not reply.

'You may do your duty, sir'—addressing the clergyman. 'I'll vouch for the lady's willingness.'

A few minutes more and Barbara was a wife—the wife of the man whom she had given up to save her father from ruin.

The roses did come back to her cheeks, and never was there a merrier company under that roof than the one gathered there that day.

'Oh, my kind benefactor, exclaimed Barbara, when she found an opportunity to speak with her host alone, 'how can I express my gratitude to you?'

'Nonsense, Barbara; it is I who must be grateful for getting my eyes open before it was too late.'

Then he drew her to a seat beside him, and told her how he had overheard the conversation in the arbor, and had determined to speedily undo the mischief he had done.

"And now, little girl,' he continued, won't you forgive Howard and me for prolonging your misery a while that the transition from anguish to joy might be the more overwhelming?'

For answer she threw her arms about his neck and covered his face with kisses.

Not long afterwards Howard Clyde advanced to Isaiah Hammond fifty thousand dollars, with which sum his indebtedness to Mr. Wainwright was canceled; but he never knew it was a plot between Howard and the old gentleman to save his pride, and that the money really came from Mr. Wainwright himself.

Ladies' Department.

Mother Hubbard cloaks are never pretty, but those made of plaid woolen, lined with red and bordered with fur, are hideous.

Husbands may not understand it, but 1881 is a year of economy. The New Year's reception gowns are to be worn at the inauguration ball.

One of the new reticules is a perfectly straight bag sewed up at each side and drawn together at the top in the true old-fashioned way.

The French fashion of furnishing requires a clock in every room, and with the introduction of Louis XV. styles the demand for timepieces increases.

Chatelaine bags are worn far back on the left side now. Those which accompany street costumes have a stiff lining. Those meant for housewear are limp.

Christmas cards, as a rule, have no reference to Christmas. An English paper explains this peculiarity by saying that it is not fashionable now to be pious.

Veils of white illusion dotted with black are good things for an ugly woman to wear. They convince the beholder that it is possible for her to look plainer than she is.

Curtains worked in colors are preferred to those of plain white for bedrooms. In fact, the day when wide spaces of glaring white were considered tolerable has long passed.

In Paris, when a ball dress is made with a white satin skirt it is bordered with ruffles of colored satin, and trimmed with garlands of colored flowers and the basque is of satin brocade.

Sets of small articles, for dressing-rooms include brush and comb receivers, what-nots, slipper cases, cornucopias, pin cushions, and hair-pin cushions. These are made of cardboard and silk, and embroidered in colors.

Charlotte Corday kerchiefs are exceedingly pretty. They are made of silk muslin and Alencon lace, arranged in alternate rows running from the shoulders to the neck, and have a knot of the muslin tied in front with long, hanging ends.

Miscellaneous.

FOOLISHNESS IN DOLLS.—The doll mania has reached its height in New York. Dolls are sold at from $5 to $500. These prices include doll hats and parasols, with four changes of wardrobe, consisting of dresses, stockings, chemises, drawers and skirts. A doll bride seen in an up-town bazar by a New York Sunday News reporter, the other day, was in the shape of a young person, almost two feet tall. She wore a wedding ring and Parisian diamonds of the purest water sparkling in her ears. Her trosseau consisted of a train dress of white satin, with a lace veil and an orange wreath, white satin shoes and silk stockings, and half a dozen complete dresses for dinner, theatre, ball, Pulman coach. A feature of this trosseau was a casket of miniature jewels, consisting of necklaces, parures, rings, watch and chain and the like, a dressing case, holding combs, brushes and scent bottles. There were half a dozen parasols, a toy pug, and a handkerchief box full of little embroidered handkerchiefs, a pin-cushion and a bottle of real cologne. The price of this arrangement was $350, and some one had paid it, for the bride was ticketed, as many a human bride ought to be, "sold."

POACHING ON THE TWEED.

The slaughter of salmon in the Tweed by bands of poachers connected with the towns and villages in the vicinity of the river, is very considerable. As many as a hundred fish have been taken by one company from the river in a single night. As these fish might weigh from fifteen to twenty-five pounds each, it was sometimes no easy matter to get them transported from the river-side into town. A cart and horse were the most frequent means employed; but cases are cited in which a carriage and pair have been hired in an emergency, the better to escape detection. Hearses and mourning-coaches have even been utilized to cheat the river police. What is thus done by gangs or companies of men is also practiced, though on a less deadly scale, by individuals, many of the latter being led thereto in the course of their angling pursuits, and apparently from no other cause than their inability to avoid the temptation of killing a fish when opportunity offered. One veteran who gave evidence before the Commissioners, and who had been heavily fined as well as imprisoned for his poaching misdemeanors, said he could not help taking a fish when he saw it. "It is," he said, "a sort of disease in me."—Chambers's Journal.

A BRAVE WOMAN.

Says the St. John (New Brunswick) Globe: As the picnic train was passing over the bridge, near the Five-Mile House, a middle-aged woman approached from the opposite direction. She was walking pretty rapidly, and seemed to be unaware of the proximity of the train, until a whistle from the engineer aroused her to a sense of her danger. She was then but a short distance from the advancing train, and, instead of throwing up her hands in despair or jumping off, as many another would have done, she very deliberately lowered herself between the sleepers, and hung on with both hands until the train had passed on. When all danger was over she raised herself up again, and resumed her journey as if nothing had happened. Such presence of mind is seldom seen, and it was no wonder that the astonished train hands gave the brave woman a cheer as they saw her rising from the dangerous position.

WOULDN'T LET GO.

It is said that Edwin Booth was once playing Petruchio with an actress considerably larger than himself, and that he thought she let go the whip too readily when as Petruchio he wrested it from the hand of Katharine. So, after the play was over, he said, "You must hold on to the whip with more firmness to-morrow night; grasp it as hard as you can; I'll get it away from you, never fear." The next performance of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" came, and the melancholy-eyed tragedian, who, for the nonce, was essaying comedy, attempted to take the instrument of flagellation from his female "support." It was no go. She held on to it with a grasp of iron, and the audience soon began to see the joke and applauded the actress to the echo. Finally, out of pure good-nature, she unloosed her hold, and the play proceeded. When the curtain fell the actor had no advice to give.

A GOOD RETORT.

Rev. David Rice settled in Kentucky, in 1783, and was the first Presbyterian minister sent there. His leader of the singing was a certain Joe Davis, a noted genius of the day, whose moral character was not wholly unexceptionable. He applied to Father Rice to baptize his child for him, thinking, as he was the chorister, there would be objection to it. Father Rice refused, on the ground that he was not a church member. Joe became indignant. When church time came on he refused to raise the tune, and spoke out so that the congregation could hear him, that he would "neither whistle nor sing for a man who would refuse to mark the lambs because the old sheep went astray."

CHEERFUL ADVERTISING.

A London undertaker has recently driven through the city as an advertisement an enormous coffin, mounted on a base and driven by five horses. This final receptacle is got up in most gaudy colors, ornamented with the name and address of the purveyor on the outside, and lined within with satin or some other comfortable and pleasant material. A live corpse, with a sheet about him, did duty in his luxurious tenement, just to let the public see what a fine time one would have of it who should be lucky enough to obtain possession of the lodgment in perpetuity.

To every man there are many, many dark hours when he feels inclined to abandon his best interests—hours when his heart's dearest hopes appear delusive.

It is worth a month's salary to persuade a boy that he needs an overcoat. The little rascal will run his hands into his pantaloons' pocket to the elbows, and chatter his teeth and deliberately tell you that he's "j-j-just as wa-a-rm."

"My wife lost her pocket book with fifteen dollars in it, to-day," said a sad-looking man. "When; going down town or coming home?" asked somebody. "When? Didn't I tell you she had some money in it?" demanded the sad-looking man, and everybody knew when she lost it.

Paper teeth are announced. A German invented them, and displayed them at the recent paper exhibition in Berlin.

Miscellaneous.

Blow, Ye Western Breezes!

Blow, ye western breezes
Across the smiling sea,
And whisper to my darling:
"I haste, my love, to thee,
To bear thee far across the main
To bloom alone for me."

And thou, sweet golden sunbeam,
So bright and purely fair,
Shine thou upon her softly,
And tint her ebon hair
With lustre brighter than the gems
Of monarchs rich and rare.

And shine, with softened splendor,
Upon her blushing cheek,
Until, with maiden shyness,
Her lips my name doth speak;
Then mark her trembling heart-throbs;
And downcast eyes so meek.

Then haste and tell me, sunbeam,
If still she sighs to greet
My barque upon the billow,
And if her restless feet
Will haste along the sands to give Her lover greeting sweet!

Ethel's Coachman.

As handsome a fellow as ever one cared to see; dressed in a plain, gentlemanly suit of gray, and carrying a small valise, and looking with somewhat puzzled astonishment at the entire emptiness of the Plainville Railroad Depot, as the accommodation train that had brought him out from the city steamed away.

"No carriage, it seems—rather beastly in Anglesey to neglect sending for a fellow. Well, I dare say I can foot it to Cedar Shade—wherever that may be—if the thermometer does stand at ninety."

Then, after thinking some such thoughts, Mr. Frank Stratheden spied the perspiring, shirt-sleeved station agent, in the stuffy little office.

"Do you happen to know where Cedar Shade is?" or how far from here, and what road I am to take?"

The official slowly came around outside the saloon precincts of the ticket-office, and pointed to a shade-embowered cottage, about a mile distant, on the very apex of an eminence that towered against the blue sky.

"There you are, sir. It's a pity you hadn't a-took the train ahead of this what you came on—Mr. Anglesey was down here with his phaeton and horses for somebody as didn't come."

Mr. Stratheden looked disgustedly up the long, ascending road, then gave his handsome shoulders a shrug that meant resignation, perforce, to cruel fate.

"I see I am in for a breather. Well—I'm much obliged to you."

And, shifting his valise to the other hand, he started off, as unmindful of the broiling sun as any healthy, hearty young fellow of twenty-seven ought to be; and wondering, as he went, if Anglesey had told the exact, honest, unvarnished truth, when he had said that Ethel, his cousin, was the fairest, loveliest girl upon whose golden hair and sweet gray eyes the sun had ever shone.

The truth was that for some time he had been quite particularly interested in Anglesey's letters from Cedar Shade, in all of which Ethel's name was frequently mentioned, and Ethel's charms elaborated upon, and when, at length, a pressing invitation from Anglesey had come, for him to spend a month at that delightful paradise called Cedar Shade, away up among the mountains, Stratheden had been nothing loath to accept it, and here he was.

Ten minutes, at a swinging pace, with a valise, under a broiling sun, would have made nine fellows out of ten cross and ill-natured by the time the cool, shady stretch of path alongside a riotous little rivulet, was reached; but Frank Stratheden was the tenth young man of that imaginary number, and instead of fuming over what he had accomplished, he very sensibly sat down in the coolest, shadiest place, to rest for a moment.

Only a little further up was the cottage, its cool gray walls visible through the embowering foliage, the lace draperies at the windows swaying to and fro in the crisp breeze, that was fifteen degrees cooler than at the sunny foot of the hill.

From somewhere he could hear the sound of a merrily-playing and plashing fountain, and all around him was the delicious, exhilirating odor of pure, sweet air, and forest trees, and earth.

For a little while he lay there, stretched lazily and comfortably on the grass, then went on his way again, arriving at the private grounds of Cedar Shade almost before he knew it, and to meet, as he turned a deceiving little curve in the shady forest road, a charming young girl, with a wide-rimmed shade hat over her bright eyes, and a startled little look on her face as Stratheden made his debut so suddenly.

He bowed and raised his hat.

"I beg your pardon, but I believe this is Cedar Shade?"

"How you frightened me, coming so suddenly! Yes, this is Cedar Shade, and we've been looking for you all the morning. You are Francis, I believe?"

Stratheden was just a little surprised. Anglesey might have known better than to have talked of him as "Francis," particularly as that gentleman knew he detested the name.

"Yes," he said, "my name is Francis."

"It is a very good thing that you came to-day," she went on, looking brightly at him. "Do you know we wouldn't have waited any longer? Papa said, this very morning at breakfast, if you didn't come before noon he should get some one else."

It was rather bewildering, to be sure, Stratheden thought; but perhaps Cedar Shade's guests were treated like those of royalty—expected to come on time, and in turn go on time, to give place to other comers.

"I am very glad, however, that you are come. My cousin isn't in just at present, and papa is busy with his partner, just up from the office, so I'll take you around to the stables myself. Shall I?"

To the stables! A curious way of introducing guests to the hospitalities of Cedar Shade, to be sure; but, then—he would have gone to the pig-sty, or the hen-house, with such a charming little chaperone as this.

"I shall be glad to be shown the stables," he said, as he stepped in the direction her dainty little fingers indicated—a large, pleasant-looking building, with plenty of shade and room about.

She looked at him a second—just a little wide-eyed and wondering.

"I am glad you are so—gentlemanly," she said, gravely. "I am Miss Ethel. You may call me so, Francis."

He bowed, a delightful sensation occurring to him.

This, then, was the sweet girl of whom he had heard and thought so much! Well—

Ethel scattered his thoughts most effectually,

"There is just one especial word I want to say, Francis, and that is about my ponies—the dear little jet-black ponies, only eleven hands, that nobody ever drives but myself. I want you to be particularly careful of them, and never give them over two quarts of oats a day. And I hope you will keep my phaeton looking like new all the time. I am very particular about the condition of my rig. Our last man was too provokingly careless about the lamps for anything."

And then, with the strangest of all strange sensations occurring to him, this hero of ours discovered that—shades of departed racers and memories of dead-and-gone jockeys!—that fair Ethel Anglesey, whom he had come to fall in love with, thought he was a—newly-hired coachman! Just the merest glimmer of a smile was upon his lips for a second, as he allowed himself to thoroughly enjoy the racy joke, and then he resolved to carry it out indefinitely. So he bowed gravely.

"I'll remember, ma'am; I will do my best, ma'am."

And then, with a pleasing little smile and a nod, Ethel went away—so fair, so passing sweet, graceful and lovely—leaving him in a most delightfully bewildered state, as he walked into the roomy stable, and found the the miniature ponies that were charming Ethel's darlings.

While Ethel went back to the house, and presented herself before a placid, beautiful, elderly lady, in pole gray lawn, and a white lace breakfast cap on her rippling, fair hair.

"Mamma, the new man has come. I took him out of the stable myself, and told him about Flirt and Dandy, and I do think I never saw a handsomer, more gentlemanly fellow. Mamma, he has the loveliest eyes and moustache. Truly, if I hadn't known Francis was the new coachman's name, and he hadn't told me it was he, I never would have believed he could be a hired man."

"Ethel, child, you do talk so extravagantly. I am sure Mike was as nice-looking as he could be."

Ethel gave a little shriek.

"Mike? Oh, mamma, the idea of comparing Mike with this one! I do wonder if he will groom Dandy and Flirt to suit me? I think I will go back and superintend the operation."

"I wouldn't, dear," Mrs. Anglesey said, a little anxiously; at which Ethel looked strangely, sweetly, at her.

"But I would mamma. And besides, there comes Phil—I must tell him to oversee Francis."

So she tied on a bewitching little sun-hat, and went back to the stable, where Stratheden stood beside the ponies, looking at them with an admiration that was very acceptable to Ethel.

"Aren't they beauties?" she said, enthusiastically, laying her cheek lovingly on Flirt's glossy flank. "I do hope you'll be good to them, Francis. I wish you'd begin now—right away." Then with a little furtive look at his neat gray suit, "I suppose you've got your working-clothes in your valise, haven't you? If not, there's a pair of overalls of Mike's."

She pointed to a curious, blue-striped garment hanging on a peg.

"Thank you, ma'am," he said, gravely. "My working-clothes haven't come yet, and I'll be obliged for these."

"I'll be back in an hour, Francis," she said, blithely; "and then, at four this afternoon, you're to drive me out. And I hope"—she hesitated and looked solemnly at him, then flushed the merest bit in the world—"I do hope you will be particular about looking neat in your dress when you drive me. Mike was—so slouchy—it was one reason papa discharged him. And he chewed tobacco. Francis, you don't chew?"

"No, ma'am," he said, gravely, and Ethel gave a sigh of relief.

"I am so glad! Oh, here comes my cousin Phil—Mr. Anglesey; he will tell you—"

And Philip Anglesey came rushing in the stable, and up to Francis, and shook his hand ardently, and seemed generally overjoyed.

"If this isn't a go! You've stolen a march, sure enough, on us, Frank; but you see, I thought you'd come on the early train, and went down after you. Glad to see you, old fellow! You've been making yourself at home, it seems—introduced yourself to Ethel, and all that—eh, Stratheden? Why, Ethel, what's the row?"

For Ethel had suddenly crimsoned to her very throat, and Stratheden stood smiling in wicked glee.

"'It's only a mistake, and a most delightful one," he said, gallantly.

And then Ethel bravely explained.

"Oh—oh, Phil, I thought he was the coachman papa had engaged!"

A shout of laughter went up from the two gentlemen, and even Ethel laughed—a miserable little hysterical laugh.

"It is too absurb!" she said, with a shy little havoc-making glance at Stratheden's handsome eyes.

"But I hope to hold you to your word, Miss Ethel—you know you said I might call you Miss Ethel—you will let me drive you out at four o'clock? I promise to look as 'neat' as possible—"

And they all laughed again, and went into the house.

Well, Stratheden had the happiness of taking Ethel on her drive, and—

When he went back from Cedar Shade, he took with him her heart, and her promise to be his bride before winter snow fell.

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Semiual Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Kings fos monopoly, the Kings for plunder, and the Kings for imperial power.

Our terms are as follows:

For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

THE NEW YORK EVENING POST

FOR 1881.

In Its Eighty first Year.

The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.

1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.

2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.

3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first-class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents, not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.

4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.

5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions, which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, JAN. 19, 1881.

High Service.

At the last Annual Town Meeting a committee was appointed by the town to consider and report at the Annual Meeting next spring in relation to supplying the town with water at high service. The committee, we learn, have nearly completed their work, and will—without they obtain a very liberal proposition from the Danvers Water Board—recommend the town to put in pumping works similar to those used by the city of Haverhill, viz: A pumping engine, capable of pumping one and a half million gallons daily; a stand pipe 40 feet high by 30 feet in diameter, located upon one of the highest points in town—probably Buxton's Hill, which is 144 feet above the Square, and 159 feet above tide water—at a cost estimated at some $70,000, which includes everything except land for pumping station and reservoir, and the supply pipes that would be required on the line of new pipe; the estimate covering not only the engine pipe and stand pipe, but 34,000 feet of pipe, from six to twelve inches in size, with gates, hydrants, the making of connections with the 12 and 16 inch mains, and everything required for putting the works in perfect running order.

We also learn that it is the opinion of the committee that the pumping station should be located near Tapley's Brook, or near Allen's Lane, in order that the 12 and 16 inch mains, which are in close proximity here, may receive the high pressure before being tapped for supplies. Other advantages in locating the works near Allen's Lane would be in obtaining a supply from Humphrey's Pond, should it ever become necessary to do so, and in transporting the coal and lining the pipes.

The annual expense of running such works, the committee are of opinion, would not be over $4000, including the interest on the cost of the pumping works, stand pipe, etc. The excess of income on our water works last year was $2700 above the running expenses and interest, which would leave only a deficiency of $1300 for the tax payers to annually shoulder, to say nothing of the reduction which could undoubtedly be made in the expenditures of the Fire Department. Danvers, with her powerful water works, gets along without a single fire engine, hydrants and hose carriages answering, so far, all needs; Beverly retains only one steamer; and Salem and Lynn have dispensed with all of their hand engines, but retain their steamers.

HE DECLINED.—To the Brooklyn Eagle's assertion that Gen. Grant never declined anything, the Troy Times says: "Oh, yes, he did. He declined to be a traitor to his country. He declined to bear arms against it. He declined Lee's sword. He declined to be a cat's-paw for Andrew Johnson. And he declines to be a Democrat."

GRANT AND LORING.—And now some wicked journalist asserts that Dr. Loring expressed Gen. Grant's mind on the canal question in the current North American—which, if true, is very complimentary to the Doctor, and evinces remarkably good taste on the part of the General in the selection of a writer.

SHARP.—A Congressman, in a bantering tone, asked delegate Cannon, of Utah, the number of his wives.—"Enough," was the prompt reply, "to keep me from running after the wives of other people."

LET IT FLOAT.—A Hancock and English banner in tatters still hangs from the liberty pole at Charlottesville, Va. No one will haul it down, and the purpose is to let it float for four years.

OLD WORLD.—Mr. Gladstone has promised a deputation of English and Irish Liberals that his proposed land bill will give the Irish fair rents, free sales and security of tenure. This decision meets the wishes of the Radical members.

The British Ministry regard war as inevitable between Greece and Turkey, though the Porte still hopes for another conference.

The continuation of severe cold in London this season is without precedent in twenty years. So intense is the frost that nearly every householder has had his waterpipes frozen up, and last Monday night the town was in partial darkness, owing to the action of the frost on the gas-pipes.

London is not the only frozen-up place in England. Reports from every part of the island, and from Ireland as well, indicate a fall in the thermometer which is not usually felt in these latitudes.

The freezing of the Thames has put a stop to the Hanlan-Laycock match.

Ireland was visited yesterday by the severest snow storm in 20 years. It fell to the depth of one foot in Dublin.

JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA.—At last a Cyclopedia has been presented to the public, worthy of the name and at a price within the reach of nearly every family. There have been many of these works during the past few years presented to the people of this country, some entirely failing to give the satisfaction required, and others so very costly that they were within the reach of only a few. Johnson's, besides being pronounced by over two thousand of the leading scholars in our country the "best work published for general reference," is at a price less by one-half. The agent, Captain Fentress, will remain for several weeks in Peabody, giving every one an opportunity to inspect the work, and to judge for themselves. Our citizens will find him an intelligent gentleman, highly recommended by the best citizens of Salem for integrity and honor, and the firm that he represents are known to be of the highest standing. An opportunity is here offered to purchase the best reference book in our language upon terms so liberal that the most humble can avail themselves of it.

EUROPE.—The close of the year 1880 leaves three principal difficulties for European statesmen to grapple with. The trouble between Turkey and Greece is the most important of these, as its international nature might at any moment cause a general war. Next in importance is what may be called the rebellion in Ireland, where law is openly defied; and a souvenir to England in the form of a revolt of the Boers in South Africa. Outside these imbroglios the peace of Europe seems to be fairly well assured, and there is at present no disturbing element apparent. At the same time it is impossible to foresee what the next few months may produce, for the great Powers are watching each other and waiting like skillful pugilists for one of their number to make a false move.

A GOOD THING.—What the cod is to the Newfoundland banks, the red snapper seems to be to the Gulf of Mexico, where its feeding ground extend over 700 miles. This fish, which is a highly-prized luxury in the markets of New Orleans, is found in countless myriads at all seasons at a depth of from 50 to 80 feet of water, and is caught with lines having a number of hooks, windlasses being frequently used to haul the loaded lines on board the fishing smacks. There the fish are kept in wells, a small incision being made below the gills to let out the air accumulated in their passage from the depth of water at which they are caught, and which would otherwise keep them afloat.

Hon. Henry L. Dawes was re-elected yesterday U. S. Senator for six years by the Massachusetts Legislature, receiving 34 votes in the Senate to 3 for B. F. Butler, and 163 in the House to 41 for B. F. Butler, 23 for Gov. Long, and 3 for others. Senator Horton voted for Dawes; as also did our Representative, Mr. Wardwell; but Gifford, Cogswell and Almy of Salem voted for John D. Long.

MURRAY CLUB.—At the meeting of the Murray Club, on Monday evening, the poem, "Hanging of the Crane," was recited, illustrated by tableaux, which were of a very pretty character and afforded enjoyment to those present. Tuesday evening the same was repeated, for the benefit of the public, an admission fee being charged.

GOOD FISHING.—From the pure waters of Spring Pond last Friday, Messrs. A. A. Ward and E. Buxton (Curley) took from its sandy bottom twenty-five pickerel, weighing nearly fifty pounds, two of which pulled down the weight of eight pounds. They also captured as many more perch, which were of good size.

A gentleman of experience and observation remarks that he never felt so sensibly the force of the adage that "the world is full of books," as when he attended the G. A. R. fair last evening.

We miss from our streets those good turnouts we used to see on Washington street a few years ago. Then was the time that Peabody boasted of its fast teams, lively trotters, smart steppers and handsome turnouts.

FAULT-FINDING A SLOW POISON. Under any great sorrow or any great trial we can be calm and brave, but it is the thousand and one little vexations of the daily life that start the fret, and we fret, fret until we can hardly realize or measure how much. If we could but measure, I fear our fault-findings would far exceed our words of endearment and affection. As the constant dropping of water will wear away the hardest rock, so constant fault-finding will dwarf the noblest nature, and harden and estrange the warmest and most generous of hearts. This is a vice we need to banish from every household, and in this way banish it from the earth. Those who never fret at home will never fret elsewhere. To keep from being cross is an easy thing to talk, but not an easy thing to do.

I know of no better way when we feel downright cross than to force ourselves to speak pleasant words. To be cross and silent soon resolves itself into the sulks, which is by far the most aggravating of all fault-findings, and has the worst effect on all parties concerned. Let our authority be tempered with love and kindness, and upheld by firmness, but let no one seek to sustain its passion and fault-findings.

It is said of mortals, "It is no easy thing to die;" it surely is no easy thing to live and even approximate a true life. But it is only as we near the true life we find happiness and can bestow it on others.

K. OF H.—On Monday evening last the officers elect—as recently announced in the PRESS—of Bowditch Lodge, No. 619, Knights of Honor, were duly installed by Deputy Grand Dictator Nathaniel M. Jackman, of Salem, and his staff.

PRESS OPINION.—Many of their selections, especially those of a humorous character, were exceedingly fine, and were repeatedly encored.—Lynn Transcript.

A LITTLE CHARMER.—There lives near Harrisburg, Ohio—an out-of-the-way place in Hancock County, about three miles west of Mt. Blanchard—a very remarkable child only five years old, who seems to have the power to charm birds at will. Her mother first noticed this strange fascination the child possesses about a year ago. The little girl was out in the dooryard among a bevy of snowbirds, and when she spoke to them they would come and light upon her, twittering with glee.—On taking them in her hands and stroking them, the birds, instead of trying to get away from their fair captor, seemed to be highly pleased, and when let loose would fly away a short distance and immediately return to the child again. She took several of them into the house to show her mother, who, thinking she might hurt them, put them out of doors, but no sooner was the door opened than the birds flew into the room again, lit upon the girl's head, and began to chirp. The birds remain about the premises all winter, flying to the little girl whenever the door opened. The parents of the child became alarmed, believing that this strange power was an ill omen, and that the much-dreaded visitor, death, was about to visit their home. But death did not come, and during the last summer the child has had many pet birds. The child handles the birds so gently that a humming bird once in her hands does not fail to return. Last winter a bevy of birds kept her company, and she played with them for hours at a time. Every morning the birds fly to her window, and leave only when the sun sinks in the west. The parents of the little girl are poor, superstitious people, and have been reticent about the matter until lately, fearing that some great calamity was about to befall them.

RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Directors of the South Danvers National Bank, held at their Banking-Rooms, Jan. 18, 1881, the following votes were unanimously passed:

Voted, That the Directors have heard of the sudden death of their esteemed associate and friend, Mr. Isaac B. Elliott, with unfeigned sorrow and profound regret. For more than twenty years he has been a member of the Board, and during all that time has devoted himself earnestly to its best interests. While his uniform courtesy, kindly manners and genuine moral worth have made his daily companionship most agreeable and endeared him to us all, his sound judgment, prompt application of correct principles of business, and long experience, have been of great service to the Bank, and largely influential in securing its past and present prosperity.

Voted, That we respectfully tender to the family of our departed friend our sincere sympathy in their great bereavement; that in token of their respect, the Directors and officers of the Bank will together attend the funeral service of the deceased; that the doings of this meeting be entered upon our records, and that the Cashier be instructed to forward a copy of the same to the family of the deceased.

OUR SEVENTH
Great Annual Sale,
— OF —
LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S Cotton Underwear,
WILL BE INAUGURATED ON
MONDAY, JANUARY, 17, 1881.

Without any special comment, we will simply state that we have made this season the most elaborate preparations for this, our Seventh Great Annual Sale of Ladies' and Children's Cotton Underwear. Foreseeing some months ago that we should need a very large amount of goods for this sale, we gave large orders to the best and largest manufacturer of Cotton Underwear in New England, Mr. C. F. Hathaway, of Waterville, Me., in order to produce at this time every article of Cotton Underwear known to the trade, in the most complete and perfect manner, as regards fit, style, quality and workmanship, and at prices at which competition is impossible. On account of the inevitable rush which always follows the announcement of our Great Annual Sale of Cotton Underwear and Corsets, we shall this year display full and complete stocks on both first and second floors of our store. The room which we shall occupy for this sale will be larger than that of any other store in the state.

This new and attractive stock of Cotton Underwear, we are to open for the inspection of the public on MONDAY, JAN. 17, and we cordially invite every lady in this vicinity to call and examine the very best bargains ever seen in Cotton Underwear, which will be so numerous that we can specify only a few. We guarantee all our Cotton Underwear as perfect in workmanship, and the best that can be bought in New England. And in all cases where our customers are not perfectly satisfied, we will with pleasure not only exchange the goods, but will refund the money if desired.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

MR. ISAAC B. ELLIOTT, son of the late Mr. Isaac Elliott, died at his residence on Main St., last Monday morning. For a number of years he has been quite an invalid, and last summer made a trip to Europe in hopes to rebuild his shattered health. He was noted among his intimate acquaintances for his vivacity of spirits, good humor, and sharp and witty expressions. In his manners he was unostentatious, strong and courageous in his convictions, decidedly liberal in his religious views, attending the Unitarian Church, but in politics he was strongly partizan, always voting with his party. Scrupulously honest in his dealings with his fellow men, he exacted and expected the same from them in return. When a mere lad he was solicited to fill the position of clerk in the Warren Bank when it was first established, with Jonathan Shove as its President, and Augustus Osborn its cashier. From the bank he entered the provision business —that being the occupation of his father—and followed it until within a few years, renting a stall in the Salem market a part of the time, whereby he became well-known to nearly all of the leading citizens of that city, which, perhaps, accounted, in a large degree, for his strong annexation proclivities, standing, as he did, for many years solitary and alone in favor of unitiug our town with Salem. For a number of years he has been President of the South Danvers Fire Insurance Company, a Director of the South Danvers National Bank, and one of the Trustees of the Warren Five Cents Savings Bank, all of which positions he faithfully filled. For the past ten years or more he has been engaged in the leather business, running the factory on Foster street, so long occupied by his late brother, Lewis W. Elliott. He leaves a wife and two sisters, and a very large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his departure. His age was 63 years 10 months 3 days.

His funeral took place this afternoon, from his late residence, Rev. Mr. Hudson officiating, and his remains were placed in the family lot in the Monumental Cemetery.

I. O. O. F. COURSE.—The fifth entertainment of the I. O. O. F. Course was given in the Institute on Thursday evening last, by the Ingleside Quartette, consisting of Mrs. H. E. H. Carter, soprano. Mrs. Etta Cleaveland Fenderson, contralto, Mr. Alfred Wilkie, tenor, Mr. J. P. Cobb, basso and humorist, assisted by Mrs. J. P. Cobb, accompanist. Of Mrs. Carter's singing we have little to add beyond what we have said in her praise on former occasions of her appearance here. In the Cavatina, "O Luce di quest anima," she had the opportunity to show those excellent qualities of voice which have given her such a high position in the musical world, but it was in the encore song of "The Last Rose of Summer," that she achieved her greatest success.

Mrs. Fenderson made her first appearance in this town on this occasion, and although suffering from a severe cold, having given up an engagement the previous evening on that account, made a very favorable impression. She sang the song "The Love Star," superbly and her rendering of "The Twickenhan Ferry," was thoroughly enjoyed. We hope the time is not far distant when we shall have an opportunity to hear her again.

It was painfully evident that Mr. Wilkie was suffering severely from a cold, but considering the circumstances he sang his numbers very well. Mr. Cobb's "Wreck of the Hesperus" did not receive the applause merited, but the audience were not long in according him what was justly his due, for with the exception, perhaps, of Barnabee, and that even may be doubtful, no artiste has ever appeared on that stage, in that particular line, who has been more favorably received.

The five entertainments advertised by the I. O. O. F., have been given, and, as a course, have been highly successful throughout — one of the best ever given in this town, and was worthy of the support of the fine audiences by which it was patronized. We congratulate Holten Lodge upon having selected a committee who spared no pains in presenting only such entertainments as were worthy of the highest praise that a cultured and critical audience could bestow. The committee announce that "An Unexpected Pleasure" will be given as soon as Mr. Sayward, the impersonator, recovers his voice.

Mr. R. G. Buxton (the champion hog sticker) while performing this arduous duty yesterday, received a severe sprain in one of his ankles, which will cause him to stick to the house for a number of days to come.

Coal has advanced fifty cents a ton.

G. A. R. FAIR.—The fair in aid of Union Post 50, G. A. R., opened last evening under quite favorable auspices. It was attended by a very large number, contrary to the usual custom on opening nights. Upton's Hall, which has been secured for the occasion, was tastefully furnished with tables laden with ornamental and useful articles, including fancy goods and aprons, and amply stocked with confectionery and other desirable and tempting spreads. The supper room was well supplied with oysters, ice cream, etc. In one corner are the grand prizes, which are to be drawn and voted for. The opening would have hardly been complete without the Salem Brass Band, which discoursed excellent music. The fair is in the hands of a committee who have had experience and are not afraid to work. They will present new attractions each evening, and thus keep up the public interest. On this (Wednesday) evening the Salem Brass Band and Post 90 of Danvers will be present. On Friday evening the Salem Band and Post 87 of Beverly will attend.

PRESENTATIONS.—The boys of Gen. Sutton Steamer Co. surprised Mr. A. P. Basford, on last Wednesday evening, at his residence on Lowell street, and presented him a very fine Reclining Chair, done in silk, ebony and gold. A very pleasant time was had.

The chair was furnished by Mr. C. H. Goulding, Walnut street, and does credit to the seller, buyers and receiver.

At the regular meeting of Union Post 50, G. A. R., last Monday evening, Adjt. Wm. H. Hildreth, in behalf of the comrades of the Post, presented Past Post Commander Cyrus T. Batchelder with an elegant solid gold badge, regulation size. Col. Batchelder pleasantly responded, and it is the general opinion of all that no one could wear it with greater credit than the Col.

Those who were passing along that part of Washington street near the Monument at about seven o'clock last Monday evening, might have seen a horse attached to a sleigh dash around the corner into Main street, nearly coming in contact with a passing horse car, pass on across the track to the other side, skip past a sleighing party in a barge, cross again to the other side, as some small boys tried to check his headlong speed, rush around the corner of Main, striking a go-as-you-please gait up Central street, and is still going for aught we know.

As will be seen by the co-partnership notice of to-day, the firm of Messrs. Donnell & Bradford is increased by the addition of H. M. Scholar Esq., as a special partner. Mr. S. is interested in one of the largest flour mills of Minnesota, and brings to Peabody the experience of many years in the milling of flour, and any advantage he can give to our townsmen, be assured it will be most willingly given.

The Young People's Union connected with the Methodist Church have accepted an invitation of Rev. V. M. Simons, to visit him at his home in Woburn. They will leave the store of Mr. B. F. Stevens, (if pleasant) at six o'clock to-morrow (Thursday) evening. A general invitation is extended to any of Mr. Simons' friends to join the party.

A lecture will be delivered in the Institute, January 24th, under the auspices of the Peabody branch of the Irish Land League. Mr. James Redpath has been secured for this occasion, and as the lecturer is thoroughly acquainted with the present condition of England and Ireland, his discourse will treat upon facts as they now exist among the tenantry of Ireland.

Arrangements are being made for another of those social parties at Upton's Hall, February 9th, under the management of the young men who gave the party at the first of the season. Nothing will be left undone to make it an exceedingly pleasant and successful affair, and no doubt there will be a large attendance.

Many people are very careless or forgetful, as is shown by the miscellaneous collection which is gathered by Mr. Isaac Drown, the Janitor at the Institute, after almost every entertainment. Last week several valuable articles were found, which the owners can have by applying to Mr. Drown.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those present at the Unitarian Chapel last Friday evening. The readings by Miss Teele were quite a treat, as the young lady is a fine reader. The attendance was not as large as was desired, but those who attended were fully repaid.

As a matter of interest for future reference, we place upon record the fact that some of our most dignified and respected citizens have the past week been seen in such a condition that it was impossible for them to keep on their feet. It was very slippery.

SWEEPING MARK-DOWN SALE

— OF —

MENS', YOUTHS', BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S

OVERCOATS,

ULSTERS,

ULSTERETTES,

SUITS AND PANTALOONS.

Take Time and read this bill through carefully.

According to our usual custom we shall inaugurate on MONDAY, JANUARY 3d, our great Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Men's Youths', Boys' and Chrildren's Clothing.

The unparalleled success and the large increase in our sales for 1880, has proved beyond a doubt that we give better clothing for the money than any other dealers in Essex County. We are now prepared to offer some of the most wonderful bargains ever known in the history of the clothing trade. As we are manufacturers of our own clothing and do all our business for cash, paying cash for our purchases, we secure the best goods at the very lowest prices; and as all our sales are made for cash we can afford to offer superior inducements to our patrons; it will pay you to come a hundred miles to purchase clothing at this great mark-down sale.

We give below a list of a few special bargains.

GENTS' DEP'T.

— $3.00, 4.00, and 5.00 —

Drugs and Medicines of all kinds; Toilet Articles, Sponges, Brushes, Perfumery, &c., kept constantly on hand.

Prescriptions carefully and promptly prepared.

Of the late Lord Chief Justice Cockburn it is said that on one occasion, while still without the bar, he had to examine a witness named Phinn, and asked, "Well, sir, how do you spell your name—with an F or a Ph?"—"Some spell it one way and some another, I believe," replied the man.—"Yes, but I presume there is a right way and a wrong way, eh?" "Oh, certainly," asserted the witness. "Very good," replied Cockburn, now certain of his quarry. "How do you spell it yourself?" "Oh! I—I—I don't spell it! I always make my mark!"

☞ WHAT MR. PITTS MIGHT HAVE SAVED HIMSELF.—Mr. Henry Pitts, N. Y., suffered from the presence of Stone in the Bladder for several years. Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., removed the foreign body by the knife. Had Mr. Pitts, and others similiarly afflicted, used Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" in the earlier stages of the disease, the medicine would have prevented the formation of the calculus or stone, rendering a dangerous surgical operation unnecessary. Dr. Kennedy gave "Favorite Remedy" to prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Pitt remains in perfect health to this day.

Look upward in the city and see the net-work of wires. Then you will understand why it is natural that there should be so many rumors in the air.

He was talking about the New England dinner. "What's that?" exclaimed Jones; "I've heard of champagne suppers, but a New England dinner must be fearful!"

Mr. Thirdfinger was laboriously puffing down the street this morning, on his way to the glazier's, with a heavy window sash on his back. It was cold and raw, and Mr. Thirdfinger was raw and cold. "Hello!" sung out an acquaintance with a joke in his eye; "what have you got behind you?" "A fool!" growled Mr. Thirdfinger shortly, and having embalmed that fly in the liquid amber or his remarks, he passed on.

☞ Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

"A pair of worsted slippers," remarked Jones, as he picked himself up from the icy walk and rubbed his bruises, to Prendergast, who was engaged in the same laudable undertaking.

What a merry sound the scrape of the snow shovel has upon the morning air. Especially if you are snug in bed, and somebody else is doing the shovelling.

A South End teacher, in her little holiday-vacation speech to her pupils last Friday, trusted they would come back resolving that their behavior should be unexceptional, and that they would give up all bad habits, when a little girl in the back of the room jumped up and said, "The same to you, ma'am."

☞ There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Back-ache Plasters.

"I want you to put on a new pair of heels to these boots," said Dr. Ipicac to the shoemaker. "Why don't you do it yourself, doctor?" asked old Waxends. "I?" said the doctor, in astonishment. "Why, yes. Doesn't the good book say, 'Physician, heel thyself'?"

The officers of ocean steamers, it is said, can, from their posts of observation on deck, tell more of what is going on among the passengers—flirtations and elopements—and better judge of their characters, whether they are fugitives from justice, commercial travellers, clergymen or grass widows, than the passengers learn below. One of these observing captains declares that he knows whether a young woman has left her lover at one port or expects to meet him at the other. If her lover is behind her she cares nothing for wind, rain or fog, but gets tanned, freckled and toughened in a highly healthful and independent fashion. But if her lover is waiting for her she takes infinite trouble with veils and other complexion preservatives.

A few years ago we celebrated the hundredth anniversary of a Declaration of Independence, every signer of which made himself liable to all the pains and penalties prescribed by British law for the crime of high treason. Had events turned out differently, it is entirely probable that Washington, the Adamses, Hancock, and a score of lesser patriots whose names are now in everlasting honor would have ended their days on the scaffold. Perhaps a hundred years hence, the Government and people of the United States will receive an invitation to join the freedom-loving Boers of South Africa in celebrating the centennial anniversary of another Declaration of Independence.

ONLY A CAPE AND A SWORD.

Napoleon I. never forgot anything—least of all the days of his poverty, and the slights he then received. When he first paid court to Madame de Beauharnais, neither was rich enough to keep a carriage, and the young hero, who was deeply in love, often gave the charming widow his arm when she went to visit her man of business, a notary named Raguideau. Madame, who had great confidence in this legal adviser, who was a friend as well, went to see him immediately after her engagement to Bonaparte, who, as usual, accompanied her, but, from motives of delicacy, did not enter the notary's cabinet, but remained in an adjoining room, where several clerks were writing. The door being imperfectly closed, he heard nearly all that was said during the interview, and especially the arguments used by Raguideau to deter Madame de Beauharnais from the marriage she acknowledged herself she was about to contract.

"Mark my words, madame," said the notary, earnestly, "you are about to commit a great folly, of which you will bitterly repent. Why, this man you are about to espouse, has nothing in the world but a cape and a sword."

Eight years after, Napoleon, on the day of his coronation, as soon as he was invested with his imperial robes, said:

"Let them seek Raguideau. Have him come instantly. I have something to say to him."

The notary was brought, and stood much astonished before the Emperor, who, with his peculiar sardonic smile, said to him:

"Eh bien, monsieur, have I nothing in the world but a cape and a sword?"

PETRARCH'S GROTTO.

A huge cliff up and down seems to bar all passage. Yet the river foams in torrents at your ride. Whence can it issue? What pass or cranny in that precipice is cloven for its escape? These questions grow in interest as we enter the narrow defiles of limestone rocks which lead to the cliff-barrier, and find ourselves among the figs and olives of Vaucluse. Here is the village, the little church, the ugly column to Petrarch's memory, the inn, with its caricatures of Laura, and its excellent trout, the bridge and the many-fishing, eddying Sorgues, lashed by mill-wheels, broken by weirs, divided in its course, channeled and diked, yet flowing irresistibly and undefiled. Blue, purpled, greened by moss and water-weeds, silvered by snow-white pebbles, on its pure, smooth bed the river runs like an elemental diamond, so clear and fresh.

The rocks on either side are gray or yellow, terraced into olive yards, with here and there a cypress, fig or mulberry tree. Soon the gardens cease, and lentisk, rosemary, box and ilex—shrubs of Provence—with here and there a sumach out of reach, cling to the hard stone. And so at last we are brought face to face with the sheer impassable precipice. At its basement sleeps a pool, perfectly untroubled; a lakelet, in which the sheltering rocks and nestling wild figs are glassed as in a mirror—a mirror of blue-black water, like amethyst or fluor-spar—so pure, so still, that where it laps the pebbles you can scarcely say where air begins or water ends. This, then, is Petrarch's "grotto;" this is the fountain of Vaucluse.—Chimney Corner.

CHEAP LIVING.

Charles Mathews used to tell of two Frenchmen, who, finding their finances running to the dregs within a week in London, determined to separate, for the purpose of greater economy. At the end of a month they met by accident; Monsieur Jean had become as corpulent as an alderman, while Monsieur Pierre was reduced to skin and bone.

"Ma foi?" said the starving Pierre, "how is all this? I am half starved. For the last fortnight I have lived on bread and water, while you look as round as a burgomaster."

"The matter is easily explained," said Monsieur Jean; "I live on a delightful thing that costs me only four sous a day."

"Mai foi," said the starving Pierre, "tell me what it is. What do they call it!"

"What it is, I don't know," was the reply; "but they called it cat's-meat."

AN "EDUCATED RAT."

Just as the bar-tender of the Marshall House, at Savannah, was going to draw a glass of beer for a customer, he saw a big rat on the floor, just under the spigot, standing on his hind legs, with his mouth wide open, to catch the beer that was spilled or dripped. The bar-tender took a little pony glass and filled it with beer, and set it down on the floor. The rat promptly drank it empty, then walked off slowly and with a kind of stagger. Since that time he has come back every day for his beer, and drinks it regularly at 11 a. m., eating also a piece of bread and meat, which is given him daily.

A certain English general, being at the point of death, opened his eyes, and seeing a consultation of four physicians who were standing close by the bedside, faintly exclaimed, "Gentlemen, if you fire by platoons, it's all over with me," and instantly expired.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

237 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following:—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy, and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere Houte, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

'He will give further proof if you will call upon him

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is raising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule: but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rhumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

ASSABET MILLS,
MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

A CONSPIRACY OF ONE.

One of the oddest quibbles of the quibble fruitful law is that known to this day among lawyers as the "single conspirator." While Burke and Hare were manufacturing subjects for the Scotch medical schools, a horrible hag entered the shop of a surgeon-apothecary in an Irish town and offered to sell him a subject. He was ready enough to buy one, but by no means prepared to learn that the commodity in question was yet alive in the person of a nine-year-old boy, her grandson, who was waiting for her outside.

"I didn't want to kill him, sir," she said, "bekase, ye see, if I didn't sell him to wanst he'd spile, it's so hot."

Determined that such an atrocity should be punished, the doctor told her to call next day, when he wasn't too busy to talk to her. He then had a policeman hidden under the counter. In his hearing the harridan explained her plan to slap a pitch plaster over her victim's mouth, and suffocate him in a tub of water. The officer, when she had finished, pounced on and arrested her, and she was brought to trial.

But here came the difficulty.

She had killed no one, so she was not guilty of murder. It must, therefore, be conspiracy to kill, but a single person cannot conspire; it takes at least two. In order to secure an indictment it would be necessary to include the surgeon in it. But this would be manifestly unfair, and after a keen argument by a shrewd young lawyer, who took the case up out of sheer deviltry, the crone was actually discharged, and probably went in search of a new customer for her "subject."

A MEXICAN POMPEII.

Charnay has discovered what he very properly terms "The Indian or Mexican Pompeii"—a city buried for at least one thousand years. In my last I mentioned the discovery of a villa near Tula. That house has now been fully uncovered, and found to contain twenty-five rooms, fifteen staircases and twelve corridors. Attached to it are two cisterns, with clay pipes which were used to convey water to different apartments. Some of the household utensils are of coarse clay, a few of porcelain, and one article of glass! Remember Tollan, the capital of the Toltec empire, covered not only the present site of the town of Tula, but the spot where Mr. Charnay discovered the villa, and now he is unearthing, near the former building, a large palace. Perhaps during these excavations he may find historical data that will clear up all mystery with regard to the origin of the first inhabitants of the Western Continent. Mr. Charnay recently announced, in the Le Trait d'Union, merely the discovery of a palace, but made made no allusion to any architectural peculiarities. We have, however, heard that the ruins recently unearthed are more distinctly Asiatic in style than any Toltec remains now known. Mr. Charnay also had the good fortune to find the bones of some gigantic animals. These remains are now en route to this capital.

AN OLD GRAVE.

After twenty-one centuries the remains of the 300 young Thebans, formerly the Sacred Battalion, who fell at the terrible battle of Cheronea have now been dug up. During the summer excavations have been made around the gigantic memorial lion which was placed in the center of the field to commemorate the deeds of heroism of that dark day. A wall twenty-five yards in length and fifteen in breadth was first found beneath the soil. Within this inclosure, at a depth of four yards, lay the bones of 185 Thebans, resting side by side, ranged in rows of 40, each in the attitude in which he had died. Seven such rows have been found. They are so placed that the heads of those of the second rank repose at the feet of the first. All bear the marks of the blows which have caused their death. One of them has both thighs pierced by thrusts of the spear; another has the jawbone broken and splintered; a third has the skull terribly hacked; a fourth whose head is wonderfully well preserved, has the mouth still wide open, as if he breathed. This last will be conveyed to the Museum of Antiquities at Athens. What is especially noticeable about it is that the jaws possess every tooth in perfect order. No weapons have been found.

EXPERIMENTS WITH SEED-CORN.

Says the Phrenological Journal: Four boxes of earth alike in quantity and exposure to light and heat, were planted at the same time with corn from a single ear and placed recently in a physician's office. In one box dry corn was planted; in another, seed previously soaked in clean warm water; in the third, seed had been soaked in a solution of lime-water; in the fourth, seed soaked in chloride of lime and copperas water, equal parts. One week after the dry corn had not germinated; the corn in the second box had just commenced to sprout; that in the third box was just showing its green blades, and that in the fourth box had grown nearly three inches high. Copperas water will prevent birds and worms from eating the seed, and one pound of dry copperas will soak enough for twenty acres.

People never plot mischief when they are merry. Laughter is an enemy to malice, a foe to scandal, and a friend to every virtue. It promotes good temper, enlivens the heart and brightens the intellect.

Manners are the shadows of virtues—the momentary display of those qualities which our fellow creatures love and respect.

HAPPY CHILDREN.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Anecdotes.

BRICKLAYER AND PARSON.

A Manchester curate walking along a street in the dinner hour, passed a lot of bricklayers smoking their pipes, and he heard one of the men say:

"I'd like to be a parson, and have nowt to do but walk along in a black coat and carry a walking stick in my hand, and get a lot of brass."

There was an approving laugh all around, whereupon the curate turned quietly around, and the following conversation ensued:

"So you would like to be a parson? How much do you get a week?"

"Twenty-seven shillings?"

"Well, I am not a rich man, but I will give you twenty-seven shillings if you will come with me for a week and see what my work is."

The bricklayer did not like the proposal, but his mates told him it was a fair offer, and he was bound to accept it. So he reluctantly followed the parson down an alley.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"To see a sick parishioner," was the reply.

"What is the matter with him?"

"Small-pox."

At this the man drew back. His wife and bairns had never had the small-pox, and he was afraid of taking it to them.

"My wife and bairns had never had the small-pox," said the curate. "Come along."

The man hesitated.

"O, but you promised the accompany me wherever I went," argued the curate.

"And where be you going next?" asked the bricklayer.

"To see a poor family huddled in one room, with the father dead of scarlet fever in it, and themselves all down with it; and, after that, to see another parishioner ill with typhus. And to-morrow there will be a longer round."

Thereupon the bricklayer begged to be let off. Twenty-seven shillings would be poor pay for that kind of work, and he promised he would never speak against the parsons again.—Litchfield Church.

LIFE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

One of our most esteemed young burglars was by some oversight arrested and fined for creating a disturbance. In default of the fine he was to stay in jail thirty days. The prisoner was deeply humiliated by this sentence, as burgling has been so dull recently that he was not in funds, though like most 'Frisco celebrities he would rather suffer death than endure the disgrace of being locked up. So he sent for a well-known Pine street broker.

"Mr. Skinnum," said the burglar (they were old college chums), "I want to make you a business proposition. Last month your house was entered and robbed of a fine breech-loader gun, a stem-winder watch and a pair of diamond studs."

"Yes; well?"

"Well, I took 'em—but you can't prove it. Now, if you'll pay my present fine, I'll return you the gun or the watch—take your choice."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the broker after a second's reflection, "I'll do it for the gun and studs."

"Couldn't possibly," replied the crowbar artist. "I want the studs to wear to a dinner the boys are getting up. But I'll tell you what I will do. My dress-vest buttons up pretty high; I can get along with one stud, so I'll let you have the other. Now, what d'yer say?"

"It's a go!" said the broker, and, after handing the other a blank invitation for the next hop of the Peavine Sociable, he passed out and settled up.—San Francisco Post.

SAILOR LOGIC.

One day two sailors who were ashore at Naples came to a church on the outside of which were six statues. They gazed at them a few moments, and then Jack exclaimed: "Bill, who do you suppose them marble fellows is?" Bill, with much promptness, replied that they were the Apostles. "But," argued Jack, recollecting the Sunday-school of his youth, "there ain't but six of them, and there were twelve Apostles." "Wot of that?" returned Bill. "Don't you suppose, you bloomin' idiot, that them chaps up aloft has watch and watch?" This reply was entirely satisfactory, for Jack at once perceived that if the Apostles were really in Paradise it followed as a necessary consequence that they must have watch and watch, and that only six of them could be required to be on deck at a time.

A MONSTER WAR VESSEL.

The British Government is now building at Chatham a naval monster called the Polyphemus. This vessel, says a correspondent, which is utterly unlike anything previously seen in the royal navy, is designed as an armored sheet-plated ram of two thousand six hundred and forty tons and five thousand five hundred horse-power. She is built almost almost entirely of steel, and as a torpedo ram she will be the most formidable vessel in the world, and the opinion has been formed that there is no vessel afloat, no matter of what description, which could survive after one or two blows from her ram.

FAITH WHITCOMB.

The Most Successful Nurse of the Age, whose Wonderful Cures are creating such a sensation.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

BALSAM,

IS THE MOST EFFECTIVE REMEDY

— FOR —

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, COUGHS, COLDS, LOSS OF SPEECH, AND ALL CASES OF INFLAMMATION OF THE LUNGS.

☞ This preparation contains no opium, or any other dangerous narcotic, but is composed of Pure Shaker Herbs.

It has actually Cured Consumption after Tubercles had formed upon the lungs.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physcians in the dissemination of Faith Whitsomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Watertown, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough — and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

The Emancipation of Man.

She looked just like that kind of a woman when she came into the sanctum, and all the seniors became instinctively very busy and so absorbed in their work that they did not see her, which left the youngest man on the staff an easy prey, for he looked at the visitor with a little natural politeness, and was even soft enough to offer her a chair.

"You are the editor?" she said in a deep, bass voice.

He tried to say "Yes" so that she could hear him, while his colleagues in the sanctum couldn't, but it was a failure, for the woman gave him dead away in a minute.

"You are," she shouted, "then listen to me; look at me; what am I?"

The foolish youngest man looked at her timidly and ventured to say, in a feeble voice, that she looked to be about forty-sev—

"Am I not a woman?" she said.

The youngest young man weakly tried to correct his former error, and said she seemed more like a girl—

But again she broke in on him with a scornful hiss:

"Gir-r-r-l," she said, "I am a woman! a woman with all the heaven-born aspirations, the fathomless feelings, the aggressive courage and the indomitable will of a woman. What can you see on my face?"

The position of the youngest man on the staff was pitiable, but none of the old hands appeared to notice it. At least, they didn't offer to help him out.

So he looked at her face a minute, and said timidly:

"Freck!—"

"Nurseling!" she shrieked, "had you the soulful eyes of a free man you could see shining on my brow the rising light of a brighter day."

"Could I?" asked the youngest man timidly.

"Yes—you could I," the woman said in tones of unmeasurable scorn. "Now hear me, have you a — but I cannot bring myself to use the hateful expression in the style of masculine possession; are you anybody's husband?"

The youngest man blushed bitterly, and said he wasn't as yet, but he had some hopes—

"And you expect your—that is you expect the woman whose husband you will be to support you?"

The youngest man blushed more keenly than before, and tremblingly admitted that he had some expectations—that—that—the only daughter of his proposed father-in-law, if he might put it that way—

"Yah!" snarled the woman; "now let me tell you, the day of woman's emancipation is at hand. From this time we are free, fer-e-e! You must look for other slaves to bend and cringe before your majesties, and wait upon you like slaves. You will feel the change in your affairs since we have burst our chains, and how will you live without the aid of woman? Who makes your shirts now?" she added fiercely.

The youngest man miserably said that a tailor on Jefferson street made his.

"Hm," said the woman, somewhat disconcerted. "Well, who washes 'em then?" she added, triumphantly.

"A Chinaman just west of Fifth street," the youngest man said, with a hopeful gleam in his eyes.

The woman glared at him and groaned under her breath, but she came at him again with:

"Proud worm, who cooks your victuals?"

The youngest man said truly that he didn't know the name of the cook at his restaurant, but he was a man about forty years old, and round as a barrel, with whiskers like the stuffing of a sofa.

The woman looked as though she was going to strike him.

"Well," she said, as one who was leading a forlorn hope, "who makes up your bed and takes care of your room?"

The youngest man replied with an air of truth and frankness that he roomed with a railroad conductor and an ex-Pullman sleeping car porter took care of their room.

She paused when she reached the door, and turned upon him with the face of a drowning man who is only five feet away from a life-buoy.

"Miserable dependent," she cried, "who sews on your buttons?"

The youngest man on the staff rose to his feet with a proud, happy look on his face.

"Haven't sewed a button on a single clothes," he cried, triumphantly, "patents, every one of them, fastened on like copper rivets and nothing but studs and collar buttons on my shirts. Haven't had a button sewed on for three years. Patent buttons last for years after the garments have gone to decay."

And the woman fled down the winding passage and the labrinthine stairs with a hollow groan, while the other members of the staff, breaking through their heroic reserve, clustered around the youngest man and congratulated him upon the emancipation of his sex. —Burlington Hawkeye.

A man's best fortune, or his worst, is his wife.

GEORGE ELIOT'S ROMOLA.—A timely interest is given, by the death of the author, to the new edition of her masterpiece, "Romola," just issued by the American Book Exchange, New York. It shows her work at her best and strongest, and at the same time gives the reader the opportunity to acquire a lasting familiarity with scenes and society of mediæval Italy. It is one of the few really great historical novels of the world. It is issued in handy and beautiful form, extra cloth binding, simple but rare elegance and taste in design, and like the other issues of the "Literary Revolution," its cost is almost nominal, viz., 35 cents. It is one of a series intended to form a library of classic fiction, which will include one representative and characteristic work of each of the great authors who have won lasting fame in the realm of fiction. Life is too short and too full of work to permit the reading of all that is beautiful and valuable in these creations of the imagination, but even very busy people can find time to read one book by each of the score of authors who have one immortal fame and place in the affections of the people. Not to be acquainted with them is to be ignorant of much that is most important and most interesting in the history of nations and of men. Not to possess them is to be deprived of most fruitful and profitable sources of enjoyment. Among those issued or nearly ready are: Scott's "Ivanhoe," Bulwer's "Pompeii," Irving's "Knickerbocker," Cooper's "Mohicans," "Tom Brown at Rugby," "Adventures of Don Quixote," and "Uarda, a Romance of Ancient Egypt." Full catalogue of standard publications will be sent on request, by the American Book Exchange, Tribune Building, New York.

WASTED EFFORTS TO BE FUNNY. Take, as a very simple illustration, the case of the young man who had been offered a saucer of delicately salted ice-cream by two young ladies, who waited in convulsive glee for the first grimace and its attendant remarks. Not a gesture or word betrayed that he had noticed it at all. Still talking lightly of last night's German and to-morrow's tennis, he finished the entire saucerful, then, bowing slightly, left the room.—Was ever 'fun' more delicately spoiled?

Take again the case of a certain college professor, who had almost abolished practical joking on the faculty, not by punishing, but by foiling the intended fun of the students. Informed one night that the students were painting the walls of the chapel, 'Very well,' he said, quietly, 'let them paint; but tell me when they are through.' Dressing hastily, he went about the town, rousing every painter in the place, and as the last student went out of the chapel, a dozen artisans went in. Next morning, when there was an unusually large attendance at prayers, behold the calcimined walls as fair as ever. The dignity of the college had not been allowed to be insulted, yet never a student was ever questioned, blamed, marked or expelled. In the same manner, when the tongue of the bell had been removed one night, another was in its place before dawn, and the astonished students were summoned to their devotions at the usual hour. Again, when the wheel of the organ disappeared and the organist had been secretly informed that his services would not be required the next day, one of the delinquents was called upon to take his place, finding, to his chagrin, that the keys responded dutifully to his touch.—If it is the 'silent organ' that 'loudest chants the master's requiem,' in this case it was certainly the organ's music that chanted loudest the humiliation of the guilty.

No wonder that the students at that institution have about decided that what may be called hazing the professors does not pay. Said the boys at Rugby: 'There's no fun in telling Arnold a lie, for he always believes us!"—Christian Register.

Discoveries Made by Accident.

Valuable discoveries have been made, and valuable inventions suggested, by the veriest accident.

The swaying to and fro of a chandelier in a cathedral suggested to Galileo the application of the pendulum.

Mezzotint owed its invention to the simple accident of the gun-barrel of a sentry becoming rusted with dew.

An alchemist, while seeking to discover a mixture of earths that would make the most durable crucibles, one day found that he had made porcelain.

The power of lenses, as appled to the telescope, was discovered by a watchmader's apprentice. While holding spectacle-glasses between his thumb and finger, he was startled at the suddenly-enlarged appearance of a neighboring church-spire.

The composition of which printing-rollers are made was discovered by a Solopian printer. Not being able to find the pelt-ball, he inked the type with a soft piece of glue which had fallen out of a glue-pot. It was such an excellent substitute that after mixing molasses with the glue, to give the mass proper consistency, the old pelt-ball was entirely destroyed.

The process of whitening sugar was discovered in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a clay puddle went with her muddy feet into a sugar house. She left her tracks on a pile of sugar. It was noticed that wherever the tracks were the sugar was whitened. Experiments were instituted, and the result was that the wet clay came to be used in refining sugar.

The art of etching upon glass was discovered by a Nuremburg glass-cutter. By accident, a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that the glass became corroded and softened where the acid had touched it. That was hint enough. He drew figures upon glass with varnish, applied the corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing.—When the varnish was removed, the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground.

John B. Gough's New Book.

Ever since it became known that John B. Gough was engaged in writing a new book, its appearance has been watched for with intense interest. It has recently been published, and the enormous sales afford a striking instance of the success that is sure to be awarded to a really good work. Although only just published, the twenty-sixth thousand is already printed; and this fact alone is worthy of notice, for a book which sells like this must be one of extraordinary interest.

John B. Gough, the author of "Sunlight and Shadow," is too well-known to require any eulogy here. Thousands are familiar with the history of his life: his early poverty, the depth of the degradation to which he descended while a victim of drink, his wretched condition and terrible sufferings, his superhuman struggles against intemperance, his reform, his relapse, his resigning of the pledge and final victory, his world-wide fame, and his extensive travels and protracted labors in this country and abroad. Thirty-five years ago Mr. Gough first published his Autobiography. He had then just recovered from a life of unparalleled dissipation, and was just entering upon that career which has since made him so famous. In 1869 a new edition of that work, with additions and emendations, was given to the public. It contained a history of his early life, with some recollections of his career as a public speaker. It did not embody the intensely interesting and exciting record of the many thrilling, pathetic, and amusing scenes from human life,

"From grave to gay, from lively to severe," which all the world knew had crowded themselves into his long and varied career. These have now been gathered for the first time, and the new book, "Sunlight and Shadow," is the medium—and the only one—through which these thrilling details have ever been presented to the public.

"Sunlight and Shadow" is indeed a remarkable book by a remarkable man. Mr. Gough's recollections of his own experiences have made him ever ready to lend a helping hand to others, and the very nature of his life-work has brought him into close contact with poverty, crime, destitution and vice, and he has listened to life-histories of the most thrilling nature, and witnessed scenes that testify to the truth of the adage, "Fact is stranger than Fiction."

Some of the saddest and most pathetic incidents ever told are narrated in the present work, and the reader's eyes will fill in spite of himself at the power of Mr. Gough's pathos in describing scenes that have come under his personal observation.

But "Sunlight and Shadow" is not altogether a record of dark experience. It has a bright and sunny side. Mr. Gough's stories and descriptions of the humorous side of life, as he has seen and experienced it, portray many amusing scenes. His remarkable facility for seeing the ludicrous side of everything, and his talent for humorous description, are well-known. No one can tell more amusing things and in a more irresistibly humorous way than John B. Gough. The comedies from life, absurd blunders, laughable mistakes, comical incidents, embarrassing situations, mostly drawn from his own experience on the platform and among the people, will provoke the mirth of the most serious. His experiences with brazen-faced people; with letter-writers and their remarkable wants; with aspirants for fame and seekers after "moddle" lectures; with beggars without number and bores of all kinds—are given in "Sunlight and Shadow" without reserve.

In short, "Sunlight and Shadow" is a mine of extraordinary interest. It can be truthfully said of it, that for thrilling interest, touching pathos and irresistible humor, no book has ever equaled it.

In point of paper, printing, binding, and above all, beautiful and costly illustration, we have not seen its equal in many a day. It is superbly illustrated with magnificent full-page engravings, engraved in the highest style from original designs by F. O. C. Darley, Frederick Dielman, and other famous artists. The magnificent steel-plate portrait of Mr. Gough was engraved from a photograph taken expressly for this purpose, and will be highly prized by tens of thousands who have listened to his eloquence.

We advise our readers to buy "Sunlight and Shadow" at the first opportunity. They can, in our opinion, much better afford to dispense with a dozen other books than not possess this.

Redpath in Peabody.

Last Monday evening the Institute was well filled by an enthusiastic gathering of the Irish people of Peabody, assembled to listen to James Redpath, on the subject, "What I know about Boycotting." The lecturer was introduced by Rev. M. J. Masterson, with a few well chosen remarks, and was greeted with loud applause. Mr. Redpath has a pleasing address, and as his subject touched most of his hearers, he was listened to throughout with close attention, and was greeted with frequent applause. The lecture is the same as has been delivered in Salem, and which has been published extensively throughout the country, therefore a detailed account would be unnecessary. In opening he ascribed the misery of the Irish people to be "Landlordism"—the legalized robbery of the toilers of the land for the benefit of a band of loafers—and refuted the impression that the Protestant tenants are more prosperous than the Catholic. He then sketched the early history of the Irish people, Henry VIII. being the first English monarch who attempted to conquer the whole of Ireland, by establishing his favorites upon the confiscated lands of the Irish chieftains, which policy was continued by Elizabeth and James I.

In Ulster and the other Orange counties tenants hold the land under a system called the Ulster custom, declaring "free sale, fair rents, and fixity of tenure." This system gives the tenant some protection from the landlord, but is only confined to that region. In counties where the Ulster custom prevails Protestant and Catholic fare alike. Religion, he declares, has nothing to do with the present struggle. He then sketched the course of William of Orange in destroying the manufactures of Ireland. 1847 is the beginning of modern Irish history, and until 1870 no leases were granted in the east of Ireland, until Gladstone and John Bright tried to spread a little of the Ulster custom. The people in the western part of the island were the most wretched people he had ever seen. Cromwell, he said, drove the Irish all into Connaught, declaring they should either go there or to hell. The ground here is the poorest in the country, and under Victoria, from 1847 to 1851, one million and a half died of starvation. He told his experience in parishes where they had lost one-third of the population, and declared instances of the rent being increased seven times in one year. One-half the rent in the western part of Ireland is paid by boys and girls in America. Duty work and other oppressive measures were dwelt upon at length, and he declared the Irish people were the most industrious race he had ever met. Threatening letters, he said, were the work of landlords and agents rather than that of tenants.

Montmorris and Leitrim were killed for outrages committed against nature and not for oppression of tenants. He refuted a charge made by James Anthony Froude, the English historian, in the September number of the Nineteenth Century, where he made the statement that Leitrim came to his death by the teachings of Parnell and Davitt. Leitrim was shot in 1878, and Parnell did not begin the agitation until 1879. He told the history of the Boycott affair, and said that the Irish had now the power to make the land so that a landlord would not live in it. The Land League during its existence has saved one-half million of lives, and had it not been for their intervention one-half the agents in the country would have been killed. Ireland should prove the relentless enemy of England until the calumny which she has cast upon the name of Irishmen shall be wiped away, and he hoped to see an Irish Parliament assembled on College Green, and before long Ireland to be spoken of as the Republic of Ireland.

He was followed by Major Dean, who likened the history of America to Ireland. Shortly before eleven o'clock the meeting broke up. About six hundred and fifty were present.

POSTPONEMENT.—By pressure of many engagements, Prof. Ober has been obliged to change the date of appearing in Peabody from Thursday, Jan. 27th, to Tuesday, Feb. 4st, when he will give his illustrated lecture, "Tramps in Tropics Islands." A description of life in the West Indian Forests, with narratives of adventure while engaged in hunting birds for the National Museum. The lecturer's long experience as a hunter and collector of birds in the wilds of Florida and the West Indies, together with a somewhat extensive reputation as a writer upon natural history, and camp life in the South, give assurance that his subject will be well treated, and his hearers pleased and interested. By the aid of an Oxy-Hydro Calcium Lantern, he brings before the audience Living pictures of the scenes he visited. Every picture is new, from the lecturer's own photographs, of which he alone holds control.

In his recent voyage of six months to the West Indies, which he extended to the coast of South America, and the mouth of the Orinoco River, he obtained a Hundred new Pictures of Magnificent Scenery, to supplement the equally large number with which he delighted many audiences last winter throughout New England. The following is but one of many equally flattering notices of the Lectures last winter:

"The islands of the Caribbean Sea are a terra incognita to the outside world, and the revealment of their natural wonders and beauties of scenery, flora and fauna, was intensely interesting. We may not follow Prof. Ober in his delightful journey, but the luxuriant wealth of vegetation was portrayed both upon the canvas and by the eloquent word-utterance, which was in itself a picture, with realistic beauty. It was the illustration of words which enables us to grasp the immensity and prodigality of Nature's work in these sun-kissed isles, but the camera displayed the delicate grace of a frond age, of beauty unparalleled. There was a ludicrous element, the Caribs and the negroes furnishing abundant material. The girlhood home of the Empress Josephine, the scene of Columbus' first landing, and other historical incidents, lent their investiture of historic interest, and altogether the lecture was delightful, original and instructive."—Norton Transcript.

SHEEPSKIN TRADE.—The Shoe and Leather Reporter contains an elaborate report of the second annual meeting and dinner of the sheepskin trade of Boston, which occurred at Young's Hotel, January 12th. Most of the large houses were well represented, among them Messrs. W. P. Clark, Frank Pemberton and Charles H. Tigh, of Peabody, and Mr. W. G. Fisk, of Montreal, a partner of Mr. Tigh.—Among the speeches reported, Mr. Clark is put down as saying:

"Looking around this company it reminds me of the years ago when the sheepskin trade of New England were few in number. Now, we have forty here, and forty more are identified with it who are not here. Competition is the life of trade, and we hope the business will grow year by year."

On being called upon by the President, Mr. Charles H. Tigh said:

"I am somewhat in the situation of a lawyer in Townsend, who was to deliver a 4th of July oration. He employed a tailor to carry him to the place of delivery, and he thought the oration so good that he repeated it over to the tailor. The latter, having a retentive memory, kept his own counsel, and when the lawyer, who, during the interval, had made some calls, came to the stand, he found the tailor delivering his oration. I had prepared some remarks, but every word I was going to say has been anticipated, and I have nothing left to utter."

Mr. T. M. Coan has proved to his own satisfaction, if not to that of others, that the country is growing rich at the rate of two and one-third millions of dollars a day, and that the average income of each person in the land is $165. All this is very flattering, but it does not come home to the average citizen as forcibly as the fact that coal has gone up another half a dollar a ton, and that Manitoba is getting ready to roll another cold wave over the country.—R. I. Press.

MR. JOHN H. FRENCH.—This enterprising young man, who is well-known in the grocery business in this town, is located at No. 55 Washington street, Salem, and advertises to-day several specialties for the new year, such as New Process Flour at $8.00, and other goods proportionally cheap.

ON THE ROAD.—Among the fast turnouts on Western Avenue, Lynn, the papers there mention W. C. Munroe of Peabody as driving a fine pair; and among the singles, Geo. Teel, C. Clark, Dr. Kemble, Wm. Culliton of Salem, G. W. Pepper and Alonzo Raddin of Peabody.

G. A. R. Fair.

Last evening the fair under the auspices of Union Post 50, G. A. R., closed with the drawing of the season ticket prizes. The fair has been a grand success, and many fancy and useful articles have been disposed of. A large crowd has been in attendance each evening. Visiting Posts from neighboring towns have been present; excellent music has been furnished by the Salem Band. Great praise is due to the ladies who have contributed so largely towards the success of the fair. The fair has been in the hands of a very able committee, and we hear nothing but pleasant words for them on every side. The fair is a financial success, and will probably add about $1500 to the charity fund of the Post. We give below a list of prizes drawn, with the fortunate number and individual:

Lincoln Lodge, Independent Order of United Essenians, was instituted on Thursday evening, in Franklin Hall, by the officers of the Supreme Lodge. This is a beneficiary society, recently organized and chartered under the laws of Massachusetts. It proposes to insure to its members immunity from the vice of intemperance, unite them together in a fraternal body, and confer certain benefits in case of sickness or death. It is not designed as a reformatory organization, and does not employ the usual aggressive methods in promoting the cause of temperance, but by securing strict abstinence on the part of its members, it will send forth an elevating and purifying influence upon the community. It has adopted a plan of organization and established a system of finance, which makes its advantages available to a large class of people who are practically excluded from membership in other mutual benefit societies, because of the heavy dues and frequent assessments required to sustain them. No order in existence gives woman the advantages which are secured by membership in this association. It is strictly non-political and unsectarian.

Among the active members of this new lodge are Dr. D. M. Elliot, Rev. L. L. Wood, Geo. F. Barnes, Eldredge Rust, Lewis Elliot, Samuel Trask, Rev. S. P. Smith, and others. The officers for the present term are as follows: W. C., Rev. L. L. Wood; W. A., Mrs. Mary A. Trask; W. Sec'y, Walter A. Baker; W. T., Joseph A. Poor; W. M., A. K. Roundy; W. A. M., Mrs. L. M. Fernald; W. H., Mrs. E. S. Lewis; W. G., George E. Lewis; W. R. S., Mrs. Carrie Poor; W. L. S., Mrs. Priscilla Paul.

The Gloucester Bulletin speaks of Mr. John W. Wonson, who was buried in this town last week by Post 89, G. A. R., of Beverly, as follows: "Mr. Wonson was a public spirited citizen, and held the office of postmaster from 1852 to 1860. In politics, he was a staunch Democrat. Mr. Wonsan was one of the pioneers in the Georges halibut fishery, being the last survivor of the first crew which pursued the business. He also established the ferry between East Gloucester and the city proper.

Messrs. D. A. & F. A. Caskin, at the old stand on Lowell street, continue to give their attention to the business of dealing in stoves and tin ware of all kinds, setting of furnaces and repairing, plumbing in all its branches, tin roofing, copper work, etc. Their long experience in the business enables them to do all work in the best manner. They not only hold the old customers of Mr. Whitten, but have largely increased the business.

It is in contemplation by the Allan Line of steamers running between Boston and Glasgow to make a change in the service by stopping en route at Galway, Ireland. Mr. Charles D. Howard is the Peabody agent.

On Friday afternoon the severest storm thus far this season arrived at Peabody, and continued all night, adding about ten inches of new snow.

The thermometer registered eight above on Monday morning. It made the proboscis of some look as though they had gone back to Tom and Jerry.

It is our private opinion that there is no town in the Commonwealth where there are a larger number or more handsome young ladies than are seen on our streets.

The first train to put in an appearance, last Saturday morning, was on the Eastern, bound for Lawrence, at 8.30.—They made hard work clearing the snow with two locomotives and a snow plow.

The tickets to the social party, mentioned in our last, are limited, and those who have not yet made up their minds to attend should decide at once, as a large number have already been subscribed for.

"The Land League Convention at Buffalo passed a vote to "Boycott" all newspapers that opposed, in any way, the workings of that movement. Since that time, we notice some weeklies have become truly (?) interested."

TROUBLING A POSTMASTER.—A lantern-jawed young man stopped at the post office last Saturday and yelled out:

'Anything for the Wattses?'

George Poteet, our polite postmaster, replied: 'No, there is not.'

'Anything for Jane Watts?'

'Nothing.'

'Anything for Ace Watts?'

'No.'

'Anything for Bill Watts?'

'No, sir.'

'Anything for Fool Joe Watts?'

'No, nor Dick Watts, Jim Watts, nor Sweet Watts, nor any other Watts, dead, living, unborn, native, foreign, civilized or uncivilized, savage or barbarous, male or female, white or black, franchised or disfranchised, naturalized or otherwise. No, there is nothing for the Wattses, either individually, severally, jointly, now and forever, one and inseparable.'

The boy looked at the postmaster in astonishment, and said:

'Please look and see if there is anything for John Thomas Watts.'

Snooks went home the other night afflicted with double vision. He sat for some time with his sleepy gaze rivited on Mrs. Snooks, and then complacently remarked: "Well, I declare, 'f you two girls don't look 'nough alike to be twins."

Newspaper Questions.

The editor sat in his sanctum,
Regarding with sad, earnest eyes
The huge pile of "Questions" his readers
Had sent with demands for replies.
"Why, these," said the wary quill-driver,
"Would fill up a moderate book;
I'll publish the whole lot together,
And let the people see how they look!"

"Who was it that wrote that sweet ditty Beginning, 'I saw from—, somewhere!'"
"Pray tell me some certain specific For changing the color of hair!"
"What is the name of the author
Of 'No, we'll never go home!'"
"Did Shakspeare write 'Down in a Coal Mine!'"
"Who was the third Pope of Rome?"

"Do North Polar fishes have feathers?"
"Was Watt Tyler quartered or hung?"
"Where was the first man cremated?"
"Who was it invented the bung?"
"Do buffaloes ever eat sauer kraut?"
"Where can I get some snail's horns?"
"Which of the Muses played short stop?"
"Did Bonaparte ever have corns?"

"What was the air Nero fiddled?"
"Do hard-shell clams ever yield pearls?"
"How many boils did poor Job have?"
"What will cure squinting in girls?"
"Why are some people red-headed?"
"Why don't my young man propose?"
"What was the matter with Hannah?"
"Why don't I turn out my toes?"

"Did the Prodigal Son use tobacco?"
"What do you think ails my cat?"
"Had Nebuchadnezza four stomachs?"
"How shall I trim my new hat!"
"Tell me where Moses was buried?"
"Did Noah take fleas in the Ark?"
"What was Eve's middle initial?"
"Why is it that hens do not bark?"

"I like," said the editor, smiling,
"I like these people who seek
For knowledge, and I like to give it.
I'll answer their questions next week.
I'd like, too, to get them together,
They'd think immortality leaked;
I'd answer their questions as promised,
Though most folks would call it 'necks tweaked.'"

Prayers I Don't Like.

I do not like to hear him pray,
On bended knee, about an hour,
For grace to spend aright the day,
Who knows his neighbor has no flour.
I'd rather see him go to mill
And buy the luckless brother bread,
And see his children eat their fill
And laugh beneath their humble shed.

I do not like to hear him pray,
"Let blessings on the widow be,"
Who never seeks her home to say,
"If want o'ertakes you, come to me."
I hate the prayer so loud and long,
That's offered for the orphan's weal,
By him who sees him crushed by wrong,
And only with the lips doth feel.

I do not like to hear her pray
With jeweled ear and silken dress,
Whose washerwoman toils all day,
And then is asked "to work for less."
Such pious shavers I despise!
With folded hands and face demure
They lift to heaven their "angel eyes,"
And steal the earnings of the poor.

I do not like such soulless prayers;
If wrong I hope to be forgiven;
No angel's wing them upward bears—
They're lost a million miles from heaven.

Selected Story.

JUST IN TIME.

Dinner was over at last, and Mr. Walter Currie, English commissioner at the up-country station at Huttee-Bagh, in Northern India, had gone upon the verandah with his wife and his two guests, the colonel and major of the —th light infantry, to enjoy the cool of the evening.

On three sides the house was surrounded by its compound, a large enclosed space serving the purpose of a courtyard, but the fourth was only separated by a small patch of garden from the public road, along which a number of native women were passing with their little pitchers on their heads.

The sight of them naturally turned the conversation upon a favorite subject with all Anglo-Indians, viz: the character of the natives and the best method of dealing with them.

"There's only one way," said the colonel, emphatically. "Tell 'em what they are to do, make 'em do it, and thrash 'em if they don't. That's my way."

"Well, I venture to differ from you there, Colonel," said Mr. Currie, quietly. "I had to do some thrashing once or twice, I own, but most of my native servants seem to get along very well without it, and they serve me excellently, I assure you."

"I wish you had been in my place then," retorted the colonel; "you'd have changed your opinion, I warrant. Why, the year before last, when I had charge of two battalions of the rascals down at Suttepoor, because there wasn't another Queen's officer within reach—just like my confounded luck!—there was no getting anything done unless I did it myself. By Jove, sir! I had to be everything at once—my own quartermaster, my own sergeant-major, my own caterer, and—"

"And your own trumpeter, Col. Annesley?" asked Mrs. Currie, with an arch smile.

The colonel's broad face reddened ominously, and an explosion seemed imminent, when a sudden clamor of angry voices from the road below drew them all to the front veranda.

The cause of the disturbance was visible at a glance. Two half-drunken English soldiers, swaggering along the road, had come into violent contact with a native, who was running past; and one of them, enraged at the collision, had felled the poor lad to the ground, and was unclasping his own belt with the evident intention of beating him unmercifully.

"Served the young whelp right," shouted the colonel, rubbing his hands; "that's just what they all want."

The other officer, Major Armstrong—popularly called Major Strongarm—was a huge, brawny, silent man, whose forte lay in acting rather than talking.

During the whole discussion he had sat like a great bronze statue, but at sight of this man ill-using this child, he woke up rather startingly.

To leap to the ground twelve feet below, to dart across the garden, to vault over the high stockade beyond, was the work of a moment for the athletic major, and in another instant he had raised the fallen boy tenderly from the ground, while saying to the foremost soldier, in the low, compressed tone of a man who means what he says:

"Be off with you."

"And who the deuce are you, shovin' yer nose in where yer ain't wanted?" roared the infuriated ruffian, to whose eyes the major's plain evening dress bore no token of his being an officer. "jist you—"

The sentence was never finished.

At the sound of that insolent defiance Armstrong's sorely tried patience gave way altogether, and the powerful right hand which had hewed its way through a whole squadron of Shiv cavalry, fell like a sledge-hammer upon his opponent's face, dashing him to the ground as if he had been blown from the mouth of a gun.

"Well done, Major Armstrong!" shouted Mr. Currie from above.—"You deserve your name, and no mistake."

At that formidable name the soldier took to his heels at once; and Armstrong, without even looking at his prostrate antagonist, proceeded to examine the hurts of the boy.

The latter was sorely bruised in many places, and the blood was trickling freely over his swarthy face; but the little hero still did his best to stand erect, and to keep down every sign of the pain which he was enduring.

"You're a brave lad, and you'll make a soldier some day," said the Major to him in Hindoostanic.—"Come with me, and I'll see that no one molests you again."

The lad seized the huge brown hand which had defended him so bravely, and kissed it with the deepest reverence; and the two walked away together.

Six months have come and gone, and Mr. Currie's hospitable home presents a very different spectacle. The pretty garden is trampled into dust and mire, and the bodies of men and horses are lying thick among the fragments of the half destroyed stockade.

All the windows of the house are blocked up, and through the loop-holed walls peer the muzzles of ready rifles, showing how steadily the besieged garrison stands at bay against the countless enemies, whose dark, fierce faces and glittering weapons are visible amid the half ruined building and matted thickets all around.

The Sepoy mutiny of 1857 is blazing sky-high over Northern India, and Colonel Annesley is blockaded in Huttee-Bagh, with a certainty of a hideous death for himself and every man of the few who are still true to him, unless help comes speedily.

Day was just breaking when two men held a whispered council in one of the upper rooms.

"No fear of the water running short, but, even on half rations, the food will be out in four days more," said Major Armstrong.

"And then we'll just go right at them, and cut our way through or die for it!" growled the old colonel, with a grim smile on his iron face, for, with all his harshness and injustice, Col. Annesley was "grit" to the backbone. "We mustn't say anything to them about it, though," added he, with a side glance at Mr. Currie, who, standing in the further corner, was anxiously watching the thin, worn face of his sleeping wife.

At that moment a loud cheer from below startled them both, and the next moment Ismail (the major's boy, as everyone called him) burst into the room with a glow of unwonted excitement on his dark face.

"Sahib," cried he, "there is hope for us yet! A detachment of Ingleez (English) are coming up the other bank of the river; if we can send word to them as they pass we are saved."

"How do you know?" asked the major, eagerly.

"I heard the Sepoys say so, while I was lying hid among the bushes yonder," answered the boy.

"Among the bushes yonder?" roared the colonel, facing around. "Have you really been in the midst of those cut-throat villains listening to what they said? Whatever did you do that for?"

"I did it for Sahib Armstrong's sake," replied the boy, proudly; "because he was good to me."

The colonel turned hastily away to hide the flush of not unmanly shame that overspread his hard face; and Armstrong smiled slightly as he heard him mutter:

"By Jove! these chaps aren't so black as they're painted, after all."

"But if the troops are beyond the river, how can we communicate with them?" asked Mrs. Currie, who, awakened by the shouting, had arisen and joined the group. "They may not pass near enough to hear the firing, and we have no means of sending them word."

"Fear nothing for that, mem-sahib" (madam), answered the Hindoo boy, quietly. "I will carry them word myself."

"But how can you possibly do it?" cried Mrs. Currie, thunderstruck by the confident tone in which this mere child spoke of a task from which the hardiest veteran might well have shrunk.

"Listen, Sahib," answered Ismail. "I will slip out of the house and make a dash into the enemys' lines, as if I were deserting from you to them, and you can tell your people to fire a shot or two after me as I go. Then the Sepoys will receive me kindly, and I'll tell them that you are all dying of thirst, and that they must only wait one day more to be sure of you, so that they won't care to make another attack. Then, when they have no suspicion, and think I'm quite one of themselves, I'll steal away and slip across the river."

"But you are quite sure the Sepoys will believe you?" asked Major Armstrong, doubtfully.

"They'll believe this, anyhow," replied the boy, deliberately making a deep gash in his bare shoulder and stained his white frock with the blood as he glided from the room, followed by Armstrong.

The plan was soon explained to the men below, and a moment later, Ismail's dark figure was seen darting like an arrow across the open space in front of the building, followed by a quick discharge of blank cartridges from the marksmen at the loopholes. The sound of the firing drew the attention of the Sepoys, several of whom ran forward to meet him.

In another instant he was in the midst of them.

"I can scarcely see for those bushes," said Colonel Annesley, "but he seems to be showing them the wound on his shoulder, and telling them it was our doing."

At the moment an exulting yell from the enemy came pealing through the air.

"That's the story of our being short of water, for a guinea!" said the major; "it was a very good thought of his. If it only delays their attack two days longer, there may be time for help to arrive yet."

Slowly and weary the long hours of that fearful day wore on. The heat was so terrible that even the native soldiers of the garrison could barely hold their own against it, and the handful of Englishmen were also helpless. Had the Sepoys attacked them, all would have been over at one blow; but hour passed hour, and there was no sign of an assault.

At length, as afternoon gave place to evening, a movement began to show itself in the enemys' lines.—Then curls of smoke rising above the trees showed that the evening's meal was in preparation; then several figures with pitchers in their hands were seen going toward the river, among whom the colonel's keen eye detected Ismail.

"By George!" cried the old soldier, slapping his knee exultantly; "that lad's worth his weight in gold! There's his way down to the river right open to him without the least chance of suspicion. Why, he's a born gentleman—nothing less!"

Every eye within the walls was now turned anxiously upon the distant group, fearing to see at any moment some movement which would show that the trick was detected. How did Ismail mean to accomplish this purpose? Would he plunge boldly into the river, without any disguise, or had he some further stratagem in preparation? No one could say.

Suddenly, as Ismail stooped to plunge his light wooden dipper into the water, it slipped from his hand and went floating away down the stream. A cry of dismay, a loud laugh from the Sepoys, and then the boy was seen running frantically along the bank and trying in vain to catch the vessel as it floated past.

"What on earth's he up to?" grunted the colonel, completely mystified.

"I see!" cried Major Armstrong, triumphantly; "there's a boat yonder among the reeds, and he's making for it. Well done, my brave boy!"

But at that moment a yell of rage from the Sepoys told that the trick was discovered.

Luckily, those on the bank had left their weapons behind, or poor Ismail would soon have been disposed of, but the alarm instantly brought up a crowd of their armed comrades, whose bullets fell like hail around the boat and its gallant little pilot.

"Let us fire a volley and make a show of sallying out," said the colonel, "it'll take their attention from him."

But in this he was mistaken.

The first rattle of musketry from behind the house did indeed recall most of Ismail's assailants, but at least a dozen were left, who kept up an incessant firing, striking the boat again and again.

All at once the colonel dashed his glass to the floor with a frightful oath.

Between the two gusts of smoke he had seen the boat turn suddenly over and go whirling down the river, keel upward.

"There's an end of the poor lad," muttered the veteran, brokenly.—"God bless him for a brave little fellow. And now, old friend, we must just die hard, for there is very little hope left."

The first few hours of the night passed quietly, and the exhausted defenders, literally worn out, slept as if drugged with opium. But a little after midnight the quick ears of the two veteran officers—the only watchers in the whole garrison except the sentries themselves—caught a faint stirring in the surrounding thickets, which seemed to argue some movement on the part of the enemy.

Listening intently for a few moments, they felt certain that they were right, and lost no time in arousing the men.

The scanty stores of food were opened up once more, and, crouching together in the darkness, the doomed men took what they fully believed to be their last meal on earth.

"They're coming," said Major Armstrong, straining his eyes in the gloom through a loop hole. "I hear them coming forward, though I cannot see them.

"What the deuce was that?" exclaimed the colonel, suddenly. "It looked like a fiery arrow flying past."

"It's worse than that," said the Major in a low voice. "The rascals are shooting lighted chips of bamboo onto the roof to set it on fire. Send the women up with buckets to flood the thatch; there is not a moment to lose."

"I'll go any see to it myself!" cried Mrs. Currie, hastening out of the room.

But the power of this new weapon has already become fatally manifest. The house was an old one, and dry as tinder from the prolonged heat, and as fast as the flames were quenched in one place they broke out in another.

When day dawned the fire had already got a firm hold on one corner of the building, and a crushing discharge was poured upon all who attempted to extinguish it, while the triumphant yell of the human tigers below told them that they felt sure of their prey.

"It's all over with us, old fellow," said the Colonel, grasping the old comrade's hand; "but, at least, we shall have done our duty."

"Give me one of your pistols," whispered Mrs. Currie to her husband in a voice that was not her own. "I must not fall into their hands alive."

At that moment Major Armstrong was seen to start and bend forward, as if listening intently; for he thought—although he scarcely believed his ears—that he had suddenly caught a faint sound of distant firing.

In another instant he heard it again, and this time there could be no doubt, for several of the others had caught it likewise, and a gleam of hope once more lightened up their haggard faces and bloodshot eyes.

Louder and nearer came the welcome sound, while the sudden terror and confusion visible among the enemy showed that they, too, were at no loss to guess the meaning.

Then high above the din arose the well known "hurrah!" and through the smoke-clouds broke a charging line of glittering bayonets and ruddy English faces, sweeping away the cowardly murderers as the sun chases the morning mists.

"That boy's worth his weight in gold," said Colonel Annesley, as, a few hours later, he listened to Ismail's account of how he had dived under the boat and kept it between him and the Sepoys, that they might think him drowned. "He's the pluckiest little fellow I've seen, and although he belongs to the major, I'm going to take my share of helping him on, by Jove!".

The origin of blue-tinted paper came about by a mere slip of the hand. The wife of William East, an English paper-maker, accidentally let a blue bag fall into one of the vats of pulp. The workmen were astonished when they saw the peculiar color of the paper, while Mr. East was highly incensed over what he considered a grave pecuniary loss. His wife was so much frightened that she would not confess her agency in the matter. After storing the damaged paper for four years, Mr. East sent it to his agent at London, with instructions to sell it for what it would. The paper was accepted as a "proposed novelty," and was disposed of at quite an advance upon the market price. Mr. East was astonished at receiving an order from his agent for another large invoice of the paper. He was without the secret, and found himself in a dilemma. Upon mentioning it to his wife, she told him about the accident. He kept the secret, and the demand for the novel tint far exceeded his ability to supply it.

Chinamen in San Francisco buy their wives of importers, paying from $300 to $1,500, according to physical quality. Not much value is placed on mental acquirements, and the wife may be idiotic if also pretty, without depreciation.—Chin Qui was brought over by a dealer, and sold for the highest price to a prosperous merchant. She did not speak for five days, and he did not mind the silence, for she was beautiful; but at the end of that time she began to break the crockery and furniture, and he was forced to send her back. She was sold successively to four Chinaman in six months, and in each case her lunacy took a destructive form, her fourth exploit being the utter destruction of a cigar factory. The importer has received $6,000 from the four husbands, and refuses to return the money.

Boys, don't play long whist in 1881—there are two many nine holes in it.—From right to left and left to right it reads the same, and the two first and two last numbers added give 9. Eighteen divided by two gives 9; 81 divided by 9 gives 9; if divided by 9, the quotient contains a 9; if multiplied by 9, the product contains two 9s. If the 18 be placed under the 81 and added, the sum is 99. If the figures be added thus: 1, 8, 8, 1, it will give 18, the double of 9. Reading from left to right it is also 18, and 18 is two-ninths of 81. By adding, dividing and multiplying, 19 9s are produced, being one 9 for each year required to complete the century, After these mathematics, go "short" on whist.

TWO-HORSE WAGON FULL OF RATS.—Philip Groosman keeps a beer saloon and restaurant on French Creek, Franklin, Pa. He uses for storing his beer, bologna, and cheese, a big bricked walled vault 200 feet long under ground, that was formerly the vault of a brewery, now abandoned. The vault is overrun with rats of an enormous size. They frequent the tunnel in such numbers and are so bold and aggressive that Groosman has long found it necessary to take some one with him to fight the rats away while he takes out cheese or beer. The cheese is kept covered with tight cases through which the rats cannot gnaw. Among Groosman's children are two boys—Philly, thirteen, and Eddie, eight years old. They are both extremely fond of Swiss cheese. A few days ago they determined to make a raid on the stores of their favorite cheese in the old brewery vault.—They knew it would be necessary to fight an army of rats in order to secure the prize they coveted, but that did not deter them. Philly armed himself with a heavy piece of hoop-iron, and the two boys entered the vault, the youngest one carrying a lantern. They had gone a few feet only when the rats began to dispute their passage. Rats scampered about them on every side, and it was with difficulty that Philly kept them off of himself and brother by active wielding of his piece of iron. Some of the rats were of enormous size and the army kept the boys entirely surrounded, moving along toward the further end of the tunnel with them, and keeping up a loud and fierce outcry as they marched. Several times, one of the rats, mo e bold than his companions, would jump savagely at one or the other of the boys but these invariably met death or were disabled by blows from Philly's iron.—The younger boy wanted to go back after a rat had leaped up and caught him by the sleeve with its teeth; but his brother quieted his fears, and told him the rats were only playing. By the the time the boys reached the end of the tunnel, where the cheese was kept, the rats had gathered by hundreds around the children, covering the cheese boxes and running over the boys in spite of the efforts of the elder to keep them off. Philly took off his coat and wrapped it around his little brother, to protect him from the rats, and then proceeded to uncover the cheese. The rats piled upon him and all about him, as though frantic with the prospect of getting possession of the cheese themselves. Philly beat about him right and left, but finding it impossible to drive them away so that he could get a box raised, he told his little brother to go back and tell his father to come into the vault as soon as possible. The little fellow hastened out, leaving Philly alone in the dark battling with the rats, which were gradually getting the better of him. He placed his back against one side of the tunnel, and wielded his weapon continually, killing or disabling a rat at almost every blow. When the younger boy carried the news to his father that Philly was in the vault surrounded by the rats, Groosman and two neighbors armed themselves with clubs and hurried to the rescue of the boy. The army of rats seemed to number thousands when they reached the scene. The men joined in the contest, but so numerous and persistent were the rats that they were more than an hour in conquering them. Dead rats lay piled on every side, and the number was so greatly reduced that the survivors were finally driven to their holes. 819 dead rats were carried from the vault. One of them weighed over eight pounds.—The carcasses filled a two-horse box-wagon, and was a good load for a team to draw away. The combined weight of the rats was over a ton.

The summer days have passed.

This kind of poetry won't do, Viv; it lacks news and sprightliness. Everybody knows that the wind blows, and the fact that the summer days have passed is simply notorious. If you will send in a sonnet about spring wheat, or an idyl regarding the opening of navigation, it will be appreciated.

Selections.

"A COMMON FELLOW."

"Now, lads, there's the battery; remember the emperor himself is watching you, and carry it in true French style. The moment you get it, make yourself fast against attack, and mind that any man who comes out again to pick up the wounded, even though I should be among them, shall be tried for disobedience as soon as the battle's over." So spoke Col. Lasalle to his French grenadiers just before the final charge that decided the battle of Wagram. Then he waved his sword and shouted: "En avan!"

Forward swept the grenadiers like a torrent, with the shout which the Austrians opposed to them already knew to their cost. Through blinding smoke and pelting shot they rushed headlong on, with mouths parched, faces burning, and teeth set like a vise. Ever and anon a red flash rent the murky cloud around them, and the cannon shot came tearing through their ranks, mowing them down like grass. But not a man flinched, for the same thought was in every mind, that they were fighting under the eye of their "Little Corporal," as they affectionately called the terrible Napoleon.

Suddenly the smoke parted, and right in front of them appeared the dark muzzles of cannon, and the white uniforms of the Austrian soldiers. One last shout, which rose high above all the roar of battle, the bayonets went glittering over the breastwork like the spray of a breaking wave, and the battery was won.

"Where's the colonel?" cried a voice, suddenly.

There was no answer. The handful of men that remained of the doomed band looked meaningly at each other, but no one spoke. Strict disciplinarian as he was, seldom passing a day without punishing some one, the old colonel had nevertheless won his men's hearts completely by his reckless, daring courage in battle; and every man in the regiment would gladly have risked his life to save that of the "old growler," as they called him.

But, if he were not with them, where was he? Outside the battery the whole ground was scourged into flying jets of dust by a storm of bullets from the fight that was still raging on the left. In such a cross fire it seemed as if nothing living could escape, and if he had fallen there, there was but little hope for him.

"I see him," cried a tall grenadier. "He's lying out yonder, and alive, too, for I saw him wave his hand just now. I'll have him here in five minutes, boys, or be left there beside him."

"But you musn't disobey orders, Dubois," said a young captain—now the only surviving officer, so terrible had been the havoc—hoping by this means to stop the reckless man from rushing upon certain death. "Remember what the colonel told you—that even if he were left among the wounded, no one must go out to pick them up."

"I can't help that," answered the soldier, laying down his musket and tightening the straps of his cross-belt. "Captain, report Private Dubois for insubordination and breach of discipline. I'm going out to bring in the colonel."

And he stepped forth unflinchingly into the deadly space beyond.

They saw him approach the spot where the colonel lay; they saw him bend over the fallen man, shielding him from the shot with his own body. Then he was seen to stagger suddenly, as if from a blow; but the next moment he had the colonel in his arms and was struggling back over the shot-torn ground, through the dying and the dead. Twice he stopped short, as if unable to go farther; but on he came again, and had just laid his officer gently down inside the battery, when, with his comrades' shout of welcome still ringing in his ears, he fell fainting to the earth, covered with blood.

By the next morning Colonel Lasalle had recovered sufficiently to amaze the whole regiment by putting under arrest the man who had saved his life; but the moment it was done the colonel mounted his horse, and rode off to headquarters at full gallop. In about an hour he was seen coming back again, side by side with a short, square-built man in a gray coat and cocked hat, at sight of whom the soldiers burst into deafening cheers, for he was no other than the Emperor Napoleon.

"Let me see this fellow," said Napoleon, sternly; and two grenadiers led forward Pierre Dubois, so weak from his wounds that he could hardly stand.

"So, fellow, thou has dared to disobey orders, ha?" cried the emperor in his harshest tones.

"I have, sire. And if it were to be done again, I'd do it."

"And what if we were to shoot thee for insubordination?"

"My life is your Majesty's, now as always," answered the grenadier boldly. "And if I must chosse between dying myself and leaving my Colonel to die, the old regiment can better spare a common fellow like me than a brave officer like him."

A sudden spasm shook the colonel's iron face as he listened, and even Napoleon's stern, gray eyes softened as few men had ever seen them soften yet.

"Thou'rt wrong there," said he, "for I would not give a 'common fellow' of thy sort for twenty colonels, were every one of them as good as my old Lasalle here. Take this, Sergeant Dubois"—and he fastened his own cross of the Legion of Honor to Pierre's breast. "I warrant me thou'lt be a colonel thyself one of those days."

And, sure enough, five years later, Pierre Dubois was not only a colonel, but a general.

Look not at the darkness, but at the light. Enumerate not your trials, but your blessings. Cultivate cheerfulness, not despondency.

A Brighton stationer took a fancy for dressing his show-window with piles of writing paper, rising gradually from the largest to the smallest size in use; and to finish his pyramid off nicely, he cut cards to bring them to a point.—Taking these cards for diminutive note paper, lady customers were continually wanting some of "that lovely little paper," and the stationer found it advantageous to cut paper to the desired pattern. As there was no space for addressing the notelets after they were folded, he, after much thought, invented the envelope, which he cut by the aid of metal plates made for the purpose. The sale increased so rapidly that he was unable to produce the envelopes fast enough, so he commissioned a dozen houses to make them for him, and thus set going an important branch of the manufacturing stationery trade.

Yesterday afternoon an old woman, weighing about 300 pounds, slipped in crossing the street-car track, and came down in the mud and water. It sounded like dropping a custard out of a second-story window. The driver of the car held up his mule, and called out: "I say, if you will get up and let me drive on, you can sit down there again as soon as the car passes."

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Semiual Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.

Our terms are as follows:

For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

THE NEW YORK EVENING POST FOR 1881.

In Its Eighty first Year.

The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.

1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.

2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.

3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first-class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents, not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.

4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.

5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, JAN. 26, 1881.

Village Improvements.

Governor Bigelow of Connecticut, in his recent inaugural address, did a very wise thing in formally introducing the subject of rural improvements to the good people of that State. In this matter he has taken the lead of other States and set a noble example to them all. His suggestions should have and will have great influence in all directions.

The work of improving and beautifying a village, once begun, will not be likely to stop, for every step is appreciated alike by old and young, male and female, rich and poor.

The way to keep young men and young women at home is to make home more and more attractive. The cost of such work, either public or private, is comparatively little, and the owners of property particularly should heartily encourage every step in this direction, as of the greatest importance. Governor Bigelow thus speaks of the matter referred to:

"Closely connected with the matter of education is a movement for rural improvement which has been begun in this State, and which has, under individual and private encouragement, attained considerable importance and is worthy of all support. It is the endeavor by local associations to beautify in all reasonable, simple and inexpensive ways our smaller towns and villages. This is not a subject which will come before you in your legislative capacity; but I desire to allude to it in appreciation of what has been done and to express a sense of the value which such a movement has. It tends most directly to the cheerful, intelligent and enduring happiness of our people that their surroundings should be such as to attach them to their homes and to the communities in which those homes are placed. It also makes our towns attractive places, in which strangers may settle, and renders the remembrance of them the pleasanter to the large number of guests which our shore towns in particular are called upon every summer to entertain. This movement owes its beginning and its progress to the efforts of the present secretary of the State Board of Education."

BIG SMOKERS. — General Grant is said to smoke a hundred cigars in two weeks. He gives away as many as he smokes. He has used the same brand of imported cigars for ten years. They cost $22.50 a hundred. Colonel Bob Ingersol pays $50 for a box and used from five to ten cigars a day. General Butler pays $10 and sometimes $20 for a box. Senator Matt Carpenter, who nearly killed himself by smoking, has been reduced to three cigars a day.

DECISIVE.—Nevada's November vote on the Chinese question has just been officially made known; and it is found that although the result was certain beforehand, yet almost all who took the trouble to vote for President insisted also on voting about admitting the Chinese. The tally was: Whole number of votes, 17,442; for admission, 183; against admission, 17,259. There was no 7 to 8 decision about that vote.

Gov. Long disapproves of capital punishment, but he despairs of inducing the Legislature to abolish it, and will endeavor only to substitute some easier means of death for hanging. He thinks that morphine might be used, and will officially recommend its use in place of the noose.

There is apparently no reason to fear a scarcity of ice for either this or next summer. Our ice dealers have laid in a two years' supply, and from all the ponds in this vicinity they are cutting a plentiful harvest. At Spring Pond the ice is about fourteen inches thick.

GASOLINE, the use of which by plumbers was the cause of the recent appalling disaster in New York, whereby so many lives were lost by fire during the destruction of the tenement house, is a most dangerous compound, and requires to be very carefully handled. It is a spirits of petroleum, and will evaporate at any temperature, even zero, and the vapor which it throws off will reach the fire. Sometimes combustion has been known to take place, through the medium of this vapor, at a distance of 100 feet from the fire. If a light is brought in, the vapor conveys the flame to the gasoline. Plumbers have lately begun to use this substance instead of alcohol in meters, and for thawing out pipes, for the reason that it is cheaper. It is the first and most volatile product of petroleum in its process of reduction. The fire test of kerosene in New York is 130 deg. Fahrenheit. Gasoline will ignite at 75 deg. Its power is almost equal in a destructive point by dynamite, for if a few drops of it be suffered to fall upon a heated stove it will insure the thorough destruction of the stove and such other articles as may be in the immediate vicinity. It should be handled and used with the greatest care, and only by those persons who are thoroughly familiar with its dangerous properties.

BOILER EXPLOSIONS.—An engineer who has had 25 years experience in running boilers, says that if water is suffered to slowly heat for some time in a boiler, with all the valves shut, it will cause the air to separate from the water or accumulate in the top or most elevated part, and hence become a most powerful and dangerous hydrostatic reservoir. This has caused him to lose two different boiler heads, that were broken in the same manner as the Eleventh St. boiler in N. Y. city, but he fortunately discovered the break in time to avoid an accident. He has found ninety pounds pressure in this dynamitic air space, when the normal steam pressure at the same time was only fifty pounds after this dangerous compressed air had been allowed to escape for ten seconds. With all due modesty he would caution engineers, in case of leaving fires banked over Sunday, or any other length of time, to shove in the safety valve ball or slightly open the valve. In the case of the late accident above refered to, the safety valve was undoubtedly stuck, and had not been often tried.

KEEP AWAY FROM TEXAS.—There is a strange rumbling noise audible upon the Red River, Texas, and as the locality if fifty miles from any railroad it cannot be attributed to passing trains. The inhabitants are much excited over it, believing that it presages volcanic action. It resembles the sound of a railway train, the roar of a distant waterfall, and at night the moaning of the wind through a pine forest. Its range, which is not changable, is from north to northwest, and it recalls the ominous sounds described by Humboldt as preceding the great earthquake of 1759 in Mexico, when the volcanic mountain of Jorullo was upheaved. Scientific investigation will probably be ordered by the State authorities.

The Worcester Spy says: "Probably the largest policy of insurance ever written in Worcester was the one placed Saturday upon the property of the Providence and Worcester Railroad Company, covering their passenger stations, freight houses, bridges, locomotives, cars, freight in transit, and in freight houses, etc., etc. The policy was for $1,000,000, and was written in the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company by their resident agent, Mr. A. C. Munroe."

The temperance people of Ohio are moving on the liquor sellers of that State in dead earnest. A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives for a special election on May 1, 1881, at which all persons having the qualifications of electors, without regard to sex, may vote on the question of suppressing the liquor traffic from July 4, 1881. When the women once get a chance to vote upon this question, liquor will be voted down.

The prosperous condition of the Lowell Daily Courier is evidenced by its recent adoption of the quarto form. It is now one of the most attractive newspapers in the State, as well as the most accessible. Its eight pages are full of readable matter, while the leaves are pasted and cut, after the most approved methods of the day.—Boston Traveller.

Mary Clemmer, writes in the Independent, that in the election of Omar D. Conger to the Senate the public must feel a sense of satisfaction that Michigan is at last to have a Senator whose reputation—at least where women are concerned—is above reproach or suspicion.

The Naumkeag Clothing Company continue to close out their large line of winter goods at such low prices that their store is visited daily by a large number from all over Essex County.

There is one European city that is naughty, and it's Nice.

IF YOU GET FROZEN.—In view of the cold wave these words of a writer in the January number of the American Agriculturist are commended:

"If any part of the body gets frozen the very worst thing to do is to apply heat directly. Keep away from the fire. Use snow if you can get it; if not, use the coldest possible water. Last winter our little boy of five years froze his feet while out coasting at a considerable distance from the house. He cried all the way home, and the case seemed pretty bad. I brought a big panful of snow and put his feet into it, rubbing them with the snow. But my hands could not stand the cold. I was alarmed to see him keep his feet in the snow so long, but he could not bear them out of it. It was half an hour before he would take them out, and then the pain was all gone, and when I had wiped them dry and rubbed them a little he was entirely comfortable, put on his stockings and shoes and went to play. He never afterwards had any trouble with his feet on account of this freezing. His sister got her feet extremely cold, and put them at once to the fire. Her case at first was not so bad as her brother's, but the result was much worse. Her feet were very tender all winter, and she suffered from chilblains. Her toes had a swollen, purple look, and she had to take a larger size boot.

WESTERN FARMERS. — A Chicago paper contains the following conversation:

I asked the President of one of our most flourishing country banks the other evening at the Palmer House:

"How did the farmers meet their January interest?"

"Promptly, and with out a single default. To tell the truth, most of the interest on our farm loans had been anticipated."

"Are you making any new loans for Eastern parties?"

"None at all."

"Why?"

"Farmers are borrowing very little money. The good crops and the demand now for all farm products have enabled farmers to pay off their debts very fast."

"How much money have you placed in a single year on Western farms?"

"As high as $500,000."

"Do your Eastern correspondents still send you money to loan upon farms?"

"Yes."

"What do you do with it?"

"Send it back, as I have no place to put it."

Frankly, very little good seems to have come from the reading of the scriptures by the people at large. It has produced more religious fanaticism than anything else and more abortions which are carricatures of religion.—Even among Catholics it fosters a Calvinistic spirit which in many cases induces individuals to set up their judgment against the wisdom of the church. The indiscriminate circulation of the Bible even, with notes approved by the church has not been productive of good. The church existed before the scriptures; she guarded and collected them; she alone is their interpreter.—Catholic Review.

We publish the following to show how near Josh Billings' prognostication of the state of the weather, Jan. 15th, came: Grate cold; Adam born and had no mother; mercury an inch below zero. Jan. 16, gusty squalls from babies; Valentine and Eve born; also hazy, snow, rain, sunshine and sleet. Jan. 17, grindstones first discovered, streaks of wind and a good time to inflate sausages.—Jan. 18, Congress still sits and wind sow-bi-sow-west; wet and dry, cold and hot.

One of the most extraordinary sales ever inaugurated in Salem will commence on Tuesday, Feb. 1, 1881, when Mr. Frank Cousins will close out the entire $14,000 stock of Mr. W. C. C. Moulton's, within 30 days. This is a bona fide sale; the stock is very complete, and the large number of Mr. Moulton's patrons from Peabody can testify to the quality of these goods.—Read the adv. in another column.

It is unaccountable, but it is a fact nevertheless, that a boy will listen more attentively to a recital of his father's youthful escapades, and remember it longer, than he will all the moral teachings and exhortations that his sire may indulge in in a year's preaching, and he will think no less of the old gentleman on discovering that he was a boy like himself.

That E. V. Emilio has quite a number of second-hand Pianos for sale; also Pianos and Organs to rent. Mr. Emilio has had a large experience in the selection of musical instruments, and a large number can always be found at his rooms, 286 Essex street, Salem.

That Frank Cousins' Bee Hive will be closed on Friday, Jan. 28th, to mark down and re-arrange goods, but will open Saturday, Jan. 29th. Then look out for bargains.

That Miss Gussie E. Nelson, 25 Summit Avenue, Salem, will give lessons on the Violin, and visit the residences of pupils in Peabody.

That candidates for admission to the State Normal School at Salem will be examined on Tuesday, Feb. 8th, beginning at eight o'clock.

That Geo. Upton has one hundred cords of Glue Compost for sale.

That Wm. A. Smith, the barber, has a full line of his magnetic hair restorative, which is warranted to restore gray hair. This is no vision, but a stern reality.

That Frank E. Farnham, Attorney and Counselor-at-Law, Real Estate, Insurance and Investment Agent, may be found at 8 Allen's Block.

That the Bowker Fertilizer Co., of Boston, have something of interest to Farmers.

That Merrill & Mackintire are offering for sale one million envelopes and two tons of note paper, at a low price.

That Ladies and Gentlemen can be accommodated with board at all times, at Mrs. J. E. Osborne's.

That A. J. Swain is offering great bargains in the line of stationery, school supplies, pocket knives, photograph and autograph albums, artists' materials, etc. Read his adv. and see for yourselves.

The Trustees have elected Dr. Chas. F. Folsom, of Boston, as Superintendent of the State Lunatic Hospital in this town, and he has accepted the position. Dr. Folsom was offered the place before, but did not accept, and recently the offer was renewed and urged, owing to his superior qualifications for the charge. He has made a study of insanity, and methods of Hospital management, both in this country and Europe, and brings to his work here such experience and liberal and enlightened views as are possessed by few men in this country.—Danvers Mirror.

The duty on hippopotamuses imported from Africa is 20 per cent. STATEMENT.

MR. EDITOR,—I have fitted up at considerable expense an undertaking room, and am prepared to furnish goods in my line promptly and at reasonable rates. I know there is a false impression current that on the occasion of a death in town, one must go to the town undertaker, and without wishing to weaken that gentleman's position—who is certainly performing his work well—it seems no more than fair to state that there is no obligation resting to go to this or that undertaker. If we had a Superintendent of Burials, it would be necessary to consult him, but any person in whom the Town Clerk has sufficient confidence to give a permit, can attend at a funeral. The law provides that there shall be at least one so appointed, that there may be some one who can always be depended upon. If it be true that from $3000 to $10,000 are paid annually to Salem for funeral purposes, is it not fair that a portion be retained in town, now that we have one of our citizens fully prepared to furnish goods? I make this statement because I know that many people are laboring under the false impression that when in need of an undertaker, there is only one person to call upon, and that is an undertaker appointed by the town. It is not so, as I have previously stated—there is no obligation whatever. J. W. VAUGHN.

SOUTH DANVERS MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE CO.

At a meeting of the Directors of this Company, held at the office on Thursday, January 20th, the following resolutions were passed:

WHEREAS, In the providence of God, death has taken from us Mr. Isaac B. Elliott, who for the last twelve years has been president of this Company, therefore,

Resolved, That in his death, we have to mourn the loss of one whose devotion to the interests of this Company, and faithfulness in the discharge of the duties incumbent upon him, and whose uprightness and kindness of heart ever shown in his intercourse with his associates, will be held in grateful remembrance.

Voted, That the Directors tender to his family their respectful sympathies in their great bereavement, and that these resolutions be recorded on the books of the Company, and a copy of the same be sent to the family of the deceased.

OUR SEVENTH
Great Annual Sale,
—OF—
LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S
Cotton Underwear,
WILL BE INAUGURATED ON
MONDAY, JANUARY, 17, 1881.

Without any special comment, we will simply state that we have made this season the most elaborate preparations for this, our Seventh Great Annual Sale of Ladies' and Children's Cotton Underwear. Foreseeing some months ago that we should need a very large amount of goods for this sale, we gave large orders to the best and largest manufacturer of Cotton Underwear in New England, Mr. C. F. Hathaway, of Waterville, Me., in order to produce at this time every article of Cotton Underwear known to the trade, in the most complete and perfect manner, as regards fit, style, quality and workmanship, and at prices at which competition is impossible. On account of the inevitable rush which always follows the announcement of our Great Annual Sale of Cotton Underwear and Corsets, we shall this year display full and complete stocks on both first and second floors of our store. The room which we shall occupy for this sale will be larger than that of any other store in the state.

This new and attractive stock of Cotton Underwear, We are to open for the inspection of the public on MONDAY, JAN. 17, and we cordially invite every lady in this vicinity to call and examine the very best bargains ever seen in Cotton Underwear, which will be so numerous that we can specify only a few. We guarantee all our Cotton Underwear as perfect in workmanship, and the best that can be bought in New England. And in all cases where our customers are not perfectly satisfied, we will with pleasure not only exchange the goods, but will refund the money if desired.

BOWKER'S
HILL AND DRILL
PHOSPHATE
SEND FOR PAMPHLET.
This is a true bone superphosphate, and may be used on any crop, in the hill or drill or broadcast, either with or without manure, and will produce a much earlier and larger crop. In the Report of the Mass. Inspector of Fertilizers, its valuation is from $3 to $10 per ton higher than other Phosphates which sell at the same price. The past year over 3000 tons were sold against 100 tons three years ago, showing that it is liked by the farmers. If there is no local agent near you, send to us.
Also for sale STOCKBRIDGE MANURES.

MERITED TESTIMONIAL.
Epping, N. H., Jan. 1881.
DR. A. S. DUDLEY: Dear Sir,—The artificial Nose, Palate and Teeth you made for me work well, greatly improve my looks and speech, and my friends regard the operation as entirely successful. I cannot express the gratitude I feel toward you, who have done so much for me in restoring me from seclusion, and adding so very much to my comfort and happiness. I have worn the teeth and palate only two or three weeks, and yet have got quite used to them, and can now eat and speak well. Yours truly,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

"There is a man in our town,
And he is wondrous wise;
Whenever he has goods to sell
He straight doth advertise;
And when he finds his goods are gone,
With all his might and main
He hurries in another lot
To advertise again."

GREAT SNOW STORM.—Last Friday night we had an illustration of what this climate is capable of—a terrible storm of wind, snow and sleet, the severest we have had in this vicinity for ten years. Although there was much damage to property in different parts of the county, we learn of none hereabouts. The telephone and telegraph wires, encased in a thin, glittering covering, sagged with their icy weight; weather vanes were frozen fast, and sheets of snow covered telegraph poles, lamp posts, cupolas, steeples, flag-staffs, trees, shrubs, everything, in their icy embrace. Nearly all of the trains were delayed, the Wakefield train, due here at 8.40 with the mail, not arriving until about that time in the evening, having been off the track near Wakefield. The train leaving here at 10.05 for Boston, on the Wakefield Branch, did not leave until near 11.30. It had two engines and a snow plow, and had a difficult time in getting across the Square. The Lowell train left here at about 10.15, went as far as West Peabody, and returned. The first train from Lowell, due here at about quarter of nine, did not get through until 10 o'clock at night. Two engines, a snow plow and a baggage car cleared the snow from the track, followed by the passenger train.

SOUTH CHURCH.—The South Church Sunday School held their first concert of the year last Sunday evening, and from the sixty-third annual report made by the superintendent, Benj. N. Moore, we present the following: Officers, 8; teachers, 34; scholars, 284; whole number, 326. Average attendance for the year of 52 Sundays, 192; largest attendance April 18—238; smallest Aug. 29—76. No one of the members was present every Sunday, but 2 teachers and 4 scholars were absent only once. Three members have died and 6 have united with the church. The library room has been enlarged and newly furnished, so that they have one of the best in town. Sixty-two books have been added, making 1050 volumes. Receipts for the year are $694.62. This amount has been paid out for benevolent objects, $284.00; for library, $108.53; expenses, $236.03. The school is in a flourishing condition. The pastor, Rev. W. G. Sperry, is present nearly every Sunday to assist in the opening exercises, and a cordial invitation is given to all the young people of the town not connected with any Sunday school to become members of this.

THE LINDELL HOUSE.—The following complimentary notice of our former townsman, Mr. Frank W. Poor, formerly of the firm of Sawyer, Thomas & Co., appeared in a recent number of the Hotel World, of Chicago:

The Lindell House, which was taken last June by Mr. F. W. Poor, refurnished and refitted throughout, has likewise had all the business it could handle under the new management. Mr. Poor is not a professional hotel man, but that fact does not seem to have interfered with his success, and he has gained the reputation of keeping an excellent hotel, and pleasing all his guests. He has the hotel in good shape, employs first-class help, and to all appearances is "cut out by natur" for a No. 1 hotel man. There was in June $11,000 worth of new furniture placed into forty rooms, which shows how it is furnished. An addition to the hotel will be commenced soon, 55x142 feet in dimensions, built on the right of the present structure; it will be a four-story building with French roof, and make the New Lindell rank among the largest and finest hotel buildings in the city. Work will be begun as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Mr. W. A. Austin, formerly proprietor of the Perrin House, Providence, R. I., has charge of the Lindell office. He has adopted the West as his future home.

We have been informed that the agent of a steam heating company was in town last week, and if a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained will ask permission to lay pipes and begin operations at once.

Our old town clock was waylaid by the storm at about twenty minutes of four on Saturday morning, but friends came to its relief, and it started on at the same old pace—sixty minutes to an hour.

The estate of the late Sally Goldthwaite, on Washington street, was sold last Thursday by Mr. William F. Pingree, administrator, to Dr. G. M. Frost for $600 and the taxes of 1880.

Mr. Furbush, of Peabody, is to open a dry goods store in the other half of the building now occupied by Messrs. Mead & Webb and the Post Office, at the Port.—Danvers Mirror.

Winter is half gone.

The third entertainment in Mr. H. B. Hooper's course, consisting of Mr. Charles Atkinson and Miss Clara Ellard, took place at the Institute, last Wednesday evening, and although we were somewhat disappointed, many were delighted with the performance. The entertainment certainly was deserving of something better than the "beggarly" array of empty seats which greeted it. The programme embraced a little of everything, from Trowbridge to Eli Perkins, and concluded with "Poetical Wooing," which is a sort of medley of all the familiar poems and songs of the day. Mr. Atkinson's elocutionary powers are not so striking as some who have appeared here; while Miss Ellard elicited more than usual praise, as she is a very pretty and attractive young lady. The audience were in the best of humor, and seemed to appreciate their efforts. Between the pieces Mr. Clinton Bessom, of Marblehead, entertained the audience with some fine selections on the piano.

We received an invitation to visit Rev. V. M. Simons, of Woburn, in company with the Young People's Union connected with the Methodist Church, last Thursday evening, which we were unable to accept. Our inability to be present, however, did not seem to make any difference, as reports of the occasion represent it as one of unusual pleasure to all who went. The party left the Square at about 6.30 o'clock, in Quint's barge. Arriving in Woburn, their reception by Mr. S. and his family was very cordial. A collation was served, and the evening was socially spent. The occasion was one that all will remember as a very pleasant time.

The "room" of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was well filled last Sunday evening by the rising generation of Peabody, nearly all of whom were sons of our adopted citizens. Under the lead of several of our Christian ladies and gentlemen many Gospel songs were sung with remarkable vigor and gusto, especially in the rendering of the choruses. The other evening Rev. Mr. Sperry extended to them a special invitation to join the South Church Sunday School, and the probability is that not a few will accept.

The following was found last Sunday, written on the fly-leaf of a hymn book, at one of our churches:

Who is the Devil? They tell us that he was a great fallen angel, who got up a rebellion in heaven. Well, now, I should like to know how he came to think of getting it up! There he was dwelling in the presence of God, where no sin or unholy thoughts could have entered his head. How came he to rebel against God's authority unless some one put it in his head? If so, who was it?

Last Thursday evening the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Hudson that united our genial friend Mr. Stephen A. Osborne and Mrs. Eliza J. Blue in the bonds of matrimony. The newly married couple received a number of valuable and useful presents. "May they live long and prosper."

At a meeting held at the Universalist Church in Salem, last Wednesday, a permanent organization was formed, under the name of the Essex Universalist Sunday School Union, and Mr. Amos Merrill, of this town, was chosen President.

Mr. Charles F. Bomer, son of the late C. P. Bomer, died at his residence last Wednesday. He had been in ill health for some time. He was about 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children, besides a large circle of friends.

Owing to the severe storm last Friday evening, an audience of only about forty greeted the "Belles of Corneille" at the Institute. We hope to see them again under more favorable circumstances.

At a meeting of the Directors of the South Danvers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., held on the 20th inst., Mr. Wm. P. Clark was chosen President, in the place of the late Mr. Isaac B. Elliot.

We believe it was a campaign falsehood on the part of the person who induced us to buy ticket No. 329 in the G. A. R. Fair, with the assurance that it was sure to come on top.

Rev. Mr. Sperry will preach at the Chapel at South Peabody, next Sabbath, at half past three o'clock. Sabbath School will be held there at quarter past two.

The warm worsted hoods worn by the girls this winter are the most sensible as well as becoming and pretty head covering they have had for years.

Owing to the severe storm last Friday evening, the meeting of the West Peabody Farmers' Club was not held.

We heard it remarked that Dr. Pike "took the cake," if he didn't the robe.

Mr. Benj. F. Southwick has been drawn to serve as Traverse Juror.

MENS', YOUTHS', BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S

OVERCOATS,

ULSTERS,

ULSTERETTES,

SUITS AND PANTALOONS.

Take Time and read this bill through carefully.

According to our usual custom we shall inaugurate on MONDAY, JANUARY 3d, our great Semi-Annual Mark Down Sale of Men's Youths', Boys' and Children's Clothing.

The unparalleled success and the large increase in our sales for 1880, has proved beyond a doubt that we give better clothing for the money than any other dealers in Essex County. We are now prepared to offer some of the most wonderful bargains ever known in the history of the clothing trade. As we are manufacturers of our own clothing and do all our business for cash, paying cash for our purchases, we secure the best goods at the very lowest prices; and as all our sales are made for cash we can afford to offer superior inducements to our patrons; it will pay you to come a hundred miles to purchase clothing at this great mark-down sale.

We give below a list of a few special bargains.

GENTS' DEP'T.

— $3.00, 4.00, and 5.00 —

71 Men's Heavy Black Elysian Beaver & Cardinal Mixed Overcoats, marked down from $5.00 and $7.00, well made and trimmed. All sizes from 34 to 44. A great bargain.

— $6.00 and 7.00 —

65 Men's Heavy Black Chinchilla and Fancy Mixed Overcoats, former price, $8.50 and 10.00, marked down to 6.00 and 7.00. Every garment is well made and trimmed and were cheap at the old price.

— $8.00 —

31 Men's Strictly All Wool Heavy Black Elysian Beaver Overcoats, handsomely made and trimmed, marked down from $12 to $8. The same goods cannot be purchased outside our store for less than $13. A wonderful Bargain.

— $10.00, 12.00 and 13.50 —

137 Men's Strictly All Wool Plain and Fancy Mixed Heavy Overcoats, handsomely made and trimmed, marked down from $14, 16 and 18, to only $10, 12, and 13.50.

Drugs and Medicines of all kinds; Toilet Articles, Sponges, Brushes, Perfumery, &c., kept constantly on hand.

Prescriptions carefully and promptly prepared.

Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow;
See the old man to the bar-room go.
Soon he is sleepy, his speech is thick,
Myrtie's dear father is full as a tick.

It is perfectly proper to speak of a man's magnificent dome of thought or his Websterian brow, but when you speak of a red-headed gentleman as the man with the gilded dome, ten chances to one he will not feel flattered.

A red-headed man recently attended a masquerade wrapped from his head to his heels in a brown cloth and with his head bare. He represented a lighted cigar.

Rejected lovers need never despair. There are four-and-twenty hours in a day, and not a moment in the twenty-four in which a woman may not change her mind.

☞ THE HEIGHT OF HAPPINESS is the restoration of a woman after years of sickness to perfect health. Imagine then the joy of the family of Mrs. ——, of Kingston, who had suffered untold misery for over five years, consequent upon the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. She was induced to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. After using only two bottles all her ailments disappeared, and she says that she feels and considers herself in perfect health.

Let a young man once get on the trail of a young lady in a crowded ballroom and he will find her very soon and find her mad.

"Fine sleighing," remarked the young man who paid $10 and costs for fast drivng.

Professor Baird will pay a handsome sum for good specimens of catfish kittens.

If you are troubled with sleeplessness imagine you have got to get up, and off you go.

The way for a bad boy to go on a bender is over his mother's knee.

"I am just throwing out a feeler," remarked the saloon-keeper, as he put the blind man into the street.

☞ If you are tired of taking the large, old-fashioned griping pills, try Carter's Little Liver Pills, and take some comfort. A man can't stand everything. One pill a dose.

Mistress—As you've never been in service, I'm afraid I can't engage you without a "character." Young Person—I have three school-board certificates, ma'am. Mistress—Oh, well, I suppose for honesty, cleanliness,—— Young Person—No, ma'am; for literatoor, joggr'phy, and' free 'and drawrin"!

"Yes, I'm going to skate," he answered as his teeth rattled together and his ears stood out like sheet-iron medals. "They tried to stuff me with a story of a boy who froze to death on the rink at the park, but I wouldn't take it." "Did one freeze to death?" "Naw! Come to find out about it, he just froze his ears and nose and fingers and toes, and the rest of his body wasn't touched at all. They can't scare me with any of their tales of horror.

☞ Those unhappy persons who suffer from nervousness and dyspepsia should use Carter's Little Nerve Pills, which are made expressly for sleepless, nervous, dyspeptic sufferers. Price 25 cents, all druggists.

An English writer describes the "sister-in law" thus: "She may be the champion of the husband at breakfast, the avenger of the wrongs of the wife at the luncheon, and at dinner declare that both ought to be ashamed of themselves for bringing up their children in the way they ought not to go. She is a certain element of discord in the house; for if she is too friendly with the husband the wife deplores with tears the presence of 'that minx' who is undermining poor Edward's affections; if too friendly with the sister 'poor Edward' unhesitatingly affirms on those inauspicious occasions when words arise about a too highly-peppered soup or smoked salmon that there never will be any peace in the house 'as long as that (adjective to fancy) little mischief-making beast is inside it.'"

☞ Mothers never fail to recommend Malt Bitters as nourishing and strengthening.

A financially minded youth got up the following verse in a Detroit Sunday School:

Should all the banks of England break,
Should England's bank be smashed,
Bring in your checks to Zion's bank,
And you will get them cashed.

Goliah was the first person who wore a bang on his forehead.

ITCHING PILES—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.—The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected; if allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Dr. Swayne's All-Healing Ointment is a pleasant sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Price 50 cents, 3 boxes for $1.25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price in currency, or three cent postage stamps. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., to whom letters should be addressed. Sold by all prominent druggists.

For awhile there was no answer, and the clergyman, to assist the children a little, commenced tapping his jaw with the tip of his finger, at the same time saying, "What's this? What's this?" Quick as thought a little fellow replied: "The jawbone of an ass, sir."

The clergyman was a very young man, and had never before held a baby. The infant was a big boy, who began to "corkscrew" his way through clothes and wrappings. The minister held on bravely, but in a few moments the child's face disappeared in the wraps, and his dangling legs were worming their way to the floor. Seized with a horrible impression, he clutched the clothes violently by the sash-band, and, straddling the child upon the chancel-rail, said to the mother: "If you don't hold that baby, I shall have nothing left but the dress to baptize." He was at once relieved.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

INVALID LADIES

Who will send a postal card, simply bearing their address, will receive, prepaid by mail,

"FAITH WHITCOMB'S ADVICE TO MOTHERS,"

which every mother should read. Address, FAITH WHITCOMB'S Agency, Boston, Mass.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quincy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, C. K. MAYO.

337 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend to my patrons. C. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere Houte, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him.

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is raising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rhumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

LORD HERTFORD'S CHARITIES.

So with his charities, as he would have called them, which were often splendid, but which he carried off as caprices or bits of sensation. He was once at a fair seen to give a remarkably handsome but wicked-looking bandit or gypsy of sixteen £20, and when asked if that was not a piece of cruel kindness to the boy, replied coolly that "it would give him a taste for money, and that when it was spent he would probably go and murder some one to get more." Indeed, this was a favorite pleasure of his, this picking out some miserable wretch and making him rich for a few days. He often was heard to say deliberately as he thus gave away his money: "There, now, is a bad seed which is sure to strike root." It may again be doubted if this be true, and it is but fair to say that his more thoughtful friends looked upon such speeches as mere pieces of pleasantry with which he tried to get rid of the artificial character of the benevolent and charitable, which he felt to be irksome and unsuitable to him. At Boulogne he was made the hero of a somewhat sensational scene, which rather belongs to the Chatelet or Porte St. Martin Theatre. In a great storm some sailors were seen clinging to the shrouds of their shipwrecked vessel, and through the tempest his voice was heard offering, now ten thousand francs to save each life, now twenty-five thousand, and, finally, when the number was reduced to two, one hundred thousand. It is certain, however, that he presented the town with a life-boat and house all complete. Yet it is not surprising to learn that he was, for a man of such a fortune, stingy. At play he would only risk a few twenty-franc pieces; and once, when he had gone beyond his usual amount, and lost a few thousand francs, he was so piqued that he declared he had been cheated. This compliment he paid to his own club. Neither do his hospitalities appear to have been of a large or substantial kind. There was a particular emphasis laid on his cigars, of which he was an admirable judge, and of which stores of the choicest brands were sent to him. With these he took as much pains as other men would with their wine. He treated them scientifically. He had vast oaken cases, laid out in thousands of leaden cells, one for each cigar. Before its admission into the collection he himself personally examined every cigar, rejecting such as seemed to be at all inferior. After laying by for some months a fresh examination and final selection was made; the rejected ones, still of the choicest kind, were disposed of to friends, or to some favored tobacconist. His life was that of a sybarite—the day being laid out with a view to elegant pleasure. Yet this rich and haughty seigneur was solitary: as was said of Garrick, "He had friends, but no friend." It is stated that his chief enjoyment was looking down from his windows at the crowd turning into the Cafe de Paris underneath. It was noted that exceeding caution and care for his person was displayed in every one of his proceedings. Fond as he was of boxing, he would not box unless in the padded armor of the school, requiring that his adversary should wear the gloves, though he himself did not. When he was almost a boy, his favorite sport was to give a hackney-coachman a couple of louis, seize the reins, and drive in the most disorderly manner down some narrow street, upsetting barrows, and all but running over some one; and then, when a hue and cry had been raised and pursuit was growing warm, he would slip down and escape, leaving the driver to bear the consequences.—All the Year Round.

MURDER.

Some one has observed that a man seldom commits his first murder after the age of twenty-eight years, but that if he begins to murder before that age, he is liable to go on doing so indefinitely. This seems to show that the impulsiveness of youth is needed to precipitate criminals into making a first murderous essay, but that, having made it, they discover it to be not so horrible as they had been taught to suppose. If it were otherwise, surely no man would be so unlikely as to kill another as he who had already done so at some past time. His experience of its effects would be a stronger deterrent than the ignorance of one who had never tried it. Granting, then, that even the murderer who begins to murder with a motive, learns to like his trade, what is there to prevent his ultimately cultivating it on its own merits? A great many murders—far more than is generally supposed—are committed every year, the authors of which are never discovered. This fact, if taken in connection with the facilities toward discovery which motives supply, is all but inexplicable, but as soon as we entertain the possibility of their having been committed without a motive, it becomes comprehensible.—The Spectator.

BLOWING THE HORN.

The Athens (Ga.) Banner reports that many years ago Athens had a law forbidding the sale of liquors in quantities less than a quart. Whenever a man came along and bought a quart he could not, of course, drink it all, so the barkeeper would go the door, and blow a blast on a cow horn, and the loafers all around town would hasten to help the purchaser dispose of his quart. When, by any chance, a gallon was purchased, the barkeeper would blow a ram's horn, and then the boys would say to each other, "No use to hurry so, he's got a gallon."

Curiosity compels many to wedge themselves into places where they are not wanted.

Public opinion is a second conscience.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It has become a common practice for certain dealers to palm off Oil of inferior quality and fire test as Eclectic Oil. We would inform the public that we took the sole agency for the sale of this justly celebrated Oil, in Peabody, some six years ago, and we still hold that Agency, and any other parties who pretend to sell the purchaser Eclectic Oil are deceiving them.

Happy Children.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Parties living at a distance, (except in surgical cases,) by sending a statement of their case can be treated at home.

Scientific.

A PUBLIC test of chains, made on the plan of Capt. Charles A. Chamberlain, by the American Chain Company, of Philadelphia, lately resulted in a signal victory for the improved pattern. Mr. Charles Cramp, Mr. McCloud, Chief of the Testing Bureau of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Mr. Holman, Secretary of the Franklin Institute, Mr. Sargeant, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Abram Barker, President of the Wharton Railroad Switch Company, and other prominent gentlemen were present. The first test was with an ordinary chain ⅞ of an inch in diameter, manufactured of iron from the Trenton Steel and Iron Company's works. The chain stood a strain of nearly ten tons, when it snapped at the end. The American Company's chain of the same size and weight stood a strain of 16½ tons before it was broken across the weld. Another test was made with the company's five-eighths chain to see the effect produced by the Admiralty proof test of seven tons strain. The result was that the chain showed but slight evidence of the great pressure. It was then run up to the breaking strain, which is forty per cent greater, and still no further effect was produced. At another test the chain broke on the side with a strain of 15¾ tons. A five-eighths ordinary chain was again produced, and was snapped at the end with a strain of 9¾ tons. A one inch ordinary chain was then tested, and stood the severe strain of 29 tons before it showed any signs of separation. The chain of the American Company, however, stood a far greater test, a pressure of 42 tons—16 4-5 tons more than the Admiralty—being used before a break occurred on the side. The concluding test was the weight of 15 fathoms of one inch ordinary and the same length of the American Company's chain. The former weighed 958 lb., and the new manufacture 990. The secret of the strength of the new chain lies in the strengthening of the end of the link by taking an equal proportion of thickness from the two straight sides. This, it is claimed, so divides the strength of the link that one portion is no stronger than another, with this difference, that the link does not wear or break easily at the most important part—the end. On the other hand, the ordinary chain is constructed with equal thickness throughout, and it necessarily follows that as the two sides are more powerful than the end, the latter must give way first. The new chain has been tested by the United States Government for the last year in connection with signal buoys, and when taken up recently it was found, says the Public Ledger, in such good condition as to warrant the continuation of it in the same service for another year.

IT is contended by some of the most eminent astronomers of the present day, that there exist in space large masses of matter in a gaseous state, which are non-luminous, and therefore invisible—this matter being necessarily very rare, because there is no solid nucleus to condense it by attraction, and as long, therefore, as a mass of such matter remains by itself it continues, gaseous, non-luminous, and invisible. Just here, however, the fact presents itself that two masses of gas, having a chemical affinity for one another, coalesce under the influence of their mutual gravitations. When this occurs, chemical combination will take place with an evolution of light and heat, and thus a nebula will begin to be formed. But chemical action between the gases will only take place in their bounding surfaces, faces, and the apparent shape of a nebula will not necessarily reveal its shape or extent, but only the form and extent of the bounding surfaces where combination is going on. The product of this combination may be such that it will only exist as gas at high temperatures; when cooled, it may assume the liquid or solid state.

THE imitation of watermarks in paper is now accomplished, according to the Obser Graphitscheski Iskustvo, in the following manner: A plate glass plate, with the edges previously ground, is polished with talc, and the ground edges covered with weak albumen, then coated with collodion; afterward a solution of gelatine, lump sugar, and bichromate is poured on, so as to cover it equally to the thickness of one and a half mills—when dry, it is detached and exposed under a negative in the sun. In the meantime, a polished zinc plate is covered sparingly with a solution of gelatine in acetic acid containing a grain or two of chrome alum, and, after being well dried, is washed in hot water and allowed to drain. The exposed gelatine is then taken and dipped into alcohol, and, while wet, is squeezed on to the moist surface of the zinc plate; in a quarter of an hour it is ready to develop and harden, the same as for pigment work. On the relief becoming thoroughly dry, it is only necessary to lay a sheet of fine paper over it, and pass it through a rolling press, to obtain a fac-simile of of the negative, exact in every respect.

AN arrangement has been devised for propelling fluids through tubes, and also for utilizing the motive force of fluids flowing through tubes. A wheel having diagonal blades is mounted upon a shaft journal in a cylindrical casing, this shaft being supported by a hollow cylinder, which covers the sides of the wheel, leaving only the blades exposed. The inner cylinder has conical ends and is conneted with the outer cylinder by hollow arms, through which passes a belt that drives the wheel when the apparatus is used as a fluid propeller. When the machine is used as a motor, the belt receives its power from the pulley on the wheel shaft. In practice the main casing is connected with the pipes through which the fluid to be moved, or through which water flows if used as a motor.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physicians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Watertown, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough—and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 209 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

"New Tune to an Old Song."

MR. EDITOR,—We are of an opinion that the long and short metres of an age gone by may now be dispensed with, and that the modern reforms of the present should be chanted in a red-hot metre. For the last thirty years the public schools of New England have been, in a large degree, run upon the graded system, that is, under the supervision of a board of school examiners, each member laboring with a morbid desire to advance his own particular view of school discipline, unmindful of the bodily health or mental capacity of the child, or the scholar's natural taste or desire to select from the numerous branches taught in our schools one or more studies in which he in all probability might excel, should he be allowed to follow his own inclination. "If a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," then certainly a thorough practical knowledge of one thing is vastly of more consequence than a thimbleful knowledge of everything; the former may be a benefit on the journey of life, while the latter is merely a coat of varnish on the surface of society, a mere superfluous flow of small talk, making the possessor like a "dandy jack at all trades and good at none."

Thus no board of school examiners should have authority to force upon the scholar a course of study which to him is naturally repugnant and distasteful. For instance, what use is the study of Grammar to a boy or girl who analyzes a page of exercises with a most wonderful perfection, and the instant school hours are over calls out to a companion, "Be you a-goin' skating to-night?" or "that's me that left them books there;" or some like expression. Surely none practically. Of what use then is mental discipline?

There is not a profession in the land but what has its own individual examples, where our learned minds—or at least we call them so—have ruined their bodily health by a too close application to study, a determination to gain knowledge at all hazards. The bodily ailments of this class of citizens generally prevent their taking an active part in life; thus their vast storehouse of knowledge is no reward to themselves, or benefit practically to their fellow men. The whole political arena of our common country is fraught with "medicine takers," the lame, the blind, and the halt of all trades and professions, who urge their inability to bodily labor as an excuse for government patronage. Probably there are but few American mothers in the land who have not been called to mourn the untimely decease of a darling rosebud daughter, who was endowed with an understanding far beyond her years. No doubt in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the quickening intellect of these children had been forced or allowed full sway, to gratify the pride and worldly vanity of its parents; thus its frail body was unable to support the mental activity of the brain, and death won the victory, while with our own hearts dissolved in tears, with folded hands we exclaim, "What a Providence!" when, my dear friends, Providence has nothing to do with it. The child is murdered, literally murdered, by its dearest friends. It is for humanity to understand that the intellectual faculties of our children may be cultivated, but never enforced; and no doubt many of these children, if their minds had been kept in restraint, and they never had seen the inside of a school room till their little bodies were capable to sustain this wear and tear of the brain, would have grown to maturity, and become what the Almighty intended they should become—not mere butterflies of fashion, but literally and practically a helpmeet for man.

In this beautiful world of ours there are many public philanthropists who are insane upon the deterioration of the human race; and oh, ye dearly beloved mothers, do you not realize there may be a method in their madness? Our improved modern school system draws an intellectual straight jacket over a naturally free, buoyant nature. It declines to recognize the wisdom of Solomon, and to allow a child to think like a child, to speak like a child, and to act like a child; then growing bolder it even undertakes to remodel the handiwork of the Almighty, and to give to our children heads bigger than their bodies. The school children pass life under a hail storm of blanks, and study, sleep, eat and dream with the fear of the examiner before their face. The result is that school supervision and examination are in a fair way to become a public nuisance. If nobody is to be saved, except by such accurate knowledge, we may as well take each other's hands in mute despair, and go down to everlasting stupidity together.

We have received the February number of "Our Little Ones," and it is a perfect gem. The illustrations are "as good as they make 'em," while the reading matter is every way calculated to interest and instruct "our little ones." Published by the Russell Publishing Co., at $1.50 per year.

SALEM ITEMS.—The third Essex Institute free lecture course will consist of a series of four lectures by Prof. I. J. Osbun, of the State Normal School, on "The Chemistry of Common Things." They will be given on successive Wednesday afternoons at 4.15. The first on Feb. 9th, "A Lump of Sugar;" Feb. 16th, "A Pound of Sugar;" Feb. 23d, "A Loaf of Bread;" March 2d, "A Cup of Tea."

Hose 2 held another of their social assemblies on Thursday evening last: A large number were present, and all enjoyed themselves. During the evening a fine cornet solo by Mr. Faxon, of the Salem Band, was carried by telephone to Hose 6, and listened to by the members of that company. Hose Two's next assembly will be a Coffee Party, and occurs on the evening of Feb. 3d.

The School Committee have abolished the office of Superintendent of Schools.

Haverly's genuine Colored Minstrels —50 performers—at Mechanic Hall this evening; and "Tourists in a Pullman Palace Car" to-morrow evening.

About 1400 persons are employed in the mills of the Naumkeag Company.

The Grand Army hold a masquerade ball in Central Hall, on Thursday evening, Feb. 3d.

Gov. Long spoke before the Salem Fraternity, at the Barton Square Church, on Sunday evening last. Addresses were also made by Rev. Mr. Willson and Gen. Cogswell.

Speaking of the city, county, State park and charity taxes paid by the people of New York, the Herald says:

Thirty-one million dollars is the sum it will cost the people of this city for the year to come to indulge themselves in the various delights and satisfactions that are supposed to be inseparable from urban life in our times. Thirty-one million dollars for the municipal budget of a city of only 1,200,000 people. Accepting the numbers at which the census-takers put our population this makes the government of the city cost every individual inhabitant $25. For every head in the city $25 must be raised to cover the expenses of the various departments, provide for the city's proportion of the State expenses, and pay the interest on the city's debt. Every man who has a wife and four children contributes $140 of this gross amount, and though he does not pay it directly he may be sure that he pays it one way or another. It may be wrapped up in his house rent, or hidden in the increased price of his groceries, but it is there, and he cannot get away from it.

CHURCH PROPERTY.—Already church property in a single corporation in one of our cities amount to more millions than J. J. Astor had accumulated when his wealth was regarded as fabulous. Hundreds of millions throughout the land are being piled up, Pelion upon Ossa, until the amount of property exempted by law from taxation has become sufficient, were it to bear its proportion of taxation, to reduce the taxes of the people nearly one-half, says the Winsted Press.

The defeated candidate is like the old bachelor, who says he once fell in love with a beautiful young lady, but abandoned all idea of marrying her when he found that she and all her folks were opposed to the match.

DOCTORS' LATIN.—An effort is being made to induce doctors to stop writing their prescriptions in Latin and use United States language. So many inoffensive sick people have been killed by druggists putting up lobelia and other dangerous drugs in place of some mild and gentle purgative, which the system requires, on a Latin prescription of an M.D. physician, that a society at the East threatens to take the law into their own hands and put a stop to it. As a usual thing the physician who graduates with high honors at some high-toned morgue, does not know any more about the common English branches than is good for him, and his handwriting is the merest goose tracks—a sort of delirium tremens on paper.—Now, when you come to put such writing as that into Latin, to be read by a sleepy prescription clerk, who has been routed out of bed at midnight in his shirt sleeves, there can only be one result. The patient will be worse next day. A sleepy drug clerk is only human; and when he strikes one of those ingredients in the prescription where it tells him to put up three saw-teeth of podophyllum, and the word looks more like pennyroyal than it does like podophyllum, and more like peppermint than either one of them, he is liable to trust a good deal to luck and put in that which is the least injurious. No drug clerk cares to loose a good position by not being able to read a stroke of lightning; and the result is he puts up something, and then charges enough more to make up for what he doesn't know. There are fifty millions of people in this country, whose lives, to a greater or less extent, rest on prescription clerks; and the eastern society who have flung their banner to the breeze and sounded the death of the dead languages, will be embalmed in the hearts of a grateful posterity. They are doing a noble work. Dead languages are well enough for dead people; but they are eminently out of place in this age of animated things. Of course the lopping off of the excrescence will bring doctors down to a level with ordinary mortals, and they will have to take their chances.—Peck's Sun.

Blaine has the portfolio of the Department of State lying in his drawer. He may keep it, or he may reject it, according to circumstances. His inclination is to retain the empty title. He is a politician by nature, by taste, and by experience. He recognizes the services of the Grant men, and he would pay them good wages for all the work they did in the Presidential campaign. But he proposes to be the boss of the new Administration, or to have no connection with it. If he takes office it will be with the expectation that Garfield is to be a candidate for the succession. His policy will be shaped on that main idea, which necessarily involves stern opposition to the third-termers in 1884. He stands aside voluntarily, with the unconcealed intention of making the fight for Garfield against all comers, but particularly against Grant and Conkling.—N. Y. Sun.

Every night the streets of Paris are swept, but not until they have first yielded a harvest to the army of collectors, whom nothing escapes, be it leaves from the tree for compost, stray pins to be stuck on papers and sold to the poor, cigar stubs to be chopped up for smoking tobacco, bread crusts to be dried and ground for cooking purposes, hair combings to be assorted at the hairdressers', while bones, rags, old tin and iron, paper and cinders, all go into the bag. Many of the collectors manage to derive such profits from their labor that not unfrequently the ragpicker's daughter receives a dot that makes her husband's eyes twinkle.

SALEM ITEMS.—On Saturday morning last a disastrous fire broke out in the workshop of W. C. Packard & Co.'s furniture establishment, corner of Essex and Crombie streets. An alarm was given at about 7.30, the firemen arriving soon after, and although the wind blew strongly, succeeded in confining the flames to Messrs. Packard & Co.'s, and the rear of the adjoining building, owned by Gifford Bros., and occupied on the lower floor by Benj. Price's dry goods store. Packard & Co.'s building and stock were insured; also the Gifford block. Mr. Price's damage is principally by water. Mr. Fuller, the crockery man, situated one door further east, also sustaining a loss by the flooding of his cellar.

The Normal School Reunion occurred on Tuesday evening of last week. A dramatic entertainment occupied the earlier portion of the evening, after which there was dancing.

The grand spectacular play, "80 Days Around the World," taken from Jules Verne's story of the same, will be presented at Mechanic Hall this evening.

The Salem Light Infantry hold their next sociable on Tuesday evening next.

An epitaph taken from a gravestone not a thousand miles from Salem:

"Gone before us, O our father,
To the spirit land!
Vainly look we for another,
In thy place to stand."

The opening of Mr. Frank Cousins' sale of the stock of W. C. C. Moulton, yesterday, was begun with a rush and crowded store, which have continued ever since. A large number of ladies from Peabody were present, and can testify to the bargains offered. There are lots and lots of articles which are always in use, but which our space will not allow us to enumerate, and our readers must visit the store themselves. Those who attend now get the first choice.

At the annual meeting of the Salem and South Danvers Oil Company, Mr. Wm. H. Little, of Peabody, was elected President.

Taylor & Preston offer the latest features in photographs. They must be seen to be appreciated. Visit their popular rooms, No. 188 Essex street, over Almy, Bigelow & Webber's.

Foster, at the Philadelphia candy store, No. 244 Essex street, presents to his customers a set of advertising cards.

The Essex Institute will leave Salem on its trip to Washington, on Friday, Feb. 11, arriving in Washington on the following Saturday afternoon. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be passed in Washington, and the party will leave on the return on Thursday morning. A choice of two routes is offered, either by the Norwich line or New York and New England, all-rail route. Mr. J. A. Whitcomb has charge of the party.

Our readers will notice by our advertising column the announcement of Messrs. Donnell & Schollar, that they are prepared to meet the wants of all who wish to purchase goods in their line at wholesale and retail. Mr. Donnell is known to our townsmen, and we congratulate him and our citizens in securing so valuable a business partner and fellow townsman, as they do in H. M. Schollar, Esq., of Wisconsin. In addition to the above, Messrs. Donnell & Shollar, and John M. Bradford, from the Peabody Produce Company, will conduct the wholesale produce business at the same place. Mr. J. M. Bradford, being a native of Vermont, will prove a valuable partner in the produce department. We wish them success.

WINNING HIM BACK.—One of the travellers for a New York dry goods house recently arrived in a town in the interior of the State, to find that one of his best customers was about to transfer his custom to a Boston house.

'Didn't we always do well by you?' asked the New Yorker, as he sat down for an explanation.

'Yes, I believe so.'

'Didn't we ship goods promptly?'

'Yes.'

'And did we ever press you in a pinch?'

'No.'

'Did you get lower prices of the Boston house?'

'No, I can't say I did.'

'We can't understand why you should leave our house all of a sudden, after buying of us for several years.'

'I know that some explanation is ned, and I will make one,' replied the merchant. 'You know that I attend church?'

'Yes, and so do I.'

'Do you? I didn't know that. I am looked upon as a Christian.'

'So am I. I've got the date of my baptism right here in my note book!"

'Is that so? Well, our church is in need of repairs. We were talking it over the other day when the Boston drummer was in here, and he at once subscribed $10.'

'Ten dollars! Why, that's only two kegs of nails! Put me down for $30 cash, a new silk hat for every season, and a full suit of clothes for the minister.'

'Do you mean it?'

'Of course I do, and if that two-cent Christian from Boston dares give another $5, I'll send you down a $600 church organ and pay a man $500 a year to play it. We are a house which never makes any great display of Gospel hymns and religious tracts, but when a Boston drummer bluffs, we show our religious hand and rake in the pot every time.'

The merchant will continue to deal with the New York house.—Wall Street News.

A boy about fourteen years of age was smoking a cigar on the south portico of the City Hall the other morning, when a citizen halted before him and said:

'Boy, do you realize what you are doing?'

'Smoking a powerful good five-center, won on a bet,' was the reply.

'But don't you know you are filling your system with poison?'

'Naw.'

'Well, you are. That cigar contains enough nicotine to kill a cat.'

'I'm no cat.'

'I know. It does not kill you suddenly, but poisons the blood and sows the seed of fell disease. You may drop dead on your way home.'

'I ain't goin' home.'

'It fills me with horror to see a lad of your age destroying both soul and body. Boy, I entreat you to throw away that vile cigar.'

'I dasn't. Some one else would pick it up and be pizened.'

'Throw it away and I'll buy you three apples.'

'Don't like 'em.'

'Or a quart of peanuts.'

'Sey,' said the boy, as he fondly regarded the inch of ashes at the end of the cigar, 'I bet a boy the cigars this morning that he couldn't tech his tongue to a lamp-post and then sing 'Sally Waters.' He teched, and there's a crowd up there now trying to thaw him loose. I ain't very scart about bein' pizened, and I don't keer much for fatherly advice, but if you've got any spare time you might go up there and tell that 'ere boy that a chunk of natural philosophy is worth a whole barnful of experiments.'

Awhile ago, Col. Ingersoll (Bob) was speaking on politics out west, and, being obliged to stop in town the next day, which was Sunday, attended a prayer meeting. A deacon who didn't know the colonel, except as a political speaker, invited him to address the meeting, and the next day the parish met and elected a new deacon.

Out of every 1000 women who ride on street cars, only twelve will move along to offer another woman a chance to sit down. Nine hundred and ninety-eight of them argue that it is a man's duty to stand up, even if there is plenty of room; and the other two are supremely indifferent.

THE COST OF A MAN'S DRESS.—"What does it cost to dress a man in the height of fashion?" a Sun reporter asked of a Fifth-avenue tailor. "About $700 a year," was the reply. "But if a man is to indulge in $300 fur coats and a variety of fine silk neckties and an assortment of fancy pantaloons, his bills will run up much higher. Notwithstanding all that is said about the extravagance of women's dress, it costs quite as much to furnish stylish clothes to men as to women. The reason is that a man cannot have his clothes made over as a woman can. If his clothes get out of fashion they are useless to him. But the clothing of women can be made over to new fashions year after year. Their laces and ribbons, feathers and trimmings of all kinds, reappear constantly in new forms. If a woman has a splendid wedding dress, for instance, she keeps it for years and wears it on state occasions. But a man's wedding suit must be worn out before it goes out of fashion. Among the poorer classes the women always dress better than the men in the same station in life. They will seize upon a fashionable style and make up old materials in the new shapes with marvelous aptitude. Men do nothing of the kind, and that is the reason why, as a rule, they do not follow the fashions as scrupulously as women."

A SPECTRE LIGHT. — One of the most singular events that ever arose in the experience of railroad men came across the engineer, fireman, and brakeman on the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific express which left Davenport for Council Bluffs on the evening of Thursday, the 30th ult.

The train pulled out of this city, James Raynor, conductor, at 7.10 o'clock. The weather was bitter cold that night, it will be remembered, the mercury falling to 15 degrees below zero. Nothing unusual happened until after the train had gone from Marengo at 11 o'clock, and about three miles west of that town, the engineer, J. R. Wilkinson, saw in the distance ahead a locomotive headlight, and he says to his fireman, David Myers, "Dave, what on earth is that train on the track on our time for?" Dave looked ahead, and there was the headlight sure enough, and Wilkinson immediately closed his throttle, applied the air brakes, and stopped. The brakemen jumped off to ascertain the cause of the halt, and they, too, saw the headlight coming. The engineer and fireman watched the distant glare a moment, and it quivered exactly as a headlight does when viewed at a distance from a fast approaching engine, and the track for a long distance in front of it glistened like silver in its light. The conductor did not get off to see the light, and so missed the sight. But as there was a train ahead, with an apparent right to the track, the express train backed to Marengo in short order. There a telegram was sent to the train despatcher at Des Moines, informing him of the unexpected train, and asking for instructions. His answer was: "No train between Marengo and Brooklyn—go ahead." "But the engineer reports seeing a train!" "Impossible—there is no wild train on that section, and regulars are all right—go ahead, I tell you." And again the train pulled out of Marengo—but the strange headlight was seen no more. To those who beheld it when the train stopped it was as real as any light they ever saw, and all were as certain that there was a locomotive with a train coming toward them as that they lived.

It is now believed that a sort of mirage or reflection of Wilkinson's headlight was produced at the place by some freak of the elements in that clear, cold, frosty air, and that this was what Mr. Wilkinson, Dave Myers, and the brakemen saw. It was real enough to send the train speeding back to Marengo for instruction. Mayhap it was a spectre train, of which there are several in railroad lore.—Davenport Democrat.

WEIGHT BY MEASURING.—The following rule for finding out the weight of an animal by measuring may prove convenient: "See that the animal stands square; then take his circumference behind the shoulder blade—this is the girth. Then measure from the bone of the tail which plumbs the line with the hinder part of the buttock, and direct the string along the back to the fore part of the shoulder-blade; this will be the length. Then work the figures thus: Suppose the girth of bullock 6 feet 4 inches, length 5 feet 3 inches, which multiplied together make 33 square superficial feet; and these multiplied by 23—the number of pounds allowed for each superficial foot of cattle measuring less than seven and more than five feet in girth—make 759 lbs. When the animal measures less than nine and more than seven feet in girth, 31 is the number of pounds to be estimated for each superficial foot. And suppose a small animal to measure 2 feet in girth and 2 feet in length, these multiplied together make 4 feet, which multiplied by 11—the number of pounds allowed for each square foot when cattle measure less than 3 feet in girth—make 44 pounds. Again, suppose a calf or sheep, etc., to measure 4 feet 6 inches in girth, and 3 feet 9 inches in length, that multiplied together makes 16 square feet, and these multiplied by 16—the number of pounds allowed for cattle measuring less than 5 and more than 3 feet in girth—make 256 pounds. The dimensions of cattle, sheep, calves and hogs, taken this way, will give the weight of the four quarters of the animal, sinking the offal. A deduction must be made for animals half fat—of one pound in 20 from those that are fat: and for a cow that has had calves one pound must be allowed, in addition to the one for not being fat, upon every twenty."

MORE TALK THAN WORK.—A silly young woman says in a newspaper: "The man for me to love must be vastly my superior; a man who will compel my spirit to bend to his; who will command my soul to stand still and shine on him, as Joshua commanded the sun: who can trample my will to the dust," etc. The Norristown Herald thinks she will have no difficulty in finding such a one—"one who will not only command her soul to stand still, but who will also command its owner to get up first in the morning to build the fire, split kindling and carry up the coal, and whose language will make her hair stand on end when he comes home and finds a dinner fifteen minutes late. There are lots of men who will bend her spirit for her, and also make her back bend over a washtub while they go down to a saloon and spend what she earns." But the women who talk like this, talk so because they think men like them the better for it. And such women don't bear "commanding" or "compelling" worth a cent, and are the very wives who always send their husband to the tailor to replace a lost button.

The Old Deacon's Lament.

Yes, I've been deacon of our church
Nigh on to fifty year,—
Walked in the way of dooty, too,
And kep' my conscience dear.
I've watched the children growin' up,
Seen brown locks turnin' gray,
But never saw sech doin's yet
As those I've seen to-day.

This church was built by godly men,
To glorify the Lord,
In seventeen hundred eighty-eight,
Folks couldn't then afford
Carpets and cushions and sech like;
The seats were jest plain wood,
Too narrer for the sleepy ones—
In prayer we allus stood.

And when the hymns were given out,
I tell you it was grand
To hear our leader start the tunes,
With tunin'-fork in hand!
Then good old "China," "Mear" and all
Were heard on Sabbath days,
And men and women, boys and girls
J'ined in the song of praise.

But that old pulpit was my pride,—
Jest eight feet from the ground
They reared it up; on either side
A narrer stairs went down;
The front and ends were fitly carved
With Scripter stories all—
Findin' of Moses, Jacob's dream,
And sinful Adam's fall.

Jest room inside to put a cheer,
The Bible on the ledge,
(I'll own I did get nervous when
He shoved it to the edge).
There week by week, the parson stood,
The Scripter to expound;
There, man and boy, I've sot below,
And not a fault was found.

Of course I've seen great changes made,
And fought against 'em, too;
But first a choir was interdooced,
Then cushions in each pew;
Next, boughten carpet for the floor;
And then, that very year,
We got our new melodeon
And the big shandyleer.

Well! well! I tried to keep things straight,
I went to ev'ry meetin',
And voted "No" to all they said,
But found my influ'nce fleetin'.
At last the worst misfortune fell—
I must blame Deacon Brown;
He helped the young folks when they said
The pulpit should come down.

They laughed at all those pious scenes
I'd found so edifyin';
Said, "When the parson rose to preach,
He looked a'most like flyin';"
Said that "Elijah's chariot
Jest half-way up had tarried;"
And Deacon Brown sot by and laughed,
And so the p'int was carried.

This was last week. The carpenters
Have nearly made an end—
Excoose my feelin's. Seems to me
As if I'd lost a friend.
"It makes their necks ache lookin' up,"
Was what the folks did say.
More lookin' up would help us all
In this degin'rate day.

The church won't never seem the same
(I'm half afeared) to me,
Under the preachin' of the truth
I've ben so used to be.
And now to see our parson stand,
Like any common man,
With jest a railin' round his desk,
I don't believe I can.

Three St. Valentine's Days; or One and the Same.

BY LYDIA DAVIS THOMSON.

With her face aglow with health, her cheeks kissed into added beauty by the keen, frosty air, her yellow curls here and there escaping from beneath her blue worsted hood, and with her satchel of books carelessly swinging at her side, little Salix Murray, one St. Valentine's morning, was trudging along to school, when she was suddenly overtaken by Edgar Harrington, who quickly placed an open envelope in her hand and then darted on to catch up with some boys lagging in the distance. Salix's curiosity would not let her wait until reaching the schoolroom to learn the contents of the missive and, opening it upon the spot, read, scribbled in school-boy fashion:

MY VALENTINE.

"If you love me as I love you,
No knife can cut our love in two,"

and underneath this an attempt at painting a nosegay of flowers. But Salix was not in the least disconcerted, or thought it strange that she should receive this, for the families of these two children lived on terms of the closest intimacy, and the lad and lass had grown up from their cradles together; but, nevertheless, Salix peered cautiously about her as she tucked her valentine into the depths of her pocket, just as a bevy of schoolmates laughingly overtook her, but who had not, as she feared, seen her movements, but were laughing over their own valentines which they were anxious to show her. But she did not disclose her secret, for something, she could not tell what, prompted her to keep it; besides she possessed a great bump of secretiveness, and, although universally liked, was as often a mystery to her companions as was her name to those who did not understand its meaning. Her father, who had a classical turn of mind, and, moreover, who gave a character of his own to all things, and liked to have all his surroundings in accordance with nature, poetic but not romantic, and, though dignified, was gentle, kind and genial, and excessively fond of his little daughter, when she had gone without a name a year, because her parents could not find one dainty enough for her, owing to her willowy-like form, her slender hands, her flowing hair and graceful ways, had christened her "Salix."

The years sped on and Salix had grown into a tall, slender girl of seventeen; graceful and prepossessing in her girlhood, every day but promised the budding into beautiful womanhood, and now for the first time she was preparing to leave home for long years, to complete her education in a first-class seminary. And Edgar Harrington, just passed his eighteenth year, and whose youth fulfilled the promise of his bright boyhood, was also about leaving home, to enter upon a college course, and imbued with the glowing of hope of some day becoming a distinguished lawyer. The morning before his departure chanced to be St. Valentine's, and as was his custom before going away, be it ever for so short a time, he went on this morning to bid his adieus to the Murrays, and last of all to Salix, whom he found alone, as he had often before, in a quiet little room at the back of the house, whither she went to read, to study or to sew. As they exchanged "Good morning," he again placed an unsealed envelope in her hand, but this time tarried to say something.

"Salix," he began, "I am going away for four long years, but before I go I must tell you of my love—do not tremble, dear one, I am not going to ask for yours; only to add that I have loved you all my life, and I cannot go without telling you this. I hope sometime you will return it, but I am not going to bind you to any promise for my sake; you are young, and perhaps some time in the future you will look more favorably upon another than me—but somehow I wanted you to know what has hitherto been my secret. Think always kindly of me, and may God bless you and keep you from all harm," and, impressing a kiss upon her fair brow, was gone ere she had time to collect her thoughts, or even to say "good-bye;" but instantly, as her scattered thoughts came back, she comforted herself by thinking, in her own peculiar way, "After all it is a good omen, that I did not say good-bye;" then opening her missive, she looked upon the exact counterpart of the one received five years before, but now with what different feelings! Then with a sudden impulse to rush after him, she burst into passionate tears and the words, "He has gone, and without knowing that I love him." Then more calmly added, "But I will keep it. I will be true to him," and, hiding again her valentine in the depths of her pocket, she dried her tears, took up her work, and as before none knew her secret.

Scarce twenty months of happy school-life for Salix had gone by, when she was summoned home on account of her father's sudden illness. Faithfully and lovingly did wife and daughter and kind physician labor to restore the sick man to health; but relentless Death was stronger than love, and in one week from Salix's return home the kind, indulgent husband and father slept in his embrace; and when all was over Salix knew that she could not go back to school, and that henceforth her mission must be daily labor that would bring renumeration—for, owing to financial troubles, she found, after her father's creditors were paid, only the old homestead remained to his widow and child. For two years, by gathering about her now and then a few private scholars, and occasionally teaching music, or with her mother's assistance with the needle, Salix managed to gain their subsistance and other daily needs; then worn down by grief and anxiety, rather than age, her mother slowly drooped and died, and Salix was left alone.

Then the old homestead fell into other hands, for Salix could not keep it, and she silently "took up her burden of life again" in a quiet little village, miles away from her childhood's home, as the village school-teacher. Here for ten years she lived, a quiet, active life, beloved by all who knew her. Aside from her school duties, she was a faithful worker in the little church with which she had become connected; an earnest laborer for the good of humanity, many a needy one said a prayer for her as they called her "an angel of mercy;" social and genial among her friends and acquaintances, as we have said, she was a universal favorite, and it sometimes seemed to her that she had grown up with the people here, especially among her school; those who were her oldest pupils once had gone out from her discipline and influence—some to homes and occupations of their own, and some to the untried scenes of the Unknown Land, while others had taken their places and younger ones filled up the otherwise missing ranks. Yet she loved them all, and day after day found her cheerfully going on her allotted way. To all suitors for her heart and hand,—for these she had had,—she gave the same answer, while she remained true to her early love; and if sometimes a shade of sadness would cloud her thoughtful brow, as she questioned whether she were remembered or forgotten, who shall chide her, when she would as often cheerfully dispel the gloom by softly saying to herself, "It is best; it is a pleasant dream to lighten my way—a green valley in my oasis of life.

'Twere better to have loved and lost,
Than never to have loved at all.'"

One day in early summer, when the air was heavy with the perfume of rose and honeysuckle, and all nature was in harmony with itself, Salix slowly walked home from school, and up the grass-bordered path that led to her retired boarding-place, heated and flushed and half alarmed at the languor which seemed to overpower her. An hour later as she sat at the tea-table idly toying with her spoon, Mrs. Wilmot, her mistress and friend—for these two lonely women had become warm and faithful friends in the years since Salix had become an inmate of her home—observed that her food remained untasted, and remarked:

"You are not well, Salix?"

"Only tired," cheerfully replied Salix, "a night's rest will make me right in the morning."

But the morning found her unable to rise from her couch, and the result of her weariness was a slow fever. Her friend immediately dispatched a servant for the family physician, who, owing to illness himself, was unable to answer the summons, and recommended a brother physician from the neighboring city. A little later when the servant introduced Dr. Barrington to Mrs. Wilmot, her heart gave a little flutter of anxiety lest he should not understand and treat his patient right; but his kindly voice dispelled all doubt as she led the way to the sick room. Dr. Barrington was a heavily-bearded, broad-shouldered, genial man, and always self reliant; but as he looked upon his patient for a moment his self-possession fled, and for the first time in all his practice, he for an instant forgot his calling, and as Salix slowly opened her eyes and looked into his, almost instinctively and silently there sprang up a swift bond of sympathy between these two, and each was interested in the other. Mrs. Wilmot grew to like his coming almost as much as did Salix, who was a willing patient and needed not to be told twice to do the Doctor's bidding, and, in this favorable atmosphere, soon became convalescent. But the Doctor still prolonged his visits, and one day, after stopping longer than usual, and Salix had watched him as he left the house, down the path and out of sight, she covered her face with her hands and burst into a passionate flood of tears and these words: "Why is it? What is it? I believe I am growing imbecile or demented. I am happy and unhappy. What is this subtle influence that draws me to him; that he brings with him and leaves behind? I like him—I can't help it. Oh, Edgar, I will help it. I will be true to you. I will go to my school again and forget that I ever left it."

When the Doctor came next time she told him of her decision, and that she was now well enough to take up her duties again, but he quietly replied:

"Not hardly strong enough yet; nor must you think of work for weeks to come. No; you must rest through the warm season, and, by way of commencing this recreation, I have proposed to invite you to a morning ride with me."

Why did she yield to his influence, only her own heart echoed the truth, while it still kept on repeating her oft made vow. And when the ride was over, again she chided herself for her unfaithfulness, saying over and over, "I will help it. I will be loyal to you, dear Ned, though I never look upon your face again; but why is it that he so often reminds me of you? It is not in form or feature; it may be the voice. What after all if he should turn out like a novel hero, and I should find that his name is Harrington—it is an easy for people to make mistakes; but, preposterous idea! Why am I so foolish! He is not you. You are miles away from here if living, and somewhere a 'distinguished lawyer.' Oh! I must go away, too. I cannot stay; when shall I be forever at rest? Sooner or later, why not now?"

One morning soon after, when the doctor had just left her, and she was sad and serious from overthinking, Mrs. Wilmot entered her room, and after a few moments of pleasant conversation casually remarked:

"So the Doctor is to take a vacation?"

"The Doctor! When? Where is he going?" somewhat confused and surprised, queried Salix.

"As if you do not know?" jocosely replied her friend.

"It is news to me," quietly now said Salix, as her heart almost stood still in its beating.

"Indeed—I supposed he had told you," seriously, then answered Mrs. Wilmot. "Well, I will not keep you in suspense; he is not going far; he has engaged board with me for a few months. I like the Doctor much, and, if I am not mistaken, some one else," she added, mischievously glancing at her friend; but Salix kept her countenance well, as she merely answered: "He is indeed a very agreeable and pleasant personage," but when Mrs. Wilmot had left her, she silently added, "and I must go away." But she did not go, and through all the glowing summer days the Doctor and Salix rode, sailed and picnicked together; and on rainy days read poetry to each other, when not engaged in a game of chess; or Salix played for him while he turned the leaves of her music, and mingled his rich bass voice with her clear soprano. And so the days drifted idly on, but as yet no word of love had been exchanged between these two,—and Salix? Was she happy? Who shall say she was not? And the doctor at times seemed supremely so; at other, grave and taciturn; and then Salix could not understand him, and would as often fall to self-chidings and her own silent musings again. Strange to say, too, that during all these days neither had learned the other's given name; he could not ask hers, nor did he know why; and she always called him "Doctor"—more than this there seemed to be a silent, mutual consent between them never to allude to the past of either; but once, and for the first time, he unexpectedly heard Mrs. Wilmot call her Salix, and again his self-possession left him, but instantly recollecting himself, he smiled quietly as he commented: "I thought so then, I am certain now; but to make assurance doubly sure I will bide my time;" then, swiftly changing thought, added: "How absurd! Why should there not be another by this name? and why should there be?"

An hour later, as they sat alone on the veranda, Dr. Barrington told Salix Murray of his love and asked her to be his wife, and she answered, "Yes," because she loved him: but her tongue clove to the roof of her mouth as she essayed to speak more—to tell all. But, alas! her love for him would not permit her to disclose her long cherished secret, but when he further said: "And, Salix, I would like to be wedded on St. Valentine's morn," she answered, impulsively and pleadingly: "Oh, I cannot; spare me this; Doctor, I cannot!"

"And why not? What objections can you possibly have, my darling? And can't you consent, to please me?" calmly but earnestly asked the Doctor; then, a little abstractedly, adding: "It is only a little fancy of mine, after all; still, I would like to have it so."

"I have none—my objections are only evanescent, like your fancy," smilingly answered Salix; but mentally saying: "You were right, Edgar, to bind me to no promise," and, with this, deemed she had broken the last link that had bound her to the past.

The weeks went by on golden wings, and brought again St. Valentine's eve, which was also Salix's wedding eve. She entered her room and opened her writing desk, preparatory to writing some letters, when, on looking among her papers, her gaze fell on her first valentine; but scarcely had she read again, when she heard the Doctor's step below, and could not resist the influence that ever drew her to him, and with the envelope still in her hand, went down to the parlor; but on entering suddenly remembered it and hid it away as once before, in the depths of her pocket. An hour later, when she had bid the Doctor "good night," and left him until morning, he stooped and picked up a piece of paper which fluttered at his feet, and as he glanced at the envelope and its address, he smiled complacently, and said softly to himself: "Now I am both sure and satisfied; in the morning Salix shall know all."

Meanwhile Salix had re-entered her room, closed her desk, and said: "Oh, I cannot write! I believe I am stifling!" and laying her hand over her heart to still its beating, she almost wildly cried again—"I cannot, cannot marry him. I will be true. I will tell him all in the morning, though the telling break my heart. But oh, I can't do this; it will break his heart, too—and, I love him—what shall I do?" And with a prayer to Heaven for help, she sought her couch, but only to fitful slumbers.

St. Valentine's day dawned clear and bright, and just as Salix was entering the breakfast room, the door bell sounded, and the postman left an elegant valentine for Salix, and a letter addressed, in an unknown hand, to her, but mailed only from the nearest adjoining town. With the first glance at its contents every vestige of color left her face, but there was no other outward sign to betray her agitation as she read:

"If you love me as I love you,
No knife can cut our love in two.

I will be with you in two hours from this. EDGAR HARRINGTON."

"At last—too late. In two hours I shall be his wife," she slowly said, and, leaving her breakfast untasted, went to her room to grow calm again before dressing for her wedding. And as she abstractedly went on with her toilet, her mind kept on its repeating, "I will tell him all; I will tell him all;" then she was suddenly awakened to life as she heard the old eight day clock in the hall strike out the hour of ten, and alarmed at the Doctor's absence, exclaimed aloud:

"Where can he be? Why doesn't he come? In an hour it will be too late."

Slowly and wearily fifteen minutes more went by, and still he had not come, and between anxiety, fear and love, Salix was almost distracted as she paced up and down the room, repeating, "why doesn't he come?" A moment more of suspense and Edgar Harrington sent up his card; and Salix went almost involuntarily to get her first valentine, saying, "I will show him that I meant to be true," but lo, it was gone! Time delays not for any, and Salix schooled herself to calmly meet her visitor; but what was her surprise to find only the Doctor waiting her coming, and tremblingly and hurriedly said:

"Doctor? Is it you? I thought—"

"And who else should it be?" he good-humoredly interrupted. Then a curious smile flitted over his face, which Salix instantly observed, and as quickly and excitedly said:

"Doctor! Edgar! Is it you? Are you one and the same?"

"Yes, darling, 'one and the same,' always and ever," replied the Doctor.

"And you have found me false!" she slowly answered, and as slowly withdrew her hand from his and turned away.

"Not so, my darling, since I have seen your fidelity to me all along."

"All along?" she dreamily echoed; "then you have known me all the time. What can you think of me?"

"Only that I love you. Listen, Salix, as I believe in the old adage that 'blood will tell,' so I believe that love will find its own. When first I visited you as my patient, only my strong love prompted me to know you, but yet I thought even then, it might be a passing fancy; and once again, when I heard your name, I thought I knew, but when you objected to St. Valentine's day for our wedding, I asked no more; and last night I was satisfied when I saw this," producing the missing valentine.

"Where did you get this?" she asked, hurriedly taking it, and, from long custom, essaying to conceal it.

"I picked it up where you had dropped it," he quietly answered.

"Doctor—dear Edgar—I had meant to tell you all this morning, but there is nothing left to tell, only my faithlessness."

"Darling, drive this phantom forever away, and forgive my little ruse; for well might you deem yourself the wronged instead of the transgressor. I bound you to no promise, nor did I know that you loved me until you consented to become my wife."

"I believe I have been true," now said Salix, shyly and demurely, "since I have loved only one and the same, and this love would not let us part; but once, and once only, did I fancy that you might be 'Edgar,' but this was rudely broken when I remembered that you were Dr. Barrington and not Lawyer Harrington."

"This," he laughingly answered, "has been my only real hope of keeping my identity from you until now, when I found that the lad who first introduced to me Mrs. Wilmot, had made a mistake by one letter of my name, I was inclined to let it go so, and afterwards was glad to; and, for reasons which I will explain by and by, on entering college I changed my plans and became a physician. But the guests will soon be here; so run away, my love, and prepare to do your part in entertaining them," he added, placing a kiss upon her fair brow. An hour later, Salix, leaning upon her husband's arm, raised her tear-laughing eyes to his, and said: "The clouds have all dispersed, dear Edgar, and this is my happiest St. Valentine's day."

Miscellaneous.

Every boy and girl, every young man and woman who will can have clean clothes, a clean body, clean face, clean hands and feet, clean teeth and a clean, sweet breath. Now, in your own mind contrast cleanliness with its opposite. If we were only seeking to please the eye, the former is worth all the care necessary to secure it. We go further than this, however. No one can be careless of his person and unclean in his habits without producing or perpetuating like disorders in mind and in all he does. Our bodies are covered with innumerable pores or holes, so small that the naked eye cannot see them, and through these there is, or should be, a constant passage of effete dead matter. In warm weather we are made sensible of the fact by the perspiration which stands upon our faces and hands or saturates our clothes. This effort of the system to cleanse itself inside is constant, whether we know it or not. Suppose, now, that you neglect to keep your body clean outside; these little holes are stopped, the dead matter which should come out is kept in, the blood becomes impure, the brain wearies or gets lazy, we are lazy all over; then we get slack and careless; we do not like to study or think, even of nice things, and so we are injured all through if we do keep the surface of the body clear. Of course, while we are at work or play we get our clothes, face and hands soiled and sometimes our whole bodies are covered with dust and perspiration, then what a luxury it is to bathe! It is not bad that we sometimes get dirt on us while doing our duty, but it is bad to be careless and let it remain there.

Book Notices.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.—The February Number of this favorite periodical is even more than usually interesting. The leading article, "Sport and Sports in America, by Oliver Johnson, has ten excellent illustrations of Winter outdoor sports. Another admirable article also fully illustrated, is entitled "London Hospitals and Scenes in them," by Janet E. R. Rees. "Madagascar," by Alvan S. Southworth, "A Hunting Party in Florida," "Moliere and his World," by H. Barton Baker, "The First Voyage Around the World," and "A Shadow," by William Ackroyd, etc., are full of interest and information. The serial, "The Amber Witch," is continued, and there are numerous short stories and sketches by popular writers of great merit. Among the many excellent poems, "Angel Visits," by Chas. Mackay, and "A Baby Song," by C. A. Burke, are especially good. The miscellany, of which there is an abundance, embraces a variety of subjects, and affords a vast source of entertainment and instruction. Each number of the magazine contains 128 quarto pages and over 100 embellishments, with a handsome colored frontispiece; the subject in this number is "The Sick Child," from a painting by Trayer. Single copies are sold at 25 cents each; the subscription for a year, $3; or $1.50 for six, and $1 for four months, postfree. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

BALLOU'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—There is an article in the February number of Ballou's Monthly Magazine that will attract attention. It is about Greece, and is finely illustrated with views of some of the most noted cities of the kingdom. The thrilling Indian story of "The Crimson Trail" is continued, and grows in interest. The February number will be found of unusual interest, and is now before its readers for perusal. It is the most useful present that can be made to a lady friend, or any one who likes reading. The price per year or number is so low that all can afford it.

Now is the time to subscribe for this popular and cheap magazine. Published by Thomes & Talbot, 23 Hawley street, Boston, Mass., at only $1.50 per annum. For sale at the Peabody News Company at 15 cents a copy.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for February is the literary phenomenon of the month. First we have an earnest and patriotic article by General Grant, advocating the Nicaragua Canal project. The genial Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, Oliver Wendell Holmes, follows with an essay entitled "The Pulpit and the Pew," written in the best spirit of the Christian philosopher, in which he endeavors to show the need that he believes to exist for a revision of the prevalent theological creeds. Under the quaint title of "Aaron's Rod in Politics," Judge A. W. Tourgee emphasizes the obligation, imposed upon the Republican party by the Chicago platform, of making provision for educating illiterate voters.—James Freeman Clarke makes a valuable contribution to the discussion of the authorship of Shakespeare's plays. The grave evils that may result from the partisan character of the United States Supreme Court are pointed out by Senator John T. Morgan. The sixth of Mr. Charnay's papers on the "Ruins of Central America" is devoted to a description of the Pyramids of Comalcalco, which must rank among the most stupendous monuments ever erected by man. Finally, Walt Whitman writes of "The Poetry of the Future." The Review is sold by booksellers generally.

The Boston Traveller as a newspaper, is just what the word originally signified. It travels all over the globe, by steam, telegraph, telephone, and whatever other appliances that have been invented for finding out what is going on at home and abroad, and brings it to us each evening fresh and hot. Its editorial and reportorial corps are not surpassed, and live, incisive, reliable and well-written articles on all the going subjects of the day, are always to be found in its columns. It is both conservative and reformatory, without being inconsistent, and with all its new and original features, it is as readable and trustworthy as any daily published.

We have received from Spear & Dehnhoff, Music Publishers, at No. 717 Broadway, their latest in the shape of sheet music, entitled "When the Dewdrops Brightly Glisten." Words by Mrs. A. Elmore, with music by Jos. P. Shelley. This firm are publishing some of the latest and most popular songs of the day. They are young men and know their "biz." Send for catalogue, 717 Broadway, N. Y.

The New York Sun "shines for all," goes for the right every time, without fear nor favor, gives its news boiled down so that but little time is wasted in hunting it up, and even he that runs may find time to post up on all the important and leading events of the times.

THE MIDWINTER (February) SCRIBNER has always been a special number, as rich as the choicest literary matter and the most beautiful wood engravings can make it. Of last year's midwinter number the London Times said: "It is a really magnificent triumph of American pictorial art and literary genius." The English publisher of Scribner has telegraphed for 17,000 copies of the present number,—an advance of 6000 upon his orders last year, and the largest edition of an American magazine ever sent to England;—in fact, it is said to be larger than the monthly sales of any English magazine. The American edition of Scribner has grown during 1880 about 20,000 copies.

A delightful feature of the magazine this year is a series of sparkling novelettes, or condensed novels, instead of a serial story. "A Fair Barbarian," the story of a piquant American girl in England, by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, begins in this February number with a twenty-two page installment, and will run through three issues. Since the death of George Eliot it may be said that Mrs. Burnett commands a larger English speaking audience than any other woman. Her novelette will be followed by one by Geo. W. Cable, author of "The Grandissimes," etc., and afterward Boyesen's "Queen Titania" will be published. "Peter the Great," Eugene Schuyler's historical work, begun in February, 1880, will be finished in October of this year. By means of the recently published special offers of Scribner, the whole of this great work, with its wealth of illustrations, can be had at a very low price, in connection with a year's subscription. All booksellers can give the terms.

In the same ratio that Scribner's Monthly is prospering, St. Nicholas, the famous magazine for girls and boys, issued by the same publishers, grows apace. About 100,000 copies of the Christmas (December) number were sold, while the January number has been for some time out of print. In February, there is a full account of the Obelisk, richly illustrated from sketches and photographs, showing the great monolith in all stages of moving.

The Midwinter Scribner will be ready January 20th, and St. Nicholas five days later.

Miscellaneous.

We have approached the second month of the new year, the ominous 1881, that reads forwards and backwards the same, and towards which all the astrologers, oracles, wizards and old women, not to mention scientific men, from Mother Shipton to Prof. Piazzi Smyth, have aimed all their evil prophesies, and so one chance in twelve is to be eliminated from the calculations of these worthies that we shall all go to the dogs within the year. It is one of those queer coincidences that seem almost to be governed by special law that several entirely independent predictions, based on the most various and incongruous data, should all agree in making the present the most unlucky year of our era. The prophesy of Mother Shipton, made about three hundred years ago, that "the world to an end shall come in 1881," has had an interest for more people for the past few years than would care to acknowledge it, from the fact that several other predictions made in the same connection in relation to material, social and civil affairs have been supposed to have had an exact fulfillment, as in the case of Lord Beaconsfield fulfilling her prophesy that a Jew should be accepted by England. And now come men of no less note than Prof. Smyth of Scotland, and Prof. Wilson and Dr. Everett W. Fish, of our own country, with elaborate works on the Great Pyramid, which they find was built by a masonic fraternity, under divine inspiration, as a basis of geometrical and astronomical truth, of weights and measures, of important scientific developments, and also a record of great epochs of the world and predictions of great events to come to the end of time, which end is in 1881, so that the Great Pyramid has the honor of agreeing with Mother Shipton. Then the great planets have all joined the conspiracy against poor earth, and must need come to their perihelia this year, which, if they behave as they did when they got together a few centuries ago, will bring earthquakes, hurricanes, floods, plagues, and all imaginable evils, and sensible astronomers are found who encourage this superstition among timid people. There is no evidence that the approach of a planet to the sun ever did more than to create a magnetic disturbance, to which our aurora is supposed to respond, and we trust that, even Mother Shipton and the Pyramid thrown in, we may most of us see the end of a year so well begun.—Favorite.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.

Our terms are as follows:

For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,

THE NEW YORK
EVENING POST
FOR 1881.

In Its Eighty first Year.

The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.

1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.

2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good Journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.

3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first-class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.

4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.

5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 2, 1881.

We shall now hear of frost, no doubt, on low ground, and in exposed places.

The Lowell Courier says: "The wicked stand on slippery places; the righteous sand on slippery places."

What with murders, hangings, lynchings, shipwrecks, railroad disaster, life-destroying fires, horrible explosions, and other like occurrences, 1881 starts off in rather a ghastly and ill-omened fashion.

The shipment of apples to Europe this year are unprecedented, the total from the United States and Canada being 976,000 barrels, London and Liverpool alone taking 740,000 barrels.

The recent sale by auction of the pews of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, netted a total of $42,262. The road to Heaven via Plymouth (Beecher's) Church isn't traveled by poor men.

It is stated on good authority that the world will come to an end in 1881. Delinquents (newspaper) should square their accounts before the catastrophe takes place. No newspaper delinquents can enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

The apportionment bill introduced in Congress recently makes gains in Arkansas 1, California, 1, Iowa, 1, Kansas 3, Michigan 1, Minnesota 1, Nebraska 2, South Carolina 1, Texas 3 and West Virginia 1; and losses in Alabama 1, Illinois 1, Indiana 1, Massachusetts 1, New Hampshire 1, New York 3, Ohio 1, Pennsylvania 2, Tennessee 1 and Vermont 1.

Senator Hoar has introduced a bill in the United States Senate, providing handsomely for the retired and retiring Presidents of the United States. This to our mind is "a put up" job to keep Gen. Grant out of the field in 1884. We are in favor of it certainly. After drawing from the Treasury of the United States more than half a million dollars as salary in one position or another, it seems to us that he should stand one side and give us a show.

In the six days' O'Leary pedestrian race, which closed Saturday in New York city, Hughes scored 568 3-8 miles (the best score on record); Albert, 558; Vint, 550; Krohne, 530; Howard, 513; Campana, 425. It is reckoned that, out of the receipts, Hughes will get $3200, besides the $1000 offered by O'Leary for beating Rowell's record; Albert, $2400; Vint, $1200; Krohne, $800; Howard, $400. Hughes received several valuable presents. He has entered for the Astley belt.

The postals laws of the United States relating to third class matter (books, transient newspapers, circulars and other matter wholly in print), allow an inscription to be written on the fly-leaf of a book without subjecting it to letter postage. Some time ago a clerk in the Department gave an interpretation of this law, under which bills, statements of account and other commercial documents, partly in writing but not bearing the signiture of the sender, have been allowed to pass through the mails at third class rates—that is, at one cent for two ounces or less. The Attorney General has overturned this interpretation, and has now decided that all such documents must pay full letter postage. While the decision is, we believe, in strict accordance with the law, it will greatly increase the postage bills of some large mercantile firms.

LEGISLATIVE.—Gen. Cogswell, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, opened fire last Monday, with all his big guns upon the bill adopted, the other day, by the House, upon motion of Mr. Merritt of Springfield, providing compensation for persons wrongfully arrested. He urged as objections to it that often, under such a law, fees would be paid to persons really guilty, and who are acquitted on merely technical grounds, and that, if such persons are to be compensated at all, they should be compensated also, in justice, for their own expense in proving themselves innocent. Mr. Wardwell, of Peabody, also opposed the bill as not called for by justice, and because of its injurious effect upon trials by jury. The State is not to blame if a man is arrested when he is innocent. This bill establishes degrees of innocence, leaving it to the judge to say if a person is innocent enough to be entitled to witness fees. The bill was defeated by a large majority.

DIPHTHERIA.—A writer, who lived on a plantation in South Alabama, in 1862, where there was great difficulty in securing good medical advice, says: "I saw a whole plantation of blacks, as well as the white members of a large family, successfully treated for diphtheria with kerosene oil and salt, used thus: Every patient was given a lump of rock salt about the size of a boy's marble, and instructed to keep it in his or her mouth, swallowing the salty saliva. At the same time the throat was rubbed with kerosene oil, and a flannel saturated with kerosene kept around the neck until the symptoms were abated or entirely gone. If necessary, mild cathartics were given. Not a case was lost, and there were fully 150 in all on the plantation."

A COSTLY RIDE.—Two young bloods belonging in Beverly have been made to pay dearly for their misdemeanor in disregarding the rules and regulations of the Naumkeag Street Railway Co., by refusing to pay their fares. For so doing the two sneaks were arrested by Chief Haskell, of Beverly. They were brought to Salem yesterday (Tuesday), and tried before Judge Osgood. Here they learned a good lesson from the court, which they will be likely to remember hereafter, and will be a warning to others who should attempt to do likewise. These two fellows, who considered themselves smart if they could cheat the Railroad Company out of its lawful dues, got their just deserts, the court compelling each of them to pay the sum of $14.18.

THE CRIMINAL COURT.—The Superior Criminal Court, Judge Rockwell presiding, came in last Monday morning. Among the bills reported by the Grand Jury are the following: Wm. Ronan, Cornelius Ronan, Jere. McAuliffe and David J. Lynch, breaking and entering building of Thos. Noonan of Peabody, and malicious mischief.—Plead not guilty. Benj. S. Bray, of Danvers, selling adulterated milk, plead not guilty. No bills were found against Marcus Bodge and Jennie Parker, of Danvers, for adultery.

"A BLIZZARD," says a Dakota man, "is the Northwestern name for a gale of wind filled with snow and icy particles as fine as rice powder, with a temperature ten to twenty degrees below zero. A genuine blizzard is so fierce that you can neither face it nor distinguish objects ten feet away from you. In Dakota and Minnesota during the prevalence of a blizzard farmers only venture out of their houses with guiding ropes around their persons to enable them to find their way back."

PROGRESS. — The South Carolina Legislature has passed a bill under which the sale of all kinds of intoxicating liquors, including malt liquors and wines, is absolutely prohibited outside of the incorporated cities, town and villages. An act has also been passed to punish the carrying about the person of concealed deadly weapons, such as pistols, dirks, daggers, slung shots, metal knuckles and razors—the latter being the favorite weapons of the negroes.

FIRES.—In 1880 there were in this country and Canada 250 fires, which involved a loss of $50,000,000 and upwards, and ten fires where the loss exceeded $500,000. The losses by these fires amounted to $35,000,000. There certainly ought to be some means of preventing this fearful destruction and waste of property. For much of it, no doubt, popular carelessness is responsible; but our defective building methods have a deal to do with the ravages of fire in the large places.

STOUT MEN FOR HOSEMEN. — An old fireman, in a letter to the Lynn Bee, says, among other things needed in the Lynn fire department, are "good stout rugged men for hosemen." He says: "Look the department over, and you will find young men or boys weighing only 120 or 125 pounds. No man should belong to the department who does not weigh at least 140 pounds."

It seems a little singular and it is to be regretted that every time we have a little bon-fire in Lynn we are obliged to send to Salem or some other place for assistance. It is said that our fire engines are not capable of throwing a stream over a six-story building, and if that is the case we think it is high time that the city fathers furnished us with proper fire apparatus. The buildings in the centre of our city are largely constructed of wood, and it would seem that public interests require that ample protection be provided against fires.—Lynn Bee.

The steam-heating company in Lynn has laid down three miles of pipes, and has a house with ten tubular boilers of 100 horse-power each, and fitted with the Jarvis furnace. Besides heating houses and cooking-stoves, contracts have been made to provide steam for several engines along the route. They will at the start, a few weeks from now, sell all the steam they can make. This system of heating is in successful use at Lockport, Auburn and Troy, N. Y.; Milwaukie, Dubuque, Detroit; and at Springfield, Mass.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., of Lowell, the manufacturers of Ayer's patent medicines, which are known all over the world, have sent us their Almanac for 1881, neatly bound in one volume, which embraces German, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish, French, Spanish, Portuguese and Bohemian tongues.—Thus far we have only perused the English version, and it will be a cold day when we spend our time reading the other heathen tongues. This almanac, like Dr. Ayer's medicines, has always found a hearty welcome from all.

The present winter is so cold as to raise questions about the gulf-stream. Has any change happened at the outlet of the Gulf of Mexico to turn it more away from our shores? It might be well for Yankee farmers to consider how the project of cutting the Isthmus is going to effect the natural flowage. Didn't we use to read that the Pacific ocean was considerably higher than the Atlantic? In that case the proper location and direction of cut, with some of Captain Ead's willow baskets of mud to guide the chanel might turn the stream more inboard so as to give New England turnips a longer season to grow in.

Those who drive sleighs should not be allowed to go without bells as it is dangerous to pedestrians, who have about as much as they want to do, to avoid getting run over, even when the bells are jingling.

The law says: "No person shall travel on a bridge or road, with a sleigh or sled drawn by one or more horses, unless there are at least three bells attached to some part of the harness." We notice many sleighs have some little bells on the shafts where they don't jingle much. The law requires they should be on the harness.

If the city of Leeds, England, has discovered, as it claims to have done, the correct method of disposing of sewage (burning it in a furnace) it has conferred a boon upon the whole world. Probably the solid matter is first separated from the liquid, as it is a little difficult to burn water, although one Paine of Worcester once claimed that he had invented a way to do it.

In the municipal court, Boston, on Wednesday last, John N. Buzzell, who acquired quite a reputation as a defendant on the charge of murdering an illegitimate infant in Malden, was held in $500 for examination on Thursday of this week on a charge of an assault with a pistol, committed in a saloon at No. 39 Pitts street on Tuesday evening.

At the Reform Club Fair at Marblehead, the following prizes were taken by Peabody people: Lady's Easy Chair, B. N. Marks; Black Walnut Parlor Set, H. G. Briggs; Set of Silver Spoons, David Lowd; Silver Watch, G. Manning; China Tea Set, Geo. S. Brimmer; and the last named gentleman also drew the Parlor Writing Desk.

An editor who has had experience says: "An editor may write himself 'we' in his editorials, and feel therefore doubly proud and doubly strong; but when he gets home to dinner an hour or so late, and forgets to bring something home to make that dinner, he doesn't feel any larger than one-fourth of one person."

Our neighbors—the Salem Register—have gone up one story higher in the building they occupy. Their old quarters were photographed by Edwin Peabody before their removal. With what feelings of regret they must have left a place that has remained unchanged for the past one hundred years.

The effluvia from burning a half-filled kerosene lamp will induce diphtheria.

ONLY A DOG.—We were all crying, every one of us. Father declared it was smoke that had got into his eyes and made them smart; but mother threw her apron over her head and sat rocking and sobbing for ten minutes. Phœbe and I just threw ourselves down on the floor by poor Leo, and I took his dear old shaggy head in my lap, and the hot tears dropped one by one; and Phœbe petted his poor old stiff ears and smoothed out his thin gray hairs; and then we took off the old brass collar that was marked all over with hieroglyphics that we had scratched with pins in the proud days when he first wore it; then we cried again, and just then in walked Squire Toots, and he didn't seem to know what to do when he saw us all so distressed; he looked at us and then at Leo; then he took out his handkerchief and gave his nose a real Sunday-school blowing, and said kind of huskily,—

"Why, it's wicked to feel s'bad.—Anybody'd spose it was a pusson; 'taint only a dog!"

That just made us all feel worse! There wasn't any heaven for him to go to, and we knew we never could see him again, and we couldn't remember any life without Leo, we were such little tots when he came to us, and he had been one of the family all the time.—Father used to lecture him just as he did us children. "Where did I see you to-day, sir?" he would say; "over at Mr. Mason's, associating with that dog that steals? Shame!" And then Leo would whine, and pretty soon father would say, "Go to bed, sir!" and he'd sneak off to his box in the back shed and lie awake all night to protect us while we slept, and he never once in over fourteen years was forgetful of his trust—and he was "only a dog."

Only a dog! Why, was there ever a time that we went racing home from school that Leo hadn't met us half-way to race with us and do all sorts of funny tricks at our bidding? And how proud we had always been of him with his handsome, stately presence and superior manners, and how safe we felt to hear his deep-chested bark as we went to sleep!

Well, death has found him, sure enough, and we buried him out in the grove in a little hollow, where he loved to lie on hot summer days, and there will be no resurrection for him, though there will be for the vilest thief he kept from our doors; but none the less, in looking over his honest, blameless life, in which he was never faithless to any, even the smallest trust, I dare apply to him the Master's meed of praise, "Well done, good and faithful servant;" though, as Squire Toots said, "he was only a dog."—Detroit Free Press.

IRISH LAND OWNERS.—A London paper gives the following figures in regard to the ownership of the land in Ireland, which have special interest at the present time: One man owns 170,000 acres; 3 men own 100,000 acres each; 14 men, 50,000 acres each, 90 men, 20,000 acres each; 135 men, 10,000 acres each, and 452 men, 5,000 acres each. The Association of Salters own 19,000 acres; the Drapers, 27,000 acres; the Merchants, 21,000 acres; the Skinners, 24,000 acres; the Fishmongers, 20,000 acres; the Ironmongers, 10,000 acres, and the Grocers, 10,000 acres. Of the £21,000,000 which is the annual Irish rental, at least £12,000,000 is spent out of the country, and where, as in the case of Ireland, the country is not wealthy, and has no other industry except agriculture, this state of things, until remedied, will be productive of want and misery.

Edwin Booth says that the most genuine compliment he ever received was on the occasion of his playing "Iago" for the first time at Grass Valley, then a new mining camp. The audience, who had not seen a play for years, were so much incensed at his apparent villainy that they pulled out their "shooters" in the middle of the third act, and began blazing away at the stage. Othello had the tip of his nose shot off at the first volley, and Mr. Booth only escaped by rolling over and over up the stage and disappearing through a trap door. A speech from the manager somewhat calmed the house; but even then Mr. Booth thought it best to pass the night in the theatre, as a number of the most elevated spectators were making strenuous efforts to induce the Vigilance committee to lynch "the infernal sneaking cuss."

Some one keeps saying that the potato-beetle has been found so useful in dying that potatoes will be grown for the sake of the bugs. The story cannot be traced to any reliable source, but if the notion of using American dye-stuffs should grow on us there might be something in it. Probably "old gold" is the color.

Quails and grouse in small parties are trying to live through the cold winter, but they fly light, and a handle of grain, sprinkled now and then where they run would be a mercy. Small birds can be helped, and their glad motions seen by hanging bones in sunny windows for them to pick at. Secretary Gold tells of an ingenious lad who feeds the birds by tying two bones together and tossing them to lodge in any convenient tree near the house.

TRAMPS. — Notwithstanding the intensely cold weather, a fair audience greeted Mr. Frederick Ober at the Peabody Institute, last evening. The lecture was original and interesting as well as very instructive, and ought to have been heard by every school boy and girl in town. The lantern slides, numbering some sixty, thrown upon a screen containing four hundred feet of canvas, by an oxy-hydra calcium lantern, made the scenes described more vivid and interesting, bringing before the audience living pictures of scenes visited by the lecturer. We trust that when Mr. Ober visits us again the weather will be more propitious; and we should like to see his lectures announced in the Peabody Institute Course next fall. He was introduced to the audience by Mr. James N. Ham.

G. A. R. PRIZES. — At the Grand Army Hall of Post 50, last Thursday evening, the following additional prizes were drawn:

Shawl—S. G. Southwick.
Caster—N. M. Quint.
Knitting Machine—Carrie P. Peirce.
Doll, Table No. 4—W. E. Barnes.
Picture — F. Osborn, Jr., nearest guess to number of squash seeds in a bottle.
Rubber Coat—Israel Goodwin.
Lady's Gossamer Water Proof—Mrs. John B. Granger, of Lynn.
Pillow Shams, Table No. 5—Benj. Childs.

CAPT. S. B. ROWELL.—Many of our readers doubtless remember Capt. S. B. Rowell, who was in the provision business in this town some ten years ago. He is now a resident of Dundee, Michigan, and is commander of the Wm. Bell Post, No. 10, G. A. R. For a number of years he was the Captain of the Salem Mechanic Light Infantry, and his reputation as a military man was of a high order.

The committee to whom was referred the matter in relation to supplying the town with water at high service, have had their report printed, and it will be in the hands of the voters in a few days. Their report is in substance what we have already said in the PRESS. We cannot get along without water, and we firmly believe that the majority of citizens will favor the recommendations of the committee.

The Murray Association held a very pleasant meeting last Monday evening, in their vestry, being entertained by vocal and instrumental music and readings. It is proposed to give a dramatic entertainment on Thursday evening, Feb. 10th. Baker's very successful drama, "My Brother's Keeper," will be presented with a good cast. Further particulars in our advertising columns.

We were pleased to clasp the hand of Rev. V. M. Simons, of Woburn, in our sanctum last Saturday, and pleased to hear that he likes his new location. He occupied the Methodist pulpit last Sunday, and preached to his old congregation. Mr. S. is publishing a neat little weekly paper for the benefit of the Sunday School connected with his church.

The accounts in the Poor Department were closed for the year with the end of the month. Everything is in a healthy and prosperous condition. The Overseers have retained the services of Mr. William H. Vittum as Superintendent for the ensuing year.

This morning the mercury stood at from 6 to 10 degrees below zero in the central part of the town, while on the outskirts it reached 12 below. A high cutting wind prevailed all night, and it was the coldest morning this season.

The Burgess' Bedott Company will soon visit Peabody. Something "rare" is promised our people.

In the work of making a local paper interesting every citizen can help, and in so doing will help himself, if he has any interest in the town. To the end that we make our paper a representative of the town, that its pages may each week show a full and complete record of passing events, we again invite everybody to drop into the office and inform us of happenings, improvements, etc., of the neighborhoods in which they live, or, if more convenient, send a postal card containing the facts, and signing their real names, so we may know who has favored us, as well as be assured that we are not being imposed upon. If our friends will think of this and act upon it, they will aid us in making the PRESS still more interesting. Try it.

Mr. J. Frank Baxter will lecture under the auspices of the Spiritualists, next Sunday afternoon and evening, at Temperance Hall. Mr. Baxter is not a stranger here, and his eloquence and vocal abilities are well-known. In the evening he will present the following programme:

Song—After Many Days.
Poem—The Old Philosopher's Advice.
Song—Only Waiting.
Lecture—Spiritualism in Retrospect and Prospect.
Song—By and By.
Exercises in Mediumship if possible.
Song—One Step More.

The police had their attention called last Monday to a house on English street, occupied by a destitute lady, about 80 years of age, well-known in that vicinity as "Marm Galway." As she had not been seen for some time it was thought she must have frozen to death. Officer Parker forced an entrance, and found her under the bed in an insensible condition. There was no fire in the room, and but for the timely assistance of the officer she must have perished.

To-morrow (Thursday) evening there will be an entertainment at the Chapel in South Peabody, consisting of vocal music by Miss Allen, of Boston, and Miss Brown, of Peabody; Readings by Mr. George Farrington, of Peabody. The above talent will be assisted by Master Bennie Widges, of Lynn, the boy violinist. Miss Woods, of Boston, pianist. The proceeds will be devoted towards the purchase of a new organ for the Chapel.

The Young People's Union at the Methodist Church held a social gathering last Monday evening, in the vestry of their church, the occasion being a general congratulation and good feeling caused by the paying off of the debt on the church organ—a self-imposed task of this body. It was well attended, and a good time and supper were enjoyed. The programme embraced singing, reading, and interesting remarks by the pastor.

During the high wind last Friday evening a partial alarm of fire was given, which was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp in the room over Newman & Symonds' store, occupied by the Emmet Club. The fire was discovered by persons in an adjoining room, who rushed in, and a young man named Brophy, with commendable presence of mind, beat out the fire with his coat.

A friend has handed us the following:

In view of the prevailing cold weather the town of Peabody is to be congratulated in its selection of ministers to education and religion. She has Ham to eat, Cole and Wood to cook with, Barnes in which to do it, Wells to draw water from, and if they go dry, water can be procured from the Hudson.

Rev. Mr. Harmon gave a forcible and instructive discourse upon the relation of the Church to the people, at the Universalist Church, last Sunday evening. The subject of his next lecture will be: "Are we better or worse than our Forefathers?" discussed from an affirmative standpoint.

Mr. F. Osborn—who takes considerable interest in the weather—informs us that during the past month of January the weather has been 15 3-31 degrees colder, on the average, than the corresponding month of the previous year.

The depot carriage is always at the station on the arrival of all the trains. Mr. Hart would be pleased to accommodate you should you have occasion to use it.

The Ambidextrous Reporter.

The Kansas City Times say: "There is a reporter at the Times office who writes with equal rapidity with either hand. He is an ambidexter, and a bold bad one at that. When there is a rush of work at the office, and the devil is shouting "coppee" like a fiend incarnate, this useful reporter sits down at his desk in full company front, and with a pencil in each hand, slings off local happenings by the yard. He writes on two sheets at once, and don't let his right hand know what his left hand is driving at, but it's driving all the same.

Recently he got a little off his mental base, and attempted to write up a dog fight and a wedding in high life at the same time. He got things mixed. His hands ran clear away with the gray matter in his skull, and things became terribly confused. This is the way his items telescoped each other:

At Grace church, last night, the nuptials of Mr. Thomas Jefferson and Miss Julia Lawrence were celebrated in the most magnificent style; a costly floral horse-shoe being directly over the altar, and when the yellow cur saw the flames of anger darting from the eyes of the brindle fyste, he opened with the strains of the wedding march. As the handsome couple walked down the aisle the excited crowd began to get frantic, and there were yells of "Sick 'm Bull;" "At him now Towser," as the spectators became interested in the fight.—The bride was elegantly attired in pure white garments of the most costly fabric, and she wore the traditional white veil and wreath of orange blossoms had him by the neck and his tongue began to loll out and his eyes to turn somersaults as if in customary black dress suit, white gloves, ears cropped close to his head. He was a disreputable looking dog in the beginning, and ought to have been whipped for being so homely. He is of good family, and is engaged in one of the most extensive manufacturing establishments in the West. But the yellow cur seemed to be getting the advantage, as he now succeeded in getting a death grip on the throat of the big brindle, and when he tenderly kissed the bride according to the ancient custom, his back was covered with mud and his off hind leg was terribly chewed up. Among the costly presents received by the happy pair was a fine piano from the father of the bride, hair had been scalded from his back, and one eye seemed to have been struck with an auger. After a short bridal tour the happy couple will settle down to one of the hardest fought battles ever witnessed, and it was difficult to tell which had been published worst. The fight ended at exactly 4:48, after having been bitterly contested at the residence of the bride's parents, and he was taken to his owner's home in a wheelbarrow.—He will probably never recover, and if he does will be totally blind, besides being permanently lame in the left hind leg; the beautiful bride received the congratulations of a host of friends.—The groom is one of our most promising young men, and his owner dreads the possibility of losing him, as he fears that he can never replace him. The father of the bride is one of our wealthiest merchants, and the yellow fyste limped off with a knowing look in his eye and a saucy curl in his tail, as much as to say, "Who else wants to try me?"

The ambidexter was "fired."

A Detroit grocer was the other day hungrily waiting for his clerk to return from dinner and give him a chance at his own noon-day meal, when a boy came into the store with a basket in his hand, and said, "I seed a boy grab up this 'ere basket from the door and run, and I run after him and made him give it up." "My lad, you are an honest boy." "Yes, sir." "And you look like a good boy." "Yes, sir." "And good boys should always be encouraged. In a box in the back room there are eight dozen eggs. You may take them home to your mother and keep the basket." The grocer had been saving those eggs for days and weeks to reward some one. In rewarding a good boy he also got eight dozen bad eggs carried out of the neighborhood free of cost, and he chucked a chuck as he walked homeward. The afternoon waned, night came and went, and once more the grocer went to his dinner. When he returned he was wearing a complacent smile. His eye caught a basket of eight dozen eggs as he entered the store, and he queried, "Been buying some eggs?" "Yes; got hold of those from a farmer's boy," replied the clerk. "A lame boy with a blue cap on?" "Yes." "Two front teeth out?" "Yes." The grocer sat down and examined the eggs. The shells had been washed clean, but they were the same eggs that good boy had lugged home the day before.—Detroit Free Press.

A leading oculist of Boston is reported as saying that he has more patients from the Law School at Cambridge than from any other source. It must not be supposed from this that the young men injure their eyes by excessive application. The bad ventilation and gas-heated air of the lecture rooms cause the trouble.

Hints for the Household.

The suddenness and violence with which old winter has come upon us has proven a grievous thing. Grim death has seated himself amid the guests at many a banquet, and the consciousness that an incipient pneumonia is lurking in unexpected places inclines one to the sanitary side of all subjects.

Cold not being a natural condition of the system, it behooves us to resort to the surest means for keeping the body up to a temperature which will resist the inroads of dangerous maladies. The quantity of clothing has less to do with a perfect condition of the system than the quality. The body should be stimulated by daily rubbing with a crash towel to keep the pores clear. Garments worn next the skin should be such as will preserve intact the electric forces of the body. Silk (being a non-conductor) undervests with an admixture of wool are excellent. They should fit like a glove, and all other garments should be so adjusted as to prevent strain or friction at any point.

There is nothing so conducive to perfect health as perfect comfort; hence, the question of apparel is one of greater import than many fancy. Clothing should not be changed too frequently, though a daily draught of unadulterated oxygen should be taken into the lungs, and the air of one's apartments changed often. A few minutes' draught will carry off impure particles, thus insuring freedom from corroding gases, in which insidious diseases lurk, as they cannot fail to do in putrid, poisonous atmospheres.

Sleeping apartments should be moderately warmed, with a window open, an inch or so, at top and bottom, (always, of course, avoiding a draught) for ventilation; close rooms are a mistake often expiated at great cost. A cold atmosphere is not essentially a pure one. One is less likely to take cold going from a warm room to the cold air without than on coming into a heated apartment where the muscles relax and the pores are opened suddenly. It is better to guard against any sudden transition of temperature, and provide one's self against any contingency indoor or out.

Gossamer outer garments of silk finished rubber are a benefaction we cannot too highly appreciate. Every lady should provide herself with a waterproof with sleeves; they are better than a circular because more adjustable. A pair of rubber overshoes and leggins, a rubber umbrella, and shawl strap in which to carry superfluous wraps in case of a clearing, and she may defy the storm king ad libitum.

One's diet should be a matter for careful consideration at all times, but most particularly is it unwise to tax the digestion with food oppressive in quantity or quality. Such elements as are easily appropriated by the system while imparting the greatest amount of wholesome nourishment, are chosen by those on guard, who, like the wise virgins, desire to have lamps trimmed and burning, should the King of Terrors come, as he does, in many guises, like a thief in the night, ready to rifle the castles of those whose temples are easy of access to the enemy of all flesh.

In summing up precautions essential to the promotion of physical health, one must not forget the sympathy between spirit and matter, and keep the mind free from worry as the body from pain. The stimulus of wholesome heart action is the best specific against drugs or lotions. Disease comes not easily to the soul or body instinct with such life as the Creator meant us to live—a poem full of the power, pathos and passion of the eternal psalms.

THE NEWTON COMET. — A correspondent speaking of the famous Newton Comet, which, after an absence of thirty-seven years, is now astonishing and alarming the antipodes, and in a short time will be seen in our firmament, rushing on its course toward the sun at a velocity of 200 miles a second, says that Newton, in his long essay on this fiery, eccentric monster, thinks it within the range of possibilities that in striking the sun terrible disorder and havoc may be caused in our planetary system.

Among the safe remedies for insect infestation, to which all plants are liable, it has recently been ascertained that borax is most efficacious. It should be lightly sprinkled on the under surfaces of the leaves. A little on the soil will be beneficial. In several cases plants have seemed to be stimulated when small quantities have been applied to the roots, by dissolving it in water held by the crock-saucers. But, for the toilette of plants and babes and belles alike, use real borax; be suspicious of calcited, limy adulteration when purchased at low prices from grocers' stock. —Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

STATEMENT.

MR. EDITOR,—I have fitted up at considerable expense an undertaking room, and am prepared to furnish goods in my line promptly and at reasonable rates. I know there is a false impression current that on the occasion of a death in town, one must go to the town undertaker, and without wishing to weaken that gentleman's position—who is certainly performing his work well—it seems no more than fair to state that there is no obligation resting to go to this or that undertaker. If we had a Superintendent of Burials, it would be necessary to consult him, but any person in whom the Town Clerk has sufficient confidence to give a permit, can attend at a funeral. The law provides that there shall be at least one so appointed, that there may be some one who can always be depended upon. If it be true that from $8000 to $10,000 are paid annually to Salem for funeral purposes, is it not fair that a portion be retained in town, now that we have one of our citizens fully prepared to furnish goods? I make this statement because I know that many people are laboring under the false impression that when in need of an undertaker, there is only one person to call upon, and that is an undertaker appointed by the town. It is not so, as I have previously stated—there is no obligation whatever. J. W. VAUGHN.

Thomas Carlyle.

Thomas Carlyle died in London last Saturday morning, in his 86th year.—With him went out one of the greatest intellectual lights of our age and century. Indeed there are many thoughtful people who will think that with him disappeared the most profound and philosophic mind of the time. For many years, however, Carlyle has been silent. He has published no elaborate or notable works during the past decade.

His works are few in number, when we reflect upon the fame and authority he long ago earned and won. He can easily be read through in the course of a few weeks; but to thoroughly comprehend him, requires the study of years. His strangely rough, Germanish, complex, and ofter perplexing style, has no doubt, something to do with the difficulty the mind has in following his meaning. He will probably live longest in literary fame as a historian and as a biographer. That magnificent series of pictures, panoramic, vivid, dramatic, rich beyond description in imaginative splendor, which he calls "The History of the French Revolution," seems to be an enduring literary work. The "Life of Oliver Cromwell" — a subject peculiarly adapted to Carlyle's rough, rugged, and Puritanic genius—is so strong, so noble, so just a picture, that it is impossible to conceive of its soon being forgotton. His more philosophical works will probably long hold a place in the minds of men, and will win here and there new disciples to a system of beliefs and ethics which these disciples themselves may not completely comprehend.

THE PEABODY FUND. — The Board of Trustees of the Peabody fund held a session at Washington last Thursday. Miss Sears, daughter of the late general agent, submitted an informal report of the work of her father during the past year, which evidenced a gratifying progress in the cause of education throughout the South. Secretary Evarts, Chief-Justice Waite, Judges Manning and Jackson, and Bishop Whipple, the committee appointed to report as to the future policy of the work under the fund, reported a resolution directing the general agent to expend as far as possible the revenues in the education of teachers for Southern schools, but giving authority to the general agent and the Executive Committee to expend a sum not exceeding two-thirds of the income for destitute schools. The election of a successor to the late general agent resulted in the election of Rev. J. L. M. Curry of Richmond, Va. The treasurer's annual report showed an available income for the coming year of over $90,000. Judge Manning of Louisiana, was appointed a committee to present to the Governor and legislature of Mississippi a memorial concerning the Mississippi State bonds, which Mr. Peabody gave to the board for the purpcses of their trust, amounting to $1,000,000, and which the State of Mississippi has repudiated. The memorial will urge the payment of these bonds by the State for the benefit of the fund. Rev. Dr. Curry, the newly-elected general agent, will meet with the trustees. Before adjourning Thursday, it was decided to hold the next meeting in New York city on the first Monday in December, 1882.

ORIGINAL CHATTERBOX.—The Original English Chatterbox, edited by J. Erskine Clarke, M. A., printed from duplicate stereotype plates, and an American supplement of eight pages, is henceforth to be issued, monthly, from the publishing house of Ester & Leavitt, Boston. Single numbers ten cents, with the subscription price at $1.00 per year. To every subscriber will be presented a premium of a fine steel engraving entitled "Ought and Carry One," size, 18x24 inches. To any boy or girl sending their address a specimen number will be sent free.

Alexander Stephens, that pale, frail shadow of a great man who wheels himself in and out of the House in his chair (provided with a desk in front), always claims a sort of pathetic interest. Broken with the fury of storms of war and of politics, he yet retains enough vitality to ally himself with the new, rather than with the dead, issues of the South.

A list of the new books just added to the Library will be found on page 7.

Wanted an Order.

"Do you—ahem!—do you ever print any art items in your paper?" asked a rather seedy looking man with long hair, a slouch hat, and paint on his fingers, softly edging into the Post's inner sanctum the other day.

The Managing Editor glanced savagely up from his noonday sandwich, and, after evidentiy repressing a desire to add the long haired party to his viands, replied in the affirmative.

"Because," continued the young man, scowling critically at a cheap chromo on the wall, "because I thought if you cared to record the progress of real esthetic art culture on this coast you might send your art critic around to my studio to take some notes."

"Might, eh?" said the editor between chews.

"Yes, sir. For instance, there's a mammoth winter storm landscape I've just finished for Mr. Mudd, the Bonanza King. It's called a "Hailstorm in the Adirondacks,' and a visitor who sat down near it the other day caught a sore throat in less than fifteen minutes. The illusion was so perfect, you understand. Why, I had to put on the finishing touches with my ulster and Artic overshoes on."

"Don't say?"

"Fact, sir; and then there's a little animal gem I did for Governor Glerkins the other day—portrait of his Scotch terrier Snap. The morning it was done a cat got into the studio, and the minute it saw that picture it went through the window sash like a ten-inch shell."

"Did, eh?"

"Yes; and the oddest thing about it was that when I next looked at the canvas, the dog's hair was standing up all along his back like a porcupine. Now, how do you account for that?"

"Dunno."

"It just beats me. When the Governor examined the work he insisted on my painting on a post with the dog chained to it. Said he didn't know what might happen."

"Good scheme," growled the President maker.

"I don't do much in the animal line, though," continued the artist, thoughtfully, "that is, not since last summer. I painted a polecat for an English tourist from the skin of one he killed by mistake for a grizzly up in the foothills.—And if you'll take my word for it, the day I finished its business end the health office officials came down, fumigated the place, and arrested me for maintaining a nuisance."

"Did, eh?"

"Absurd, wasn't it? I did a setter dog for the same man, and shipped it to him at Liverpool. But it seems the fleas got into the box and bit so many holes in the canvas, that he threw it back on my hands."

"Too bad."

"Wasn't it, though? My best hold, however, is water views. You know George Bromley, and how abstracted he is sometimes. Well, George dropped in one morning and brought up before an eight by twelve view of the San Joaquin river with a boat tied to the bank in the foreground. I'm blessed if George didn't absent-mindedly take off his coat and step clear through the canvas trying to jump in that boat—thought he'd go out rowing, you know."

"No, I don't know."

"Speaking about that picture reminds me of a mean trick that was played on me by Dobber, whose studio is right next to mine. He was so envious of my large orders, that the night before that painting was to be delivered, he climbed over the transom and smeared out the rope that anchored the boat I spoke of, to the shore. The next morning the skiff was gone—floated off down stream, you see."

"I do—do I?"

"It took me four days to paint it in again—dead loss, you see; although I believe the purchaser did agree to pay me $25 extra in case it came back on the next tide. Pretty square of him, now; wasn't it?"

"Have they carried out that journeyman with the small-pox?" asked the editor, winking at the foreman, who had come in just then to swear for copy.

"Small-pox? That reminds me of a realistic historical subject I'm engaged on now, entitled, 'The Plague in Egypt.' I had only completely four of the principal figures when last Tuesday, the janitor, who sleeps in the next room, was taken out to the hospital with the most pronounced case of leprosy you ever saw, and this morning the boy who mixes the paints began to scale off like a slate roof. I don't really know whether to keep on with the work or not. How does it strike you?"

"It strikes me that you'd better slide," said the unesthetic molder of public opinion, gruffly.

"Don't care to send a reporter round, then?"

"No, sir."

"Wouldn't like to give an order for a life-sized 'Gutenberg Discovering the Printing Press,' eh?"

"Nary order."

"Don't want a seven by nine group of the staff done in oil or crayon?"

"No," said the editor, as he again lowered himself into the depths of a leader on the Roumanian Imbroglio, "but if you care to touch up two window frames, some desk legs, and the fighting editor's black eye for four bits and a lot of comic exchanges, you can sail in."

"It's a whack!" promptly ejaculated the disciple of esthetic culture; and borrowing a cigarette from the Dramatic Critic on account, he drifted off after his brushes.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Items Clipped from our Exchanges.

The harbor was completely frozen over last Sunday. This has happened but three times before this in seventeen years. February 19, 1864, and January 18, 1877, the harbor was frozen over, but only remained so a short time.—March 7, 1872, the ice extended as far as Baker's Island, and was so thick in the harbor that people crossed to the Neck from the lower wharves, and the crews of vessels that were frozen in crossed the ice from their vessels to the shore with safety.—Marblehead Messenger.

Mr. G. M. Fassett having accepted of an engagement in Peabody, his late position as Station Master of the Eastern Railroad in this city has been filled by the appointment of Mr. A. E. Elliott. —Gloucester Advertiser.

Dr. Charles F. Folsom, who was a few weeks ago chosen Superintendent of the Danvers Hospital, has resigned his office, and his resignation has been accepted by the Trustees. After having accepted, Dr. Folsom consulted eminent physicians as to the condition of his health, and they decided that it would not be prudent for him to take charge of so large and important an institution at present. This is to be much regretted, as Dr. F. stands confessedly at the head of the profession, and would undoubtedly have secured the confidence of the public in his administration of affairs at the Hospital.—Danvers Mirror.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.—No, my son, cheek is not better than wisdom; it is not better than honest modesty, it is not better than anything. Do not listen to the siren who tells you to blow your own horn, or it will never be tooted upon. The world is not to be deceived by cheek, and it does search for merit, and when it finds it, merit is rewarded. Cheek never deceives the world, my son. It appears to do so to the cheeky man, but he is the one who is deceived. Do you know one cheeky man in all your acquaintance who is not reviled for his cheek the moment his back is turned? Is not the world continually drawing distinction between cheek and merit? Almost everybody hates the cheeky man, my son. Society tires of the brassy glare of his face, the hollow tinkling of his cymballine tongue, the noisy assumption of its forwardness. The triumphs of cheek are only apparent. He bores his way along through the world, and frequently better people give way for him. But so they give way, my boy, for a man with a paint pot in each hand. Not because they respect the man with the paint pots, particularly, but because they want to take care of their clothes.—Avoid cheek, my son. You can sell goods without it; and your customers won't run and hide in the cellar when they see you coming.

Congress is just now overcrowded with the richness of the historic relics offered it. There is Washington's sword, genuine, offered for $10,000; a Madison manuscript on logic, for $5,000; a set of Benjamin Franklin papers, for $25,000; and the Peabody PRESS only $2.00 a year if paid in advance.

A January without a thaw.

Let's talk about the weather.

St. Valentine's day approaches.

A new moon and a grand concert—by the cats.

Owners of horse-flesh enjoyed the sleighing last Sunday.

Mr. A. L. Ames has had his residence connected by telephone.

Slush and mud are now in order, and dealers in rubbers are happy.

Rev. Mr. Sperry preached at the Insane Asylum, last Sunday evening.

The Peabody News Company has a full and complete line of Valentines.

The firm having the most business on hand at present is Sneezer, Cold & Cough.

Head-quarters for valentines of every description have been established at George Stevens'.

There will be a service at the South Church, Sunday evening, Feb. 13th, at 7 o'clock. Seats free. All are invited.

Blifkins always looks ahead. He told his best girl last Sunday night that there were fifty-two Sundays this year.

The English sparrows which were thought such a nuisance last summer, make our streets look cheerful at this season.

The entertainment at the Chapel at South Peabody, last Thursday evening, was a very successful affair, and netted about $20 to the society.

A lot of household goods, wearing apparel, etc., belonging to the late Anna King, was sold at auction, at her late residence, to-day.

A large fire was seen from here last Thursday evening, in the direction of Lynn. It proved to be the Baptist Church in Cambridge that was burning.

The neighborhood meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held with the Peabody Union, at their Room, 18 Main street, Friday, Feb. 11th, at 2 o'clock.

The eighth annual Assembly of the St. John's C. T. A. Society will be held at Upton's Hall, on Monday evening, Feb. 28th. Music will be furnished by Upton's full Quadrille Band.

In the case of breaking and entering against Wm. Ronan, Cornelius Ronan, Jeremiah McAuliffe and David J. Lynch, of Peabody, in the Superior Court, last week, the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

The annual business meeting of the Baptist Church was held in the vestry last evening. The usual business was transacted and committees appointed. Mr. Ambrose Hatch was re-elected clerk, as was A. F. Rowell treasurer.

The sleighing in the suburbs, so they say, is fearful. The winds drifted the snow so badly that it is almost impossible for sleighs to pass each other on some roads, and numerous accidents are reported, but fortunately not of a serious nature.

For the past ten days workmen have been engaged in rebuilding the railroad bridge on Andover street. They are using hard pine stringers and braces instead of spruce as heretofore. The braces are placed in such a position as to support the centre of the bridge. We consider the present structure superior to any other in town, and will undoubtedly last longer.

Fernald & Sawyer, at their ladies' furnishing and dry goods store, No. 48 Main street, are offering great bargains. Their entire stock of winter goods will be sold at less than cost, and ladies will find this a rare opportunity to purchase at extremely low prices. The list of bargains advertised are only a few of the many offered at this favorite store. When Sawyer says bargains, he means what he says.

Mr. B. F. Stevens has a special calling attention to his handsome lot of Valentines.

Mr. G. L. Batchelder, a milkman from Topsfield, reports that just after leaving home this morning his milk team was overturned by running into a snow drift, and twenty cans of milk were spilled.

There were about one hundred people present at the "Bake Bean Supper," at the house of Mr. Elijah Wilson, on Andover street, last Wednesday evening. Before the supper there were some very fine declamations from the school children and a few misses. Some of the young ladies also favored with some fine readings. The entertainment netted twenty-five dollars, which is to go towards the chapel.

Last Saturday the Gen. Sutton steamer was brought into use to thaw out the hydrants. The condition in which some of them were found would, in case of a fire, make it not only inconvenient but dangerous. Seven hydrants were found to be frozen. The one near O'Shea's tannery had been leaking, and considerable time was spent in thawing it out. It seems as if some means could be devised to keep them free and in a safe condition.

There seems to be considerable going on to-night, all of which the editor would like to attend.

The Jollities, in their great originality, "The Electrical Doll," at the Institute.

The meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, at the Vestry of the South Church.

The Social Party at Upton's Hall, which is given under able management, with music by the Salem Cadet Orchestra.

The regular monthly meeting of Jordan Lodge, F. & A. M.

The winter reunion of the Mass. Press Association, which takes place at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, this afternoon. In the evening they will be the guests of Tompkins & Hill, of the Boston Theatre, to witness Mr. Denman Thompson, in his celebrated character of Joshua Whitcomb.

We shall have to decline attending them all in one evening.

An unusual number of accidents and delays have occurred to the railroad trains since our last. While a freight train was passing through the tunnel early last Thursday morning, the engine and one car were thrown from the track. The first train for Danvers, due here at 6.30, did not arrive till ten minutes of eight. In the afternoon, about 2.30 o'clock, as the shifter was crossing a switch this side of Carletonville, the switch rod broke, derailing two cars. A brakeman was despatched for the section hands, and the track was safe again about four. Friday the regular morning train, due for Lawrence at 7.15, did not reach here till quarter of eight. The delay was occasioned by a freight train off the track at Somerville, which prevented the train coming through from Boston, and a special was made up at Salem. This of course delayed the other trains, and it was afternoon before they were running on time. Monday forenoon the shifter was off the track on the South Reading Branch, near the depot, but was replaced before the regular trains were due.

Last Wednesday evening a very pleasant affair took place on Franklin street. Quite a number of the neighbors gathered at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Moulton, heavily laden with provisions, groceries, etc., which were given to Mrs. William Waller, the colored lady, commonly called "Aunt Fanny," who had previously been invited, and was present. After fully realizing that all those good things and an envelope containing a sum of money were for her, she feelingly thanked the givers, and asked God's blessing upon all present. The evening was very pleasantly spent with vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Benj. Upton entertained the company with singing, also the Misses Stevens and Upton. Charlie Sheldon, a grandson of Aunt Fanny, sang and played an accompaniment upon the guitar. Mr. G. M. Fassett rendered some fine organ selections. All who were fortunate enough to be present agree that the whole affair was a most enjoyable one, and all felt that happiness which we enjoy when conscious of having done a good deed.

The Ladies' Society of West Peabody will hold their annual Fair and Festival at West Peabody Hall, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 15th.

The Ladies' Association in aid of Home Missions, will hold their annual Tea Party at Upton's Hall, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 16th. This event is always looked forward to with pleasure.

Mr. George F. Barnes made two of his pupils happy last Monday evening by fitting them each with a suit of clothes and pair of shoes at Winslow's and Teague's stores. This is benevolence worthy of imitation.

As Mr. Sayward will be unable to appear before the public this season, the committee on I. O. O. F. Entertainments will arrange for something different to take place of Unexpected Pleasure. The entertainment will probably be given March 3d.

The entertainment, under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, postponed from Jan. 19th, will take place at the Unitarian Chapel, Monday evening next. The programme will consist of vocal music and the monologue, "Elixir of Youth," by Miss Susan Hale, of Boston.

On Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Luther Fernald was stricken with apoplexy, and remained in an unconscious state until death relieved her of all suffering, on Sunday morning. Mrs. Fernald has always led an exemplary life and identified herself with the temperance and other good causes, and those who knew her will long miss her pleasant face and happy disposition. Her funeral takes place to-day.

Professor Turner of Boston, will give his Stereoptican exhibition at the Baptist Church next Tuesday. These views being photographed direct from nature upon the spot, are strictly accurate and are magnified to form a picture over 20 feet in diameter, and embrace views of the Rhine, Frankfort on the Main, Constantinople, Athens, St. Petersburg, etc., together with the beautiful cities of northern Italy. The entertainment will close with a variety of Portraits and Humorous Selections.

Last evening a jolly party from Marblehead to the number of 25 came over in sleighs to spend a pleasant evening at the home of Miss Fannie L. Poor on Central street. The evening was socially spent, games were indulged in, a supper was furnished, and a good time enjoyed. Among those present were the Marblehead Glee Club of male voices, and Mr. Lewis D. Nevers, the originator of the party, who furnished an unlimited amount of fun in personating a clown, being dressed in appropriate costume. During the evening Miss Poor was made the recipient of a handsome Willow Sewing Rocker. It was about midnight when the merry company returned to Marblehead.

At the annual meeting of the Corporation of the Warren Five Cents Savings Bank, held Wednesday evening, Feb. 2d, 1881, the following named persons were elected Trustees for the ensuing year, all of whom have accepted and been duly qualified:

The Message.

BY ADELAIDE PROCTOR.

I had a message to send her,
To her whom my soul loves best,
But I had my task to finish,
And she had gone home to rest.

To rest in the far, bright heaven,
Oh! so far away from here,
It was so vain to speak to my darling,
For I knew she could not hear.

I had a message to send her,
So tender and true and sweet,
I longed for an angel to bear it,
And lay it down at her feet.

I placed it one summer evening
On a little white cloud's breast,
But it faded in golden splendor,
And died in the crimson west.

I gave it the lark next morning,
And I watched it soar and soar,
But its pinions grew faint and weary,
And it fluttered to earth once more.

I cried in my passionate longing,
Has the earth no angel friend
Who will carry my love the message
My heart desires to send?

Then I heard a strain of music
So mighty, so pure, so clear
That my very sorrow was silent,
And my heart stood still to hear.

It rose in harmonious rushing
Of mingled voices and string,
And I tenderly laid my message
On the music's out-spread wing.

And I heard it float farther and farther
In sound more perfect than speech,
Farther than sight can follow,
Farther than sound can reach.

And I knew that at last my message
Had passed through the golden gate,
So my heart is no longer restless,
And I am content to wait.

SKATING.

Isn't it jolly? Isn't it nice?
This gliding, birdlike, o'er the ice?
I love to hear the ringing steel,
When on the ice I stamp my heel.
I love the keen, crisp air. I know
It gives my cheek a pretty glow;
And makes my eyes shine as I glide
Along, with Harry by my side.
How well he skates! My hand he clasps,
Perhaps a bit more firm he grasps
Than need be. But I like the squeeze,
And do not seem to note it. He's Just splendid! Wonder if we'll glide
Through life thus smoothly, side by side.
* * * * * * * *
It surely was a horrid trick
In that small boy to put that stick
Directly here in people's way.
So Harry thinks. I heard him say
He'll catch the boy and nearly kill Him for the prank. I hope he will!
I'm sure poor Harry felt the fall,
Although he says, "Not hurt at all!"
We must have looked ridiculous,
And everybody stared at us.
A sight, no doubt, did we present,
As backward on our heads we went.
Well, there's some balm to heal my woes,
I had on "just too lovely" hose.

Selected Story.

MORE THAN HER MATCH.

Long shafts of moonlight were shooting down through what seemed an almost impenetrable wood, and quivering on the green mosses. A faint wind dallied with the foliage. Wild flowers decked the ground.

Here, in this sylvan retreat, sat Miss Barron, and she was very much out of humor, for every now and then she drove the point of her parasol into the unoffending mosses. She looked and was downright disgusted with everything and everybody. The belle of three seasons, during which she had escaped heart-whole, she was now "caught," and all because of a three weeks' sojourn at a country villa.

To be sure, moonlight, sifting through vines over a rustic porch, has something more intoxicating than the glare of gas-jets; a wandering, scented wind, just off from the meadows, has rather a finer appeal than air vitiated by cut-flowers and gas; drives over grass-grown roads that are fledged with wild vines and overhung with branches are just a trifle different in effect from the London parks in landau or phaeton; and that animal, man, who, in town, is so carefully dressed, is, in the country, where one would suppose zoological specimens would thrive better, something more human, in tweed and felt hat. At any rate, Madge had found it so.

Madge had never been off her guard before. Hitherto she had visited fashionable watering places, but this year she had come to a quieter place, and had met Lyndhurst Barrington. She did not yet know, however, she was in thralldom.

She only knew she was cross and lonesome; and so she sat punching the little blossoms and pouting. She thought Barrington exceedingly companionable, and that the other four gentlemen stopping at the villa were little better than wooden men. As for down-right earnest love, why, her intentions for three years had been never to venture her heart at sea, but only to glide about the shore, flirting, safe to disembark at any time. Yet she was now thinking of Lyndhurst Barrington in a way many would have termed love. But she would not admit this to herself. He was a delightful summer friend, that was all, she said. She liked summer, and flowers, and birds, and hazy atmospheres, and a quiet flirtation, but when these went, the coming season new enjoyments and fresh flirtations, and Barrington could go with them. Were there no others, pray, who could read Tennyson and sing tenor? But now, just this moment, it was rather lonesome. If he only would come!

He had gone to town the morning previous, promising to return in the evening. She had walked with him through this wood-path, on his way to the station. He had lingered a moment at the stile beyond to tell her how beautiful she looked—how the fresh morning air had brightened the color on her cheeks.

"Come this evening as far as here to meet me," he had said, "won't you? The path will be a horrid labyrinth without you."

"You will surely return?" she had asked. "If you don't I shall find every tree a hobgoblin when I go back alone."

"Return, indeed! I shall think of nothing else. I shall do nothing all day but pull out my watch to see if it is time for the train."

Then he caught her hand in a quick way, thought a moment, bounded over the stile, and hastened down the path, turning often to look back at the pretty picture she made, listlessly leaning on the stile, with a tinge of regret in her face. At a turn where she would soon be hid from sight he had dared to wave her a kiss.

Madge was now waiting, according to appointment, and she had taken care to concoct a most ravishing toilet.

But all her little preparations were wasted. Lyndhurst Barrington did not come. Still she waited. It seemed so unreasonable, so cruel, to disappoint her. Perhaps he was only trying to tease her, had got out unseen, and would surprise her directly by his appearance.

A doleful sough of wind, coming from the dark recesses of the wood, a sudden shutting-down of night made Miss Barron feel something like fear, and she started nervously to return. As it grew darker her dread became terror; she fancied strange noises were about; her feet scarcely touched the ground; she skimmed on, fluttering at heart like some low-flying bird belated from its nest.

What wonder that she vowed that night, as she brushed out her hair, never to forgive Mr. Barrington? What wonder that a harmless little bunch of violets, which he had gathered for her the day previous and which she had treasured in a vase on her dressing case, she now found faded, disagreeable and odorless, and that she tossed them pettishly out into the darkness from her window?

"I detest him and his violets," she cried. "He may stop in town till doomsday, for aught I care."

Miss Barron did not sleep well and rose in the morning with a little dull weight on her feelings. "Perhaps," she thought, "he will not come even to-day."

As she dressed for breakfast he was constantly in her mind.

"Perhaps he did it on purpose," she said. "Perhaps he didn't, but lost the train. But he had no business to lose the train," she added, crossly. "Perhaps he was ill; perhaps some woman had asked him to remain. Well, if so, I don't care," she said. "He shall see I am happy enough, and not even piqued, when he comes."

Still, as the day wore on, Madge found the ladies of the company provoking and the gentlemen more uninteresting than ever. Mechanically, toward evening, she donned the same toilet as on the night previous, and took a circuitous route through the garden, that none might be cognizant of her movements. Emerging out of sight, she struck straight for the wood-path; and here we find her again listening for the roar of the train, notwithstanding all her angry vows of the night before.

Beautiful, cross, unreasonable girl!

"I will not go to the stile," she was saying to herself, "and that will be a disappointment to him."

She was somewhat unsettled, however, for fear she might be in just the same predicament as on the preceding evening, and have to return through the gloomy wood alone. She had seven-eighths of a mind to go back, even yet. But she remained after all, so perverse is woman.

At last, with a sudden screech, the engine came streaming along. Miss Barron began to trace figures on the ground with her parasol, and put on a most expectant air, her features sinking into a repose, and unconcern benign enough to befit a saint.

She saw Lyndhurst Barrington descend from the train and come striding on joyously till he came in sight of the stile; for though hidden herself, she could observe all his movements.

He came on eagerly, looking to the right and left for her, and almost stumbled over Miss Barron.

"Oh, Madge!" he cried, as he threw himself at her feet, "you did forgive me, and have come to meet me!"

"Forgive you, Mr. Barrington?" Nothing could be more icy cold.—"Pray, what has been your fault?" She looked, as she spoke, straight before her, but with an air of surprise which was exceedingly well counterfeited.

He looked up eagerly into her face as he answered, "Why, I was buttonholed to death in town yesterday. It seemed as if a conspiracy had been entered into, and that every fellow I knew had left his summer haunt to go up to town to detain me. I transacted but half my business, and put off Jack Longley with only a nod on my way to the station. I suppose he'll never speak to me again. After all, I was one minute too late. I saw the confounded train sweeping out of the station just as I reached it. I was in despair, thinking you would come to meet me."

"I did walk down last evening, but I can hardly say, sir, that I came to meet you. I did not expect you. I thought, if business or illness kept you, you might be gone a week. I never thought of you as hobnobbing with your male friends and sauntering to the station."

"Madge!" and a serious look came into his face. "Let us drop bickering, and begin where we left off yesterday."

"Very well," she replied, "I believe the point at which you left off was whistling, and I was doing nothing in particular; so if you will strike off a stave of anything, I will demurely, but admiringly, walk by your side."

"Madge!" he exclaimed excitedly, "I did no such thing. Do men gaze at statuary or paintings and whistle?—Faith, my last remembrance is of a prettier picture than an art-room ever held. I saw a beautiful woman, looking regret at my leaving—a woman I want for my wife."

Here was a poser! Proposed to! It came like a sweet surprise, nevertheless. But it was contrary to Miss Barron's tactics. Were weeks of delightful flirting to be cut off in a moment in this fashion? How could he have believed her in earnest? It was ridiculous. She had meant to play the injured mistress for several days, and make him abject in his efforts to reinstate himself with her. She did not want a climax reached with this man. Her heart had told her it would leave a regret she had never known before. To avoid this now, she would begin with raillery.

"Really, Mr. Barrington," she said, "you must be hungry or over-tired, to make such a statement. A well-spread table, steaming viands, comfort, and a wife, must have shot through your brain. I can assure you a delightful supper now awaits you——"

"Miss Barron," he began, frowning, without apparent notice of her words, and rising to his feet, "three weeks ago I did not know you; but in that time all my life now seems to have been crowded. I never stopped to question your actions. It seemed as if there was no need of asking for vows, they would denote a commencement of love. I wanted it to be as if we had loved forever."

"Very well," she said, "let it be so; no vows, no commencement. You see I agree with you perfectly."

"No, I will not have it so," he cried, trying to take her hand.

"As you please," she laughed, shrugging her shoulders. "I can pick my way through this bog without help."

"I hope I am not wanting in gentle behavior, but before I or you stir a step further," he said, stepping in front of her and barring the way, "I want a simple answer to a simple question—plain 'yes' or 'no.' Do you love me, Madge?"

"If I cannot say 'yes,' perhaps I cannot say 'no.' I think friendship does not justify an abrupt 'no.' I—"

"I don't want equivocation," he broke in. "If you loved, eyes, lips, voice, acts, all would blend into 'yes.' It must be 'yes' or 'no,' I say."

Madge had never met any man so masterful. But she answered, nevertheless, "Then 'no,' since you force me to be unladylike."

"I do not ask you to be unladylike. I do not say you are. I asked you for your love. It was a straightforward question. I wanted a straightforward answer. My arm, Miss Barron."

And thus walking, assisting her over every trifling inequality of ground, they went on to the villa.

Miss Barron was exceedingly gay that evening. Lyndhurst loved her! Of course she was not going into any prosy engagement. She could not hedge herself in by marriage. But they could live the delightful life they had lived this last three weeks always. He had nothing in particular to do. Why could he not, when they should return to London, visit her every day? She could, she thought, flirt all the same, when he was not by; and his attentions, therefore, would be so much gained. Her life was not to be altered an iota. She did not profess to love the man. He must not, however, scatter his attentions. He must concentrate all his admiration on her.

But towards the close of the evening, when Madge found he had not sought her once, a shadow of a thought passed through her mind that perhaps he was not a poodle-dog, after all, to be led about in this way by a string.

She had sung, thinking to bring him to her side, but he had lounged away—a thing he had never done before when she was at the piano. She had taken a garden stroll with a rival, Mr. Oakley, and Lyndhurst had carelessly drawn up his outstretched legs, as he sat lazily on the veranda steps, to let them pass down, without other notice of their presence. He had, she decided, fairly ill-treated her, a lady, and she would not tolerate rudeness. She would teach him what was due to her.

But days passed. A week wore on. She found no possible chance to visit her anger on him. He never joined her. He was always civil and well-bred, but that was all. She was downright perplexed.

She scarcely ever met him, even at the table, much less of an evening. He went fishing by sunrise, rode on horseback half the day, and at night asked the gentlemen up to his chamber; the ladies, sitting lonely in the parlor, heard, through the open windows, laughter ring out, and gay songs being sung. It was getting maddening.

One evening Madge curled herself up on a sofa and looked at the matter seriously. She must outgeneral him. But how? She had tried hauteur, and it had signally failed. Now she would try a dash of "giving in," even though it hurt her to do so. She would plant herself on the old footing.

Just then Lyndhurst stepped into the room, cautiously at first, as if fearing her presence. She immediately rose to meet him. He did not start, but looked her over from head to foot without a word. She gayly said:

"Don't you think your Highness is overdoing things a trifle?" Then she lost control of herself, and showed her vexation. "Sing to me," she cried, "Walk with me, talk to me, do anything to obliterate this doleful week."

"Well, Miss Barron," he answered, coolly, "suppose we talk and walk. I'll say, under the stars, what I said under the oaks; and you shall give me a true answer."

She looked at him a moment, then fairly blazed. "I never saw such persistence. Thank heaven! I go home tomorrow, where gentlemen know what to do to a lady, and take 'no' for 'no' without getting sullen. Good night, Mr. Barrington; and, good-by. If you ever consent to be less boorish, persistent, I shall be pleased to see you in town."

He watched her out of the room and then sat down to the piano.

Miss Barron's first impulse was to seek out the party on the lawn, but somehow every face on earth but one seemed tame. Then she resolved to go into the library and read, but books were so wearying.

"I would play," she said, pettishly, if that pig-headed masculine was not monopolizing the piano."

Just at this point she burst into tears. Crying, usually, to Miss Barron, consisted of a couple of tears mopped up by a bit of lace. She had never before thrown herself down in such a limp shape, and got herself into such a thorough tempest of weeping, as now. She was an hour at it. Gradually she got calmer. She sat up, and began to consider what was next best to do.

She tried to think of going home as a pleasure soon at hand. Home! What had she there? Only an old aunt, who dozed in a lace cap, with a cup of chocolate at her elbow, half the time. The memory of the pleasant days spent here would drive her wild in that gloomy house. Then she acknowledged that it would be terrible anywhere without—without—

She jumped to her feet.

"He will drive me wild," she said, "banging in that way on the piano."

She passed into the hall and looked into the drawing-room, where he sat placidly playing.

"Poor fellow!" she thought. "How can I call it obstinacy? It looks like misery written all over his features. And isn't he superb looking? Why, no one else has approached him. And he will be mine if I say it."

Suddenly—can you comprehend it?—she walked straight into the parlor and stole up behind him, put her arms about his neck, and pressed her cheek against his.

Not a word was said for some moments; but his fingers fell from the keys, his arms drooped listlessly at his sides, his head sunk lower and lower on his breast, and Madge felt a mist gathering in her eyes, a mist of happy tears.

"Come out under the stars," she whispered, "I want to say 'yes' to you."

"I am answered, Madge," he said, drawing one of her hands over his shoulder, and talking with it against his lips. "Let us not mar this moment of surprise and joy by a single word."

"Lyndhurst, you are as provoking as ever. When I would not, I must; now I will, I shall not. I shall have to practice humility, I see, and study my lord's moods. You've played the high hand long enough, and I insist on saying 'yes' in my own way. There, now, if you don't want to speak again in an hour I will rest my face here and dream."

"I don't think you will find me a tyrant," he said, kissing her. "But come out, Madge, and let's compare our mutual miseries during the past week."

He led her through the open window, holding back the swaying vines for her to pass. There, arm in arm, under the stars, let us leave them.

THE TROUBLE AT PURFEY'S.—The other morning Mr. Mattrick Purfey, up on Clay street, left his pocket-book under the pillow when he started for the office. As it contained $500, Mrs. P. returned it to him on his return that night with a few caustic remarks on his carelessness. The next day it was the same thing, and the careless man's wife accused him of losing his mind. All went well after that until day before yesterday, when the pocket book was found by the chambermaid for the third time. The disgusted Mrs. P. determined to teach her better half a lesson. So, when she saw him coming that evening, she pinned a note on the bureau stating that she had eloped, taking the money with her, and hid in the closet to enjoy Purfey's despair.

Mr. P. walked directly up to the note, and began reading it. Instead of indulging in a wild shriek of dismay, however, he merely smiled affably, and said:

"At last, eh? I began to think she'd never take the hint."

There is gloom in the Purfey mansion just now, and, although Mr. P. insists that he was only keeping up the joke, it will be long before time removes the solemnity from his brow or the dents of the rolling pin from the back of his head.

NOTHING ON EARTH SO GOOD.—Certainly a strong opinion, said one of our reporters to whom the following was detailed by Mr. Henry Kaschop, with Mr. Geo. E. Miller, 418 Main street, this city: I suffered so badly with rheumatism in my leg last winter, that I was unable to attend to my work, being completely helpless. I heard of St. Jacobs Oil and bought a bottle, after using which I felt greatly relieved. With the use of the second bottle I was completely cured. In my estimation there is nothing on earth so good for rheumatism as St. Jacobs Oil. It works like a charm.—Worcester (Mass.) Spy.

It was at a late quarterly meeting of the Seventh-day Baptist churches in Wisconsin, that two clergymen were to present papers on the same day, and the question of precedence having arisen, Mr. A. sprang to his feet and said: "I think Brother B. ought to have the first place on the programme; he is an older man than I am, and besides is full of his subject." When the audience remembered that Brother B.'s subject was "The devil," a cheerful smile seemed to beam around the assembly.

A Philadelphia reporter has been looking into the profits made by venders who sell coal to the poorer classes by the pail or the "Dutch ton," as it is called in New York. Repulsed by a vender, he carefully measured a ton of coal and found it to contain 168 pailfuls. The vender charges 8 cents per pail, and the poor buyer thus pays $13.44 for a ton which can be bought at $5.

I waited anxiously with dread unfeigned—I held my breath; my utterances were choked—My muscles twitched, my every nerve was strained—With humid tears my handkerchief was soaked—Till in a moment agony was ceased—I quickly turned my head aside and—sneezed.

My Lady.

My lady's garden full of roses,
That trespass without stint or fear;
She daily walks therein, and I
Lie 'neath a tree until I hear
Soft footsteps on the gravel path.
My heart leaps high—I know she's near.

And now she comes, so fair, so sweet;
Her handmaids follow, tripping by.
She hardly looks at me, lovelorn,
Nor does she hear the long-drawn sigh;
And if she did, would she be kind?
Who knows? And now she's coming nigh.

And while she comes, from topmost bough
Full-throated loudly sings the thrush;
And in the border opposite
Methought I saw a pale rose flush
Rose-red with pride, when she leaned down
And plucked it from its lowly bush.

My time of pleasure draws to close;
My lady and her maids must pass
Behind that wall, and walk upon
The lawn beyond; and now, alas!
I see the last maid's flaunting robe
Rolling its length along the grass.

—Belgravia.

Uncle vs. Nephew.

The belle of the season, at Atlantic City, this year, was Adrienne Vail.

A dark-eyed beauty, with one of those rich, wine-warm complexions that remind one of Egyptian Cleopatra, lovely red lips, and white arms sparkling with cordons of precious stones and bands of dead-gold; and in the purple light of the setting sun, as she sat there in Major Brabazon's barouche, with the foam fringes of the sea on one hand, and the yellow sands on the other, she was as beautiful as a dream!

Nor was she unobserved by the stream of gay promenaders along the shore.

"It's a foregone conclusion," said old Doctor Pounce.

"She'll marry Brabazon, of course," said Mrs. Alleyne.

"She'll marry the richest man who presents himself, no matter who he he is," observed Captain Dagon, spitefully.

"The Brabazons are a wealthy family," remarked Doctor Pounce. "Not that this young fellow has much of his own, but his uncle, old Barney Brabazon, is the richest planter in Louisiana, without chick or child to inherit his wealth."

"You may depend upon it, Miss Vail has taken all that into consideration," said Mrs. Alleyne, with the quiet malice which one woman often exhibits in speaking of another. "She's the most mercenary creature on the face of the globe."

Mrs. Alleyne had spoken, if vindictively, still truly. Adrienne, with her angel-face and voice of low-toned music, was rather inclined to view mankind through the dollar-and-cent medium.

Her face was her fortune. She had been educated by a scheming mother, who, herself pinched and cramped by perpetual want, had resolved that Adrienne should bring her radiant beauty to the best possible market, and thus redeem the low estate of the family fortunes.

Adrienne's girlhood had not been like that of other children; she had tasted poverty, and been trained in the belief that happiness could only be attained by means of a golden spell.

"You must marry, and you must marry rich," was the precept which her mother was perpetually dinning into her ears—nor was she likely to forget the battle-cry, now that she was on the actual field of action.

"And I suppose," said Mrs. Alleyne, biting her lips, as she saw her own red-haired, sandy-complexioned daughter walking without any escort on the beach. "Brabazon's fool enough to believe that she really loves him for himself."

Yes—Brabazon was just such a fool. He was madly in love with the beautiful brunette—he was in a paradise of bliss as long as she sat by his side and smiled on him with those wonderful eyes of hers—and he firmly believed that, with the magnetism of true love, she shared his every emotion.

They were engaged—that is, subject to old Barnabas Brabazon's approval, for Adrienne knew that her young suitor had no patrimony of his own, and she had no mind to risk "love in a cottage" even for the sake of handsome Allan Brabazon.

"He stands in a father's place to you, Allan," she said; "and my standard of filial duty is high."

"He cannot help admiring you when he comes," declared Allan Brabazon, who had already written to his uncle upon the subject.

Old Barnabas arrived at last—a yellow-skinned, bilious-looking man, with iron-gray hair, rumpled in a crest on the top of his head, and a pair of black eyes that glowed like coals of fire beneath his shaggy penthouses of brows.

His dress was of coarse brown tweed; his boots thick; his hat a flapping Panama, which half concealed his blunt features. But his linen was exquisitely fine, buttoned with diamond sparks, and on his finger he wore an emerald ring which represented almost the value of a king's ransom.

"Well?" quoth old Barnabas, fixing an inquiring eye on his nephew.

"Uncle," cried the young man, enthusiastically, "she is an angel."

"I'll have a look at her before I make up my mind on the subject," said Uncle Barnabas.

He was taken to call on Miss Vail, and, like most other gentlemen, he "went down" at the first sparkle of her liquid, dark eyes.

"By Jupiter, Allan, you're right," said Uncle Barnabas. "She's the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life,"

So the gay season went on. The clash of the viols, cornets and trombones, made musical answer to the diapason of the waves; grim old dowagers played cards; battered beaux smoked their cigars, and strove to rejuvenate themselves once more in the fragrance of the sea-air; pretty girls flirted; handsome cavaliers held fans and bouquets, and newspaper correspondents invented all sorts of facts for the New York and Philadelphia daily press. And as time went by, a rumor obtained credence, to the effect that Uncle Barnabas Brabazon was ousting his nephew from the affections of the beautiful Miss Vail.

"There!" said Mrs. Vail, her witch-like countenance assuming a radiant expression. "Here it is in black and white. An offer of marriage! My dear, you'll be the richest woman south of Mason and Dixon's line."

Adrienne, in a lovely dishabille of white cashmere and rose-pink ribbons, sat looking at the letter, with something of dismay upon her countenance.

"Write and accept him at once," urged Mrs. Vail.

"What! that old man?"

"Old man!" screamed Mrs. Vail. "The richest planter in Louisiana! Why, child, every diamond that he wears is a fortune in itself."

"But I don't love him," pleaded Adrienne in a low voice.

"Love—bah!" screeched the old lady. "What does love amount to? A little sugar and honey, a few sweetmeats, and starvation for the rest of your life. I made a love-match—and see what a drudging career mine has been. Adrienne, don't be a fool. You will never have such another chance as this."

Still Adrienne hesitated.

"Mamma," she said, "I am engaged to Allan, and—I love him. And I will be his wife."

"But, child, don't you see what ruin that will bring upon us?" breathlessly cried Mrs. Vail. "Allan hasn't a penny of his own, and if he offends his uncle—"

"He can work for a living, mamma, like other men."

"Work—work for a living!" snarled the old lady, displaying a set of yellow teeth that would have done credit to a hyena. "And you live in a flat, and do up your own laces in the wash-bowl to save the laundress' bill, and turn your own silk dresses, and darn your husband's stockings, to lighten the expenses—you, that have the chance to button your gown with diamonds, and live in a palace!"

"Mamma," cried Adrienne, 'what would life in a palace be worth without the man you love? I won't marry old Mr. Brabazon and I will marry Allan if I have to live in barracks with him, or ride around the world in a baggage wagon."

And this was the end of Miss Vail's "mercenary" career. She wrote a resolute little letter to Mr. Brabazon, while her mother indulged in a good, old-fashioned fit of hysterics. The note was worded as follows:

"I like you very much, but I loved Allan long before I ever saw you, and I don't think I can be happy with any one but Allan; so, if you please, Mr. Brabazon, I must decline your kind offer. And pray—pray don't be any more angry with me than you can help."

Mr. Brabazon read the little, tear-stained note, and, folding it grimly up, went across to the hotel where his nephew was staying.

"Well, lad," said he, "I have offered myself—myself, mind, the richest man in Louisiana—to Adrienne Vail."

"Uncle!"

Allan started to his feet, turning alternately red and pale.

"And she has—refused me."

The young man was deadly white now. He scarcely knew what he had feared or hoped—he only felt the intense relief of knowing that Adrienne was still true to him.

"My own true love!" he muttered, between his teeth—"my little, dark-eyed jewel. If she had played me false, uncle, I believe I should have been tempted to commit suicide."

"Umph—umph!" grunted Uncle Barney. "Love—love! How these young people talk. And what, may I venture to ask, do you expect to live on?"

"I can work, Uncle Barney, for her sake," said Allan, bravely.

"Very well," said Uncle Barney. "Let's go and tell her so."

Adrienne was looking lovelier than ever, with flushed cheeks, eyes glittering with excitement, and rose-red lips.

"How is this, young woman?" demanded Uncle Barnabas. "Every one at Atlantic City told me you were a fortune-hunter. And yet I've offered you a fortune, and you have up and down declined it."

"Because I love Allan better than all the gold of California," said Adrienne, with drooping eyelashes.

"Come here and kiss me, my dear," said Uncle Barnabas. "No, you needn't be afraid—I shall not make love to you any more. I've lived to be sixty years old without marrying, and I wouldn't wed the finest woman alive. If you hadn't refused me, I should have run off to the Sandwich Islands to escape matrimony."

Adrienne opened her lovely eyes very wide.

"Why, then, did you ask me?" she said.

"Simply, my dear, to make certain that you loved Allan for himself alone, not because he was the nephew of his rich uncle. And I'm satisfied now."

"I do love him," said Adrienne, with tears in her eyes. "And I love you, too, Uncle Barney—only in a different sort of way."

"I'm quite satisfied, my dear," said Uncle Barnabas. "And I shall take it upon myself to see that neither of you perish of want."

So Adrienne Vail "married rich" after all. Rich not only in money and sugar plantations, but rich in love and true affection. Happy little Adrienne!

It is the noble people that makes the noble government.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!
Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Semiual Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.
Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:
I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.
II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.
III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.
IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.
V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.
VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopolis, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.
Our terms are as follows:
For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.
The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.
The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,
Publisher of THE SUN, New York City.

THE NEW YORK
EVENING POST
FOR 1881.
In Its Eighty-first Year.
The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.
1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.
2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.
3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first-class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents, not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.
4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.
5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions, which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 9, 1881.

The public debt statement shows a reduction in January of $7,382,167.71.

A telegraph Company, with a paid up capital of $20,000,000, is talked of. It will wire the world.

Germany has been asked to use her influence at Constantinople to prevent a rupture between Greece and Turkey.

This country stands first in the list of tobacco-consuming nations. Some persons will consider this a doubtful honor.

Lima, the capital of Peru, which the Chilians recently captured, has a population of 100,000, and was founded Jan. uary 6th, 1635, by Francisco Pizzaro.

Hon. James G. Fair is the first Democratic Senator elected from Nevada since the State has been admitted into the Union.

The State of Iowa has $2,219,328,000 invented in dairy business. Iowa should hereafter be known as the "Creamy State."

The Georgetown Memorial Church folks are arranging for the celebration of George Peabody's birthday. A fair, dramatics, and a newspaper are among the attractions.

There will be 38 Democrats, 37 Republicans, and one Independent in the Senate of the Forty-Seventh Congress. Judge Davis, of Illinois, is the one independent Senator.

The Hon. Mr. Warner, member of Congress from the Thirteenth (Ohio) District, says that in 1943 the colored population in the United States will outnumber the whites.

The fund ($250,000) to provide a pension for retiring Presidents has been raised. It is a disgrace to this vast and wealthy country that resort to such a mode for the support of ex-Presidents should have been found.

We hope the accident on Mt. Vernon street will be the means of stopping the sport on what we consider the most dangerous coasting ground in town. When we see those double runners gathered by the dozens, and hear of the accidents that are constantly occurring, and the escapes which seem almost miraculous, we cannot but feel that the dangers attending coasting on our streets are many.

They have a peculiar law in Tennessee, which provides that no drinking-saloon shall be licensed to occupy any point (except in cities and towns) within four miles of an incorporated institution of learning. This law is an incentive to temperance people to build school houses and have them incorporated, but it makes liquor-dealers hostile to the extension of the school system, and they have a habit of causing them to be burned down.

A Farmers' Institute under the direction of the Essex Ag. Society, will be held at Georgetown on Thursday the 17th inst., beginning at 9 A. M. In the forenoon the subject of "Manures and their application," will be discussed, and in the afternoon the "Sugar Beet Interest," the former opened by J. J. H. Gregory, and the latter by Benj P. Ware. It is understood that the works and methods of evaporating apples by the Georgetown Company may be inspected. All persons, members or otherwise, are invited to attend and participate.

Gen. Grant having been announced as a magazinist, the next thing is to call on him to imitate Beaconsfield and write a novel. He might find incidents in his own history more marvelous than any fiction. Twenty years ago, Gen. Grant was driving a team from a Galveston tan yard. His salary is said to have been six hundred dollars a year, and he was probably indebted to the kindness of the Dents in eking it out for the support of his family. In three years he was the commander of the largest armies the world had seen gathered; in another he was the conqueror of the greatest rebellion in history; in four more he became President of the United States; he left this office only as Mr. Conkling said to find Europe uncovering before him; he came home to be the marked figure of all others among his countrymen. What is romance to all this reality?

The New York Tribune submits the following questions to the new Administration and the next Congress: "Interoceanic Transit, embracing the railway and canal plans; the Improvement of the Mississippi River; Government Telegraphy; the Revival of American Ocean Commerce; the Extermination of Polygamy in Utah; the erection of New States from our Western Territories; the Silver Question, including efforts at International Bimetallism and the abandonment of the short-weight dollar; Postal Savings Bank; a Constitutional Amendment authorizing a National Marriage and Divorce Law; an Amendment providing a way to force Repudiating States to pay their debts; a Revision of the Tariff to simplify and improve the Protective System; the strengthening of the Federal Election Laws." Congress has a big job on its hands.

The problem which England has to solve in Ireland seems to grow more intricate every day. Meantime the feeling in Ireland grows more and more bitter. It is good advice which the "Irish national directory" gives to Ireland, that "the time to strike has not yet come," and to "beware of bengi misled by false and foolish outbreaks." The difficulty with Ireland in all efforts to obtain what she thought was needed, has been the tendency to rush into open and frenzied opposition to somebody. Ireland needs relief, but we are not so sure that relief means independence. The latter is of less consequence than is an improved condition of things, more ownership in land and more conservatism in their own interests. Self-control will enable Ireland to secure what she needs. Open revolt will only repeat the old story of bloodshed and submission.—Eagle.

Of Gen. Butler I know nothing. He being a democrat, his course and mine are widely different. His nomination for senator by the Democrats was not a surprise, because he had declared for them and they were forced to do something for him. He is, I have no doubt, trying to shape things so as to become the governor of the State. This he can never do while sailing under the flag of the Democratic party. They are not strong enough to elect him, and his former Republican friends will never vote for him so long as he professes what he does at present, because they do not believe in democracy.—William A. Simmons.

SALEM ITEMS.—A large company was present at the Coffee party held by Hose Two on Thursday evening last. Good music, good coffee, and a good time generally, served to make it a pleasant affair for all concerned. Their next sociable will occur on Thursday evening, Feb. 17th.

Mr. Benj. Price, the dry goods dealer, has removed his stock of goods from the eating saloon of Burchsted & Woodbury, where they have laid since the fire, to the store lately occupied by Mr. A. H. Taylor, music dealer, a few doors above Mechanic Hall.

"The Guv'nor," which is having such great success at the Boston Museum, will come to this city on Monday evening, Feb. 14th, under the management of Mr. John S. Moulton.

Mr. James F. Almy gave a description of his rambles abroad, confined principally to the ocean voyage and tours in Scotland and the British Isles, before the Essex Institute, at the regular meeting Monday evening.

General George H. Pierson died of consumption at his residence on Pleasant street, about two o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Pierson has been postmaster for about twelve years, and his death will be regretted by a host of friends.

EDITOR OF PRESS,—As there are reports circulating that my watchman refused to blow the whistle during the Mary Marsh fire, I would say no one asked him to blow it; and the fire being at such a distance, and the alarm having been given at the Square, he thought no necessity existed to give extra alarm. GEO. UPTON.

Sun Storms.

January, 1880, has been a stormy month on the sun. Tempests powerful enough to sweep every living thing from the face of the earth have spent their force upon the great glowing orb, and their effects have been visible at the distance of ninety odd million miles. Those who have not looked at the sun through a telescope since 1878, when its broad disk was as free from spots as the polished gold case of a watch, would be astonished at the change in its telescope appearance. It is now like a shield of a warrior, dented and pierced by many fierce strokes. On some days an opera glass powerful enough to define the curve of an actress's eyebrow has sufficed to show the dark nucleus of a solar cyclone. Spots larger than this earth have appeared and vanished. Day after day the whole surface of the sun has been mottled and wrinkled under the strain of forces so tremendous that in comparison with them the strength of a volcano seems puny.

The spots have gone trooping across the disk, with the revolution of the mighty globe, in groops and rows, singly and in pairs. Huge groups have been seen to split up, smaller spots have been formed and destroyed in a few hours. Whether, as some have supposed, the spots are caused by the fall of enormous meteoric masses upon the sun, or are produced by the up-rush or down-rush of gaseous matter, or are the result of both the causes, the effect upon the observer is the same. He cannot escape the impression that the great fireball he is looking at is the sport of elemental forces of the most gigantic power and activity.

There have been only three clear days during January, when, with an ordinary spyglass, the sun's disk appeared unspotted. These sun storms are not likely to decrease in fury for some years yet. The new spot period is just beginning, and before it passes astronomers hope to have learned far more about this interesting and puzzling subject than they know now. The weight of evidence shows that there is close relation between the condition of the sun and the earth's meteorology. Hundreds of telescopes are daily turned upon the sun from all quarters of the earth, and careful records of observations are kept. There has been a vast advance in our knowledge of the great luminary since the second Herschel suggested, only some twenty years ago, that the curious bright spots in the sun known as willow leaves might be gigantic living beings, whose intense vitality made them glow so dazzlingly. Yet what has been learned is slight in comparison with what remains to be learned.

But touching this matter of recognition of people in heaven, let me suggest. A great many folks talk of heaven as if it were a spot of such limited extent that they would naturally run against about everybody they ever knew, in a couple of days at the most; nay, some seem to think that all their friends and acquaintances will be drawn up in a row to receive them. I trust this will not be so, in my case at least, for, if some of my friends should be drawn up in a row to receive me, I should certainly run. I have seen so much of them on the earth that I should like to take a rest of a few thousand years before I meet them again. One of the happiest points in my conception of heaven is, that it is large enough to enable me dodge a great many people. That is felicity.

I do not feel that I shall be disappointed in this conception. I think of heaven not as a place, but as places, many and far apart. It is a vast realm or realms. The distances with which astronomy is familiar would be inadequate to measure the smallest segment of its inconceivable circumference. It lies within the domains of Him in whose sight a thousand years is as a day; and a thousand years of ceaseless travel there will master less of its spaces than a day's travel here enables you to master of the spaces of the earth.

But, though there are many we do not wish to meet, there are those we must meet, or heaven would be less than heaven. Hands that we must clasp; voices we must hear; faces into which we must look once more, yea, be privileged to look forever. I have within me the sweet faith, call it childish if you please, to believe that by and by the old dear faces will be seen once more; the trusty hands clasped again; the loved voices heard anew, and all the sweet lost things will come sailing back to us, like ships which parted in the night and the stroke of the tempest, at sunrise, with sails all washed, and fairer than they went, come hurrying back to anchorage. We shall find what we miss by and by.—Rev. W. H. H. Murray.

The indications are that the military review on the occasion of Gen. Garfield's Inauguration will be the grandest since the review of Sherman's army in Washington. Military companies from every State in the Union will participate.

Spoopendyke Bathes Mrs. S.

"Now, my dear," said Mr. Spoopendyke, as he bounced out of his bathing-house and thumped on the door of the one occupied by Mrs. Spoopendyke, "are you ready? We must hurry into the water and out again, or we won't get through in time for dinner."

Mrs. Spoopendyke emerged, bent almost double and shivering with cold.

"Isn't it rather chilly?" she asked.

"Not at all, Mrs. Spoopendyke, not at all; the air is rather cool, but the water is warm. If you are going with me you want to move along."

As they reached the beach, Mr. Spoopendyke left his wife and boldly strode into the surf. A wave broke over him, filling his eyes, nose, ears and mouth, and then he strode out.

"What are you standing there for, eh?" he demanded. "What do you take yourself for—a lighthouse? Did ye come down here to take a bath, or are ye waiting for some ship to tie up to you? What is the matter with you, anyway?"

"I'm afraid of the waves," whimpered Mrs. Spoopendyke; "they're so big."

"Oh! they're too big for you, ain't they," retorted Mr. Spoopendyke.—"Wait till I get a man to saw you off a little one. Better get measured for one to suit, hadn't ye? It's the big waves you want, I tell you. Look here!" and Mr. Spoopendyke marched boldly into the sea again. Another wave caught him, and landed him high and dripping on the beach.

"Why didn't ye come when I called ye? What d'ye want to make me walk all the way up here after you for?" shrieked Mr. Spoopendyke. "Are you waiting to be launched like a ship? Can't you walk as far as that? What are you hoisting up the legs of your pants for? They ain't skirts. Now look at me. See how I go in, and you follow me when I beckon to you.—Watch me now."

Mr. Spoopendyke plunged in and swashed around a few minutes in safety, but the treacherous water was biding its time. Another wave caught him and rolled him over, pumped itself into his stomach, drew him under, whirled him around, and finally deposited him, howling, on the sand.

"Got most ready to go in," he jerked out, as he climbed up himself and assumed the perpendicular. "Think I'm going to slam around here all day like a waterspout, waiting for you? What did you come here for? Find any fun in standing out there like a soda-water sign? Why don't you get into the water if you are going to? Come on now."

"I'm afraid," sniveled Mrs. Spoopendyke. "If I go in I know I will be drowned."

"No, you won't get drowned, either. Can't you hold on to me? What did you put on the shirt and trousers for if you meant to get drowned? What are you doing around here? Now when I go in again, you come along, or else you go home."

Mr. Spoopendyke plunged into the surf, but as he came up he missed the rope. For a second or two he sprawled around, and then begun to yell. Mrs. Spoopendyke eyed him for a moment, and then her fears for him overcame her fears for herself, and with a yell she dashed in, and hauled him out by the hair.

"Dod gast the water!" choked Mr. Spoopendyke; "I'm full of the measly stuff. So ye got in, didn't ye? Let go of my hair, will ye? Let go, I tell ye! What d'ye think you are, anyway—a steam-barber's shop? Going to let go that hair sometime?"

But frightened out of all reason, Mrs. Spoopendyke clung still, and hauled Mr. Spoopendyke to his bathing-house.

"Oh, if I hadn't saved you!" she sobbed.

"Oh, yes, you saved me, didn't you," sneered Mr. Spoopendyke. "All you want is four air-tight compartments and two sets of thole-pins to be a patent life-raft. Are you going to let go of that hair?"

And as she released him they went to their separate apartments.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Senator Morgan of Alabama, made an intensely Southern speech the other day. "Well may the South," he said, "be solid. Well may she stand by those friends in the North who stood by her in her hour of trial and suffering!" We call those who so "stood by her," "Copperheads," you know. He then proceeded to characterize the acts of Northern soldiers and of Northern Congresses precisely as if all the deeds done by the Union army, after the South fired on Sumter, were aggressions in a time of peace. Yet he is considered by the Southerners one of their soundest lawyers and clearest thinkers, much as Edmunds is ranked among us.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

FIRES. — At about ten o'clock last Thursday night, fire was discovered in the house of Miss Mary Marsh, on Summit street, South Peabody. An alarm was given, and the Gen. Sutton steamer, with four horses attached, immediately proceeded to the scene of conflagration, as did also the S. C. Bancroft hand engine company. But little could be done by the firemen, because of a lack of water near the house; they had to locate at the brook, which was some distance off. The fire is supposed to have originated from hot ashes being placed too near a pump in the kitchen, which was encased with hay, to keep it from freezing. A gentleman by the name of Young, who occupied the room over the kitchen, first saw the flames, and gave the alarm. There were two other persons in the house, Miss Mary Marsh and Miss Webster. Miss Marsh became confused, and was prostrated by inhaling heated air, having a very narrow escape.

The house was built in 1766, and was entirely destroyed, together with the shed and carriage house. The house contained many relics of by-gone days, rare and valuable articles of antique furniture, eighty years' files of the Salem Gazette, etc. The loss is estimated at $2,500. The property was insured in the South Danvers Mutual—$900 on the house, and $150 on the shed and carriage house. Rumor said that a large amount of silver was in the house at the time, and treasure seekers have been busy digging over the debris. About $12.00 in silver and a lot of silver spoons melted and run together have been found.

While proceeding to the fire the hub of the steamer was broken.

The alarm of fire on Monday evening, about ten o'clock, was caused by the discovery of a fire in the house of Michael Lynch, on Fulton street.—Through the efforts of Brooks Bagley, of the Torrent, and Richard McElligott, of the Volunteer, the flames were extinguished with slight damage, which otherwise, owing to the close proximity of other houses, might have proved a serious conflagration. The department was not needed. Michael Flynn, of Boston street, fell from a ladder a distance of some twenty feet, but sustained no injuries, save a few slight bruises.

RUNAWAYS. — Last Monday afternoon one of the town horses, which was being worked in clearing the gutters, came dashing past our office on its way to its quarters at the engine house, and alarming rumors instantly became circulated that its driver, Mr. Brown, would soon need the attention of the town undertaker. This was soon disproved, however, by the appearance of Mr. Brown on the track of the runaway, and a subsequent interview developed the following facts: While on Central street the horse became frightened and commenced to run. The young man then in charge was similarly affected. Mr. Brown made a jump for the animal's head, but unfortunately being some thirty feet off at the time, he missed him by a few inches. No serious damage is reported.

A sleigh driven by James Farnham, and owned by George Upton, was upset on Franklin street, Tuesday afternoon, when turning round. The horse ran to stable. Slight damage to sleigh.

FATAL ACCIDENT. — On Saturday evening a boy named John Kelley, aged 15 years, while sliding down Mt. Vernon street, fell from his sled.—While attempting to rise he was struck by another sled following close after, and a frightful gash made behind his right ear. He was carried into Mr. William Purtell's, and Drs. Pike and Frost were summoned. The boy was carried to his home on Harris street, where he died about midnight, Sunday.

A USEFUL INVENTION.—Mr. Thos. I. Noyes, of Peabody, is the Essex County Agent for Henis' Self-Basting Broiler, which excels anything of the kind yet invented. It is easy to handle, basting the meat while broiling; the cost is small, and no housekeeper should be without it.

Mr. William Buxton, a deaf mute, fell on the ice in the vicinity of Poole's Hollow, one night last week. He was found by the police, and conveyed to his home on Andover street. His hip was found to be badly injured.

Season tickets for the annual fair of Gen. Lander Post 5, G. A. R., of Lynn, are for sale at Starr C. Hewitt's. Tickets for the fair of Post 89, G. A. R., of Beverly, may be obtained of Samuel Southwick.

The Irish Land League are making arrangements for a Coffee party at Upton's Hall, to be held Feb. 22d.

SPIRITUALISM.—Mr. J. Frank Baxter held forth in Temperance Hall, last Sunday afternoon and evening, to good audiences, composed largely of those who believe in Spiritualism, and a slight admixture of many other shades of opinion, even including a member of the Catholic Church. The subject of Mr. Baxter's lecture was "Spiritualism in Retrospect and Prospect," which was an elaborate and argumentative defense of Spiritualism, delivered with vigor and much fervor, quoting largely in defense of his theory the views of some of the ablest writers and preachers in the land. Like Robert Ingersoll —whom Mr. B. evidently admires in many respects—he takes exception to incidents related in Holy Writ, such as Joshua commanding the sun to stand still, and the whale swallowing Jonah, treating them with ridicule. The exercises were interspersed with the singing of songs by Mr. Baxter, such as "After Many Days," "Only Waiting," "By and By," "One Step More," rendering them with much sweetness and pathos. The meeting closed with exercises in Mediumship, the speaker, while in a trance, mentioning in succession the seeing of forms of some of our well-known departed citizens.

WEST PEABODY FARMERS' CLUB. The fourth meeting of the club was held at West Peabody School House Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 4. About 45 persons were present. Subject: "Value of the Root Crop for feeding Stock." The first speaker, Mr. Horatio Bodge, was in favor of raising roots to be fed to stock in winter. He thought the mangel-wurzel was best for feeding to milch cows; ruta-bagas and carrots contained more fattening qualities; that larger quantities of mangels will grow on less ground with less expense than other roots. Mr. James P. King, Mr. E. Herrick, Mr. C. S. Emerton, and others spoke in favor of roots as being valuable for feeding to stock. There were five new members joined the club, and three joined at the last previous meeting.

Judging from indications in various quarters, the coming season will be a lively one in the erection of new dwelling houses in this town. The constant influx of new comers, with the inevitable demand for tenements which will follow, and the small interest paid on bonds and other investments, will give an incentive to a large number to embark in this line. One thing is certain: Every new tenement within a convenient distance of the centre of the town, which can be secured at a reasonable rent, will be sure to find occupants. The demand is constant, the supply limited, and we are glad to note that the indications point toward the erection of quite a number of tenement houses the next season.

The lecture given by Rev. Mr. Harmon, last Sunday evening, at the Universalist Church, was fully as interesting as any preceding it. He gave a history of the barbaric methods of punishment in vogue in England and in this country a century ago, the stringent and cruel laws which oppressed the poor, the loose manners and morals of those times, and comparing the present with the past, drew an encouraging picture of future generations. His subject next Sunday evening will be "The Sunday Question in the Past and To-day."

To-morrow evening, in the vestry of the Baptist Church, an excellent entertainment and oyster supper will be given. The entertainment will consist of readings by the accomplished and talented young reader, Miss Addie Ryerson, of Boston, who has made herself very popular with our people, and singing by the choir. A full attendance is desired.

The third anniversary of the re-institution of Holten Lodge, I. O. O. F., will be celebrated at Peabody Institute, on Thursday evening, February 24th, by Moulton & Bennett's Juvenile Opera Company, in the "Bells of Corneville." This, like the preceding anniversary entertainments, will be free to the friends of the order who obtain tickets.

Mr. Charles E. Teague has just the arrangement for the bad and slippery walking. It consists of an ingenious contrivance, which is a positive safeguard, when in use, against slipping on the ice or any smooth surface; when not in use it shuts up in the shank of the shoe out of the way. Call and see it.

The Murray Association will give Baker's drama, "My Brother's Keeper," in the Universalist Vestry, to-morrow evening. It will be a pleasing entertainment, and it is often the case that our home talent gives better satisfaction than many of the shows that appear under other circumstances.

Mr. J. Frank Baxter will continue his meetings at Temperance Hall, next Sunday afternoon and evening.

SWEETSER'S

DRUG STORE,

NO. 37 MAIN STREET,

PEABODY.

Drugs and Medicines of all kinds; Toilet Articles, Sponges, Brushes, Perfumery, &c., kept constantly on hand.

Prescriptions carefully and promptly prepared.

Worldly Trifles.

Paragraphs marked with a ☞ are Advertisements.

To enlighten a little boy at Waterbury, Conn., the other day, the teacher asked him if he had a sled and his father should give him another, how many he would then have. He promptly replied, "I'd have a double-runner."

☞ Malt Bitters regulate, purify, strengthen and nourish the maternal functions.

The lecturer who had an audience of three old maids and one man and his wife said that he drew a full house—three of a kind and a pair.

☞ Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, etc., guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One pill a dose. 25 cents.

"O mother, may I go out to skate?"
"O yes, my darling daughter!
Be sure you don't fall on your pate,
But sit down as you oughter."

A derrick is a bivalve, because it is a hoister.

Get your spring poetry ready now, and avoid the rush next May.

☞ Women with pale, colorless faces who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion.

A devout Methodist asked Wesley what he thought as to his marrying a certain woman well known to both.—Wesley advised him not to think of it. "Why," said the other, "she is a member of your church, isn't she?"—"Yes," was the reply. "And you think she is truly a Christian woman?" "Yes," said Wesley, "I believe she is." "Well, then, why not marry her?" "Because," replied Wesley, "because, my friend, the Lord can live with a great many people that you and I can't."

☞ A Boy Again.—Pain and sickness bring on old age with fearful rapidity.—They make an incessant drain on the vital forces, and the weary steps and faded cheeks of age often comes when the enjoyment of life should be at its highest. Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" turns this kind of old age into youth again. Headache, pains in the limbs, troubles of the liver, bowels or kidneys vanish before it, and the feeble men and women become like rollicking school boys and girls once more. One Dollar a bottle, either at your druggist's, or from the Dr. at Rondout, N. Y.

The other day a mild little man, with an invalid wife and seven children, won a big black bear in a raffle in Memphis. The bear was raffled off because it ate up its last owner, and the little man who made the lucky throw is just wild to know what to do with it.

Having been cured by St. Jacobs Oil, I recommend the same to all sufferers with Rheumatism, says Mr. L. Shiffman, 2804 Calumet Ave., Chicago, Ill.—La Crosse Republican Leader.

"A citizen of New Jersey, recently introduced to a newly-married man, congratulated him warmly, and said, "Ah, those Paterson girls make clever wives; I've had three of 'em."

A game of baseball is like a buckwheat cake—a good deal depends on the batter.

☞ "Nothing but Compound Oxygen Saved Me."—"Compound Oxygen has certainly done wonders in my case," writes a gentleman from Eufaula, Indian Territory. "Before I commenced taking the Oxygen I had taken in the way of medicine about everything that was recommended for Consumption to no effect. I had been sick in bed for about thirty-eight months in all, and in less than three months from the time I began taking the Oxygen I was up and getting about. Had been given up by the doctors to die time and again; but I still live, and believe that nothing else but Compound Oxygen saved me." A letter received five months later from a brother of this gentleman, says: "Your Compound Oxygen has in the case of my brother performed such a miraculous cure—for we attribute it to nothing else—that I have concluded to test it myself." A Treatise on Comdound Oxygen, its nature, action, and results, sent free by Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Philadelphia.

From a telegram to your shoemaker—Make me another pair exactly like my last.

Venison is plentiful, but deer, as usual.

Hunted down—the incipient mustache.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.—The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum: the private parts are sometimes affected: if allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Dr. Swayne's All-Healing Ointment is a pleasant sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Price 50 cents, 3 boxes for $1.25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price in currency, or three cent postage stamps. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., to whom letters should be addressed. Sold by all prominent druggists.

THE GREAT HEALTH RESTORATIVE.

FIFTY years of faithful attention to the minutest details in the Growth, Selection, and preparation of its ingredients entitle this great original Family Medicine to the confidence of those desiring a pure, safe, effective, and genuine Blood Purifier, Spring Medicine, Appetizer and Tonic. It has been publicly indorsed and prescribed by hundreds of the greatest American physicians, among whom are Drs. Valentine Mott, Dixi Crosby, and Prof. Cleaveland. Every druggist familiar with its virtues will bear testimony to its universal excellence, unequaled purity and never-failing success. It is a

GENUINE SHAKER MEDICINE,

Invented by Thomas Corbett, and prepared for fifty years by the Canterbury Society of Shakers, at Shaker Village, N. H. Those who have failed to be benefited by other Sarsaparillas are earnestly desired to make a single trial of this pure and wholesome compound of Shaker Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Yellow Dock, Mandrake, Black Cohosh, Garget, Indian Hemp, and the Berries of Juniper and Cubeb united with Iodide of Potassium, made by the Society, because it is safe, never-failing, and adapted to all ages and both sexes.

It cleanses the blood, regulates the stomach and bowels, purifies the system of humors and inherited diseases, and is of priceless value in maintaining the health of the household. Inquire for Corbett's Shakers' Sarsaparilla. Sold everywhere.

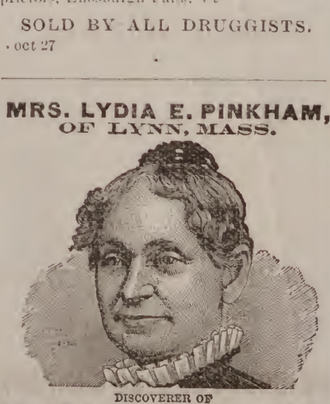
Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents.—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse, and both horses are to-day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Respectfully yours,



H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Scientific.

The exhibition of Siemens' electric furnace for the melting of refractory metals, such as platinum, iridium, steel, &c., recently given before the Royal Society, London, is noted in the scientific journals. It appears that, in the small furnace operated on this occasion, the positive electrode, which was made of iron, entered from below the crucible containing the metal to be melted, whereas the negative electrode—this being a rod of carbon—was attached by means of a lever to a solenoid regulator. The crucible was surrounded by charcoal contained in a copper vessel, to prevent loss of heat, and so intense was the heat accumulated that, in about twenty minutes, two pounds of broken files were completely melted. The arrangement was such that it may easily be applied, it is said, on a large scale. Electric fusion has the great advantage of entirely excluding the atmosphere, and consequently the products of combustion, from the substance in the crucible.

A writer in Nature argues that meteoric matter falling upon the earth must, in the lapse of ages, materially contribute to the substance of the earth's crust; that in the course of a year millions of meteors enter the earth's atmosphere, most of which are "consumed" in the higher regions, but many particles reach the earth without having undergone change, and there is little doubt that, high above the earth's surface, the air is impregnated with dust. Again, the researches of Von Niessl show that many of the meteoric masses enter the earth's atmosphere in directions indicating that they do not belong to our solar system, rendering it probable, therefore, that a large quantity of meteoric dust is derived from sources outside our system. The earth and the planets, as they are carried along with the sun in its motion through space, would thus receive a larger proportion of meteoric matter on their northern than on their southern hemisphere.

As a test for organic impurities in water, the use of a dilute solution of tannic acid has recently been suggested—the test solution to contain five per cent. of tannin, and five parts of it to be added to one hundred of the water. If organic matters be present, a pellicle or scum will rapidly form; this scum formation can be recognized by the immediate appearance of an iridescence or play of colors, and the growth of fungus vegetation can be detected without a microscope, by the little bubbles of carbonic acid which collect around the edges of the surfaces. In every sample of water where this turbidity or scum is formed, or where a fungoid growth occurs soon after the addition of the tannin solution, organic matters are certainly present. When these organic matters have been destroyed by evaporating, heating, &c., no such turbidity or fungoid growth occurs on addition of the tannin solution.

The prismatic spy glass, or condensed opera glass, is a wonderful advance, in respect to power, on the latter instrument, as ordinarily constructed. In the improved apparatus, as invented by Porro, the chromatic prism has a convex surface, and serves thus as an objective glass and receives the rays, reflecting them by interior total reflection to a second reversion prism, and finally to the eye. The surface of this prism is ground as a convex lens, and serves as such. These spy glasses are very short, and magnify some ten diameters, or one hundred times the surface, while an ordinary good glass of this kind magnifies no more than four or five diameters. They are also provided with a hair micrometer, in order to enable artillerists to measure distances with them. The focusing is done by an upward or downward motion of the second reversion prism.

That the hardest steel is not the most durable for railroads appears from an examination of the wear of some of the steel rails on the Great Northern line, England. Seven of the rails, which lay side by side on this road, were taken up and tested, and it was found in one instance that a hard rail had been worn away one-sixteenth of an inch by traffic amounting to 5,251,000 tons, while a soft rail for the same amount of wear had withstood 8,402,000 tons; in another instance, the total was 15,531,000 tons for the hard rail, and 31,061,000 tons for the soft rail, the wear being the same—one-sixteenth of an inch. Analysis showed this last rail to consist of 99.475 per cent. of iron, and very minute quantities of carbon, phosphorus, silicon, manganese, sulphur and copper.

A new and useful coloring element is now obtained from camphor, the chief feature of value in this dyestuff—a yellow—being its brilliancy and fastness for textile fabrics. It can be used upon linen, cotton and silk, with no apparent difference in density and brilliancy, and goods thus dyed are said to be entirely unaffected by the ordinary tests to which they must be subjected in use. Boiling for hours in a strong soap solution barely turned the shade of a cotton sample. With indigo a handsome green has been produced. In regard to the cost of the new dye, it is stated that it may be produced at a very low rate, and the processes involved are said to render it one of the very simplest coloring matters to make and apply.

Potato flour, or the dried pulp of the potato, is obtaining great importance in the arts It is stated that in Lancashire, England, twenty thousand tons of it are sold annually.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

Ladies:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

337 Tremont St. Boston, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following—

214 Cambridge St., Boston, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy, and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere House, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him.

Boston, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is praising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

Sherburne, Mass., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

Sherborn, Mass., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rheumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

Woburn, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

South Framingham, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

Assabet Mills, Maynard, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

HAPPY CHILDREN.

HOW TO MAKE THEM SO. KEEP THEM IN HEALTH AND THEY WILL TAKE CARE OF THE REST.

The joy of every well-regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than through culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and home. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the Blood, which, when impure, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw this article. Make no mistakes. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Parties living at a distance, (except in surgical cases,) by sending a statement of their case can be treated at home.

The greatest fisherwoman in England is Lady Caroline Lennox, daughter of the Duke of Richmond, who is a wonderful hand at landing salmon.

Krupp has lately designed a new gunboat for the German navy, to have a speed of twenty miles an hour and to carry a 50-ton gun mounted on a pivot and non-recoil system.

Jem Mace, the once well-known English pugilist, is keeping a large hotel in Melborne. He is said to have become a "model moral man," and is, moreover, making money fast.

Mr. Kennedy has a ranche near Corpus Christi, Texas, which has nine miles front on the bay and extends back forty-five miles, with 180,000 under fence. On this immense pasture are 50,000 head of cattle and 10,000 horses.

Arsenic was used for soda in a Tennessee wedding reception, recently, and five of the guests are dead and thirty others are dangerously ill. The bride and groom escaped, being too much absorbed in each other to partake of any cake.

The best place to find quail in the Ohio Valley are along the lines of the various railroads, to which the birds are attracted by the grain which sifts through the cars. They have got so that the passage of trains does not frighten them.

A little boy under five years of age fell from the fifth story of the Home of the Friendless, Baltimore, the other afternoon, to the ground, a distance of over eighty feet. His legs were both broken below the knee, but he was conscious when taken up, and his injuries are not thought to be fatal.

An Illinois tramp, desiring to commit suicide, tried in vain to beg a dose of laudanum, to borrow a knife, and to steal a pistol. Then he hanged himself with a halter in a stable, but was cut down and kicked out. His final and successful resort was to lay his head on a railroad track in front of a locomotive.

A brakeman on a belated Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train was sent back to signal an approaching locomotive. The weather was very cold, and, sitting down on the track by a fire to warm himself, he soon fell asleep. The locomotive came along without warning, and there was a collision, in which the slumberer was killed.

The establishment of a new Carmelite convent at Fulham, England, is opposed by the county magistrates because they learned that the nuns would be imprisoned for the rest of their lives, and that although their friends might see them, conversation must be through the thick gauze wire that covers the opening in the doors of the cells.

Dr. J. C. Thompson first saw Miss Collet when she acted as a bridesmaid at his wedding, at Sedalia, Mo. He could not fail to note that she was far prettier than the bride, and within a short time he informed her that he regretted she was not his wife. She suggested that the mistake might be rectified by elopement, and they disappeared together.

The bridegroom did not appear at a Sacramento wedding until an hour after the appointed time. His excuse was that, going to a saloon for a drink of brandy to brace up his courage, he had unaccountably fallen asleep over the glass. A subsequent investigation showed that he had been drugged at the instance of a girl with whom he had broken off an engagement.

The statue of Stonewall Jackson for New Orleans is 9 feet high. The figure stands in an easy position, grasping a field-glass in the left hand; the dress is rather negligent; the head is covered by the old Confederate kepi. The statue will surmount the monument over the tomb of the Association of the Louisiana Division of the Army of Northern Virginia in Metairie Cemetery.

Charles P. Haskins ran the Punch and Judy show connected with a circus. He was arranging the curtain over the framework, preparatory to a performance at Dawson, Ga., and a crowd of children were watching his movements with lively interest. He fell on his face, and they laughed heartily, supposing that he was fooling; but when he was lifted up they saw that he was dead, apoplexy having killed him.

A gentleman in business in New Bedford twenty-five years ago gave a man credit for $15 worth of goods. The debtor soon after failed, and the creditor being satisfied that everything was all right pocketed the loss. Ten years afterward the debtor paid his creditor $15, the amount of the principal. Here it was thought the matter would end, but recently, the debtor gave his creditor a genuine surprise by paying him $26.56, the amount of interest from the time of contracting the debt.

George Bates, a St. Louis negro, gave his bride a gold watch as a wedding present. He had stolen it, and, when it was found on her, she was arrested. She would not betray her husband, and, consequently went to prison for two years as the thief. Bates did nothing to help her, and his neglect turned her love to hatred. She spent her odd moments in sharpening a file, and when she was discharged it was as keen as razor. She returned to her old haunts, waited until her husband presented himself, and stabbed him to death.

Facts About Salem.

The following is one of the late H. O. Wiley's poems that does not appear among his published book of poems:

The ancient old city of Salem,
It never was builded by men,
But just as you see it at present,
It always and always has been.

The houses the people now live in,
Were made when the world was first made,
And when the great darkness was lifted,
They stood, as they stand, in the shade.

The streets, they were laid out and graded
The very first day of the six,
And long before nine in the morning,
The mortar was made and the bricks.

And when he was only an infant,
An hour or two old, as I think,
Young Adam walked down to the market,
And purchased his first morning drink.

And Eve after eating the apple,
She went into Peabody's store,
And bought the first pattern of fig-leaf,
Which ever the good woman wore.

And Cain, after taking off Abel,
He walked right away on his feet,
And married his first wife in Salem,
And lived upon Washington street.

Methuselah read the old Gazette,
And wrote for it once in a while,
And the faintest hint of wit would cause,
That ancient old fellow to smile.

And though he lived to a green old age,
And never was counted a dunce,
In all of the weary years he lived,
The poor man only smiled once.

The Salem folk were a quiet folk,
Their ways were peculiar and odd,
And being a sort of a drowsy place,
It was known as the land of Nod.

'Tis pleasant, it must be, to live in,
A place that is finished and still,
No sound of the axe or the hammer,
Or vulgar dull hum of the mill.

The beautiful city of Salem,
It grows as the trees grow, you see;
And that it has always existed,
Is proof that it always will be.

SOURCE OF PERSONAL BEAUTY.—A beautiful person is the natural form of a beautiful soul. The mind builds its own house. The soul takes precedence of the body, and shapes the body to its own likeness. A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. A sensual disposition deforms the handsomest features. A cold, selfish heart shrivels and distorts the best looks. A mean, groveling spirit takes all the dignity out of the figure and all the character out of the countenance.—A cherished hatred transforms the most beautiful lineaments into an image of ugliness. It is as impossible to preserve good looks with a brood of bad passions feeding on the blood, a set of low loves tramping through the heart, and a selfish, disdainful spirit enthroned in the will, as to preserve the beauty of an elegant mansion with a litter of swine in the basement, a tribe of gypsies in the parlor and vultures in the upper part. Badness and beauty will no more keep company a great while, than poison will consort with health, or an elegant carving survive the furnace fire. The experiment of putting them together has been tried for thousands of years, but with the unvarying result. There is no sculptor like the mind. There is nothing that so refines, polishes and enobles face and mien as the constant presence of great thought. The man who lives in the region of ideas, moonbeams though they be, becomes idealized.—There are no arts, no gymnastics, no cosmetics, which can contribute a tithe so much of dignity; the strength, the enobling of a man's looks, as a great purpose, a high determination, a noble principle, an unquenchable enthusiasm. But more powerful still than any of these as a beautifier of the person, is the over-mastering purpose and pervading disposition of kindness of the heart. Affection is the organizing force in the human constitution. Woman is fairer than man because she has more affection than man. Loveliness is the outside of love. Kindness, sweetness, goodwill, a prevailing desire to make others happy, make the body a temple of the Holy Ghost. The soul that is full of pure, generous affections fashions the features into its own angelic likeness, as the rose by inherent impulse grows in grace and blossoms into loveliness which no art can equal. There is nothing on earth which so quickly transfigures a personality, refines, exalts, irradiates with heaven's own impulse of loveliness, as a pervading, prevailing kindness of heart. The angels are beautiful because they are good, and God is beautiful because he is love. —Christian Globe.

THE USE OF MILK,

Doctor Crosby, of the Bellevue Hospital, pronounces milk an article of diet which all persons may use, under all conditions. There are those who say that they cannot take milk, that it makes them bilious, etc., but he delares that this is not true. A person who is sick may take milk with the greatest possible advantage, because it contains, in the form of assimilation, all the elements essential for maintaining nutrition.

It is the natural aliment of the young animal, and certainly answers a good purpose for the old animal, provided it is used properly, and not poured into a stomach already over-filled, as though it had in itself no substance or richness. New milk, as he does not hesitate to say, may be taken—as far as disease is concerned—in nearly every condition. Perhaps it will require the addition of a spoonful or two of lime-water.

The addition of a little salt will often prevent the after-feeling of fullness and "wind on the stomach," which some complain of. If marked acidity of the stomach is present, then, perhaps, a little gentian may be requisite to stimulate the stomach somewhat, and it may be necessary to give it in small quantities, and repeat it often, but ice-cold milk can be put into a very irritable stomach, if given in small quantities and at short intervals, with the happiest effect. It is used in case of fever, which formerly it was thought to "feed," and when scalded it has a desirable effect in summer complaints.

But it is an article of diet for people in health, and who wish to remain in that happy condition, that milk should be most appreciated. For the midday lunch of those whose hearty meal comes at night, or for the supper of those who dine at noon, nothing is so good.

The great variety and excellent quality of prepared cereals give a wide choice of food to use with milk. Bread—with berries in their season or baked sweet apples—boiled rice, cracked wheat, oatmeal, hulled corn, or hominy, taken with a generous bowl of pure cold milk, makes the best possible light meal in warm weather for children, and for all adults who have not some positive physical idiosyncrasy that prevents them from digesting it. The men of the firmest health and longest life are the men of regular and simple habits, and milk is a standard article in such a diet.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE.

The conflagration of the scaffolds intended for fireworks for the celebration of the marriage of Louis XVI. is generally known. Amid the distracted multitude, pressing on every side, trampled under the horses' feet, precipitated into the ditches of the Rue Royal and the Square, was a young man, with a girl with whom he was in love. She was beautiful; their attachment had lasted several years; pecuniary causes had delayed their union; but the following year they were to be married.

For a long time the lover protected his betrothed, keeping her behind him, covering her with his own person, sustained her strength and courage. But the tumult, the cries, the terror and peril, every moment increased.

"I am sinking," she said; "my strength fails—I can go no further."

"There is yet a way," cried the lover, in despair; "get on my shoulders."

He feels that his advice has been followed, and the hope of saving her whom he loves redoubles his ardor and strength. He resists the most violent concussion; with his arms firmly before his breast, he with difficulty forces his way through the crowd; at length he clears it. Arrived at one of the extremities of the place, having set down his precious burden, faltering, exhausted, fatigued to death, but intoxicated with joy, he turns round. It was a different person! Another, more active, had taken advantage of his recommendation; his dear one was no more.

A TERRIBLE POSITION.

J. A. Bonn, a tight-rope acrobat, who was announced to appear at Clyde, Ohio, recently, was so drunk upon his arrival in the town that the people thought it would be foolhardy for him to attempt his rope-walking performance. Nevertheless, having fortified himself with several drinks, Bonn climbed the tower of the Town Hall, and started to walk the rope. The hundreds who had gathered below shouted to him to go back, but Bonn kept straight ahead, apparently staggering at every step. Suddenly the drunken performer dropped his balance pole. The crowd groaned and many persons hid their eyes. Bonn fell backward, but like a flash his right leg wrapped around the rope and held on. He said afterward that the loss of his pole sobered him instantly.

COULDN'T BE FOOLED.

A Galveston darkey has returned from a business trip to the interior of the State very much disgusted.

"Didn't you receive any offers to pick cotton?" asked a friend.

"Yes, sich as dey was. A man offered me one-third ob de amount I picked, and when I looked at de field I saw for myself dat when it was all picked it wouldn't 'mount to one-third, so I left for home."

"You was in luck dat he didn't fool yer."

"You bet I was, Sandy. My refmetic is all what sabed me. I tell yer all, send yer childrens to school."—Galveston News.

TO SUFFERERS FROM CATARRH.

Statement of Rev. E. W. Whitney,

Universalist Pastor.

For several years I have been troubled with Catarrh, which seriously interfered with my public speaking, and which baffled all my attempts to get permanent relief. Experienced surgeons operated upon me, and I was under the care of a Boston physician for two years, but obtained no lasting benefit. I applied various remedies, but failed to get relief, and was led, by advice of friends, to consult Dr. Lighthill. My faith was at the lowest ebb, but am happy to say that after a few months' treatment, no trace of my old trouble appears, and I have every reason to believe that the cure is permanent. I cordially recommend Dr. Lighthill to all who may be afflicted in a similar manner. E. W. WHITNEY.
Peabody, Mass, June 27, 1879.

From the Rev. E. C. Butler,

Of Beverly, Mass.

I most heartily recommend any one afflicted with that troublesome disease, CATARRH, to Dr. Lighthill. I have full confidence in him; his treatment has had the most gratifying results in my own case, which was severe and of long standing. E. C. BUTLER.
Beverly, Mass, Oct'r 29, 1879.

Letter from W. R. Pedrick,

Of the firm of Pedrick & Glosson, Lawrence, Ms.

My dear Dr. Lighthill,—The fall of 1878 found a member of my family suffering severely from chronic catarrh, extending from the posterior nasal passages through the larynx into the bronchial tubes. Perhaps for three years or more the disease had been making slow but sure inroads, not only locally, but also upon the general health, until it became evident that relief must speedily be obtained, for the symptoms told too plainly what the result would be if longer neglected. I was led to consult you in the matter by the advice of those whom I personally knew you had cured of similar complaints.—Your treatment resulted, I am happy to say, in a complete cure, and all the dreaded symptoms, such as extreme throat suffering, distress in the head, and nasal and vocal organs, pains in the lungs and a constant susceptibility of severe colds, attacking the head, throat and chest, have entirely disappeared. I am very grateful to you for your very kind and gentlemanly deportment, and am most thankful for your skilful and successful treatment and care of this much beloved member of my family. You are at liberty to refer to me or mine.
Yours, truly, W. R. PEDRICK.
Lawrence, Nov. 4, 1878.

A Card from Mr. R. S. Lambert,

Butter Merchant, 12 Washington Market, Boston.

The remarkable cure which Dr. Lighthill performed in my case, after other celbrated physicians failed to even relieve me, demands a public expression of gratitude.

I was a great sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form, to such an extent that my friends thought me in consumption; but thanks to Dr. Lighthill's skill, I am now perfectly well, and free from all those loathsome and disgusting symptoms attending such a disease, and weigh twenty pounds heavier than I ever did.

I would earnestly advise all similar sufferers to apply to Dr. Lighthill, 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St.

PERMANENT CURE OF DEAFNESS.

From Hon. A. M. McPhail, Jr.,

Piano Manufacturer, 185 Washington St., Boston

Dr. Lighthill,—Dear Sir,—I take great pleasure in saying that your professional efforts in my case of deafness, some years since, resulted in a permanent cure, and were in the highest degree satisfactory.
I have the honor to be very truly yours,
A. M. McPHAIL, Jr.

CURE OF HEART DISEASE AND CATARRH.

From Mrs. M. A. Emery.

Mr. Editor,—Allow me to express my gratitude to a real benefactor through your columns. For six years I have suffered from Heart Disease and Catarrh so very intensely that my life was despaired of by my physician as well as my friends, and when I first consulted Dr. Lighthill, I myself feared that my lease of life was fast drawing to a close, for I was extremely debilitated, in great state of suffering, and withal greatly discouraged; but my first interview with the Doctor inspired me with hope, and ere I had been under his care but a few weeks I began to improve in health, strength and spirit, and this improvement has steadily continued until I was completely restored. My wonderful recovery astonished all who knew how great a sufferer I was. In gratitude to Dr. Lighthill, and for the benefit of other sufferers, I make this public statement. Yours, truly,
Mrs. M. A. EMERY,
359 Lowell Street,
Lawrence, Sept. 21, 1880.

HOPE FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

A REMARKABLE CURE.

From G. H. Robinson, of Methuen.

Dr. Lighthill has done wonders for me. My case was a serious Throat and Lung Trouble, pronounced by several physicians Consumption, for I had many of the worst symptoms of that disease, but from the beginning of Dr. Lighthill's treatment I commenced to improve, and now I am happy to be able to call myself a well man. G. H. ROBINSON,
Methuen, Nov. 1st, 1880.

Please Remember—Dr. LIGHTHILL'S Office is at 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St., Boston.

The Bridegroom to his Bride.

[The following beautiful lines were written by Mrs. Mary E. Folsom, of Springfield, Mass., upon the recent occasion of the anniversary of the golden wedding of an aged couple in Chicopee, Mass.—ED.]

I look into thine eyes, dear wife,
Dear wife of fifty years,
And think of all our wedded life,
Its happiness, its tears.

Its rosy morning, fresh and fair,
Comes back to me once more;
When burdens seemed as light as air,
That we together bore.

When toil was easy, pleasure keen,
And joy a thing divine;
Because of all the love between
Your faithful heart and mine.

Then came the little ones whose grace
And beauty were our pride;
O, dearer was each darling's face
Than all the world beside!

Together o'er each cradled head,
We've watched while "baby" slept;
An dbitterly above our dead,
We have together wept.

But God is good. Those little graves
Are heaven's doors they say;
And our beloved ones He saves—
He takes them not away.

And they are ours, yes, ours the same,
As those who still are here
To call us by a parent's name
And fill our home with cheer.

Still do I look into thine eyes,
Dear wife of fifty years;
For with the memories that rise,
There are more smiles than tears.

And in the tender glance I meet,
Love doth as brightly shine
As when a maiden fair and sweet
You placed your hand in mine.

So have we walked thro' good, thro' ill,
Together, hand in hand;
And God hath led us on until
This golden day we stand

An old man with his grey-haired bride,
O'er whom the years have rolled,
And taken youth, and strength, and pride;
But love is never old.

'Tis youth immortal—never old—
How strange it all appears
That so much love is yet untold,
O, wife of fifty years!

What Will the Boys Do?

The boys come out of the high schools of this State, we will say, intelligent, ambitious young fellows. They are fairly well educated; they have considerable knowledge of history, mathematics and the natural sciences; they have some familiarity with the literature of their own language and some facility in speaking and writing this language; some of them are good classical scholars, well up in their Greek and Latin. What shall they do, what field is there for their ambition, what have we to offer them? Some of them will continue their studies in college and enter some of the professions, a few will teach, but the great majority must look to business of some sort as the objective point of their exertions. He must learn a trade. Once this was a real acquisition. A boy learned the whole of a trade and was master of it; he could make a shoe or a coat or print a newspaper, and as soon as he could save up a little capital he started in business for himself. Here was a goal for his ambition, he could work intelligently, he could exercise the creative faculty, if he had any. Now the trades are minutely subdivided. One learns a certain small part and another another part, one polishes a heel or stitches certain seams, or tends some machine that does a certain part. Indeed there seems no room for intelligence, the workman does lovingly create, the machinery almost thinks for him, he only needs to watch it. When a successful type setting machine has been invented, this final result will be attained and machinery may be said to think. The treadmill task that is set him is not very stimulating to the ambition of the bright, well educated boy, and his individuality is lost in the "gang," in which he works. This labor, too, is poorly paid, there is not much required and not much is given for it.

And if the workman saves up a little money there is very little encouragement for him to go into business on his own account. To attempt manufacturing on a small scale is now almost hopeless. The large manufacturers swallow up the smaller. The few men, who can command large capital, put in new and improved machinery and build extensive works, monopolize the business. In the large cities the great firms kill off the smaller in every department of trade. Hundreds of the latter go under in every financial crisis and their heads accept subordinate positions in the large establishments. Thus competition is destroyed. Now competition is the life of trade, and apart from the stimulus it gives to individual ambition is a healthy regulator of prices.

It is said that the boys are over educated and thus unfitted for work. They may be too well educated to make willing hands for somebody else's brains, but the training of school, the mental discipline of algebra and Greek verbs and Latin composition must be a help to all intelligent effort. The actual facts of knowledge may not be in every day use, but quickness and readiness, power of abstraction, and a habit of concentration of thought must be valuable wherever thought is required at all. But if the boys left school at the end of the grammar school course, now that the custom of apprenticeships is no longer in vogue, there would still remain the same question, what will the boys do?—Newburyport Germ.

CARLYLE'S LAST HOURS. — Now that Carlyle is dead, everything connected with his habits, traits and idiosyncrasies has additional interest. An American who visited the illustrious author at Cheyne row, Chelsea, just before his death, relates some particulars of his visit. He found him not suffering from any particular ailment, but steadily going out of life by easy stages with entire consciousness and resignation. The famous iconoclast was seated in a half-recumbent chair in a semi-library on the second floor. His niece, a calm, thoughtful-looking little woman, was at his side to say that the correspondent could talk, but that her uncle must not. But uncle did talk, inevitably. Who could believe that a man that had passed his life in lauding silence, and incessantly breaking it, would or could restrain his speech?—The old man said, in Scotch accent, "Ah, I cannot work much more, and this of all grieves me before going. I am not ill; I never was ill [almost peevishly]; I am only going, going, going." At parting, he exclaimed with energy, "Go on; work with all your will; uproot error." On a table near him were slips of paper with notes on them in his autograph. His eye, which had not lost its lustre, looked out from under his shaggy brows, seriously, solemnly, well-nigh savagely. His face was very thin and scraggy; his beard gray, coarse, wiry; his mouth compressed, resolute, defiant. His bony, nervous hands were incased in loose woolen gloves, which he was constantly throwing off, and his niece as continually putting on; his cliff-like head was covered, not to his improvement, in a black velvet skull-cap, and he was wrapped in his favorite plaid shawl—precautions against taking cold, which it was feared would soon carry him off in his weak state. Various volumes, chiefly German, were at hand, and in the room two busts—one of William of Orange, the other of Peter the Great. Carlyle saw very few persons in his last days, being guided by his humor rather than his judgment in this, as he was in everything else. He never left the house for months, he was so weak. This irked him much, for he was greatly attached to his daily walks. He tried to work, though he could do nothing consecutive or satisfactory, and incapacity for labor tormented him, and wore greatly on his restless, fiery spirit. He died by inches, with grim, bitter, passionate patience, steadily drifting into the mighty shadow of the Unknown and Unknowable.

"Have a blotting pad, sir?" asked a peripatetic dealer, reaching out one of those absorbents. "How do you fasten the thing on?" inquired Jones, after turning it over and over. "Fasten it on!" exclaimed the peddler, "what do you mean?" "What do I mean?" cried Jones, looking up. "Young man, I've had experience in this pad business. I've bought them for the head, stomach and liver, and this is the first one I ever saw with no tackle on it. No, sir, I don't want it. Good day!" The man saw it was no use to argue with Jones.

Industry need not wish, and he who lives upon hope will die fasting.

STORMY WORLD. — This winter is one of exceptional severity in Europe as well as in all parts of the United States. People have been accustomed to congratulate themselves in the milder climate of the States and Territories of the Pacific coast, where the air is so tempered by a warm current from the shores of Japan that snow and ice are rarely seen there; but this year they are greater sufferers than we on the colder Atlantic. While the States east of the Rocky Mountains have experienced the discomforts of severe cold, on the other side of that range there has been immense destruction of property by floods that have surpassed in extent anything ever recorded before. The devastation caused along the line of the Central Pacific and in the valley of the Sacramento has been announced by telegraph, but later reports from Oregon show that also in one of the choicest farming regions of that productive State there has been serious and widespread disaster. Meantime we hear that in parts of Mexico persons have been frozen to death; that in Holland the dykes have been swept away by the sea and a whole province inundated, causing great loss of property and much suffering; that in London there have been floods and snowstorms that necessitated a temporary suspension of all business and inflicted damage to the extent of ten million dollars; that in Russia large colonies of Germans have been reduced to extreme destitution, and that in France the military have been called out to assist in clearing the roads. This is an extraordinary list of calamities from storm and winter's cold, and will doubtless be regarded by some as a fullfilment of the predictions that serious disturbances of the elements would be occasioned this year in consequence of the position of the planetary bodies, while those who have announced 1881 as the date of the end of the world will doubtless begin to set their houses in order.

THE GRANT FAMILY.—Gen. Grant, Gath says, will now have $350,000, which, invested in 4 per cent. bonds, would give him $14,000 a year income. His family are all practically independent. His son Fred is said to have $8000 a year derivable from his pay in the army and some little property his wife had. Buck Grant married the daughter of a man worth at least $1,000,000, and has about $20,000 a year income, while Buck has $100,000 invested in his business. Jessie Grant is tolerably independent. Nellie Grant is well contented in England, and her husband has respectable means. Grant's mother and sisters were left in good circumstances by Abel R. Corbin, at whose house, on Jersey City heights, they live. Mrs. Grant's sister-in-law, Mrs. Judge Dent, was left poor, but some claims, thought to be worthless, were turned to such good account by the judge's surviving partner, Mr. Paige, that the widow and children are now independent. Grant was pinched pretty close by his travelling expenses, investments in unprofitable real estate, etc., when the present subscription was set on foot for him.

DEFINITION.—Tennyson can take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth $5000.—That's genius. Mr. Vanderbilt can write fewer words on a similar sheet and make it worth $50,000,000. That's capital. And the United States government can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird," and "Twenty Dollars." That's money. The mechanic can take the material worth $50 and make it into a watch worth $100. That's skill. The merchant can take an article worth 25 cents and sell it to you for $1. That's business. The ditch digger works ten hours a day and shovels out three or four tons of earth for $1. That's labor.

By a vote of 86 to 86 the House of Representatives on Friday refused to submit to the people the proposed constitutional amendment providing for biennial elections. It is the prerogative of the Legislature to take this course, but nevertheless we think the action a mistake. It would be better to let the matter go to the people, as a good many voters desire an opportunity to express themselves on the matter by their votes. We very much doubt if the amendment would be accepted by the people, but it would be better to give them a chance to vote on it.—Lawrence Eagle.

PEABODY.

Valentines are blossoming—ditto the nose on the one we received.

Are you going to Washington to see Garfield inaugurated?

The back-bone of this winter don't break worth a cent.

The firm of Teague & Winter is dissolved by mutual consent.

The January thaw missed the train and arrived a few days too late.

Mr. S. Edson Cassino has had his house connected by telephone.

Rev. L. L. Wood will preach next Sunday evening on the subject of theatre going.

Spring chickens will be a scarce article if the hens don't attend to business a little better.

Old valentines, like old maple sugar, are always fresh, and may now be shaken out for 1881.

Charlie Teague is prepared to sell you your boots and shoes cheaper than any other place.

The horse railway put on barges last Saturday, and workmen were engaged cutting out the track on Sunday.

In the estimate for county taxes submitted to the Legislature for 1881, Essex County is put down for 153,700.

Union Post 50 have accepted an invitation to attend the camp fire of Danvers Post 90, next Tuesday evening.

Frozen and burst water pipes have been in order all winter. And the plumbers—well, theirs is a golden harvest.

The Irish Land Leagues of Peabody, Beverly and Salem will hold a mass meeting at Mechanic Hall, Salem, next Friday evening.

A petition to be presented to the Legislature, to protect pharmacy from unlicensed dealers, is being circulated by Mr. D. P. Grosvenor.

The card valentines in the market this year are of the most exquisite designs. Our advertising columns will tell you who has them.

We wonder what our friend thinks who remarked that it would not "break up" till June; that there must be ten inches of solid ice on our streets.

If you know of any event that would make an interesting item for the PRESS, jot it down on a postal and send it along. Items of local news are always thankfully received.

The St. John's C. T. A. Society will hold an assembly on Monday evening, Feb. 28th. Their assemblies are always largely attended, and a good time enjoyed by those attending.

The Jollities, in the Institute last Wednesday evening, drew a good-sized audience. The different parts were well sustained, and gave as good satisfaction as on their previous visit.

A very pleasant dramatic entertainment will be given at the South Peabody School House, to-morrow (Thursday) evening, when Baker's drama, "My Brother's Keeper," will be presented.

The farmers are anticipating an immense hay crop next summer, which is predicted as the result of the unusual amount of snow covering the ground this winter. Hope they won't be disappointed.

Once more in swift but silent flow,
The tiny flakes of spotless snow,
Fall gently through the air;
Once more the ice now covered o'er,
Will cause man's feet to upward soar,
and make him wildly swear.

A citizens' caucus is called for Thursday evening, March 3d, to nominate town officers for the ensuing year. It is to be hoped that a large number of voters will attend. The caucus will be called to order at 7 1-2 o'clock.

A visit to the hot houses of Mr. J. M. Ward on Endicott street, makes one almost forget that it is winter while walking amid those beautiful flowers. Roses, heliotropes, and handsome carnation pinks, and numerous other flowers abound on every side.

Rev. Mr. Harmon's Sunday evening lectures are attracting increasing audiences, and our young people will do well to attend them. Plenty of room up front. His next lecture will be on the place occupied by the Universalist Church at the present time.

A new society has been formed in this town, to be known as the Goldsmith Literary Society of Peabody. They will hold meetings in a room in the upper part of the building occupied by D. A. & F. H. Caskin. We learn that this will be a strictly Catholic Society.

A correspondent suggests having an article in the warrant for the coming town meeting, to see what action the town will take in regard to putting up a railing in front of Upton's building for the benefit of the crowd of curbstone loafers who hold up Mr. Pickering's awning so much of the time.

Mr. J. Frank Baxter, in response to many who are desirous of hearing him read and sing, will give an entertainment at Temperance Hall, on Wednesday evening of next week. His selections will include humorous and sentimental songs, plantation and jubilee melodies, etc. Look out for small programmes.

The Murray Club meeting on Monday evening was attended by a goodly number, who were entertained in a happy manner by vocal solos, duets, with piano accompaniment, and violin and whistling solos were delivered in good style by young ladies of the association. A good entertainment is promised for the next meeting.

The summer-like and airy look of some of the windows on the front of our (Dustin) building does not indicate that we believe with Vennor that warm weather is here, nor did the close proximity of a brass band have anything to do with it; but one of the many signs which adorn our building—the canvas one—got agitated Sunday, and the iron pipe in the bottom caused all the damage.

A young man was on his way to take his girl to one of the numerous entertainments in town last Thursday evening, when skip-snatch-rip-rise-turn-fall-kerchug, and the young man said "dammett," as he spread himself across the sidewalk, turned over in the slush and water, crawled up to the fence, and pulled himself to his feet. It was late when they arrived, and he carried his cuffs in his pocket.

We have received an anonymous communication from a party signing himself "A graduate of the High School," criticising the present officers of the Peabody High School Association, because nothing has been done by them toward holding a reunion this year. We are ready at all times to print articles on all sides of public questions, but we must know the writer's name before they appear in our columns.

A balky horse attached to one of the street cars, bothered the driver, and many others who tried to assist him, for some time this forenoon. Finally Mr. John Linehan put in an appearance, placing himself near the horse's head; and he must have mesmerized the animal, for it was not long ere it was heading for Salem as if nothing had happened. We coaxed John to learn how he did it, and his answer was, "by offering it encouragement."

An exchange accounts for the scarcity of eggs in the following way: "The egg undergoes total segmentation.—There is no food yolk, and cleavage goes quite through the egg. There is a true segmentation cavity. Segmentation is rhythmic. There is an invaginate gastrula. The larva leaves the egg as a Nauplius, and passes through a protozea stage, and a schizopod stage. The fifth thoracic segiments are entirely wanting at all stages of development." We don't wonder now that eggs are worth forty-five cents a dozen.

Our readers will soon have another opportunity of listening to Miss Addie Ryerson, as the Methodist contemplate engaging her in a short time.

We have decided that the only persons we shall "Boycott" are the undertakers, and we have entered into a solemn engagement not to ride in their wagon without the coercion bill is so enforced that we have to submit.

The ladies of the Universalist Society announce the holding of their annual Fair on next Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening.—Many pretty and useful articles will be for sale, and we have no doubt will be rapidly disposed of. Supper will be served Tuesday evening.

The Salem District Telephone Exchange is now in good working order, and any one wishing to use it to communicate with their friends near or far can do so by calling at the office. Mr. Claflin, the operator, would be pleased to give any information desired. People are beginning to realize that being connected by telephone means something more than pleasure, and that those who use it in their business find it of greater value than they at first anticipated. It has been suggested that it be brought into use by the fire department.

Owing to the number of tickets held here considerable interest was felt in the drawing of the prizes at the fair of Post 89, G. A. R., of Beverly, which took place last evening. After the prizes had all been drawn but a five dollar gold piece, it was found that there had been a mistake—that the order for the gold piece had been taken out with a blank, it having stuck to it, and was not seen by the committee. The committee decided then and there that the drawing was null and void, and that the drawing would be held this evening. By the drawing last evening, George Demerritt, of Peabody, drew the dory. In the table prizes, Mr. John Hart gets an order for a pair of pants, and Mrs. W. J. Adams a clock.

AT THE POST-OFFICE—VALENTINE'S DAY.

Ah ha! a dainty envelope, that writing
Has a similar face,
I've seen it oft, my very eyes delighting
By its grace
And curves of beauty, like the angel fair
Who wrote it,
The ink like jet, reminds me of her hair;
The seal!—I've broke it,—
Is red as her sweet lips, I long to press,
Oh! long sought bliss!
A valentine of course, and I can guess
She sent me this.
I'll now unfold it, thinking, dear, of you—
What have I here?
"Dear sir, to Jones your bill of fifty cents is Due for beer."

If the world comes to an end this year, according to Mother Shipton, we cannot undertake to forward THE SUN to subscribers who have paid in advance, to the place they will go to, but we will refund the money. Some editors are promising to forward their papers to subscribers after the general break up, but we don't propose to print half our edition on sheets of zinc to please anybody, and the paper we now use wouldn't stand the climate two minutes. No, when Gabriel sounds his trump come to the office and get your money back.—Peck's Sun.

We have received a copy of the "Annual" issued by the Shoe and Leather Reporter. It is a work which cannot fail to be appreciated by gentlemen of the trade, and contains matter interesting to all. Beside the usual almanac, it has a directory of leather dealers, boot and shoe men, furnishes many items and tables of value to those engaged either in making, selling or working leather, also attractive advertisements of many of the live business men of the trade.

The Ocean House and other property at Revere beach have been sold within a few days to a party of Boston capitalists, $100,000 being paid for the Ocean House and land, comprising 100 acres. A large hotel will be erected, a trotting park laid out, theatre buildings erected, a tidal basin constructed, and other improvements made.

The mortality among brakemen on railroads is very large. It is almost as dangerous to be a brakeman as to be a soldier in time of war.

Poet's Corner.

Now.

BY ADELAIDE PROCTOR.

Rise! for the day is passing,
And you lie dreaming on;
The others have buckled their armor,
And forth to the fight are gone;
A place in the ranks awaits you,
Each man has some part to play;
The past and the future are nothing,
In the face of the stern to-day.

Rise from your dreams of the future—
Of gaining some hard-fought field;
Of storming some airy fortress,
Or bidding some giant yield.
Your future has deeds of glory,
Of honor, God grant it may!
But your arm will never be stronger,
Or the need so great as to-day.

Rise! if the past detains you,
Her sunshine and storms forget;
No chains so unworthy to hold you
As those of a vain regret;
Sad or bright, she is lifeless forever;
Cast her phantom arms away,
Nor look back save to learn the lesson
Of a nobler strife to-day.

Rise! for the day is passing;
The low sound that you scarcely hear
Is the enemy marching to battle,
Arise! for the foe is here!
Stay not to sharpen your weapons,
Or the hour will strike at last,
When from dreams of a coming battle,
You may wake to find it past!

Past and Present.

Out of the mists of memory
A picture seems to grow,
Flushed with the hues of hope and love
That colored in the long ago;
Till the sloping rafters vanish,
The narrow walls expand,
And I loiter once more with you, my sweet,
In a fading Autumn land.

The purple fires of sunset
Flicker along the hills,
And wild in the red October woods
The rude wind pipes and shrills;
Your scarlet mantle blowing,
Your bright looks floating free,
We watch the smouldering sunset
Under the trysting tree.

Alas, for that bygone folly!
In jeweled and silken sheen,
In the gilded halls of the "upper ten,"
You move, to-night, as queen!
And I am the penniless poet still,
Whose wasted life, my sweet,
Is less to you than the cast-off rose
You trample under your feet.

Selected Story.

Rescued From Death.

On! on! hurling through the darkness; its great headlight gleaming with a fierce, angry glow, rushes the massive engine, to whose guidance at this moment are entrusted precious human lives. God pity them! They know not that ere to-morrow's sun their souls will be before their Maker, their bodies lying cold and still.

There is a crash and a roar, a fearful sound of hissing steam, and grinding splintering wood and metal; then moans and anguished cries ring out upon the night air. Only a misplaced switch, just a small thing caused by one man's carelessness, and all these mortals hurried to their death.

The dawn breaks—there are helpers enough, but their aid is only needed to draw the blackened, inert masses from beneath the crushing beams. Many a strong man shudders at the sight, and, turning away, covers his face with his hands an instant before he resumes his self-imposed task.

Are there none saved? Only one out of all the number who but yesterday were in the full vigor of life, and that one a little child. In the shock she was flung clear of the cruel flames which with eager avidity completed the work of destruction before assistance arrived.

A hoarse cry arises when she is found. A stalwart man holds in his arms the tiny, unconscious figure.

"Is she dead?" ask all, as they crowd around.

"No, only stunned."

The white eyelids tremble and then open.

"Papa," calls a sweet child voice.

The saying is true that a touch of pity makes the whole world kin; and sobs and exclamations break forth as the listeners think that the wee voice will never again find a response from a father in this world.

As time passed, much of the excitement caused by the terrible accident died out of the small village in whose near vicinity it occurred. No clue to the little waif's friends or parentage had been discovered, and after months of fruitless advertising she was adopted by the sturdy mechanic within whose arms she first opened her eyes upon that dreadful day.

There was another in whose home she would have been welcome. The minister of the parish, a reverend old man, would have been very glad to take to his lonely home the tiny girl, whose pure spiritual face had caused him to suggest for her the name of "Lily," but honest Mark Elwyn, heartily seconded by his good wife, answered him in these words: "As it was my hand that found her, and as God hasn't sent us any little ones, it is for me to keep her."

No one could tell which among the cold forms they followed with solemn faces to the village cemetery was once the "Papa" the little voice still cried for so unceasingly. The devouring element had done its work well; no clue of clothing or ornament had been left to distinguish one of the dead from another.

So little Lily was established at the forge; she was happy in her new home; for all had a kind word for the fairy-like child with her yellow hair and black eyes.

Thus the days glided by until Lily was a girl of about thirteen; then each day with her school books would she wend her way to the rectory. When Dr. Dean first proposed to Mark his plan of giving to his adopted daughter a fine education, Mark shook his head.

"Neither wife nor I have much book learning," he said; but, after much urging, at last he gave his consent. Once started, Lilly proved an apt scholar; with all the enthusiasm of her nature she set herself to climb the summit of that hill to which there is no royal road.

These were happy hours spent in the rectory library, with the venerable gray-haired man, whose words opened before her such vistas of knowledge; then after study came playtime in the kitchen, listening to old Martha, the rectory housekeeper, who loved to unfold for her small listener all her store of quaint fairy-folk lore.

Three years passed and Lily was sixteen; and with her tall, slender form, her sensitive, delicately cut face with its frame of gleaming, golden curls, and the dark orbs whose dusk contrasted so strangely with the pale hue of her hair, there were few who had not noticed and commented upon the beauty of Mark Elwyn's Lily.

One who had watched her from childhood thought to himself that the fairest object in all the world was that sweet, pure face. It was Robert Aldridge, the young curate who for the past few years had acted as assistant to his aged uncle, Dr. Dean. A frequent visitor at the rectory, he had often met Lily as she came to and fro each day; and now, as she grew from childhood into girlhood, his admiration for her lovely face deepened into a man's strong passion.

To Lily, Robert (as she called him) was as a dear, kind brother—no more. There was only one whose glance had power to call the rich blood to her cheeks, and that was the young heir of Milroy Park, the largest estate of the neighborhood. Unobserving Mark never suspected why Mr. Hector's horse so often needed his hoofs attended to, nor why scarcely a fine morning passed that the young man did not look into the cheery smithy for a friendly chat.

Hector Milroy, the only child of his haughty mother, was like many another in his possession—no better and no worse.

Handsome, with plenty of money, there was no need of him exerting himself; to take life easy, and extract from it all the enjoyment he could, was his creed, and one that he followed with an application worthy of a nobler cause. So when his eyes noted how beautiful Lily was—far lovelier than any of the wealthy daughters of titled families to whom his mother had introduced him—he determined that this was one of the "goods the gods offer," and made up his mind to avail himself of it.

In guileless Lily's eyes, the handsome youth who met her at the rectory gate, and so courteously carried her little satchel of books for her to her modest home, was all that was noble and good. So it was that to the girl came slowly that delicious dream which makes the earth like an ideal of Paradise.

There was only one to whose eyes, rendered keen by love, all was evident. Robert Aldridge gauged Hector Milroy's character at its true value; and his heart sank as he saw that Lilly's reserve was fast melting beneath the ardor of her handsome lover's eyes. He knew that what she took for pure regard was only a man's fancy for a pretty face. Still, what could he do? If he spoke to her against Hector! he feared to make her hate him; for he knew that her gentle nature could arouse itself to a passionate defense of one she cared for; then, too, should he tell her of his own love, his hopes would only be rendered more futile, for she would suspect him of interested motives.

Then came an occurrence to which the gaiety-loving villagers all looked with great interest—it was the twenty-first birthday of the heir of Milroy Park. A fete was to celebrate the event, and all, far and near, were invited.

"Wife and I do not care to go, child," said Mark to Lily; "but young folks enjoy parties and the like, so you may go, and I'll come for you in the evening."

Hector's admiration for Lily had not entirely escaped notice, and something concerning it had reached Lady Milroy's ears. So during the fete she had kept her eyes open, and before long became convinced that Rumor had warned her truly, and that if decided steps were not taken, her son might be drawn into a mesalliance.

The lawn was dotted with gay groups; but, avoiding the throng, Hector led Lily into a summer arbor by a tiny brook which wound its glimmering stream through the park.

The sun glinted through the rose-vine roof, and fell upon the girl's head, till her golden locks seemed like a halo around her perfect face. Unable to resist the witchery of the moment, Hector took the little white hand in his, and suddenly drawing Lily to him pressed a kiss upon her lips. With a quick, proud flush she sprang from him.

"Sir! Mr. Milroy! you have no right to do this!"

Only more fascinated by her coyness, Hector drew nearer to where she stood, saying softly in the tones he knew so well how to make most effective:

"Have I not a right when I love you?"

Spellbound Lily stood. Then she was right; the Apollo of her dreams did love her, and it had not been her vanity which had whispered to her heart the sweet truth. Again he spoke, putting his arm around her unresisting waist.

"Yes, little one, I have loved you ever since——"

Just then through the vine-shaded door stepped a haughty, stately figure. It was Lady Milroy. What followed; what scornful words of command to her son (who stood with angrily flushed face but quailing eyes); what insolent, proud sentences to herself, Lily could never remember accurately; but the sight of the man's cowardly bearing whom she had thought so noble, left its indellible impression on her memory. Not one word did he speak in her defense.

After Lady Milroy had finished, the girl who she had called "low and intriguing for a rich husband," with a proudly erect head, looked the wordly woman full in the face.

"Madame, more words are unnecessary. Were your son to woo me upon his bended knees, I would never consent to marry him now." A look of intense scorn, before which Hector Milroy shrank, filled her eyes as she emphasized "now."

On the lawn were still grouped the croquet players; but quietly and unnoticed, Lily left the gay scene.

As the days passed she seldom saw Hector, and she would have been glad if his face had never passed before her vision again, so entirely had his cowardly behavior killed her love for him.

Three years more went by, and during one of them Mark Elwyn had been killed by an accident. His faithful wife did not long survive his loss, and with mournful tears Lily grieved in the empty home for the only father and mother she had ever known. Then, at Dr Dean's earnest solicitation, she went to the rectory to "be a staff to his declining years," so he worded it.

There to her, after a time, came wonderful intelligence. While traveling, during his vacation, in America, Robert Aldridge had heard of a large fortune which awaited an heir. The coincidence of the date of the disappearance—which no one could account for—of the last heir with his infant daughter, and the date of the railroad disaster from which Lily had been saved, struck him. On inquiring further, he was shown a picture of the missing gentleman, and recognized it as a fac-simile of one which Lily always wore in a locket around her neck.

Convinced that the inheritance belonged to Lily, he returned to England to obtain more proof, if possible.

During the months he was gone, Lily had grown to acknowledge to herself how much she missed the young curate's dark, earnest face; and she could not help but confess that it was with no mere sisterly affection she regarded him, though Robert had never shown by word or deed that he loved her.

It was afternoon. Robert Aldridge walked slowly up the road to the rectory, anxious to tell to Lily the strange story of the fortune which perhaps awaited her, yet fearing it would make still more impassable the gulf between them, for he imagined she still cared for Hector Milroy.

As he entered the gate the sun was setting in a blaze of glory. Lingering lights were tingling with a delicate glow the nodding, white lily buds, and falling caressingly over the dainty, girlish form; she stood—her back to him—gathering a spray of the red rose vine which covered the old porch with its clinging, fragrant branches. Unable to control himself, without pausing to think, Robert sprang forward and encircling her with his arms, drew her to his heart, uttering in glad tones his words of greeting. "My darling! how happy I am to see you again!" She turned her face suddenly and looked at him wonderingly. His arms dropped. What had he done? Why had he so rudely dispelled the calm, friendly feeling which heretofore had existed between them; but as Lily looked into his face, she reads its expression rightly. She waited a moment; then with a soft, flitting blush she laid her little, soft hand in his, when Robert knew he was forgiven, and that Lily loved him at last.

It was proved without much difficulty that the child saved from the railroad disaster, was really the heiress of the fortune which for eighteen years had been awaiting its owner. Her father, Mr. Munroe, a wealthy widower, had been known to be traveling in England; but suddenly all communications from him ceased, and no clue to his whereabouts could be found. It created a great sensation when the story became known, and Hector Milroy knit his brows with useless rage and chagrin, as he listened to Dr. Dean's trembling voice as he read the beautiful marriage service which united the two who were so well suited to each other.

Miscellaneous.

Paying in Chickens.

There is an article going the rounds of the papers relating how a man went to Moore, editor of the Rural New Yorker, and said that he was too poor to take a paper. The following is the gist of the story:

Mr. Moore said, "You raise chickens I believe?"

"Yes, a few; but they don't bring anything hardly."

"Don't they? Neither does my paper cost anything hardly. Now, I have a proposition to make to you. I will continue your paper, and when you go home you may select from your lot one chicken and call her mine. Take good care of her, and bring me the proceeds a year from now, whether in eggs or chickens, and we will call it square."

"All right, Brother Moore," and the fellow chuckled at what he thought a capital bargain. He kept the contract strictly, and at the end of the year found that he had paid about four prices for his paper.

We allude to this to warn newspaper men not to adopt the plan, when some farmer grumbles about paying for his paper. Don't never enter into such a bargain with a farmer. We know, when paper is high, editors are liable to take their pay in truck, and the above article looks so plausible that some poor country editor may think there's millions in it, and he will go to speculating in chickens that way. But we warn them that they are liable to get left. We tried it there once at La Crosse.—Uncle Eliakin Barlow came in one day and said our paper didn't amount to a string of suckers, and he would be tetotally gum-squizzled if he would take it any longer unless he could pay in trade. He sold milk and kept chickens. We could get milk, but Eliakin was always playing common cow's milk for his "Jersey cow's" milk, so we concluded to suggest this chicken dodge that Moore tried with such good effect. We wanted to teach him a lesson, so we told him to go home and pick out a chicken and call it ours, and give us the proceeds in two years from date, whether it was eggs or chickens. He bit like a bass. He said he would do it, by the great jewhillikins. So he went his way and we went ours. Many a time during the two years did we estimate the amount of poultry that would be ours. We built a hen-coop and got ready to go into the hen business. The day the two years were up we drove out to Eliakin's place to take an account of stock. Eliakin was milking a "Jarsey" cow, there near the pump, and he said when he got through "stripping" he would show us our property. Well, after a while he got up off his milking stool, kicked a little rheumatiz out of his hind leg, and said:

"Come around the barn, you red-headed financier. You middle man, you monopoly, come here."

He took us into a yard, and there were at least 100 hens. We looked at them with astonishment. Pointing to a sickly-looking yellow fowl, with one leg froze off, and which looked as though it hadn't life enough to pick up an angle worm after a hen had scratched it up for him, Barlow said:

"There, that are cussed yellow rooster is the one I picked out for you. He never has laid an egg, and has never had sand enough to associate with the rest of the chickens, and he never has increased any. How much have you made on this trade?"

We hope to be hornswoggled if it wasn't true, and the rooster wasn't worth 4 cents. And to make the matter worse, Eliakin presented a bill to us of $4.80 for corn our rooster had eaten in the two years. It is needless to say we have demanded cash of our subscribers since. No, young man—you who are fresh in the newspaper business—don't never try to get ahead of one of these Grangers on a chicken trade.—Moore may have had a she hen assigned to him, but it would not occur once in a thousand times, at least it wouldn't out West here.—Peck's Sun.

PLEASURES OF FREEZING.—Jasper Perley, a Cattaraugus County farmer, nearly froze to death recently. When found he was insensible in the bottom of his sleig. He was rubbed with snow and otherwise treated to revive the circulation. After a good deal of thorough manipulation and rubbing, Perley was brought around, when a few doses of whiskey sufficed to restore him to nearly his normal condition. He thanked restorers very heartily, and gave an account of his misfortune, which affords some inkling of the sensations of people who freeze to death.

When he felt no longer able to hold the reins with any grip, he determined to seek shelter in the first house until well warmed. His tongue became stiff, then his arms, sharp chills ran down his back, and finally it seemed as though his whole body was being congealed, causing an almost total cessation of the heart's action. This condition of extreme suffering and despondency speedily gave place to a feeling of grateful warmth, suffusing the system and causing an exhilarating glow. By this time he had reached a house, but he drove on, thinking that nothing was now to be feared. The sleigh, instead of crawling along at a snail's pace, appeared to glide through the air with great swiftness, and the horses fairly flew like pigeons. A sense of exultation filled the Cattaraugus farmer's breast as he urged the horses to still greater speed, and the woods on either side were passed so quickly that they became indistinguishable black lines. Then the sleigh bells sounded fainter and fainter, until the chimes disappeared in the distance, the farmer fell gradually into a delicious slumber, which came near being the sleep that knows no waking, and he knew no more until brought back to life under the vigorous treatment.

The stalwart Democrat, Watterson, of Kentucky, is sort of down on both parties, just now, we judge; for he converses as follows:—"The Republican party is a very bad party; but it is a very strong party and a very smart party. All the keen rascals in the country have contrived to get into it. The Democrats only get the useless rascals, the fools and soreheads."

A Maine man has regularly received the Congressional Globe and Record for the last thirty-six years, and has read every copy. We have heard of walking-dictionaries and encyclopedias, but this is the first walking-waste-basket we have ever heard of.

NO EXCUSE FOR LIVING A SINGLE LIFE.—In Cincinnati they have organized a matrimonial insurance company, the plan of which we recommend to some of the unmarried. The plan is this:

Any person unmarried (including widows and widowers), of good character and reputation, regardless of age, may become members without submitting to a medical examination, but by simply paying the admission fee, dues and assessments. There will be three divisions of the company. The first division will entitle the members to a policy of $500, the second to $1000, and the third $1500. The dues, assessments and admission fees, of course, will differ accordingly. In the first division the admission fee is to be $5, the assessment not to exceed $1, and the yearly dues $3. Division No. 2 has a $10 admission fee, an assessment not to exceed $1.50, and yearly dues of $6. The third division has an admission fee of $15, an assessment not to exceed $2, and yearly dues of $6. Any member who marries before having been a member one year forfeits his right to membership. Whoever marries after the first year's membership, but before having been in the association two years, shall receive half of the policy within sixty days, and the other half at the expiration of his second year's membership. All who have been members two years or more before marriage shall receive the entire amount within sixty days after depositing their marriage certificates with the company.

OUR BREAKFASTS.—The American's breakfast bill of fare is varied but little: beefsteak fried or baked potatoes, griddle cakes with syrup, or hot muffins and biscuit, are the articles he sighs for and will have, despite the threatenings of dyspepsia. Across the water, they shudder at the American breakfast, while they discuss their chocolate, delicate rolls, soft-boiled eggs and fruit, with appetite. To those accustomed to more hearty food, it seems at first as if it would be impossible to accomplish the work of half the day upon a breakfast of rolls, eggs and chocolate; yet after one has become accustomed to the habit it is difficult to partake of a more substantial meal early in the day without discomfort. And surely a breakfast of chocolate, rolls—fresh baked, but not hot—oatmeal, eggs and fruit, is fit for a king. It is varied, nutritious, delicate and easy to digest, and it contains nothing fried. If we could only banish the saucepan's contents from our breakfast-table, and bring up our children equally to dread Satan and shun that which is fried! How many little ones in this free land, after cheerfully munching their crisp, greasy potatoes, and hot fried pork or beefsteak, enter the school room to fall into all kinds of trouble. Their brains are disorganized by the indigestible food they have eaten. If we should feed them upon milk, oatmeal, and such nourishing things in the morning, with plenty of rare, broiled beefsteak at noon, they might not develop immediately into little angels, perhaps, but they certainly would have rosier cheeks and brighter minds. The question of what one shall eat is inexhaustible, however, and every one has a different opinion concerning it. It is the business of the housewife to know something about the subject from a chemical standpoint, and to regulate the dinners of her family so that they may not only be palatable but healthful. Pies, puddings, rich pastry of all kinds, in fact, should always be tabooed in a family where there are no children, but after these are denied a diet may be described which is at once wholesome and appetizing. There is a great deal in the manner of preparing food to render it harmless. For instance, the oyster, either boiled, stewed, or raw, is the most easily digested of edibles; but fried, it stands revealed as the father of nightmares. Yet, such is the contrariness of human nature, most people prefer it fried! Few of us can resist a dish of crisp, smoking oysters thus prepared, even at breakfast time, though it be much more virtuous to eat a buttered roll. An unruly appetite leads us into all manner of trouble.

ART AND ARTISTS.—The French people have got a white elephant, in the shape of a bequest by Mme. Thiers of the works of art collected by the late M. Thiers, coupled with the stipulation that the collection must be placed in the Louvre, and that a special room be built for it exactly resembling its present abode in the Place St. Georges.—The authorities would very much rather that the bequest had not been made, or at all events with this proviso, for the museum at the Louvre is, like the British Museum, already overloaded with treasurers, and, apart from the halo of the deceased statesman, there is nothing in the articles themselves beyond mediocrity, the collection being, in fact, a fair sample of paintings and pottery of no special rarity or interest.

BOWKER'S HILL AND DRILL PHOSPHATE

SEND FOR PAMPHLET.

This is a true bone superphosphate, and may be used on any crop, in the hill or drill or broadcast, either with or without manure, and will produce a much earlier and larger crop. In the Report of the Mass. Inspector of Fertilizers, its valuation is from $3 to $10 per ton higher than other Phosphates which sell at the same price. The past year over 3000 tons were sold against 100 tons three years ago, showing that it is liked by the farmers. If there is no local agent near you, send to us.

WHY THE NEEDLE POINTS NORTHERLY.

The reason why the needle points in the northerly direction is that the earth in itself is a magnet, attracting the magnetic needle as the ordinary magnets do; and the earth is a magnet as the result of certain cosmical facts, much affected by the action of the sun. These laws have periodicities, all of which have not as yet been determined. The inherent and ultimate reason of the existence of any fact in nature, as gravity, light, heat., etc., is not known further than that it is in harmony with all the facts in nature. Even an earthquake is in perfect harmony with, and the direct resultant of, the action of forces acting under general laws. A condensed explanation in regard to the needle pointing to the northward and southward is as follows: The magnetic poles of the earth do not coincide with the geographical poles. The axis of rotation makes an angle of about twenty-three degrees with a line joint to the former. The northern magnetic pole is at present near the Arctic circle on the meridian of Omaha. Hence the needle does not everywhere point to the astronomical north, and is constantly variable within certain limits. San Francisco it points about seventeen degrees to the east of north, and at Callas, Maine, as much to the west. At the northern magnetic pole a balanced needle points with its north end downward in a plumb line; at San Francisco it dips about sixty-three degrees, and at the southern magnetic pole to the south end points directly down. The action of the earth upon a magnetic needle at its surface is of about the same force as that of a hard steel magnet, forty inches long, strongly magnetized, at a distance of one foot. The foregoing is the accepted explanation of the fact that the needle points to the northward and southward. Of course no ultimate reason can be given for this natural fact any more than for any other observed fact in nature.

REMARKABLE SOMNAMBULISM.

Says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal: The night of the recent fire at North Turner bridge, Mrs. Albert Winship aroused Mr. Winship and cried:

"Husband, Mr. Starbird's house is all on fire! Hurry up!"

He did so, dressed on the double-quick, and with pails ran to the fire, and did valiant service in saving surrounding buildings. When the fire had burned down, he quietly went to bed. Sunday morning he rubbed his eyes and said to his wife:

"I feel dreadfully; I am lame, and feel dreadfully exhausted."

"Well you may," said his wife; "after working so hard at the fire last night."

"What do you mean?" said Mr. Winship.

"Why, the Starbird house was burned down last night, and you worked like a hero saving the other buildings."

Mr. Winship looked dazed for an instant, then took his hat and looked over the premises and came back.

"Well, Marcia, the buildings are surely gone, but I never would have believed even you, when you say that I went to that fire, if they were not gone. I don't know a thing about it."

He had been through all the excitement in a state of somnambulism without being awakened.

VAMPIRE BATS OF BRAZIL.

Probably no part of Brazil is more afflicted than a portion of the province of Bahia with the scourge of vampires. Whole herds of cattle are sometimes destroyed by this venomous bat. It was long a matter of conjecture how the animal accomplished this insidious and deadly work; but scientific men have now decided that the tongue, which is capable of considerable extension, is furnished at its extremity with a number of pipillæ, which are so arranged as to form an organ of suction, the lips having also tubercles symmetrically arranged. Fastening themselves upon cattle, these dreadful animals can draw the blood from their victims. The wound, made probably from the small needle-like teeth, is a fine round hole, the bleeding from which it is very difficult to stop. It is said that the wings of this deadly bat fly around during the operation of wounding and drawing blood, with great velocity, thus fanning the victim and lulling while the terrible work is in progress. Some of these creatures measure two feet between the tips of their wings, and they are often found in great numbers in deserted dwellings in the outskirts of the city. The negroes and Indians especially dread them, and there are numerous superstitions among the natives in regard to them.

VENEZUELAN BELL-RINGERS.

How these bells are rung! Surely out of no other bells is there so much clangor got as out of these Venezuelan church bells. The bell-ringer is a stalwart fellow, who clambers up close beneath his awful instrument, braces his feet firmly on two cross beams, grasps with both hands a sort of handle on the bottom of the clapper, and sets to work. His head is in the bell, and the spot behind it is the only one he doesn't manage to strike. He pounds on all sides with fury; his blows are delivered with frightful activity in a sort of rythm to which a very active jig-dancer could keep step well; he exerts himself with the tempest of sound, of which he is the centre, and seeks to redouble his efforts; only when exhaustion forbids the prolongation of his wild delight does he stop and mop his brow. His only rival in musical action is the tamborine man of a minstrel troupe, but his instrument discounts a myriad of tamborines.

Hours have wings and fly up to the author of time.

ENGLISH KISSES.

The women of England (says Polydore Virgil) not only salute their relations with a kiss, but all persons promiscously, and this ceremony they repeat, gently touching them with the lips, not only with grace, but without the least immodesty. Such, however, as are of the blood-royal do not kiss their inferiors, but offer the back of the hand, as men do by saluting each other. Erasmus writes in raptures to one of his friends on this subject. "Did you but know, my Faustus," says he, "the pleasures which England affords, you would fly here on winged feet, and if your gout would not allow you, you would wish yourself a Dædalus. To mention to you one among many things, here are nymphs of the loveliest looks, good humored, easy of access, and whom you would prefer even to your favorite Muses. Here, also, prevails a custom never enough to be commended—that wherever you come every one receives you with a kiss, and when you take your leave every one gives you a kiss; when you return, kisses again meet you, If any one leaves you, they leave you with a kiss; if you meet any one, the first salutation is a kiss; in short, wherever you go, kisses everywhere abound; which, my Faustus, did you once taste how very sweet and how very fragrant they are, you would not, like Solon, wish for ten years' exile in England, but you would desire there to spend the whole of your life." Antonio Perez, Secretary to the Embassy from Philip II. of Spain, writes thus to the Earl of Essex:—"I have this day, according to the custom of your country, kissed at an entertainment seven females, all of them accomplished in mind and beautiful in person." Dr. Pierius Winsemius, historiographer to their Mightinesses, the States of Friezland, in his Chronijck van Friezlandt, printed in 1662, informs us that the plesant custom was utterly unpractised and unknown in England (just as it is this day in New Zealand, where sweethearts only know how to touch noses when they wish to be kind), until the fair Princess Rouix, the daughter of King Hengist of Friezland, "pressed the beaker with her lipkins" (little lips) and saluted the amorous Vortigern with a husjen (little kiss). —The Parisian.

A TRUTHFUL MAN.

A flat-footed, old-fashioned Western merchant, hailing from a country store in Michigan, was buying stock in New York recently, and the firm took advantage of the occasion to make inquiries concerning some of their customers around him. When they asked about Smith, of Cashville, he replied:

"Smith! Yes, he in trade yet, but he's just married a second wife, and she's going through his wealth like saltpetre. He'll fail in less'n six months?"

"How about Jones, of your town?"

"Jones! Well, Jones is pegging along after the old style, and he's bought him a bicycle, and everybody says he'll go to the wall in a year."

"And Brown & Son—are they all right?"

"Brown & Son? Well, they may keep along till spring, but I doubt it. Old Brown has got so near-sighted that he can't tell a sheep pelt from a coon-skin, and the boy is dead stuck on a widow woman who never wears anything less than six-dollar stockings."

"But Davis is doing a good trade, isn't he?"

"Davis! Well, pooty fair, but he won't last. He rented the upper part of his store to a Chicago milliner, and she broke up two families and caned a preacher. Everybody blames Davis, and his sales last week only footed up a pound of saleratus and a washboard."

"Well, you are the only customer out there, and, of course, you are all right."

"Me! Well, I'm all right just now, but things may change. My wife belongs to three literary societies and is the big toad at church festivals, while I've bought a 2:40 trotter and learned to play old sledge. You needn't be surprised any day this winter to hear that I've been busted from garret to cellar; so clean that creditors can't find enough dry goods to wipe a baby's nose on."

A CHURCH MOTTO.

The building committee of a church recently finished in New Jersey, wanted a stone slab over the door, with the name of the church and a scriptural motto. It occurred to them that nothing could be neater than "My house shall be called the house of prayer." So one of the committeemen, who was in a great hurry, told the stonecutter to chisel on the slab the thirteenth verse of the twenty-first chapter of Matthew. He thought the verse ended with the words he wanted to use. The stonecutter took the whole verse from the Bible, and faithfully copied it to the end. Imagine the horror of the committeemen when the stone was delivered. It read: "My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves." The stonecutter insisted that he had obeyed orders. But the committeemen insisted that the motto he had inscribed was not what they wanted, and that it would be of no particular use to them. That slab is now in the stonecutter's yard, and anybody who wants it for a tombstone can probably buy it cheap.

It is not the height to which men are advanced that make them giddy, but the contempt with which they look down on those below them.

Character is power; it makes friends, creates funds, draws patronage and support, and opens a sure way to honor, wealth and happiness.

Have not the cloak to make when it begins to rain.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN's habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.

Our terms are as follows:

For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,

Publisher of THE SUN, New York City.

THE NEW YORK EVENING POST

FOR 1881.

In Its Eighty-first Year.

The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.

1. The Evening Post for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.

2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.

3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its financial and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.

4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to antidipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.

5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions, which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 16, 1881.

PROF. HILL, principal of the Normal School at Oregon, Mo., will be private Secretary to President Garfield. Prof. Hill and President Garfield are old friends.

CONGRESS has refused to create a Department of Agriculture. That such a department is needed we certainly believe, and that the Cabinet will have to be increased it is safe to assert. Seven is the number of Cabinet officers, and it has been the number for thirty-two years. In the meantime, when we consider the increase of the country in every way during that time, the necessity of increasing the Cabinet is very apparent, and what interest is more deserving of representation than that of farming.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL BALDWIN has just made several important rulings: (1) That the Orphan Fund of an Odd-Fellows' Lodge falls within the subdivision of section 7, of the present law, and is exempt from taxation. (2) Only a Trustee of a town has power to appoint a town Marshal and a right of action for trespass would be against a Marshal appointed by a Peace Justice in case of arrest. (3) An Auditor cannot fill a vacancy in an assessorship case specially provided; otherwise the appointment falls to the Commissioners.

NOW comes a Mr. Schade, of Washington City, who is the owner of a brick house in that city wherein the lamented Abraham Lincoln died, and wishes to sell it to the Government for a good price. The house is much visited by sight-seers; the door-bell is being rung by them at all hours of the day, and the owner has not the means to provide a door-keeper, and he, therefore, wants the Government to take the property off his hands. If Mr. Schade were a shrewd Yankee he would charge an admission fee of fifty cents, advertise liberally through the papers, and make a fortune.

THE Legislature of Indiana will enact a law this winter making it felony for any one to buy or offer to buy the vote of another at any general election. If the Massachusetts Legislature will do the same — make it a crime to buy a vote, but not a crime to sell a vote, there will be little more heard on the subject of buying votes. No man would be willing to buy the vote of a dirty scoundrel, who can go and vote and send his purchaser to the penitentiary, which he would be likely to do as soon as offended. A man who will sell his vote, or buy the vote of another, is wanting in everything pertaining to good citizenship.

WE were somewhat amused recently by reading the resolutions passed at a meeting of the Irish Land League in Somerville, in which the chairman of that meeting was instructed to notify our representatives in Congress, requesting their immediate and earnest co-operation with the government in a solemn protest against the misgovernment of Ireland by England. We do not believe it the duty of this government to become embroiled in this quarrel between England and Ireland. We look upon the Irish people as the victims of the grasping, avaricious landlords. We do not wonder that they rebel, and that their friends and brothers in this country meet together and raise money, and render all the aid possible, but it is most too much to call upon the United States to interfere as a nation. We can conceive of a love which all should feel for his native land, and believe that a man who would deny his fatherland is wanting in all self-respect.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE is now complete, with the exception of the suspended superstructure and platform. It is an enormous piece of work, greater than anything of its sort ever before attempted, and some delay in its completion was not surprising, especially as the manufacturers of it made their contract at very low figures, and have had to carry it out in the face of a rising market. They have, however, delayed the finishing of the bridge nearly a year. The superstructure is of steel, weighs about five thousand tons, and, after it is all received, the task of putting it up is a long and heavy one. In 1872 about sixty-five millions of persons crossed the ferries over the East River, and the number is now, of course, very much more. The estimate is that the bridge will carry over at least fifty thousand persons a day, providing it furnishes adequate means of transportation, a very important matter which the trustees of the undertaking have not yet even begun to settle. If suitable facilities are provided for taking over the river the crowds which tend toward New York in the morning and toward Brooklyn in the evening, the bridge will therefore be of service to about twenty millions of passengers annually, and that number comprises, probably, about a quarter of those who now use the ferries.

COURTESY IN HIGH PLACES.—When John Adams' term of the Presidency expired, Thomas Jefferson was inaugurated President. Mr. Adams left the Capitol before the inauguration ceremonies, apparently with ill feelings towards Mr. Jefferson. Years later his son, John Quincy, did the same upon his retiring from office. The seating of Gen. Jackson in the Presidential chair was too much for the serenity of the soul of the old man eloquent. The people had elected Gen. Jackson by an overwhelming majority, but they were beside themselves; the country "was going to the dogs." Those two men are the only retiring Presidents but have cordially welcomed the incoming elect, and extended the hand of friendship, brotherly love and honor. Kings may be churls, so may be Presidents, but not often. Could those Adamses, father and son, have foreseen that their lineal descendants in half a century would be the wheel horses of the same Democracy that Jefferson and Jackson were then the champions, would they not have acted like gentlemen, and exhibited the role of courtesy?

THE WHIPPING POST.—A member of the Missouri Legislature has recently introduced in the House a bill which provides that whipping shall be a legal mode of punishment for crime whereof the offender shall have been duly found guilty, and may be assessed at discretion by jury, Justice, or court in cases of misdemeanor, in addition to or in lieu of other penalty, and in case of felony, except capital cases, in addition to any other punishment that might be inflicted. The number of stripes or strokes shall, in every case, be determined in the verdict or judgment, and shall not in any case exceed thirty-nine. They shall be well laid on the bare back of the culprit with a substantial leather thong or ash, by the sheriff, marshal, constable, or other executive officer of the court, and for each service the officer shall be allowed a fee of one dollar.

On Wednesday, at noon, the Electoral Vote was counted and declared by Vice President Wheeler, in presence of both houses of Congress, at Washington. The vote of the State of Georgia was thrown out, without objection, for non-conformity to the Federal law.—James A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur were declared elected President and Vice President of the United States, respectively, for the four years next ensuing, having received 214 of the 369 votes cast.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR. — In Massachusetts there are 134 lodges and 10,200 members out of a total number of 2000 lodges and total membership of 100,000. During the year 1880 there were 52 deaths in Massachusetts, for the benefit of whose families $104,000 were paid by the order. During the last five years in Massachusetts there have been 139 deaths, incurring an expense of $278,000, and in the whole country 1758 members have died, for which $3,585,092.65 were subtracted from the treasury.

Our thanks are due to Hon. Chas. P. Preston, Secretary of the Essex Agricultural Society for a copy of the annual report of that society. It bears the imprint of the Salem Observer office, which, of course, means neatness, accuracy and good style.

How true Mark Twain writes about New England weather. It was only a week ago that if you stepped down town you would freeze to death, and today just take a walk around the block and you will melt.

The good which you do may not be lost, though it may be forgotten.

DEATH OF GEN. GEO. H. PIERSON. Doubtless everybody in this neighborhood who in a quarter of a century past has been connected with the militia, was familiar with the face and form of Brig. Gen. George H. Pierson, who died at Salem early Tuesday morning, aged 64 years 9 months. Gen. Pierson was born in Salem, and in early life he learned the trade of a blacksmith. In the military he has been quite prominent, and just before the war was captain of the Salem Mechanic Light Infantry, and he went to the seat of war with his command at the first call of troops, and was made part of the Fifth regiment. On July 5, 1861, he was appointed Lieut. Col. In the nine months service he was Colonel of the Fifth regiment. He went to the war a third time on July 28, 1864, and again as Colonel of the Fifth regiment. He obtained his title of Brigadier General from service in the State militia. He joined Essex Lodge of Masons in 1851, and was Master of it from 1856 to 1862. He joined Star King Lodge in 1864 and became Master in 1864-65. He was also of the Salem Council Royal and Select Masters; he was a charter member of the Winslow Lewis Commandery of Knights Templar; a district deputy of the Fifth Masonic district and has held other offices of the Masonic order. He took the 33d degree in Masonry several years ago. He was Noble Grand of Odd Fellows in 1850. President Grant appointed Gen. Pierson as postmaster of Salem in 1868, and has been re-appointed every year since. He had been in failing health for some years.—Observer.

Te funeral of Gen. Pierson took place from the Universalist Church on Thursday afternoon last. Rev. Dr. Bolles conducted the services, at the close of which a large number of relations and friends, and the various organizations with which the deceased was connected followed the body to its last resting-place in Harmony Grove.

TO MEETING IN WHEELBARROWS. Harper's Magazine for March has the following in regard to Lynn and Salem: The city of Salem, Massachusetts, has the reputation of being a kind of moderate, leisurely place, the paradise of retired and respectable merchants and ship-masters, and a good deal behind the times. The neighboring city of Lynn has just the opposite reputation—a wide-awake, go-ahead, active city. There has been for many years some feeling of rivalry between the two cities, and this fact will give point to the circumstance that follows:

A Mr. S——, of Lynn, was ill of typhoid fever, during which he was delirious, his thoughts assuming all sorts of fantastic shapes and curious combinations. One day he astonished his attendants by breaking out in this way:—"Isn't it a queer circumstance that the Christians in the earliest days of the Church always went to meeting in wheelbarrows?" And he at once added the remark:—"But the queerest thing of all is that Salem is the only place where the custom is still continued."

VISIT TO PEABODY.—George Pope, a cutter in the employ of C. D. Pecker & Co., invited about twenty-five of his shopmates to visit him at his home in Peabody, so Friday was selected and the boys embarked for a sleigh ride and a grand time. Dud. Chase was the driver, and he conveyed the boys over in fine style. On arrival at the residence of Mr. Pope, the crew was cordially received and invited to discuss a turkey supper which was gotten up in first class order. During the evening Mr. Pope was presented with a set of knives, forks and spoons. This testimonial of regard and esteem from his fellow workmen was presented with a felicitous speech by Mr. Oliver, of Saugus. Mr. Pope was greatly surprised. The evening was a very enjoyable one, and the crew returned during the "wee sma hours," having had a "bang up" time.—Lynn Item.

THE DRAMA. — Talmage protests against confounding the drama with the play-house; it is, he says, no more the play-house than a hymn-book is a church. The drama is merely a literary expression of feelings which God has planted in the heart. The Book of Job is a magnificent drama, and as for Solomon's songs, they form a drama spectacular, emotional, intense—rich Oriental scenery with flocks or sheep; romantic views of gardens of spices; a wooing; a bride; a bridegroom—all the elements of a splendid drama. The Book of Revelation, too; what a drama! Transformation scenes; opaline rivers; cavalrymen of Heaven galloping on white horses; nations in doxology.

The Lynn Item blossoms as "the oldest inhabitant," and reminds its readers that in 1741 the whole country was covered with snow from the thirteenth of November until July, and on the east side of the Connecticut river ice remained until July. Alonzo Lewis, in his history of Lynn, states that Francis Lewis, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, drove his horse from New York to Barnstable, the whole length of Long Island sound, on the ice, in February, 1774.

SALEM ITEMS.—The Cadet Band will give two concerts in Mechanic Hall next month, at the last of which prizes will be distributed among the ticket holders.

Out of 42 applicants for admission to the Normal School on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, 36 passed a successful examination.

The Salem Oratorio Society will present Mendelssohn's Oratorio of St. Paul, at the First Baptist Church, on Thursday evening, Feb. 24th.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 17, Mr. Joseph Murphy and Miss Genevieve Rogers appear at Mechanic Hall, in the new drama entitled "Shaun Rhue."

Conrad's advertisement is on our second page. He is advertising shirts so cheap that none can afford to go without them.

The Salem Light Infantry finished up a series of six dances, by a pleasant sociable at their armory on Tuesday evening of last week. They will give the first one of a new course on Wednesday evening, Feb. 23d.

Our lady friends consulting their own interests should not miss the opportunity of securing some of the great bargains offered at Frank Cousins' sale of the immense stock of W. C. C. Moulton, advertised on another page.

A little girl read a composition before the minister. The subject was: "A cow." She weaved in these complimentary sentences: "The cow is the most useful animal in the world, except religion and a pound of candy and a set of those handsome advertising cards which are given to customers at Foster's Phila. Candy Store, 244 Essex street."

When we hear so much about the candidates for the Salem Post Office who are newspaper men, it reminds us that we have read somewhere that "the prosperity of newspapers may be guaged by the number of editorial candidates for office. When a man is making money in the newspaper business, you don't generally hear of his fooling around as a candidate for a Post Office."

The Firemen's Relief Association have been presented with $50 by James F. Almy.

John P. Peabody has one of the finest assortments of advertising cards to be found in this vicinity. He sells them at one cent each, and at that price will send them by mail in sets of not less than ten, and from that up.

THE GROVELAND BRIDGE.—In a pamphlet by Prof. Geo. L. Vose, an eminent authority, entitled "Bridge Disasters in America," he wrote of the Groveland bridge before the late accident there: "The county commissioners desired a well-known engineer, especially noted as a bridge-builder, to superintend the work, in order to see that it was properly executed. The engineer, after inspection of the plans, told the commissioners plainly that the design was defective, and would not make a safe bridge; and that unless it was materially changed he would have nothing to do with it. The bridge, however, was a cheap one, and as such commended itself to the commissioners, who proceeded to have it erected according to the original plan; and these same commissioners now point at the bridge, which has not yet fallen, but which is liable to do so at any time, as a complete vindication of their judgment, so called, as opposed to that of the engineer who had spent his life in building bridges." Prof. Vose says there are many railroad and hundreds of highway bridges that are liable to fall at any time.—American.

MASSACHUSETTS PRESS ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting and reunion of the Massachusetts Press Association at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, on Wednesday last, was largely attended, and proved highly enjoyable to all who participated in its festivities. The reunion following the meeting was a pleasant affair, music being contributed by the Artists' vocal quartet of Chelsea, and readings by E. H. Pierce. Upward of 150 guests sat down to the annual dinner. In the evening the members visited the Boston Theatre and enjoyed Denman Thompson's performance of "Joshua Whitcomb."

Paul Hoag, one of the characters in Whittier's "Among the Hills," has recently died at Sandwich, N. H., where he was born and always lived. He was a son of Stephen Hoag, was never married and was a great leader among the Quakers. He had a brother Enoch, who has a world wide reputation as a Quaker missionary to the Indians.—Paul Hoag and the father of Mr. Chas. E. Hoag of this town, were cousins. "Neither his house nor his barn knew lock or bars, yet the most wretched tramp who ever took the road never abused the free hospitality of the Quaker home."

Measles this year are prevalent not only among children and those who have had them before, but among adults and persons who have wrestled with them in earlier days.

POLICE NOTES. — Feb. 10th, Wm. Dalton was convicted of drunkenness, and fined $1.00.

Philip McGrath, for an assault, was allowed to pay $4.35.

Edward Kearns, another spirit-ualist, tendered $1 as a token of repentance.

Feb. 12th, John M. Goodwin spent so much for rum that he couldn't raise $1, and was committed to Salem Jail.

Feb. 14th, Mark Kenney, up for vagrancy, was discharged.

Feb. 16th, John Galvin, who was galvinized with rum, received an electric shock from the court in the form of a $1.00 fine.

Ellen Roach, for drunkenness, was fined $1.00

On Tuesday evening of last week, Miss Minnie A. Smith, gave an extremely pleasant concert. This very deserving lady received a hearty welcome from her many friends. She was ably assisted by Mrs. George Upton of Peabody, Mr. G. W. Want, Mr. N. J. Hall, Mr. J. J. Carew of Boston, and Mr. Chas. A. Clark of Salem. The hall was packed to its capacity. All the participants were in good voice, and more than the usual number of repititions were demanded. Handsome bouquets and baskets of flowers were presented, and all passed off most successfully.—Observer.

PROBATE NOTICE.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Essex, ss.

To the Heirs-at-Law and others interested in the Estate of ANNA KING, late of Peabody, in said County, single woman, deceased, intestate. GREETING:

WHEREAS, William N. Osgood, the administrator of the estate of said deceased has presented for allowance the account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Salem, in said county, on the third Monday of March next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed. And the said administrator is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, in the Peabody Press, a newspaper printed at Peabody, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of February, in the year eighteen hundred and eighty one.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by CATHARINE ROACH, of Peabody, in the county of Essex, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to WILLIAM WOLCOTT, guardian, and dated January 24th, 1878, recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said county (So. Dist.) Book 991, Leaf 239, and duly assigned to WARREN WILSON of said Peabody, in his capacity as guardian, and for breach of condition of said mortgage will be sold by public auction on the premises on THURSDAY, the twenty-fourth day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz:

A certain parcel of land, situated on Harris Street, in said Peabody, being Lot No. 14, on a plan of lots drawn by C. A. Putnam, Surveyor, and bounded as follows: Westerly by said Harris Street, about forty-seven feet; northerly by land of Connors about seventy-seven feet; easterly by land now or formerly of Reagan, about forty-seven feet; and southerly by land of McAuliffe, about seventy-seven feet. Terms may be learned of the undersigned, and will be made known at sale.

FRANK E. FARNHAM,
Attorney for the assignee of said mortgage.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

THE FRESHET.—The royal reign of old winter, which has revived the experience of those good old days our fathers delight to tell of, when frost and ice held undisputed sway from December till April, was broken last Wednesday, when the thermometer began to indicate a warmer spell. A genuine old-fashioned thaw, which is always a part of an old-fashioned winter, followed, taking off considerable of the snow. Previously, and in anticipation of this, the town Surveyor had the street gutters dug out, and thus we were somewhat prepared for the heavy rain which came in torrents last Saturday. All the brooks and streams were unusually swollen, and some damage to property was done. Goldthwait's brook presented a grand sight as it swept with lightning rapidity along its new channel, the stone walls on either side of which being scarcely visible, as it dashed under the new Grove street bridge, just clearing the covering by about six inches. In the vicinity of Grove street the tan yards of Pinder & Winchester and the O'Shea Brothers were somewhat damaged by the flood. The brook which crosses Aborn street below Mr. N. M. Quint's, overflowed the bridge and followed along across Peirce's pond and under Pleasant street till it reached the residence of Mr. W. M. Ward, where it seemed to meet with a check, and that vicinity was entirely submerged to the depth of three or four feet. On Foster street the water backed up into the yards and basements of the currying shops of Merritt Cook and Fernald & Lewis; at the latter place work had to be suspended. Nelson & Merrill were somewhat inconvenienced by the rising of the brook. But the most serious damage to property was at the tan yard of Mr. Cyrus Smith, on Walnut street, where the brook which takes the drainage from Tremont street overflowed to such an extent that his whole yard was inundated, and at five o'clock the water had covered the lower part of Union street, and backed up nearly to the shop of Mr. Allex. Clerk. The Lowell railroad track near Endicott street was washed, but no serious damage done. Several bad places were made in the sidewalks, etc. It was one of the most destructive freshets we have had for years.

THE WEST PEABODY FARMERS' CLUB.—The fifth meeting of the club was held at West Peabody School House Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 11th, Mr. Farwell presiding. A good number were present, and much interest is taken at the meetings in the discussions, etc. Subject for the evening: "The Strawberry Culture." The first speaker, Mr. J. S. Needham, on opening the subject, read a letter from Mr. Brookhouse, of Australia, giving an account of his experience in raising strawberries in Australia; the letter also contained some strawberry seeds to be sown in Massachusetts, to see what results may be derived from the experiment. The speaker read from the works of Mr. Merrill on Strawberries, a description of the berries, the different varieties, etc.; also giving his experience with raising the fruit, what kinds are the most profitable to grow for market, and the kind of soil best suited for the culture of the fruit. Mr. T. C. Durkee spoke of his experience with raising and marketing the berries, and considers it as profitable to grow the fruit to sell as any crop he raises for market.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Last Saturday afternoon, at about five o'clock, while Mrs. Sutton's coupe, containing Mrs. Sutton and Mr. S. W. King, was crossing the Square, the horses took fright from some unknown cause, and dashed wildly down Main street, the driver being unable to check them on account of the reins slipping through his wet gloves. While the team was dashing past Park street, Mr. King opened the door of the vehicle, and at great risk sprung upon the outside of the coupe, landing in the driver's lap. Seizing the reins, he pulled upon them with all his strength, in so doing bending the dasher of the coupe out straight; then getting down upon his knees, the driver holding on to him, he finally succeeded in checking the horses, but not until they had reached Holten street, and drove them safely back to the stable, with no damage except to the dasher. Had it not been for Mr. King's presence of mind and grit, the result might have been serious.

Our friend Prescott has recently laid in a good stock of gilt-mounted harnesses, which he is selling for $12.75. If you don't want a harness, he can supply you with anything else in his line at the lowest cash prices. Give him a call at 6 Allen's Block.

Wheel grease is still firm.

ENTERTAINMENTS.—There was quite a respectable attendance at the entertainment in the Unitarian Chapel, last Monday evening, in aid of the Ladies' Benevolent Society. The exercises consisted of a quartet, "Return of Spring," by Messrs. Chase, T. M. Osborne, and Misses Alice Nelson and Minnie Felt; a tenor solo, "Slumber Song," by Mr. Theodore M. Osborne; a duet, "What makes the Spring," by Mr. Chase and Miss Helen Jacobs; a contralto solo, "When we are old and gray," by Miss Minnie Felt; a soprano solo, "Bird on the Wing," by Miss Helen Jacobs; a quartet, by Messrs. Chase, Osborne, and Misses Nelson and Felt; closing with a monologue, "The Elixir of Youth," by Miss Susan Hale, of Boston, who is also the author. Miss Hale in rendering it, first appears as a dapper old lady of 75; then by taking a wine-glassful of the "Elixir of Life," which her grandson, Jacob, has sent her, she is, after a nap of some ten minutes, transmogrified into a lady of 50; wishing to be younger, another draught changes her to a maiden of 25; still not satisfied, she ventures to take another swallow from the enchanted prescription, and soon appears as a rollicking girl of 15, ravenously devouring peanuts and an apple. Still discontented at having no mates, and in being her own grandmother, she recklessly drains the remainder of the prescription, and then appears in the arms of an impressed father, dressed in swaddling clothes and cap, greeting the audience with shrill cries. During all the different changes the parts were admirably sustained, the soliloquy abounding in witty and pithy expressions. Between the different acts selections on the piano-forte were finely performed by Mrs. Pevear, Miss Annie Upton, Miss Bancroft, and Miss Grace Machado, of Salem. In every particular the entertainment was pleasing and satisfactory to the audience, as well as creditable to the artists.

The social Party at Upton's Hall on Wednesday evening last, was a success in every respect, and reflects much credit upon the managers. As large a number as expected were present, who tripped the light fantastic to the enlivening strains of the Cadet Orchestra until a late hour. The last of the series will be given sometime next month, and will probably be a masquerade or a strictly full dress party.

Despite the rain and bad traveling last Thursday evening, a goodly number were present at the readings and supper at the Baptist Vestry. Miss Addie Ryerson, who has appeared here before, won new laurels on this occasion. The wants of the inner man were handsomely provided for. The evening was very enjoyably spent, and netted the society about $26.00.

The rain Thursday evening no doubt prevented many from going to the dramatic entertainment in the Universalist Vestry, yet a fair sized audience gathered to witness "My Brother's Keeper," a drama in three acts, which was well rendered, although some prompting was necessary, and detracted somewhat from the smoothness of the play. The receipts netted about $32.

Prof. Turner, of Boston, gave a Stereopticon and Fine Art Entertainment, accompanied with a lecture, at the Baptist Church, last evening, delineating, on canvas, by means of a powerful stereopticon, one hundred and fifty of the finest views in the Old World, and the well-known statuettes of Rogers, closing with a variety of portraits and humorous selections. At the commencement of the exhibition there was a fine organ concert by the organist, Mrs. John C. Foote.

A GIFT.—Rev. Prof. Jewett of Salem, has recently presented to the Church at Rockville, a large and handsomely bound Bible, for which they feel very grateful. In the inside is written the following:

"For the Chapel at South Peabody.
PRESENTED to
THE ROCKVILLE CHURCH
by
GEORGE B. JEWETT,
In Grateful Memory of many happy Sabbaths spent in their service, and in Testimody of his earnest desire for the spiritual prosperity of the Church and People.
JAN. 1881."

The first Scripture reading from it was on Sabbath, Feb. 6, 1881; passage, 1 Thess. 1st and 2nd chapters, by Rev. John W. Colwell, late of Pittsfield, N. H., it being the first Sabbath of his preaching there as Pastor of the Church. The sermon was an exceedingly appropriate one for the occasion, from the text "As we were allowed of God to be put in trust with the Gospel, even so we speak; not as pleasing men, but God, which trieth our hearts," 1 Thess. 2:4. May the new relation of Pastor and People prove one of blessing and spiritual profit.

Mr. J. Frank Baxter will continue his meetings at Temperance Hall, next Sunday afternoon and evening. Mr. Baxter is a fine singer, and well worth hearing on that account, whatever one may think of his religious creed.

☞ NO, SIR!—A Scotch minister once said no woman could bear pain as well as a man. That is not so. The fact is generally the other way. Mrs. Edward Meyers of Rondout, N. Y., submitted to the operation of the removal of her hand by amputation, without taking ether, or moving a muscle or uttering a groan. Dr. Kennedy, also of Rondout, N. Y., who performed the operation, said he never saw such heroism. The lady's disease was erysipelas, and afterward the Doctor gave his favorite Remedy to cleanse the blood.—Mrs. Meyers is now well and strong. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, at One Dollar a bottle, is the thing for female weaknesses and all complaints arising from bad blood. But that Scotchman was mistaken.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Dents.—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse, and both horses are to-day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Respectfully yours,

She throws a wonderful amount of heeling into her execution.—Modern Argo. But it cannot be said that she handles the keys very expertly.—Salem Sunbeam.

There is nothing like presence of mind. The other day, during a tremendous shower, a gentleman entered a fashionable club, bearing a silk umbrella, which he placed in the stand. Instantly another gentleman, who was mourning the abstraction of just such an article, jumped up. "Will you allow me to look at that?" he said, sternly. "Certainly," remarked the umbrella carrier. "I was just taking it to the police station. It was left in my house last night by a burglar whom we frightened off. I hope it will prove a first-rate clew." And though the exasperated owner could plainly see where his name had been scratched off the handle, he sat down and changed the subject.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT,

LADIES!—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, to whom the recipe is open for examination.

INVALID LADIES

Who will send a postal card, simply bearing their address, will receive, prepaid by mail,

"FAITH WHITCOMB'S ADVICE TO MOTHERS,"

which every mother should read. Address, FAITH WHITCOMB'S Agency, Boston, Mass.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Scaldings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

887 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following:—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflamatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere House, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal"

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is raising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines, Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rhumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal.

E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

ASSABET MILLS,
MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

CHURCH KENO.—While most of our travelling men, our commercial tourists, are nice Christian gentlemen, there is occasionally one that is as full of the old Nick as an egg at this time of the year is full of malaria. There was one of them stopped at a country town a few nights ago where there was a church fair. He is a blonde, good-natured looking, serious-talking chap, and having stopped at that town every month for a dozen years, everybody knows him. He always chips in towards a collection, a wake or a rooster fight, and the town swears by him. He attended the fair, and a jolly sister of the church, a married lady, took him by the hand and led him through green fields where the girls sold him ten cent chances in sawdust dolls, and beside still waters where a girl sold him sweetened water with a sour stomach, for lemonade, from Rebecca's well. The sister finally stood beside him while the deacon was reading off numbers. They were drawing a quilt, and as the numbers were drawn it was announced that number fifteen drew the quilt, and the little sister turned to the traveling man and said, "My! that is my number. I have drawn it. What shall I do?" "Hold up your ticket and shout keno," said he. The little deaconess did not stop to think that there might be guile lurking in the traveling man, but being full of joy at drawing the quilt, and ice cream because the traveling man bought it, she rushed into the crowd toward the deacon, holding her number, and shouted, so they could hear it all over the house, "Keno!" If a bank had burst in the building there couldn't have been so much astonishment. The deacon turned pale and looked at the poor little sister as though she had fallen from grace, and all the church people looked sadly at her, while worldly minded people snickered. The little woman saw that she had got her foot into something, and she blushed and backed out, and asked the traveling man what keno meant. He said he didn't know exactly, but he had always seen people, when they won anything at that game, yell "keno." She isn't exactly clear yet what keno is, but she says she has sworn off on taking advice from pious look traveling men. They call her Little Keno now.—Peck's Sun.

THE LAND LEAGUE AGITATION.—The following letter from Mrs. Parnell was printed in the New Haven Union recently:

I think it is the duty of every Land Leaguer in America not to send one more dollar over to Ireland until they know what stand the farmers are going to take in the present crisis. Davitt has been arrested and the English Government is proceeding from one act of unlawful violence to another. Now, it seems to me that the duty of the Irish farmers is plain. It is simply a general strike against all rents until the Government changes its present tactics. If, as it is reported, the Irish farmers are giving way, and cringing to their landlords again at the first breath of danger, then they are not worth fighting for. The American Land League has a right to know what they are going to do before it sends them over more help. They have the battle in their own hands. Let them help themselves and the efforts of America to help them will then be redoubled.—Otherwise let them be left to their fate. I remain yours truly,

FANNY PARNELL.

In Confucius, the Chinese philosopher, occurs this passage:—"As we use a glass to examine the forms of things, so must we study antiquity in order to understand the present." This sentence shows the use of magnifying glasses long before the time of the writer, who died 478 years B. C.

☞ GOOD WORDS FOR A GOOD THING.—The papers are so full of exaggerations about all sorts of things that it is hard to tell what to believe.—Yet all things are not humbugs, nor all statements lies. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is exactly what it claims to be, and he deserves the praises that are showered upon it from all who have used it. Hear a word from Mr. Israel H. Snyder, of Saugerties, N. Y He says, "My little daughter was covered with Salt Rheum from head to foot. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured her altogether, and the disease has never since appeared. This was two years ago." Such words go to the point. Get Favorite Remedy of your druggist or write to the Doctor at Rondout, N. Y. $1.00 a bottle.

James Butler, Esq., clerk of the Roxbury Carpet Co., Boston, Mass., employing eight hundred hands, in a late communication concerning the admirable working of an article introduced into the factory, says: The famous old German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil has effected several cures among our men who have been badly hurt in working in the factory, and they pronounce it a success every time.—Clinton (Ia.) Herald.

AMPUTATION OF THE LEG.

THE OLD FAMILY PHYSICIAN AT FAULT—DR. DAVID KENNEDY THE SUCCESSFUL SURGEON.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Elsworth, of Port Ewen, of Ulster county, N. Y., had realized this truth.—His disease involved the whole of his thighbone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb—asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood-Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system, prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Elsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

Scientific.

ONE of the latest attempts to make a ship unsinkable has been brought to public attention by an Englishman named Mr. Lamb. He has embodied what he thinks will insure the buoyancy of vessels under all circumstances in a steel-built steam-launch thirty-seven feet long, six feet deep, and five feet eight inches beam. When afloat the launch has a free board of four feet. The novelty in the construction of this craft consists in the introduction of seven flat air-tight cylinders of metal on each side. The inner ends of these cylinders are built into and form part of the framing and ceiling of the vessel, while the other ends project beyond the outer skin, and are protected by a sort of casing. When the launch is loaded this casing has its lower part under water, but it is not intended to be wholly submerged. It cannot be said that this casing will add to the beauty of the launch, but on the trial trip the speed was found to be fair and the motion very steady. Whether the building of air-tight compartments along the sides of ships so that they cannot be used for cargo or tampered with easily will supersede or be found a useful addition to the ordinary compartment system is not yet certain.

IT is now proposed by M. Fleuss, the famous constructor of diving apparatus, to dispense with the use of air pumps and pipes, and other similar encumbering paraphernalia—the means by which he is enabled to effect his stay under water being contained within the diving dress itself, the only connection between himself and the surface being a signal cord. The principle involved in this improved system consists in purifying the exhaled breath by means of caustic alkali, and revivifying it again with oxygen; in this way the diver breathes the same air over and over again, minus carbonic acid and plus fresh oxygen at every inspiration. The means by which this is effected consists of devices for restoring condensed oxygen and of caustic alkali for removing the poisonous products of exhalation, with certain other devices by which the oxygen is released, at the diver's will, to mingle with and revivify the purified air. This arrangement enables the diver to stay under water for four hours at a time.

THE new plan devised by a French engineer for heating railway cars appears to give satisfactory results so far. It consists simply in the use, for the foot warmers of acetate of soda, a substance which has considerable latent heat, and, dissolving at a certain temperature, it absorbs a large quantity of heat, which becomes sensible during crystallization in cooling. All that is required is to fill the ordinary cases with a sufficient amount of the acetate, close them and place them in a stove of about one hundred degrees. The cooling of a case thus charged and heated takes twelve to fifteen hours. The warmers are therefore taken from the compartments and placed in a stove—where the crystals of soda acetate are redissolved—and they are then ready for fresh use. The advantages claimed for this system are: No necessity of changing warmers every two or three hours, or of maintaining numerous employes at stations to attend to them, also economy in the cost of heating, &c.

RUBBER cushions under the legs of a work-bench are suggested as an effective method of deadening noise, it being found, as stated, that in a certain factory the hammering of fifty coppersmiths was scarcely audible in the room below, their benches having under each leg a rubber cushion. Kegs of sand or sawdust applied in the same way afford similar immunity. A few inches of sand or sawdust being first poured into each keg, there is laid on a board or block upon which the leg rests, and around the leg and block is poured fine dry sand or sawdust. By this simple means, it is said, not only all noise, but all vibration and shock are so completely prevented that an ordinary anvil, thus mounted, may be used even in a dwelling-house without annoying its occupants.

A WURTEMBERG inventor has recently exhibited some toothed gear wheels made of leather instead of metal, the advantages claimed for them being that they have a much quieter and more elastic run, are extremely durable, and require no lubrication whatever. These gear wheels are prepared from raw buffalo hides, thoroughly cleansed from all hair, flesh, &c., and glued together in as many layers as are necessary to produce the breadth of wheel required. The cementing is of course effected under very heavy pressure, as in an hydraulic press, this being kept up until the glue has completely hardened. From the sheets or plates prepared according to the method thus described, the teeth are cut out, of uniform size and pattern, by saw and chisel.

M. C. A. ASHBURNER is the authority for the statement that since the discovery of petroleum by Col. Drake, in 1859, Pennsylvania had produced up to the end of 1879 not less than 132,262,639 barrels of crude oil, valued at $340,709,672. His theory of the origin of the oil is that the oil sands are the mere reservoirs which contain the product of the decomposition of vegetable and animal life of the Devonian epoch.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physicians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Water town, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough—and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

MISFORTUNES OF CONFEDERATE GENERALS.—It is a melancholy fact that almost every general who died or was killed died in poverty, brought about by his devotion. Raphael and Paul Semmes both died poor, but a daughter of the former married Luke E. Wright, a promising and prosperous lawyer. Gen. Zollicoffer left nothing to a family of five daughters, but they have all married save one, and have married well. Gen. Pillow's death caused the sale of his house and library, which, however, his friends rebought by subscription. Gen. T. C. Hindman, who was assassinated, left nothing at all, but the people of Helena loved and respected him. His family has many friends. Gen. Dick Taylor died poor, and his two daughters are living with his sister at Warrenton. His book did not pay anything of account. Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson left his wife and daughter without means, but his name raised funds for them, of whom Mr. Wade Bolton of Memphis, I think, left them $5000 in his will. Gen. Polk left nothing to his family; but his son, Dr. Polk, has an immense practice and distinguished character in New York.—Gen. Bushrod Johnson left only one son, who is doing well, and General Forrest, who left but little, left it with a thrifty and prosperous son, who makes all that is needed. Gen. Ewell's wife had about $100,000 worth of property in St. Louis, I think, which was saved from confiscation by a friend.—Mrs. Ewell died within three days of the husband. Gen. Bragg died without property, and his wife lives with her sister in New Orleans. The history of Gen. Hood's children is part of the history of the country. Gen. D. H. Cooper died in poverty, and his wife lives with her daughter in Texas, I believe. Maj. Gen. W. H. C. Whiting, of Fort Fisher fame, who died in Wilmington prison in 1864, left nothing, and Gen. L. M. Walker, who was killed in a duel with Marmaduke, left but little to his wife, who now lives in Charlottesville. Gen. Tom Cobb left to his family but little of the fortune that his generous heart dispensed so bountifully in the piping times of peace.—Atlanta Constitution.

Who can arrest a calumnious tongue, or who can stop the consequences of calumnious misrepresentations? You may refute it, you may trace it to its source and expose its authors, you may sift every atom, explain, annihilate it, and yet, like Greek fire, it remains unquenched and unquenchable; or like weeds, which, when extirpated in one place, sprout forth vigorously in another spot. Half-truths are often more calumnious than whole falsehoods.—Not a word may be uttered, but a half-suppressed inuendo, a dropped lip, an arched brow, a shrugged shoulder, a significant look, an incredulous expression of countenance, nay, even an emphatic silence, may do the fiendish work; and when the light and trifling thing which has done the mischief has fluttered off, the venom is left behind to work and rankle and fester, to inflame hearts, to fever human experience, and to poison human society at the fountain springs of life.—F. W. Robertson.

Monkeys sometimes have a hard time of it. An up-country farmer owned one which had a tail about four feet long. The monkey was very fond of running the hay-cutter, and one day the hired man, who doesn't like the monkey, caught the animal asleep in the barn and tied hay all around his tail. And when the monkey woke up and saw that bunch of hay he just went and started it through the hay-cutter, and in about half a minute he got the idea that something was wrong, and the way he left that hay-cutter and flew up and down the beams and rafters of that barn and chattered was a caution that tickled the hired man almost to death.

A lady while in a passenger railway car in Philadelphia one day last week had her attention attracted to a very handsome diamond ring on the finger of a gentlemanly looking passenger beside her. She left the car and went to a store where she made several purchases, but on putting her hand in her pocket for her purse found it had disappeared, and in its place found the diamond ring that had attfacted her attention.—Taking it to a well-known jeweller he pronounced it worth $500. It is supposed the setting of the ring caught in her pocket and it was stripped from the finger of the thief. The pocket-book contained about $10, and the lady is the richer by $490.

SALT IN THE SEA.—According to the best authorities, the quantity of salt contained in the sea amounts to four hundred thousand billion cubic feet, which, if placed in a pile, would form a mass 140 miles long, as many broad and as many high; or otherwise disposed, would cover the whole of Europe—islands, seas and all—to the height of the summit of Mont Blanc, which is 16,000 feet high.

Better be upright and want than wicked and have superabundance.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE FOR MARCH.—This number is one of remarkable excellence, and the new editor, Rev. Mr. Taylor, has catered most successfully for the edification and entertainment of his readers. There is, as he remsrks, "something for everybody, of whatsoever class, or of whatvever age. . . . Bible students, and sermon readers, and temperance reformers and lovers of stories will all find in this issue something to suit them and to help them pass the time pleasantly and profitably." Among the distinguished contributors are the Revs. J. M. Whiton, R. C. Houghton, W. T. Wylie, T. H. Vail, Bishop of Kansas; C. F. Deems, David Swing, H. Bonar, Bishop Peck, etc.; Alfred H. Guernsey, Hattie W. Arnold, Mrs. J. G. Burnett, Josephine Pollard, Frank H. Converse, Louise C. Moulton, etc. The opening article by the editor, "Our Home Heathen," is highly interesting, and equally so is "Scenes on the Danube," by A. Guernsey; both are finely illustrated. The serial story, "Out of the World," is continued, and the several short stories, sketches, etc., are replete with interest and well written. The numerous poems are of singular merit. Dr. Deems explains "Hard Places in the Bible;" the sermon is by Rev. C. N. Sims, on the "Supernatural Success of Christianity." But it is impossible to convey in a brief notice any idea of the rich literary and artistic feast prepared by the editor. There are 128 quarto pages and over 100 engravings. A single copy is only 25 cents; a year's subscription, $3; postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

The forthcoming (March) number of the INTERNATIONAL REVIEW will be one of the strongest ever issued. Its table of contents will bear the names of Edward Atkinson, Henry C. Adams, Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, Leonard Courtney, M. P., Henry C. Lodge, and Justin McCarthy, M. P. Messrs. Courtney and McCarthy, than whom there are none more competent, will both write about Irish affairs; the former giving the concluding part of his article on "Ireland," began in the January Review, and Mr. McCarthy writing upon "The Irish Land Question." Edward Atkinson, having recently made a tour of the South, will give his impressions of the "Solid South." Henry C. Adams will give an advance from his forthcoming book upon "Modern Public Debts." The Review will be ready about Febrrary 15th, and will be sent to any address upon receipt of the price. Fifty cents single number; $5.00 a year. A. S. Barnes & Co., 111 and 113 William street, New York.

Every enterprising shorthand writer and all aspiring to become such, should not fail to subscribe for Browne's Phonographic Monthly which stands pre-eminently the best phonographic journal published. We have received the December and January numbers and they are filled with interesting matter. Send 20 cents for a sample copy to D. L. Scott-Browne, 23 Clinton Place, N. Y.

STATISTICS.—New York has, according to the United States census of 1880, 1,206,577 inhabitants, of whom 590,762 are males and 615,815 females.

New York expended for amusements, theatres, operas, and shows about $7,000,000 last year, and in the drinking-places nearly $60,000,000, the latter expenditure resulting in the arrest of 48,191 persons for intoxication.

New York's accession of population by birth last year was about 35,000; its loss by death just 31,866.

In New York live 213,467 families, occupying 67,126 dwelling houses.

New York's weddings last year reached the number of 20,000.

The New York police arrested last year 71,699 persons, 47,798 of whom were held, while 23,899 were discharged. Crimes of violence are on the increase. In 1880 they numbered 5,790.

The New York city prisons opened their doors last year to 30,825 persons of intemperate habits. The police stations furnished lodgings to 120,084 men and women who had nowhere else to sleep.

New York's organized charitable societies disbursed $4,000,000; and 141,765 persons were committed by the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction to the almshouses, prisons, hospitals, nurseries, schools, and asylums.

New York's Sunday school scholars of all denominations number 115,826, in 418 Sunday schools.

New York's street Arabs, growing up without instruction and learning to be criminals, form an army of over 10,000.

TO SUFFERERS FROM CATARRH.

Statement of Rev. E. W. Whitney,

Universalist Pastor.

For several years I have been troubled with Catarrh, which seriously interfered with my public speaking, and which baffled all my attempts to get permanent relief. Experienced surgeons operated upon me, and I was under the care of a Boston physician for two years, but obtained no lasting benefit. I applied various remedies, but failed to get relief, and was led, by advice of friends, to consult Dr. Lighthill. My faith was at the lowest ebb, but am happy to say that after a few months' treatment, no trace of my old trouble appears, and I have every reason to believe that the cure is permanent. I cordially recommend Dr. Lighthill to all who may be afflicted in a similar manner. E. W. WHITNEY.
Peabody, Mass, June 27, 1879.

From the Rev. E. C. Butler,

Of Beverly, Mass.

I most heartily recommend any one afflicted with that troublesome disease, CATARRH, to Dr. Lighthill. I have full confidence in him; his treatment has had the most gratifying results in my own case, which was severe and of long standing. E. C. BUTLER.
Beverly, Mass, Oct'r 29, 1879.

Letter from W. R. Pedrick,

Of the firm of Pedrick & Glosson, Lawrence, Ms.

My dear Dr. Lighthill,—The fall of 1878 found a member of my family suffering severely from chronic catarrh, extending from the posterior nasal passages through the larynx into the bronchial tubes. Perhaps for three years or more the disease had been making slow but sure inroads, not only locally, but also upon the general health, until it became evident that relief must speedily be obtained, for the symptoms told too plainly what the result would be if longer neglected. I was led to consult you in the matter by the advice of those whom I personally knew you had cured of similar complaints.—Your treatment resulted, I am happy to say, in a complete cure, and all the dreaded symptoms, such as extreme throat suffering, distress in the head, and nasal and vocal organs, pains in the lungs and a constant susceptibility of severe colds, attacking the head, throat and chest, have entirely disappeared. I am very grateful to you for your very kind and gentlemanly deportment, and am most thankful for your skilful and successful treatment and care of this much beloved member of my family. You are at liberty to refer to me or mine.
Yours, truly, W. R. PEDRICK.
Lawrence, Nov. 4, 1878.

A Card from Mr. R. S. Lambert,

Butter Merchant, 12 Washington Market, Boston.

The remarkable cure which Dr. Lighthill performed in my case, after other celbrated physicians failed to even relieve me, demands a public expression of gratitude.

I was a great sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form, to such an extent that my friends thought me in consumption; but thanks to Dr. Lighthill's skill, I am now perfectly well, and free from all those loathsome and disgusting symptoms attending such a disease, and weigh twenty pounds heavier than I ever did.

I would earnestly advise all similar sufferers to apply to Dr. Lighthill, 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St.

R. S. LAMBERT.
Boston, Nov. 26, 1880.

PERMANENT CURE OF DEAFNESS.

From Hon. A. M. McPhail, Jr.,

Piano Manufacturer, 185 Washington St., Boston

Dr. Lighthill,—Dear Sir,—I take great pleasure in saying that your professional efforts in my case of deafness, some years since, resulted in a permanent cure, and were in the highest degree satisfactory.

I have the honor to be very truly yours,
A. M. McPHAIL, JR.

CURE OF HEART DISEASE AND CATARRH.

From Mrs. M. A. Emery.

Mr. Editor,—Allow me to express my gratitude to a real benefactor through your columns. For six years I have suffered from Heart Disease and Catarrh so very intensely that my life was despaired of by my physician as well as my friends, and when I first consulted Dr. Lighthill, I myself feared that my lease of life was fast drawing to a close, for I was extremely debilitated, in great state of suffering, and withal greatly discouraged; but my first interview with the Doctor inspired me with hope, and ere I had been under his care but a few weeks I began to improve in health, strength and spirit, and this improvement has steadily continued until I was completely restored. My wonderful recovery astonished all who knew how great a sufferer I was. In gratitude to Dr. Lighthill, and for the benefit of other sufferers, I make this public statement. Yours, truly,
Mrs. M. A. EMERY,
359 Lowell Street,
Lawrence, Sept. 21, 1880.

HOPE FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

A REMARKABLE CURE.

From G. H. Robinson, of Methuen.

Dr. Lighthill has done wonders for me. My case was a serious Throat and Lung Trouble, pronounced by several physicians Consumption, for I had many of the worst symptoms of that disease, but from the beginning of Dr. Lighthill's treatment I commenced to improve, and now I am happy to be able to call myself a well man. G. H. ROBINSON,
Methuen, Nov. 1st, 1880.

Please Remember—Dr. LIGHTHILL'S Office is at 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St., Boston.

Coercion.

BY FRANCIS NUGENT.

Coercion, by the power of love,
Must ever man's esteem command;
Applied by hate, the rod may prove
A scorpion in a tyrant's hand.

Coercion, as a party whip,
May sway the weak who dare to think,
While in a clown's most vicious grip
It cannot force a mule to drink.

Coercion, in the savage past
The noble Yankee heroes slew;
Now, borne upon the wintry blast,
The fearful cry is heard anew.

Coerce! call Britain's army forth.
Make threadbare rags the spoils of war;
'Tis all a houseless foe is worth,—
Haste! pile them on the transport car.

Coerce! evict! lay waste the fields,
To foxes leave the roofless walls,
That homeless hordes may crowd the jails,
And famine pine in empty stalls.

Coerce! exile! at parting gun,
Tears flood the Isle of beauty:
Coerce! then must the signal run,
Britannia, do thy duty.

'Twere mercy were the soulless sea
To shroud all in one mountain wave;
From worse than death to set them free,
To give them rest in one deep grave.

Coercion! word of bad repute,
(Let all deny the fact who can),
Inhuman, when applied to brute,
And brutal, when applied to man.

'Twere just that those should feel the power
Who call it forth with words of guile,
And wise to speed the darkest hour
Which ever blighted Erin's Isle.

"The Clergy."

Rev. (?) George Chainey, an ex-Methodist minister, lectured on "The Clergy," in Music Hall, Boston, on Sabbath evening, the 6th inst. The Boston Herald, of the following morning, gave a lengthy report of the lecture which was a wholesale attack upon ministers and churches and a plea for theaters, as being far more suited to meet the religious wants of the age. Not a few must have read the report with surprise. That Col. Robert Ingersoll, whom the grand jury of New Castle County, Delaware, recently indicted as "the arch-blasphemer and reviler of God and religion," should scandalize all that is religious is no longer a surprise, because this is what gives him notoriety, and those who listen to him do not go to hear of the virtues and heroism of the clergy nor the restraining and enobling influence of the churches; but they go to hear the choice bits of clerical scandal and the impious rhetoric in which Col. Ingersoll has shown himself so fully skilled.

But that another champion of infidelity and godlessness should enter the arena against the teachings of all history is certainly quite unusual, saying nothing of the consistency of this doughty henchman of the great Robert, n prefixing his cognomen with "Rev."

Christianity would not suffer much from such assailants, however, were the reports of their efforts to receive the thoughtful attention of all who read them. This, however, is not the case. We live in an age prolific of literature. So much so that the great mass of mankind are relieved of the necessity of doing their own thinking. For the paltry sum of two cents the daily press will do their thinking for them, and relieve them of the mental effort of independent thought. This of course is the abuse and not the use of the daily press. Nevertheless it is the fact. And that the same fact should hold true in the domain of religious thought, into which the secular press of our day has so largely entered, is but natural and inevitable, especially when we remember that "the carnal mind is enmity against God," a fact to which the experience of the best of men will bear testimony.

But there is a compensation for this scattering of irreligious thoughts through the land by the daily press, in the religious thoughts which it scatters equally broadcast. It must be conceded that the pulpits of former generations have changed places with the printing-presses of this generation, as public instructors. And now in the chink of the type and clank of the press is heard

"The audible foot-fall of thought on the page,
The articulate beat of the heart of the age."

Sermons were never so fully reported and religious literature was never so freely circulated as in the secular press of to-day. In this fact lovers of God and law-abiding citizens may take courage.

There is an old adage that "An army of stags led by a lion is more formidable than an army of lions led by a stag." It is the leadership which gives character to every enterprise. So the influence of the thoughtful few who read Mr. Chainey's lecture will always keep in advance of the influence of the thoughtless many, who take their views second-hand.

By the thoughtful class there will be at least five things apparent in reading Mr. Chainey's production:

First. The prefix "Rev." which, according to all dictionary-makers and common usage, is a term of respect applied to the clergy or ecclesiastics, is a misnomen when applied to one whose avowed purpose is to tear down and destroy all ecclesiasticism.

Second. Nothing can be found more evident than that Mr. Chainey knew nothing of the power of that religion of which he was once an ordained minister.

Third. A spirit of spite against that class with whom the unfortunate man was evidently anything but happy, is too apparent in his lecture to be concealed from the intelligent reader, and which spirit is not only a mark of weakness in all who evince it, but which, in this case, is an answer to both the lecturer and his theme.

Fourth. While it is too true that hypocrisy and corruption are found among both ministers and churches—as was the case in the first disciples of our Lord, and as will be the case to the end of time, according to the teachings of the great Head of the Church and the experience of his followers, and which is a sure evidence that there is sincerity and genuineness in both ministers and churches (else there could be no counterfeits)—yet the effect of Christianity in this world has been such that even the infidel Gibbon declared that it made men better citizens. It is an assertion backed by all history, that the Christian Church and the Christian pulpit have ever been the prominent source of moral reform. These have usually been the instigators and always the pioneers of all reforms in the world. No great reform has ever succeeded until these have wheeled into line in advocacy of it, as in the abolition of American slavery. When the piety of the Christian church has waned, when the voice of its ministry has been subdued, when the spirit of its membership has lowered, the effect has been invariably seen in the low standard of public morals which has followed. When the spiritual power of the church has waxed stronger and the voice of its ministry has been out-spoken, public morals have risen and kept pace with it.

Fifth. When Mr. Chainey eulogized the theatres to the disparagement of the churches, claiming that the former are better adapted to bring mankind to a correct view of life, he gives utterance to sentiments so utterly at variance with the dictates of common sense and the teachings of history that attention only need be called to them, to discover his weakness and error. That theatres do meet a certain public want cannot be denied, this is evinced in the fact of their existence. But that they are promoters of public morals probably but few men would care to stake their reputation in asserting. Efforts have been made to improve and elevate the moral tone of the theatre ever since the day when Thepsis, the father of the Grecian drama, drew his stage, on a cart, about the streets of Athens, 500 years B. C. But instead of improving, the theatre has degenerated both in moral tone and ability. In the days of ancient Greece, when art was at its zenith and the stage in its palmiest days, they had no such plays as "White Fawn" or "Black Crook" and many other exhibitions of the modern drama. And the tragedies of Æschylus were so appalling that children actually expired in convulsions, and women lost the fruit of their wombs in witnessing them. (See Scott's essay on the Drama.)

The Philadelphia Times ventures to call the attention of its feminine readers to the fact that one scream will cause a rat to flee in terror, and that there is no need of wasting half a dozen upon him, or of climbing a chair after the first yell has been given, but, as it very justly says, no woman will believe this.

The new Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, Mr. Russell, does not believe in Ensilage. At a recent hearing he read a report of the chemist at the Agricultural College, showing that there was a loss of nutritive value in the ensilage while in the silo. Mr. Russell characterized Dr. Bailey's book on the subject as a fraud from beginning to end, saying the author knew nothing about the subject, and that the book was simply an advertisement for the author's farm and stock. He further said that, unless supplemented by other food, ensilage will neither produce flesh or milk, nor even sustain life. There was additional testimony from another source to the effect that it would not make good butter nor cheese.—Salem Gazette.

Cold-Blooded Villains; Monday evening a horse belonging to John C. Rolfe of Newbury, Oldtown, was stolen from in front of Plummer & Balch's store on Pleasant street. The police were notified and instituted a search, and succeeded in finding the animal tied to a tree in Wills' lane, covered with ice and long icicles, and shivering with the cold. It seems that the rascals attempted to drive across the ice in the hollow, when it broke and let them in. The wagon still remains, with a broken shaft, covered to the hubs, in the water. The harness was nearly torn off the horse.

A Fraud: A German peddler has been around our streets for the last few days selling tin-ware. He has been in the habit of walking into houses without any ceremony whatever, and insulting ladies, and, in all probability, taking whatever he could lay his hands on. He was called into the police station Monday and gave his name as Mayar Livinson, also producing his license. He was told to be more ceremonious and polite hereafter and was allowed to go his way.

A Horse to be Pitied: A man attempted to drive a horse attached to an express sleigh into the alley adjoining Webster's shoe store, this forenoon, when the animal refused to go in the desired direction and brought up square in front of one of the show windows in which an attractive display of chromos is made. The driver took the horse by the head in disgust and turned his head down the passage way, muttering at the same time, "She's got the picture fever, just like all the other females."—Lynn Bee.

ECONOMY.—In Morocco the cry is for retrenchment and reform as it has been in our own beloved country, and it has been effected. It has not been by reducing the army and navy, or cutting down the salaries of school teachers, but the Sultan has reduced the expenses by reducing the number of his wives. He has dismissed two hundred of the oldest and ugliest of them, and has married them to high officers of his army, whose salaries have been reduced twenty-five per cent., in consideration of the honor done them by marrying an ex-Sultana. The Sultan, Sidi Muley Hassan, retains the younger and handsomer of his wives, and everybody is satisfied except the high army officers, as expenses are reduced, and the Sultan, who has been very unpopular with his people, was greeted with enthusiastic applause, as he rode from the palace to the chief mosque, after the reform and retrenchment became known. The women are satisfied because they get a larger fraction of a husband, the Sultan because he gets rid of the older portion of his wives, and the people because the taxes are lightened. The high officers of the army are reported not to feel the gratitude which they ought for the great honor conferred upon them.

A Tour Among the Farms.

NUMBER ONE.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," so is a sleigh-ride behind "Groton Boy." And let us say right here that this noted horse was sired by the celebrated thorough-bred stallion "Magnum Bonum," dam a pure bred Morgan mare, widely known for her great speed and endurance. In "Groton Boy" we find a combination of all the excellent qualities of both sire and dam. His speed and staying powers are unsurpassed, if equaled, by any young horse in town. He is now owned by a wealthy manufacturer residing on Central street. Last Friday afternoon, by the politeness of our friend, we received an invitation to accompany him on a drive around Danvers. Without hesitation we accepted, and in a very short time were taken to that locality by the promising young flyer of his.

After enjoying a drive around town, we brought up at the "Burley Hill" farm. This farm is located on the road to Wenham, about a mile from Danversport. It contains more acres of valuable tillage land than any other farm in the town. It is now occupied by Mr. Adams almost exclusively as a stock and milk farm. In the largest barn, situated north of the house, are kept some fifty head of cows, young and old, a few being dry; the most of them were in milk. Many of them indicated by their superior points that they were deep milkers. There may have been a few thorough-bred animals among the herd, but the most of them had the appearance of being grades and natives. Taken as a collection, they reflect credit upon the good judgment of the owner in their selection. From this barn we proceeded to the one occupied as a stable for the horses. In one part were the horses used on the farm and for conveying the milk to market. These were close made, heavy animals, fully competent to perform the tasks allotted to them. In the other part were five or six trotters, clipped and blanketed after the most approved style. They all had the appearance of being well bred and carefully trained animals, one in particular, "Okou" by name, claiming a record better than 2.20. As the time we had to spend here was limited, we could only have a cursory examination of this splendid farm, hoping soon to receive another invitation from our friend to visit some other farm in another location. Poet's Corner.

What of That?

Tired! Well, and what of that?
Did'st fancy life was spent on beds of ease,
Fluttering the rose leaves scattered by the breeze?
Come, rouse thee. Work while it is called to-day;
Coward, arise! Go forth upon thy way.

Lonely! And what of that?
Some must be lonely; 'tis not given to all
To feel a heart responsive rise and fall,
To blend another life into its own;
Work may be done in loneliness: work on.

Dark! Well, what of that?
Did'st fondly dream the sun would never set?
Did'st fear to lose thy way? Take courage yet;
Learn thou to walk by faith and not by sight,
Thy steps will guided be and guided right.

Hard! Well, what of that?
Did'st fancy life one summer holiday,
With lessons none to learn and naught but play?
Go! get thee to thy task; conquer or die!
It must be learned. Learn it then patiently.

No help! Nay; 'tis not so;
Though human help be far, thy God is nigh;
Who fed the ravens hears His children's cry;
He's near thee wheresoe'er thy footseps roam,
And He will guide thee, light thee, help thee home.

The Sea.

Ebb and flow! ebb and flow!
By basalt crags, through caverns low,
Through rifted rocks, o'er pebbly strand,
On windy beaches of naked sand.

To and fro! to and fro!
Chanting ever and chanting slow,
Thy harp is swept with liquid hands,
And thy voice is breathing of distant lands.

Sweet and low! sweet and low!
Those golden echoes I surely know;
Thy lips are rich with the lazy South,
And the tuneful icebergs have touched thy mouth.

Come and go! come and go!
The sun may shine and the winds may blow,
But thou wilt forever sing, O sea!
And I never, ah! never, shall sing like thee!

—Fitz-James O'Brien.

Is it Worth While?

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother,
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other
In blackness of heart that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

God pity us all as we jostle each other;
God pardon us all for the triumphs we feel
When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather,
Pierced to the heart; words are keener than steel,
And mightier far for woe than for weal.

Were it not well in this brief little journey
On over the isthmus, down into the tide,
We give him a fish instead of a serpent,
Ere folding the hands to be and abide
Forever and aye in the dust at his side?

Look at the roses saluting each other;
Look at the herds all at peace on the plain—
Man, and man only, makes war on his brother,
And laughs in his heart at his peril and pain;
Shamed by the beasts that go down on the plain.

Is it worth while that we battle to humble
Some poor fellow down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time oft soon will tumble
All of us together, like leaves in a gust,
Humbled, indeed, down into the dust.

—Joaquin Miller.

After the Theatre.

Ten dollars! Quite a sum to pay
For one who earns but four a day,
For just a single evening's fun.
It seems so, now the thing is done.
Three for the carriage, for you know
I never could ask her to go
With that swell dress—the shade ecru,
And train strung out a yard or two—
In a plain horsecar. And so nice
She looked, I do not grudge the price.
Three more for seats—down centre aisle
And four rows back—just right for style.
The curtain rose. How time will pass
While gazing through an opera glass.
The curtain fell. Once more we stood
Outside, and then the thought of food
Itself presented. She said yes,
She felt quite hungry. You can guess
That what we ate, with just a bit
Of rosy wine to season it,
Used up that other four. Time sped.
I took her home. Good night was said.
Then to my own home came I straight;
And here I sit and meditate.
The cash I had four hours ago
Is gone. I've naught for it to show.
Have I regrets for it? Not one.
'Twas folly, but, by Jove, 'twas fun.

Give neither counsel nor salt until you are asked for it.

Selected Story.

TOM ORTON.

Broadway, brilliant and gay, as if there were nothing of poverty or human suffering in the world; as if none in the great city were familiar with hunger and sickness; as if there were never to be any awakening from a golden dream of luxury and pleasure.

"Ah, thoughtless wealth and fashion," murmured Tom Orton, bitterly, as he saw fur-clad forms, and pampered steeds, and richly mounted harness, and gilded sleighs, and costly robes dash along. "How much you will have to answer for in the day of final reckoning, for neglecting your poor, toiling, suffering brothers and sisters!"

Suddenly a confused cry, a wild tumult, the drawing away of teams on either side, or dashing into side streets, startled him and he knew something unusual was taking place. Then came the shout of "Runaway! runaway!" and he felt that life and property, were being whirled on to destruction.

"Are you mad?" asked many, as they ran to a place of safety, and he standing upon the curbstone.

He gave no heed to the warning. He had braved death far too often to shrink from it in any event, and most certainly when at such a distance. His eyes were fixed up the street on a team of noble bays that were tearing along, mad with fright, and surging along from side to side — running at their utmost speed, each striving to outdo the other, straining every nerve—running away driverless. Had that been all he would not have troubled himself, deep as was his affection for blooded steeds, for he was not at that moment particularly in sympathy with wealth. It was quite another matter that chained him.

At the first outcry he had sprang to and half climbed a lamp-post; and so obtained a clearer view—one that thrilled his heart to the very core, caused his breath to be more deeply drawn, and his pulse almost to cease to beat.

In the sleigh was a young and beautiful woman, pale with terror, and clasping two children to her breast. Orton thought of his Jenny and their little ones, and resolved to save them. The impulse was noble, but how was it to be accomplished? Far beyond any human control were the frantic horses. To attempt to seize the reins as they dashed past would be madness. He saw this—saw that the course of the horses would bring them directly upon him, and, though the crowd furiously warned him of his danger, he stirred not—only braced muscles and nerves and set his teeth with determination.

"My God!" exclaimed a man, who, bolder than the rest, sprang forward and would have drawn him away. "You will be instantly killed!"

Tom Orton shook him off just as the horses reached him, watched his opportunity, seized upon the harness as they were sweeping past, sprang lightly upon the back of the nearest horse, grasping the reins, and, turning to the affrighted woman and screaming children, shouted:

"Keep quiet! I will save you!"

And save them he did. Before a block had been traversed the horses were made to realize that he was their master, and the sharp curb cutting deeply into their mouths brought them to a standstill.

The crowd cheered lustly—the police assisted the women and children out and carried them to a neighboring store, and, as soon as the former had in a measure recovered her senses, she asked for her preserver, that she might thank and reward him.—But he was not to be found. All that could be learned was, that as soon as the trembling steeds had been taken charge of by others he had disappeared.

"Who could it have been?" questioned the lady, with still ghastly face and bloodless lips.

"Cannot say," answered a policeman, "but he was a brave fellow anyhow. I would not have taken the risk he did for thousands."

"A brave fellow, indeed," was the response, "and I would give very much to know his name and where he is to be found."

But the lady departed without obtaining the desired information, and the sensitiveness of Tom Orton caused him to lose the one opportunity of his life to have risen above iron-handed poverty.

Meanwhile he was hurrying to business; more time had been occupied in the rescue than he thought possible, and though applause was dear to him (as to all), yet he could not stay to listen, and as for risking his life for money, he had not even dreamed of such a thing.

Out of breath he dashed into the dressing-room, and was received with reproof for being late.

"Could not help it," he said; "I saw a pair of fiery horses running away with a sleigh and a woman and two children; thought of my Jenny and children, and had to stop to save them."

He told his story very briefly and modestly while getting ready, and soon was dashing down the arena upon a spirited steed, "charging the world with wondrous horsemanship."

The audience applauded to the echo, and, carried away by the excitement, he rashly determined to execute his most daring acts, forgetting that the horse he rode had not been trained to them, and was young and wild.

The result was soon plainly apparent. Though some were accomplished in safety, yet, when he attempted leaping over a banner, the fluttering frightened the horse, he bolted suddenly, and Tom Orton was hurled heavily to the ground!

He endeavored to rise and make light of pain, but a strange sickness came over him, the light flickered and grew dim, he gasped for air, and knew nothing more until somewhat revived in the dressing-room, heard familiar voices.

"O God! what will become of Jenny and the babies?" he gasped faintly. "I am done for, and—and —" his tears and sobs choked him.

"Do not fear for them, Tom," said a dozen hearty voices, and as many grasped his hand as could obtain hold, "we will see that you are taken care of."

Many carelessly and senselessly condemn the ring and the stage, but in the law of want and suffering their hearts shine upon the surface, and such charity is shown that none upon the earth is brighter. Ah! if all humanity was true as the brotherhood and sisterhood, whose lives are given for the amusement and instruction of others, there would be far less of trial and suffering in the world. It is a charity that lasts beyond even the sad scenes at the "little church around the corner."

"Thanks, thanks," murmured the injured man; "but tell me the worst."

"A broken leg is all that appears serious," answered a gray-haired man—a strange physician who had been summoned; "though I cannot account for the marks upon your side, my man."

"Probably he hurt himself when he stopped the runaway horses," was suggested, and the story told.

"Humph! a very dangerous business—next to foolhardy; not one in ten thousand would have escaped alive!" replied the physician, with pressed lips and flashing eyes. "Well, all that can be done now is to get him home. Then I will make a more minute examination."

Very tenderly was the noble-hearted fellow taken to his humble abode. The scene, when he was laid upon the bed, side by side with his sick wife and children, caused every eye to overflow with tears.

"Tom, dear Tom," said Jenny, as well as she could for her pitiful sobbing, "what will become of us—of the children? We will starve and die together!"

"Not while we have hands," replied his associates, every heart touched and every arm nerved to the utmost toward relief.

They all looked around anxiously for the physician. But he was not to be seen, and their grumbling became loud and deep.

"I can bear anything," said Tom, "but for you, Jenny, and the children," and he entirely broke down.

"And I could curse the doctor for an unfeeling wretch," blurted out of the most passionate. "But it is ever thus. We give our lives freely to please the public, and when anything happens they care nothing for us."

Tom groaned heavily. The sound woke his little girl. She raised up in bed, clapped her tiny hands and shouted, in true childish glee and wonder:

"Mamma! papa! see! an angel!"

All eyes were turned in the direction pointed, and in the doorway stood a beautiful woman, leaning on the arm of the physician.

Yes; an angel had come to them. Tom Orton has risked his life to save that one daughter of Dr. Armitage and his grandchildren, and the merest chance had given them the knowledge who it was.

But never was an equestrian feat better rewarded, and never a more charitable angel appeared upon earth even upon the day when, alike upon the hill-top and valley, it proclaimed: "Peace on earth and good will to men."

Miscellaneous.

GIVING MUSIC LESSONS.

The summer vacation!

What a world of changes it brings to the innocent young school girl!—what a revolution of thought, fact and fancy! In all our future, will over the weeks come to us, garlanded with roses and radiant with the fancies of the heart, as they came to us in the days of our summer vacations?

That was what Elsie Dale was thinking, as she sat beside the river, dipping her water-lily buds in the cool tide, and watching the birds' nests in the rushes.

She was homeless and motherless, and all the other girls were full of happy anticipations, as they clustered on the green spot of shadow under the giant elm tree. And yet, beneath it all, there was a throb of exultation in her heart.

"I am to have a season at Saratoga," said Cynthia Vale, the beauty of the school. "Mamma says I am young, but then very young girls are all the fashion now."

"I am to go to the Adirondacks with papa, to take sketches, and strengthen my lungs," said May Allison, proudly.

"I am to have music lessons from Signor Ralentando!" triumphantly proclaimed little Bell Burton. "Tell us, Elsie, dear, what are you going to do?"

"Exactly the opposite from you, Bell," said Elsie, laughing, while the dimples came into her chin and the carmine color into her cheek. "I shall spend my vacation in giving music lessons, so that I can test my own capacity and earn a little money for the future."

Bell Burton looked on with wide open eyes of surprise.

"Oh, Elsie!" cried she, "do you believe you can?"

"I shall try," said Elsie, bravely.

"I can't possibly fancy a music teacher without false hair and spectacles," said Bell.

"Madame Duchesne is very kind," said Miss Dale. "She has got me this situation, because she knew that I wanted remunerative employment during the vacation. Some lady wrote to her from the Shawangunta Mountains—one of those castellated mansions on the heights, you know, that one dreams about—that she wanted her to come out and give a querter's lessons in her family. And Madame Duchesne could not leave town, so she wrote to propose me for a substitute."

"Are you to have many pupils?" inquired Bell, with interest.

"Only one."

"A girl or a boy?"

"I don't know," said Elsie. "I think I would rather have a girl, if I am to choose. But Madame Duchesne says the boys are the more often intelligent and appreciative learners."

The next day came with the flower-hung halls, its band of music, and blue-ribboned diplomas, and sweet bustle of departure—and when the grey shadows of evening fell, Elsie Dale was on her way to Mount Sorel, in the Shawangunta Mountains.

She had never been out of the city before, except during the year she had been at boarding-school, at the expense of the eccentric old aunt, who had lately bethought herself to die, leaving all her property to a sectarian "Home for Old Ladies," and the sublime crests of the everlasting hills were as new as they were delightful to her. Glens, cascades, wild gorges, and desolate ravines, clothed in the black-green growth of pines and cedars, succeeded one another in bewildering array—and the mountain stage was actually at the door of Mount Sorel before Elsie realized that she was more than half way on her journey.

It was a fine old mansion, with a central tower of blue stone and two long, low wings, situated upon a level plateau on the hill-side, with a wall of almost perpendicular mountain at the rear, and a superb view extending to the south.

An old, colored servant man, with wool as white as snow and a suit of genteel black, came to the door.

"Is Mrs. Sorel at home?" Miss Dale demanded, with what dignity she might command.

"Yes, miss, de missis she's home," briskly answered the sable servitor.

"Tell her it is the music teacher," said Elsie.

And the old man showed her into a pretty little apartment, hung with antique chintz and sprinkled with trees and butterflies in colors that would have driven a naturalist wild.

A fire of some scented wood blazed on a low marble hearth, and was far from disagreeable among the chill mountain heights, August even though it was.

Presently a stout lady, in black silk and fluttering cap-strings, came hurrying in.

"Goodness gracious me!" ejaculated the stout lady in black, "there's some mistake!"

Elsie rose up and dropped an alarmed courtesy.

"There's no mistake, ma'am, I think," said she.

"But you are a child!" said Mrs. Sorel.

"I am 18, ma'am," said Elsie.

"I wrote for Mme. Duchesne."

"Mme. Duchesne could not come," said Elsie, feeling her heart-throbs begin to accelerate. "I am her favorite pupil, and she was convinced that I could represent her. Didn't you get her letter?"

"I have received no letter," said Mrs. Sorel, still viewing Elsie through her eye-glasses, as if she were some sort of an unaccountable rara avis.

Then ensued another embarrassing silence, which Elsie Dale felt must be broken at all hazards.

"If you would be so good as to introduce me to my pupil," said she, "I think——"

"Oh, certainly," said Mrs. Sorel, with a little hysterical laugh, "I will introduce you to your pupil!"

And opening a door which slid gently back under partieres of pink-and-blue chintz, she led the way into a study lined with books, where, by the soft light of a shaded lamp, sat a dignified gentleman of 30, busy over a heap of manuscript.

"My son, the rector of the parish," said she. "Rudolph, allow me to introduce you to Miss Dale, who has come from New York to give you music lessons."

The dignified gentleman rose and bowed.

Elsie felt as if she could slide, invisible, through a crack in the floor.

"Rudolph has had every musical advantage at Prague and Vienna," said Mrs. Sorel; "but Madame Duchesne has a reputation for classical sacred music, and my son thought it might be well to refresh his memory with a course of lessons in Haydn and Mozart before commencing to instruct his choir-boys himself."

Elsie colored like a rose.

"I—I am very sorry," said she; "and so will Madame Duchesne be. She thought—and I thought, too—that the pupil was a child. I believe I am pretty well grounded in my musical education, but, of course, I couldn't undertake to teach a gentleman like Mr. Sorel. Perhaps I had better return to New York by the morning's stage."

Here Elsie, quite forgetful of her dignity, burst into tears.

"Stop a minute!" said Mr. Sorel, gently. "Why should you not remain at Mount Sorel and instruct my little choir boys in my stead. And while they are still in the rudiments you can be practicing with me."

"If I could earn my board in that way," Elsie said feebly.

"You can do a deal more than that," said Mr. Sorel, kindly. "And now, mother, I am sure our pale little visitor needs a cup of tea."

Hospitable Mrs. Sorel made haste to conduct her to the breakfast-room, where fragrant tea, broiled chicken and biscuits as light as a puff of snow, were spread appetizingly on a little round table, glittering with old silver, and lighted with wax candles in antique bronze sconces.

"That was an excellent thought about the choir boys," said Mrs. Sorel, as she poured the thick yellow cream into Elsie's cup. "Now, wasn't it, my dear?"

"If—if you are quite sure that it wasn't merely to make me feel easy about staying here?" faltered Elsie.

Mrs. Sorel smiled wisely.

"Nothing would have induced him to say what he did not think," said she. "Rudolph is truth itself."

So Elsie stayed at Mount Sorel, going down day by day to the little chapel among the wild mountain ledges, with its picturesque gables and windows of stained glass, to teach the choir boys the difference between sharps and flats, "sol fa's" and "re me's." And then, when the lesson was over, she wandered into the ravines, gathered rare ferns and copied slender-stemmed wild flowers in water colors, and grew as rosy as a milkmaid.

Until September came, with the early frosts that turned the ferns to gold, and hung pennons of scarlet and russet among the maple trees in the glen; and then, one day, Rudolph Sorel found Miss Dale sitting gravely on the moss-covered rock beside the mountain spring, with an unwonted shadow on her face.

"What are you thinking of?" he asked, with a smile.

"I am thinking what I shall do this fall," said she. "Whether to advertise in the city papers for music scholars, or to open a little day-school in some unpretentious quarter of the town."

"Why do you go away from here at all?" he asked, gravely.

"Because I have my living to earn."

"But why can't you earn it here?" said he.

"Because there is nothing to do," she replied.

"Are you quite certain of that?" he asked, gently. "There is a great deal to do, Elsie Dale. I want you to stay at Mount Sorel—to stay for my sake. I want you to be my wife, Elsie!"

"Oh," cried Elsie, clasping her hands, "if only I were worthy of that."

"But you are worthy," he said. "Sweetheart, my life would be a vain void without you, now that I have learned to know and love you."

So when Madame Duchesne wrote to Elsie Dale that she had found a situation for her, Elsie Dale wrote back to Madame Duchesne that she had found one for herself; and that it had nothing to do with music lessons either.

"George Peabody," says a New York paper, "was never married, and for a singular reason." Then it goes on at some length to give the reason, because the girl married another man. And we have read that article a dozen times and have pondered over it deeply, and hanged if we can see yet why that should be called "a singular reason." We think it was a very sensible, matter-of-fact reason.—Burlington Hawk-eye.

LADY STANHOPE AT DAR JOON.

It was in 1818 that Lady Hester Stanhope took up her abode at Dar Joon, the position of which, at once secluded and commanding, took her fancy. It was a small house standing on the summit of a conically shaped mount, surrounded on all sides by yawning valleys. It was approached by steep paths running zigzag among masses of rock and low brushwood. At the summit, which presented a flat surface of considerable extent, the vegetation was rich and verdant.

She made many alterations in her new residence, which those who saw it have described as a collection of detached buildings connected by covered alleys. The adjacent ground was converted into a lovely garden, and the whole surrounded by a fortress-like wall some fourteen feet in height. She assembled around her a household of thirty people, principally Arabs and black slaves. These she ruled with a rod of iron. Once, when she had convicted them of sundry pilferings, she erected a couple of stakes near her door, as a warning to future offenders that they might expect the dread punishment of impalement.

The Emir Beshyr, Prince of the Druzes, was the potentate in whose dominions she was living. She and he had at first been on apparently amicable terms, but they soon became deadly enemies. The Emir, a treacherous and suspicious man, grew jealous of her authority in the Lebanon district, and strove to get rid of her. He threatened to bastinado any of the Joon villagers who entered her service; he tried to prevent provisions reaching her from Saida; he set men to guard a spring from which her people fetched water. At one time, indeed, it was given out that he meditated attacking her in her stronghold. The interference of the British Ambassador at Constantinople, to whom Lady Hester complained of these insults, brought the Emir to reason, while her ladyship revenged herself at her leisure.

The Emir was just then involved in a desperate quarrel with the Turkish Governor of Acre (Abdallah Pasha,) under whose authority he really was, as well as with the Sheykh Beshyr, a rival who disputed his rule. Lady Hester, disgusted by the tales she had heard of the Emir's cruelties, and, mindful of his past conduct toward herself, took a secret but active part in this struggle. She subsidized both Abdallah and Sheykh, employed hosts of spies to hamper the Emir, and harbored all the fugitives who fled to her from his wrath. On his sending to demand the surrender of some of these fugitives, his messenger was given a flat refusal, and the following instructions: "Tell your master that he is a dog and a monster, and that if he wishes to try his strength with me I am ready."

As years rolled on, Lady Hester, though continuing to figure in all the stirring events which succeeded each other in Syria, turned her thoughts to subjects more abstruse. She acquired, or professed to have acquired, a deep knowledge of astrology. This enabled her to prophesy. Her prophecies, otherwise vague, were remarkable as pointed to her own splendid destiny. In her interviews with Lamartine (whose star, it seems, agreed with hers,) she spoke at great length of the coming of the Messiah. She showed him also two Arab mares, each of which had a groom especially appointed to look after her. On these animals, which nobody was permitted to mount, the prophetess intimated that the Messiah and herself would make their entry into Jerusalem. People who heard her speak like this might have imagined that Lady Hester had taken leave of her senses. But such was not the case. To have drawn the eyes of the world on herself, she would have made, if possible, more startling statements.

The accounts given us of her by such visitors as Lamartine, Prince Puckler-Muskau, and the author of "Eothen," are much alike. Knowing that, through them, her portrait would be given to society at home, she posed in their presence as the Circe of Mount Lebanon, and made use of language appropriately mystic. It is from her doctor, who saw her almost daily, that we obtain an idea of the woman as she really was. Her habits, as described by him, were strange. She never opened a book, and would have no time-piece near her. She remained in bed in the early part of the day, issuing orders, rating her servants, and so on. Toward evening she would rise and dine. Afterward, seated on her divan and puffing at a tchibouque, she would descend altogether from the stars, and pour forth a stream of gossiping reminiscence of her former life in London. Time and distance had done nothing to diminish her rancorous hatred for England and everything English. Forgetting that she had voluntarily renounced all connection with home and kindred, she sometimes would launch into violent tirades against her relatives for the cruel neglect they showed her. On such occasions she would bewail her forlorn condition with tears and groans, and, for want of a better butt, load her faithful doctor with unmerited reproaches.—Temple Bar.

When a man wants to enlist in the army of China his courage is subjected to a very unusual test. The recruiting officer places the candidate in a chair and proceeds to extract a tooth, and the conduct of the patient under this ordeal is said to decide the question as to his fitness for the military service of the empire. If he howls and jumps up and down he is pronounced unfit; but if he smiles and exhibits generally a feeling of satisfaction, he secures a permanent place in the ranks.

☞ A man can't work unless he feels well. The hards time have made plenty of people sick simply by worrying them almost out of their wits about money and business. Trouble of mind has brought on trouble of body. There is indigestion, heaviness in the head, and all that. Are you afflicted in this way? Go and invest One Dollar for a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," and it will make a new man of you. It takes the bile out of the blood, and is worth a trip to Rondout, N. Y.,—the Doctor's home—on foot, if you cannot get it more easily. First, however, see if you druggist hasn't got it.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Semiual Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE SUN FOR 1881.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

I. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. THE SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

II. Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Good writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN'S habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of party organizations, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. THE SUN believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1881, and the years immediately following, will probably decide this supremely important contest. THE SUN believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Kings for monopoly, the Kings for plunder, and the Kings for imperial power.

Our terms are as follows:

For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage page.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address I. W. ENGLAND,

THE NEW YORK

EVENING POST

FOR 1881.

In Its Eighty-first Year.

The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.

1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to contend for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.

2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.

3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to render it a first class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of each day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents, not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.

4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts, and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.

5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions, which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 23, 1881.

THE late census cost the government in the neighborhood of one million, nine hundred thousand dollars.

PAUL BOYTON, the celebrated swimmer, is believed to have fallen a victim in the war between Peru and Chili.

EX-GOV. HARTRAFT, of Pennsylvania, has been confirmed by the Senate as Collector of Customs at Philadelphia. The office is a lucrative one.

THE subsidy of lands granted by the Government to the Northern Pacific railroad is valued at $100,000,000, and comprises 57,000,600 acres.

THERE are now 569 cities in the United States supplied with water works, involving 13,000 miles of pipe, 10,000 of which are of cast iron.

THE Dutch (Hollanders) of New York City are raising funds for the Boers now fighting the English in South Africa. America is a great country.

DR. PIERCE'S Palace Hotel at Buffalo, which was erected less than three years ago at an expense of nearly $500,000, was burned Wednesday afternoon.

MEXICO is desirous of entering into commercial relations with this country on a more extended scale, because her merchants can purchase better goods at lower prices than ever before in our history.

JAY GOULD, the railway king, controls three great newspapers in New York City—the Tribune, the World, and the Express—and manufactures public sentiment to order. He is worth over $100,000,000, in railroads, telegraphs, bonds, etc.

THE report of the comptroller of Nevada shows that the taxable valuation of that bonanza state is only $27,598,658, or about that of an ordinary eastern city of thirty or forty thousand inhabitants. The total tax derived from the mines of the state is only $115,159.

THE communists, socialists and liberalists of all sorts and kinds are making the most of the present disorders. They enjoy the glorious privilege of free speech in this country, and every little while they "blow off" and then they feel better. Curiously enough, some of those fellows seem to thrive by this sort of business.

THERE is some consolation to be found in the fact that the prophets of disaster to our very steady-going old planet do not agree among ourselves. Two of them, entitled to as much credence as the others, have deduced from Holy Writ the conclusions that things will go on as they are till 1887. Then people must look for a tremendous cataclysm: the Star of Bethlehem will reappear, and moral, physical and mundane convulsions will follow.

SENATOR BECK, of Kentucky, recently declared on the floor of the Senate that Jay Gould, Thomas Scott, Wm. P. Huntington, Wm. H. Vanderbilt and John W. Garrett, controlling the great trunk lines, can meet together at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York City, and in a five minutes' chat levy a tax upon the commerce of the country of $500,000,000, by simply raising the tariff of freight two cents a bushel upon grain, and do it according to law.—These five men wield a greater power over the commerce of the country than Congress, and are to-day monarchs over all they survey.

THE TOWN REPORT.—This document is now in the hands of the printer, and will probably be laid before the scrutiny of the tax-payers early next week. The "Summary" states that the ordinary net expenditures for town purposes, including the interest of the town debt the past year, has been $63,814.78. The year previous it was $68,074.74. This does not include the amount expended for extension of the water works. The expenditures in the Poor Department have been 11,404.43. The receipts, $4,000.67. The year previous the expenditures were $11,018.40; receipts, $3,941.40. The net receipts from liquor licenses have been 4,050.00. The year previous, $3,356.25. Expenditures of School Department, $23,642.50; in 1879, $22,861.70. Expenditures of Fire Department, $6,714.38; in 1879, $5,514.64. The receipts from water rates, $15,684.45; the running expenses have been $1,577.46; expended for construction, $2,739.88; total, $4,317.34. The town debt is $226,139.34—a decrease of $11,711.68. Had the amount which was appropriated for improvements in Goldthwait's Brook been raised by taxation, instead of having been taken from the surplus in the town treasury, the reduction would have been $10,000 more. The resources of the town are $82,792.84, including a surplus in the town treasury of $42,142.04, and the sinking fund, $28,425.00. Of the town debt, $138,000 represents the water loan, the interest of which is offset by a portion of the receipts from the water rates, $37,000 the engine house loan, and $92,000 the school house loan. The valuation of the town property is $413,022.00, including the cost of the water works, $178,000.00. The interest on the town debt is $18,582.30, offset by the income from the water rates and a special appropriation of only $4,000.

THE SALEM POST OFFICE.—Mr. J. Frank Dalton has been appointed Post Master of Salem, and will fill the unexpired term of the late Gen. Pierson, which ends Nov. 13, 1881. We consider this a nomination eminently fitting, for, in our humble opinion, there is no man in Salem better qualified for the place than Mr. Dalton. For a long series of years he has held the responsible position of Deputy Collector in the Salem Custom House, to the entire satisfaction of the Department, and to the many who have had occasion to transact business there. During the Rebellion, he was in the Navy under Farragut; has been commander of Phil Sheridan Post, G. A. R., and is now holding a prominent position in the Salem Cadets. His executive ability is of a high order, and we venture to say that he will make the best post master Salem has ever had.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.—The Irish-Americans of Salem and vicinity filled Mechanic Hall to overflowing, last Friday evening. Their design, in so doing, was to express their indignation at the course of England in oppressing Ireland, in expelling Parnell and imprisoning Davitt. It was not an Irish meeting, alone, because many Americans were present, and Anglo and Irish-Americans united in censuring English arrogance. General Cogswell, ex-Mayor Oliver, of Salem, and Father Masterson, of Peabody, made telling speeches, and letters were read from prominent personages, among which was one from Rev. Mr. Harmon, the Universalist pastor of Peabody. And this puts us in mind that the editor of the PRESS received a written invitation to attend, and occupy a seat on the platform (with the dignitaries), but as the missive bore no signature, the editor was at a loss to know whether it was genuine or bogus, and consequently the office was not represented upon the platform.

E. MOODY BOYNTON has brought in a bill of $7400 for alleged expenses in contesting for Dr. Loring's seat in Congress. This includes a receipt from Benj. F. Butler for $5000 for professional services. Dr. Loring for defending his seat, charges $1940, which the Committee on Elections think is reasonable, and will be allowed under the laws. Boynton, also, receives nearly two year's pay as a Congressman, on account of repeated and needless delays. It has been a dear case for the Government, but, we should judge, a very profitable one for Mr. Boynton, who never had the slightest foundation to substantiate his claim upon.

Listening to Wendell Phillips pleading the cause of Ireland last evening, before an audience composed mainly of Irish men and women, who hung breathless upon his words and applauded him to the echo, it was curious to remember that, twenty-five years ago, when he was pleading the cause of a race who have suffered oppression such as Ireland never knew, the whole influence of the "liberty-loving" Irish race in America was thrown against him and the cause in which he was engaged. It makes a heap of difference whose ox is gored.—Advertiser.

The man who can live on himself like Dr. Tanner, needs no rich relations.

SALEM ITEMS.—The annual inspection of Co. L, Salem Light Infantry, will occur on Tuesday evening, April 12, and of Co. K, Salem Mechanic Light Infantry, Tuesday evening, April 19.

Mr. John L. Stoddard will give a course of five illustrated lectures, on places and points of interest which he has visited while on his European travels. They will take place at Mechanic Hall, and the first will occur to-morrow evening.

Hose Two held another of their pleasant social hops at their hose house on Thursday evening last. A goodly number were present, who indulged in the gymnastic exercises common to people's feet at such gatherings, to the music of the Salem Band Orchestra. The next one of the series will be a Coffee Party, which will take place on Thursday evening, March 3d.

The Manhattan and the American Fire Insurance Companies have each paid the sum of $558.50 to the Gifford Bros, as a settlement of their loss at the recent Packard fire.

Dr. Wm. Cate, in consequence of ill health, will remove to a milder climate, Washington being reported as his future residence.

On Monday evening, March 7, "All the Rage" will be presented at Mechanic Hall, with the original cast, and new and beautiful scenery.

The Salem Light Infantry will hold a sociable at their Armory to-morrow evening.

Mr. G. C. Mackenzie, 252 1-2 Essex St., is furnishing card collectors with pretty, gilt advertising cards.

Mr. W. C. Packard & Co. announce that they will close out the balance of their stock of Furniture damaged by fire. This sale commenced this morning at Howard Hall, in the rear of Mechanic Hall, and comprises a large variety of high priced furniture which was slightly damaged by water and will be sold cheap.

Mr. A. J. Swain has a large assortment of cards, albums, stationery, etc., 220 Essex street.

Mr. John P. Peabody has commenced the sale of black silks, gimps, such as are usually sold for 50 and 75 cents, at 10 cents a yard. Those who want it must go early, as such bargains cannot last long.

The Salem Oratorio Society have postponed Mendelsohnn's Oratorio of "St. Paul," till Thursday evening, March 3d, when it will be given in the First Baptist Church, Salem.

"Interesting for the Ladies," is what Almy, Bigelow & Webber say this morning in referring to the new silver spring corset. Read their adv. on the 5th page and learn all about it.

The Naumkeag Clothing Company are bound to reduce their stock of Winter clothing if low prices for good goods can do it. Just read their prices before purchasing, and then call and be convinced.

Mr. T. W. McKean, merchant tailor, has an adv. in this issue. He has had a large experience in his line, and guarantees perfect satisfaction. He is located at 200 1-2 Essex street, Salem.

MR. EDITOR,—In answer to your anonymous correspondent, who wishes to know why nothing was done by the present board of officers of the P. H. S. A., and to others interested, the following may serve as an eye-opener: At the last reunion, held, I think, two years ago, accommodations were provided for the usual number, that is, about two hundred. But tickets did not sell well, and the evening of the reunion the association found itself about thirty dollars in debt, aside from the amount to its credit in the bank, amounting to nearly forty dollars. As all present had paid their admission, all that was left was to "to take up a collection," by which means they barely came out whole. If, in case of a deficiency, "Anonymous" would like to pass around the box, we might possibly have a reunion every year.

A CONTRIBUTOR.

The Winter Meeting of the Essex Conference of Unitarian Churches will be held in Salem on Thursday, Feb. 24, in the East Church. The session will open at 10 A. M., for the discussion of business, among which will be a Report from the Woman's auxiliary of Conference. An Essay will be read by Rev. Joseph H. Allan of Cambridge, on "Fear as a Motive in the Religious Life." A collation will be served at noon. In the afternoon there will be a colloquy on the subject, "The Work of the Liberal Minister." Rev. Messrs. Butler, Moorehouse, Stewart and Bachelor will speak. Free return tickets will be furnished over the Eastern Railroad to all stations in Essex county, to those paying full local fare one way.

Mrs. Bridget Fox has sued the town of Danvers for $3000 damages, on account of injuries received by means of an alleged defective sidewalk.

There is more merit in subduing a passion than in avenging an injury.

SLEIGH RIDE.—On Thursday night about forty of our prominent citizens with lady friends, enjoyed themselves hugely, having previously engaged one of Smith & Manning's excellent sleighs with six spirited horses for that night. The team was promptly on hand, but it was after eight o'clock before the company, snugly tucked beneath the buffalo robes, started out of town on the Lynn road. The trip to Lynn was very pleasantly occupied, the people throwing off all restraint, and jokes, funny stories, and songs served to amuse all. After riding through the principal streets of Lynn and Swampscott, the horses were headed towards Salem, and shortly after the Lafayette House, Dr. Kelley, Prop., came in sight. Here a stop was made, and as the sleigh drove up to the house, the doors were thrown open and our eyes rested upon the beaming countenances of the landlord and his wife, who gave us a cheerful greeting, and as he gave us a cordial shake, whispered in our ear, "Make yourself at home, my friend;" but it was impossible to do otherwise, the very atmosphere of the house pervading us with a sense of ownership, and all felt prrfectly at home. After all hands had got warm, we were invited to adjourn to the dining room and partake of one of those suppers which few people excel Kelley in getting up, but which no one could have any difficulty in getting down.

We have often tested the delicacies at this resort, but upon this occasion our host excelled himself and furnished a supper which would please an epicure. We did full justice to the many dishes provided, after which we started for Peabody, where we arrived at an early hour Friday morning. Below is the bill of fare:

SOUPS
Tomato, Fish,
Chicken, Halibut, with Sauce,
Anglaise, Lake Trout.
MEAT.
Roast Chicken.
GAME.
Broiled Quail on Toast,
Entrees,
Celery Salad.
VEGETABLES.

JOHNSON'S CYCLOPEDIA.—We have received the set of this valuable work subscribed for by us, some few weeks ago. The commendations that have been so lavishly bestowed upon it by the scholars of our country, are certainly well merited, and we know of nothing fitter to be said in its favor than the following letter from the faculty of Yale College, each Professor making the examination in his own department of learning:

We have examined carefully "Johnson's New Universal Cyclopedia," and pronounce it a most valuable reference book. It possesses these advantages over other similar works: It is more convenient for ready reference; its important articles are prepared by leading specialists over their names; it is practically a geographical gazetteer; a biographical dictionary; a medical and legal manual; and a scientific repertory. The treatment of its subjects is thorough and comprehensive, and at the same time simple and judiciously adapted to the requirements of general readers.

We endorse the work after examination in our several departments of learning.

A PLEASANT COMPLIMENT.—Dr. Loring has received scores of letters complimenting the speech recently made by him in the House, among them the following from the poet Whittier:

OAK KNOLL, Danvers,
Second Month 9, 1881.

HON. GEO. B. LORING:

I have just read thy speech on Massachusetts in pamphlet form, though I had seen previously the newspaper reports of it. It is a speech which is worthy of the best days of the State, one which any of her representatives might have been proud of, and as a Massachusetts man and one of thy constituents, I heartily thank thee for it. It will take its place in the record of parliamentary eloquence, and our school boys will, in repeating it, learn a lesson of patriotism and laudable State pride. It will, I think, put an end to the foolish carping and groundless accusations against our good old Commonwealth.

I am very truly thy friend,
JOHN G. WHITTIER.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Miss Mary Merrill recently responded with ability to the following toast in a Western city:

"Our Public Schools—may their influence spread
Until statesmen use grammar and dunces are dead:—
Until no one dare say in this land of the free,
He 'done' for he 'did,' or it's 'her' for it's 'she.'"

On our 8th page we publish a card from the widow of the late Mr. J. C. Allen, the North Reading butcher. The query will naturally arise, after reflection upon Mrs. A.'s statement, why, if nearly all of the meat of the diseased animal was eaten, there were not many other fatal results arising from it; not even cases of sickness being chronicled, to our knowledge?

Can you tell me in what part of the world are the ears of donkeys most brittle? In Switzerland, because in that country they have glass ears! (N. B.—Glaciers.)

When you see a man with a big bundle of chromos under his arm you may safely wager he has either started a tea-store or begun to run a religious newspaper.

BETTER STYLES, BETTER GOODS, LOWER PRICES.—Such is the attractive heading of Wilmot's New Announcement, which he makes in to-day's Press. RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The following Resolutions were passed by the Star of Hope Lodge of Good Templars at a meeting held Feb. 16th, 1881.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom, to call from earth into His presence our beloved sister, Lucy M. Fernald, therefore,

Resolved, That with sorrowful submission, humbly bowing to our loss, and resigning ourselves to the stroke He has inflicted, recognizing His right to chasten us, as seemeth to Him good, we will ever cherish in memory the pure, unselfish life of our sister, with the feeling in our hearts that her goodness will inspire in us a loftier purpose in life and a stronger desire to imitate her example in kind words and benevolent acts.

Resolved, That we extend to her relatives our heartfelt sympathies, and pray that our Father in Heaven will assauge their grief, bind up their wounds, and pour the oil of gladness upon their sorrowing hearts.

Resolved, That the foregoing resolutions be spread upon the records of this Lodge, and a copy be sent to the relatives of the deceased sister.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

"THEATRES, do they meet a public want?"—This was the subject of Rev. Mr. Wood's discourse in the Baptist Church, last Sunday evening. The sermon was divided into three parts, viz., 1st—What is Pleasure? 2d—Who are Pleasurists? 3d—What is that want which Theatres meet? In summing up which the preacher found that—first, these places do not meet that legitimate demand for pleasure which God has planted in our natures for a high and useful purpose. Second, those who patronize these places for a relaxation of the mind, are the exception and not the rule, and they can find recreation far less harmful in its influence upon others and far more helpful in its effects upon themselves. Third, they are patronized mainly by those who do not need this kind of relaxation, and who do not visit these places for this purpose but for the unnatural excitement which they afford. Finally, that they do not exist as a public necessity, but because it pays in dollars and cents to pander to the vitiated tastes of humanity. Next Sunday evening Mr. Wood will continue the subject, and preach upon the evil effects of theatre going.

OBITUARY.—The many friends of Lizzie Clement King, wife of Samuel W. King, will be pained to hear of her sudden death. She died Sunday evening, a few minutes before nine o'clock, at her home on Lowell street. She was married but little more than a year ago, and leaves a beautiful home and a loving husband. Her long sickness was borne patiently and with a womanliness almost beyond her years. She had fine musical abilities, and many hours of her sickness were relieved by singing and playing by her friends. A kind heart and a cheerful, sunny disposition had won for her many friends, who will sympathize with the family in their sad bereavement.

The funeral ceremonies took place this afternoon at two o'clock, from her late residence on Lowell street, Rev. W. G. Sperry officiating. The remains were deposited in Harmony Grove.

The Universalist Society will hold a social party in Upton's Hall, next week, probably on Wednesday evening. It is intended that this shall be a social occasion for both old and young, and its success is already guaranteed by the large number who have interested themselves in the matter. Tickets, at only 50 cents, can be procured of W. P. Clark, C. G. Folsom, A. H. Merrill, and others; also at the stores of W. F. Sawyer, C. E. Teague and S. C. Hewitt.

Mr. H. P. Gale, formerly station agent of the Eastern Railroad in this town, died at Bristol, N. H., last Monday, of consumption. Mr. Gale while here made many friends by his gentlemanly and accommodating manners. Although a stranger when he came amongst us, he soon won the confidence of all whose pleasure it was to have any dealings with him. He was about 30 years of age, and leaves a widow.

On Tuesday evening over four hundred persons assembled at the Coffee Party, given by the Ladies' Land League, in Upton's Hall. The first part of the evening was devoted to literary exercises, and shortly before midnight dancing began. The occasion was a merry one, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The party broke up at about five o'clock in the morning.

WOMEN'S SCHOOL SUFFRAGE.—An invitation is given to all registered women to meet—we presume in caucus—on Friday afternoon of this week, at 4.15, at the Headquarters of the W. T. C. U., over Mr. Whidden's hardware store. All others interested will find admittance we doubt not.

POLICE NOTES.—Feb. 18th, William Buckman, of Rockland, Me., for taking an overdose of whiskey, will report at Salem Jail for hospital treatment.

Sarah Toomey came all the way from Lawrence to test the ardent in Peabody. It stood the test. She is now stopping at Salem Jail.

We learn by this morning's Salem Post that Mr. George W. Rogers, son of the late Hon. Richard Rogers, died yesterday in Salem. Mr. Rogers married a daughter of Mr. John A. Lord, of this town.

Stephen A. Osborne, of this town, has been drawn to serve as Traverse Juror at the Superior Court to be holden at Lawrence, on the first Monday of March next.

A notice in another column will tell those who want to get registered what days the Selectmen can attend to their cases.

The annual Tea Party of the Ladies' Association, in aid of the Home Missions, took place, as announced, last Wednesday evening, in Upton's Hall, nearly two hundred being present.—The supper, as usual upon these occasions, was excellent, after which the company repaired to the large hall, and witnessed a fine collection of "Living Portraits," viz.:

"Light and Shadow"—Mrs. Herbert Pevear and Miss Louisa Osborne.

"The Hard Sum"—Miss Maria Osborn.

"Chocolate Girl"—Miss Louisa Osborn.

"Paring Apples"—Mrs. H. Pevear.

"German Girl at her Sewing"—Miss Cassino.

"Spanish Lady"—Miss Sadie Upton.

"Peasant Girl Knitting"—Alice C. Osborn.

"Ophelia"—Miss Herbert Pevear.

"Yes or No"—Miss Sadie Upton.

"Persian Girl"—Miss Maria Osborn.

"A Portrait"—Mrs. H. S. Robbins.

"Lady of Siloam"—Miss L. K. Farley.

"On the way to Shcool"—Mrs. H. Pevear and Miss Maria Osborn.

"Grandmother"—Miss Cassino.

The portraits presented the face and a part of the shoulders only, the personators preserving the rigidity of their features remarkably well. The exhibition was interspersed with the songs, "Fair Jeannette," and "Evening Prayer," by a quartette composed of the following well-known artists: F. Chase, F. W. Stanley, Mrs. George Upton and Mrs. Benj. Upton; Miss L. K. Farley, pianist.

There is a certain degree of pleasure in recording the successful achievements of any of our townsmen, or of any one who is in any way connected with our people. Mr. David T. Winter, inventor of the Leather Measuring Machine sold by Teague & Winter, has invented a new measuring machine, which it seems must be perfect, and yet it is so simple in its construction it can be operated by a child. Those who are familiar with the old machine will be glad to know that the defects are all remedied in the new one. The measuring is done by displacing pins of equal weight at graduated distances, or by graduated pins at equal distances, or with the use of weights in the same way, suspended through the upper frame or weight table, and the lower frame on which the leather to be measured is placed is raised to the upper, and of course does not remain stationary, as in the old machine. Another improvement is the prevention of a lateral swing, (as indicated on the dial) as the upper or weight table does not have to move, and the least variance in the balance can be readily detected by the indicator. This machine is on exhibition at the manufactory in the rear of Bushby & Co.'s store. Mr. Winter has applied for a patent at Washington, and will also take out foreign patents, such as he now holds on the other machine. Mr. W. is a persistent and earnest worker, and is deserving of the success which is sure to follow so valuable an invention.

The Universalist Fair, which opened last evening and will be continued this afternoon and evening, has so far been very successful. Last evening a supper was served from six to eight o'clock, and many hungry ones availed themselves of this opportunity to get one more square meal. At the head of the vestry, in front of the stage, was a flower stand, arranged with flags in a very pretty manner. Next was the fish pool, where strange specimens of the finny tribe, or some other tribe, could be pulled out with a five cent bait. In the vestry parlor was exhibited the products of the Sewing Society, and a good display they made. The "guess cake" was next in order, and a long wire also afforded a chance for a skillful guess. The candy table was well supplied and well patronized. Ice cream was served later in the evening. Rev. A. B. Hervey, formerly pastor of the church, was present, and received a cordial welcome. This evening instrumental music will be given under the direction of Mr. Upton, of Salem, and other attractions will be furnished.

The Volunteer Engine Company are making extensive preparations for their 38th annual Firemen's and Civic Ball, to be held at Upton's Hall, Fast Eve, April, 1881. Tickets for sale after March 1st, and can be had of the committee of arrangements.

The drama, "My Brother's Keeper," will be repeated by the Murray Association, on Tuesday evening, March 8th. Those who missed seeing it before will now have an opportunity to witness it.

Rev. Mr. Harmon will deliver the last of his Sunday evening lectures in the Universalist Church, next Sunday. His subject will be: "What is needed in the Temperance question."

UNION SERVICE.—There will be a Union service at the South Church, on Sunday evening, Feb. 27th, at 7 o'clock. Sermon to young men by Dr. Steele.

No lady with any refinement will use her husband's meerschaum pipe to drive nails into the wall.

☞ Vitalizing, nourishing and stimulating without intoxicating, are Malt Bitters.

The year 1881 is well stocked with Sundays.

Hazen and Vennor are mixing the weather business fearfully. One is sending snow and another rain to the disgust of everybody.

☞ A CAPITAL SUBSTITUTE.—Once a man searched through what is now the State of Florida to find a fountain he had heard was there, which was able to make an old person young again. He failed We can't be boys or girls again. Age and infirmity are sure to come, but God did not ordain sickness. That is our fault. There is no Fountain of Youth, but there is a Fountain of Health, and its other name is Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." It comes from Nature—from the fields and flowers, and like them is "very good." Try it for all Complaints of Women, Blood Troubles, and pains and aches everywhere. If you can't get it at the store, send One Dollar for a bottle to the Doctor at Rondout, N. H.

It is learned by the Philadelphia Chronicle man that Edison is inventing a lemonade without sugar or lemons for the convenience of circuses and Sunday school picnics. That man never drank either, or he would know that those two ingredients are never in them.

An exchange says the Egyptian obelisk cannot stand our climate. It will have to. It is asking a little too much of the people to change their climate to suit the obelisk.

☞ NEURALGIA--A REMARKABLE CURE. The following extracts are from a letter received from S. A. Russell, Mescalero Agency, New Mexico, dated June 5th, 1879:—"I felt satisfied that if the remedy (Compound Oxygen) was really what you claimed it to be, it was just what I wanted for a daughter who had been a sufferer with neuralgia for more than fifteen years. I wrote you for a copy of your Treatise on Compound Oxygen. After reading this little work, and the certificates of such men as Judge Kelley, T. S. Arthur, ond others, I felt that if these were genuine, there must be real merit in the remedy. * * * I then ordered the remedy sent to my daughter in Kansas. That was about one year ago, and since using the supply then ordered, my daughter has not only not had neuralgia, but considers herself in perfect health. * * * Regarding my daughter as having, through the blessing of God, been permanently cured of as stubborn a case of neuralgia as it is possible for any person to be afflicted with and live, by the use of your Compound Oxygen, I esteem it a pleasure and a duty to send you this statement." Our Treatise on Compound Oxygen, which contains a record of many remarkable cures, sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago is going to make compulsory the use of smoke-consuming apparatus on all locomotives, steamboats and factories. If Chicago will extend this wise provision to cover men who smoke five cent cigars, Chicago will earn the world's gratitude.

A Lancaster young lady playfully threw her arms around the waist of a lady friend, and a pair of scissors hanging therefrom severed an artery in her arm and she nearbled to death. This accident should teach young ladies that throwing arms around the female waist is a dangerous piece of business, that should be performed only by the male sex. The latter are strong and brave, and don't mind having an artery severed now and then for the good of the cause.

Our representative lately learned the following from Mr. Carl Siegmund, Cor. Congress and Washington Sts.: My daughter suffered from Rheumatism to such an extent that it crippled her, rendering her unable to walk at all. We consulted many physicians and used all kinds of medicines, but in vain. At last St. Jacobs Oil effected the happiest results. It cured my daughter.—Ypsilanti (Mich.) Commercial.

An Irish hostler was sent to bring forth a traveler's horse. Not knowing which of the two strange horses in the stable belonged to the traveler, and wishing to avoid the appearance of ignorance in his business, he saddled both animals and brought them to the door. The traveler pointed out his own horse, saying, "That's my nag." "Certainly, your honor, I know that very well, but I didn't know which was the other gintleman's."

ITCHING PILES—SYMPTOMS AND CURE.—The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected; if allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Dr. Swayne's All-Healing Ointment is a pleasant sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Price 50 cents, 3 boxes for $1.25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price in currency, or three cent postage stamps. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., to whom letters should be addressed. Sold by all prominent druggists, and by Wm. T. Lee, the enterprising druggist of Peabody.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT.

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with wishy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache, Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

237 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend it to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy, and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of Inflammatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere House, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

CROUP.

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will sure y cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is rapidly taking the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rhumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal. E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

ASSABET MILLS, MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends. A. MAYNARD.

Anecdotes.

BENEVOLENT MR. WIXHAM.

At a meeting of the Detroit Ladies' Benevolent Society, held the other day, it was resolved that a committee of four ladies be appointed to canvass for donations, and in the course of their perambulations this committee dropped into Mr. Wixham's office. He received them as a gentleman should, and after the usual formalities one of them began:

"Mr. Wixham, we are asking aid for benevolent purposes."

"Ah, yes. Benevolence is a bump which should be cultivated. Are you looking after poor folks?"

"We are."

"Very proper—very proper. You all have children of your own?"

"Oh, yes."

"All of them are well fed, well clothed and well cared for, are they?"

"Yes, sir."

"That's very proper. I presume their stockings are properly darned, buttons in their places, and they say their prayers when they go to bed? Am I correct?"

The women looked at each other in a sly way, and them at him, and one of them said:

"We shall be happy for any contribution."

"Yes'm, yes'm. You don't want this contribution for your own families, eh?"

"No, sir!" answered four voices in chorus.

"Well, I am somewhat inclined to benevolence. Hardly a day passess that I don't do something for charity. Here's an old account of $26 against Mr. ——. I know he's hard up and having a close time to get along, and yesterday I canceled the debt."

One of the canvassers turned red, white and blue, and looked out of the window. That was her husband, but Wixham didn't know it.

"And yesterday I found a poor, forlorn-looking little boy out here crying with hunger and cold. He said his name was Tommy ——, and he lived at 36 —— street. He hadn't been washed or combed for a week, and I felt sad for him. I was going to take him home and feed him, but he slipped away."

Another woman suddenly looked out of the window, and her pulse ran up to one hundred and twenty a minute, but Wixham was as innocent as a lamb of any knowledge that it was her boy.

"Then you won't aid us?" queried the spokesman.

"Oh, yes, certainly I will. I was simply figuring to see how much I could spare. I signed a note with Mr. —— last Fall, and I had to pay it yesterday. That makes me feel rather poor."

The third woman didn't turn red, but green, but Wixham couldn't have possibly known that it was her husband.

"Let's see. Let's see. I want to give you all I can spare. Mr. —— on —— street, owes me four months' house rent, and I'll give you an order on him for twenty dollars."

The four women rose up. They rushed in a solid body for the door. They went out in a heap. Some were red and some were pale, and all mad. They tried to speak, but they couldn't, and as they hastened to get away from each other, Wixham held up the half-written order and gasped:

"How very, very singular! Perhaps they thought they couldn't collect the money."—Detroit Free Press.

THE HISTORY OF A PAINTING.

There has recently been sold in London a drawing possessing some interest because of the name with which it is signed, and the history that attaches to it. The name is that of Louis Phillippe, and the history is as follows: In 1645 Louis Phillippe commissioned Conder to paint a picture of vast size, representing the Federation of 1790, to be hung at Versailles. Conder at once set to work, but did not think of submitting a preliminary sketch to the King. When the picture was far advanced the King went to see it, and, to the artist's dismay, coolly remarked: "Your picture is very striking, M. Conder, but it is not the Federation of 1790. I was there, saw the whole scene, and it was not at all like this. I must tell you frankly that you must begin your whole work over again." The artist was in despair, for the picture was nearly finished; but the King would not give way. He demanded another picture, and, inviting the artist to breakfast, showed him a sketch he had made from memory of the event. It is this sketch that has now been sold. It must be added that the price fixed for the painting had been 25,000 francs, and this Louis Phillippe paid for the rejected work, agreeing to pay the same for another picture painted according to his own design. "It is a dear bargain," he remarked, "but I owe it to history."

GLASS BLOWING.

Glass blowing is a trade that it takes a long time to learn. Usually a man works as long as ten years before he becomes thoroughly and reliably skilled. It is also laborious, but it pays very well. A good blower averages about one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month, a cutter one hundred and ten dollars, and a gatherer seventy-five dollars. The work is all done by the piece, and both cutter and gatherers are dependent on the blower for the amount of work which they do.

AMPUTATION OF THE LEG.

THE OLD FAMILY PHYSICIAN AT FAULT—DR. DAVID KENNEDY THE SUCCESSFUL SURGEON.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Elsworth, of Port Ewen, of Ulster county, N. Y., had realized this truth.—His disease involved the whole of his thighbone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb—asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood-Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system, prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Elsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

AN ANGEL'S VISIT.

A colored man named Bounty Smith, living on Antoine street, was before a Justice of the Peace yesterday forenoon, charged with the larceny of fifty cents' worth of fire-wood from a white man living next door. The prosecution had a circumstantial case. Some one was heard at the wood-pile in the night. There were tracks in the snow leading directly to the defendant's house. The defendant was found in possession of wood exactly like that missed from the pile, and he admitted that he had not purchased any wood this Fall. The defendant said he wished to be sworn in his own defense, and after he had taken the stand, he began:

"He claims dis wood was tooken away Sunday night. Now, on Sunday mawnin' I war 'tacked by rheumatiz, and couldn't step till Monday night. Dis right leg war bent back so, an' dis left one war skewed out so, and my wife had to feed me wid a spoon. War I in shape to go out an' steal wood?"

"Go on."

"Well, 'long 'bout dark de ole woman said de last stick of wood war gone, an' we went to bed to keep warm. Could I go out when I war in bed?"

"I guess not."

"Sartin, I couldn't. When I remembered dat we had no wood fur de nex' day I went to prayin' dat some rich man's heart might be opened to charity. Fust I knowed de sticks of wood begun to hit de dosh, an' de ole woman scrabbled out and fotched dem in. If any man robbed dat man's woodpile, it war an angel who was sent to help me."

"But you forget the tracks in the snow. They were just the size of your boots."

"Tracks! Was dey any tracks?"

"Yes."

"Well, dat's nuffin agin me, as I see. I 'spect de angel had to stan' longside de wood-pile to load up."

Two of the jurors seemed to take this view of the case, and the result was a disagreement.—Detroit Free Press.

EXTRAORDINARY INCIDENT.

A curious incident, which the Precurseur, of Antwerp, states to have positively occurred at the Zoological Gardens in that town, is thus described in one of its recent impressions: It was the hour for feeding the serpents, and two of them, born a couple of years ago in the gardens, commenced simultaneously devouring the same rabbit, one beginning operations at its head, the other at its tail. The natural result was that in the course of time they both reached the middle of the rabbit, and a dispute arose as to which should swallow the remaining morsel. The larger serpent of the two made the greatest headway, but his colleague held as fast to the carcass, and in the heat of the battle, his vis-a-vis, making a desperate effort to bolt the rest of the rabbit, drew in with it the head of the smaller serpent. The body gradually followed the head into its living tomb, and soon there remained but about two decimetres of tail visible. At this critical juncture the keepers perceived what was passing, and a couple of them entered the cage to rescue the victim from its unpleasant position. After considerable difficulty, they succeeded in obtaining a firm grasp on the bit of tail, and with a long pull and a strong pull brought back the serpent in safety, none the worse for the adventure. The swallower, however, was rather indisposed for the next few hours, says the journal which relates this most extraordinary story, but both serpents are now in their normal condition again.

BEDLAM.

The term "Bedlam" so often applied to lunatic asylums, is merely a corruption of Bethelehem, a hospital of that name having been set apart in London three centuries ago for the treatment of such patients. It need hardly be mentioned that insanity is a disease due to high mental cultivation. In Scotland the proportion is one to 563, while in England, where there is less culture, it is one to 788. In our own country it is one to 750. It is never found, however, among barbarians. There are but few lunatics in India, and in countries deprived of political liberty, such as Italy and Austria, the proportion is very small. Among the more noted instances may be mentioned George III., whose mind was disordered during the last thirty years of his life. Dr. Brown, former superintendent of the Bloomingdale (New York) Asylum, became a victim of the disease which he was treating, and the constant study of insanity led to his own mental wreck. Horace Greeley's case is too well known to require detail. Gerritt Smith, the famous philanthropist, was at one time deranged, and was during this attack an inmate of the Utica Asylum. James Otis, the revolutionary patriot, became deranged in his latter days, and while in this condition, was killed by a stroke of lightning. American statesmen have been remarkably exempt from this calamity.

There is much ridicule thrown upon castles in the air; but there never was one on earth that was not once the imagination of some fertile brain, nor was there ever an intelligent piece of labor of any kind that did not form the centre of a group of airy existences in the mind of the performer.

There are three companions with whom a man should always keep on good terms—his wife, his stomach and his conscience.

One of the kindest things heaven has done for man is denying him the power of looking into the future.

He that catches more than belongs to him, deserves to lose what he has.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

BALSAM,

IS THE MOST EFFECTIVE REMEDY

— FOR —

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, COUGHS, COLDS, LOSS OF SPEECH, AND ALL CASES OF INFLAMMATION OF THE LUNGS.

☞ This preparation contains no opium, or any other dangerous narcotic, but is composed of Pure Shaker Herbs.

It has actually Cured Consumption after Tubercles had formed upon the lungs.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physicians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Watertown, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough—and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

Dr. Henry A. Reynolds.

Mr. Schollar handed us a paper called the Menasha Press, published away out in Wisconsin. As we glanced carelessly over its pages, the striking heading—Dr. Reynolds at Grand Rapids—called to mind the pleasant memories associated with the Doctor when he was in Peabody. To show that the Doctor is still as earnest a worker as ever, and how the people regard him out there, we clip the piece for the PRESS:

The Doctor held four meetings during his three days' stay among us, in our largest hall. They were a grand success; the interest continuing to deepen and widen to the last. Between three or four hundred signed the pledge and put on the red and white ribbons. Dr. Reynolds is a man possessing a fine physique and a vigorous intellect, a large soul and an honest heart. He is full of kindly sympathy and that magnetic force which attracts, controls and moves an audience. His views are broad, clear and full up to the times. As a speaker he is able, ready and entirely fearless. Henry A. Reynolds is not an orator of the spread eagle type, nevertheless he is truly eloquent, telling with all his might what he believes with all his heart, frequently moving his hearers to laughter or tears, as the ludicrous or pathetic side of the question comes up. He does not, in sophomoric style, lead his audience through a garden of flowers, nor by meandering streams, (time is too short, and souls too precious,) but straight along the path of stern facts and unanswerable truths, as they are related to liquor traffic. His logic, lit up with occasional flashes of wit and humor, is simply irresistable. He believes, without a shadow of a doubt, in the omnipotence of truth and right, and in the ultimate triumph of temperance principles.

On the whole it was the grandest temperance campaign ever held in this place; lifting public sentiment much higher than it was before, and where it will abide. If all our people are wise, they will improve their grand opportunity, and by their invitation the voice of Dr. Henry A. Reynolds will be heard in every village, town and city in this state.

Statement of Mrs. John C. Allen.

NORTH READING, Jan. 12, 1881.

MR. EDITOR;—Having my attention called to letters in your paper by Drs. Davis, Jordan and Putney, and feeling that they have not represented the facts correctly, I wish to make the following statement: My late husband, J. C. Allen, at the time of his death had been in the employ of A. A. Upton and his son, H. A. Upton, for nearly eighteen years. On the 10th of last November, my husband killed the cow that I believe was the cause of his death. When he opened the animal and inserted his hand to remove the gall, the stench was so great that he withdrew his hand covered with corruption to the elbow. He then took the axe to finish the cutting down, and at the first blow the matter and corruption spurted in his face and breast, some going into his mouth, causing him to vomit a number of times before he could finish his work. In removing the lungs they were found grown to the walls, and with the liver, etc., a mass of corruption. A few days after this my husband asked Mr. Upton what he was going to do with the meat, and he replied that it had got to be sold, and that he must sell his part of it. Consequently my husband sold something over one hundred pounds of it on his Lynnfield and West Peabody route. One rib piece, which he did not sell, he afterwards showed to a neighbor, who called at the slaughter-house to buy some pie meat; and it was so rotten between the ribs that it had to be skewered to keep it together. On the 20th, ten days after killing the cow, during which time my husband was sick, having a bad diarrhœa and a repeated vomiting spells, he injured his thumb with a horse brush, and the next day his hand being so painful that Dr. Davis was called. And from that time his hand rapidly grew worse, the fingers decaying one by one, and being amputated with a part of the hand. The thumb remaining until at last the arm was amputated near the elbow. During his illness and terrible suffering, not only physical but mental, for his wages were stopped a week after giving up work; and he feared his family would suffer in consequence; he frequently said, "Had I not killed that Parker cow, I should have been a well man now." And not until the doctors pronounced it animal poison, did he tell his neighbors and friends how he was poisoned. As he has killed such cows before and kept it secret to shield his employers, so he would have done again. And furthermore to show how he had their interests at heart, he refused to give up work until the last, saying it is near Thanksgiving and Henry's harvest week, and that he must work. The following is taken from the certificate of Dr. Davis to the Town Clerk: "Inoculation of septic animal virus. Mortification repeated. Hemorrhages and shock succeeding surgical operation."

Widow of JOHN C. ALLEN.

Last Wednesday three gentlemen from Wakefield made a "big catch" of pickerel in Wenham Pond, 28 being drawn out in a short time. The smallest one weighed 1 pound, and the two largest weighed 6 1-2 and 7 pounds.

West Peabody Farmers' Club.

The sixth meeting of the West Peabody Farmers' Club was held at School House Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 18th. There was an average attendance, and much interest was taken. Subject: "The average condition of farmers compared with that of those in other occupations." The first speaker, E. C. Farwell, apologizing for want of time to gather exact facts from exact statistics, improved the opportunity by reading an essay from his general observation, which appeared to be a proper and considerate way to look at the true merits of the subject. Believing it would be of interest to our readers, we publish the same in full.

First, in what condition would our people be in, only for the products of the soil wrought out by the industry and skill of the farmer, in its true and proper meaning. I mean the farmer who, with his time and energy, and with the assistance of good, competent and reliable help, succeeds in harvesting such crops in such quantities as give him a remuneration for his labors, with enough to support himself and his family, and a surplus to sell to meet his taxes, and have a little spare change to be able to assist on the great and noble works in the different Grange movements; to procure such books and papers on agricultural works as to enable him to be the better prepared through the winter months of leisure to meet the coming season's cares; to be able to execute some experiment worthy of note; and that the community can see and know that energy and skill have crowned such men and farmers with success. Is it not a very plain and conclusive fact that, without the products of the soil, all men must perish. Now look at the general condition of the sons and daughters of the farmer; also his wife, too. Do not the sons have the appearance of being able to speak for themselves, and are not the daughters in ready demand, and spoken for as soon as they arrive in their teens? Should not the farmer strive in every way he can to make his home so pleasant and cheerful, that his sons will take to the tilling of the soil rather than seek some other way for a livelihood. I feel that there is a great responsibility resting upon the parents of children on the farm, as to whether they remain at home and learn to love, and have an interest as they ought. No other occupation affords better opportunities to observe the beauties of nature and study her peaceful ways; no other occupation offers better opportunities for home joys and for family gatherings around the cheerful hearthstone. The advantages derived from having a home made attractive by beautiful objects are more than is generally believed. While you must admit that they increase our happiness, but few realize how much they do to bind the family together and keep the children at home. Parents should exert themselves to make the long winter evenings pass both pleasantly and profitably to themselves and children; a home governed by love and kind words never loses its attractions, is never forgotten, and is always returned with pleasure.

Now let us see what comes of the young men who choose some other avocation rather than to till the soil. They choose work at most anything they can get to do. With a few exceptions some succeed and get on for a time, and perchance start in some business, using what few dollars they may have saved by diligent and frugal care, and perhaps borrow some from a friend to be added to it. They go on in their business for a time, finally they meet with some unforeseen obstacle. Their goods may not be in demand, or they were not able to manufacture at a price to compete with the trade as done by heavy capitalists. What is the result? A failure and throwing out of employment what labor he may perchance have at work. These laborers go loafing about for a time, finally their board bills cannot be met. No work, their employer has failed, other manufacturers are fully, or over-supplied with labor, and what is the result? Tramping, house-breaking, horse-stealing, or what not, too proud to work on the farm to get an honest living, to put up with the farmer's fare, to wear the coarse substantial garb suitable for farm work.

Look for a moment at the mass of people living, or "staying" in large villages or cities. They get up in the morning, leave their room, or the place they have slept in, go out in the street only to inhale the filthy, impure air, never seeing the morning rose in blossom, cannot get a sniff at the clear, bracing atmosphere which surrounds the farm-house, or a draft of pure water from the well or spring upon the farm. If perchance they have a family, they are obliged to take up with and live in a tenement of but few rooms. Their children seldom see anything in the way of vegetation except a house plant, and that perhaps in the window of some neighbor, who may be blessed with a little more comfortable home. But take it as a rule, and draw the inference where you may, you will find that there is a wanting on the balance sheet, and that the odds are in favor of the true and skillful farmer. Up with the sun in the morning, all are cheerful and happy, and everything goes on in its good order. Cannot we then pause and say, that truly such a class of people are examples of true greatness.

After the reading of the essay by Mr. Farwell, Rev. Mr. Spaulding took the anti position on the subject as a matter of interest, which was listened to with occasional applause. After some remarks from Mr. Ingraham in favor of the ideas as expressed in the essay, the wind changed and came with a clear northwest breeze again from Mr. Spaulding in favor of the husbandman. The next meeting on Friday, 25th inst., is to be public, to which the gentlemen are invited to take the ladies.

If you want a nice steak, go to the Holly Tree, 9 Central Street, and call for one of their PORTER House, or Tenderloin Steaks.

TO SUFFERERS FROM CATARRH.

Statement of Rev. E. W. Whitney,

Universalist Pastor.

For several years I have been troubled with Catarrh, which seriously interfered with my public speaking, and which baffled all my attempts to get permanent relief. Experienced surgeons operated upon me, and I was under the care of a Boston physician for two years, but obtained no lasting benefit. I applied various remedies, but failed to get relief, and was led, by advice of friends, to consult Dr. Lighthill. My faith was at the lowest ebb, but am happy to say that after a few months' treatment, no trace of my old trouble appears, and I have every reason to believe that the cure is permanent. I cordially recommend Dr. Lighthill to all who may be afflicted in a similar manner. E. W. WHITNEY.

From the Rev. E. C. Butler,

Of Beverly, Mass.

I most heartily recommend any one afflicted with that troublesome disease, CATARRH, to Dr. Lighthill. I have full confidence in him; his treatment has had the most gratifying results in my own case, which was severe and of long standing. E. C. BUTLER.
Beverly, Mass, Oct'r 29, 1879.

Letter from W. R. Pedrick,

Of the firm of Pedrick & Glosson, Lawrence, Ms.

My dear Dr. Lighthill,—The fall of 1878 found a member of my family suffering severely from chronic catarrh, extending from the posterior nasal passages through the larynx into the bronchial tubes. Perhaps for three years or more the disease had been making slow but sure inroads, not only locally, but also upon the general health, until it became evident that relief must speedily be obtained, for the symptoms told too plainly what the result would be if longer neglected. I was led to consult you in the matter by the advice of those whom I personally knew you had cured of similar complaints.—Your treatment resulted, I am happy to say, in a complete cure, and all the dreaded symptoms, such as extreme throat suffering, distress in the head, and nasal and vocal organs, pains in the lungs and a constant susceptibility of severe colds, attacking the head, throat and chest, have entirely disappeared. I am very grateful to you for your very kind and gentlemanly deportment, and am most thankful for your skillful and successful treatment and care of this much beloved member of my family. You are at liberty to refer to me or mine.
Yours, truly, W. R. PEDRICK.
Lawrence, Nov. 4, 1878.

A Card from Mr. R. S. Lambert,

Butter Merchant, 12 Washington Market, Boston.

The remarkable cure which Dr. Lighthill performed in my case, after other celbrated physicians failed to even relieve me, demands a public expression of gratitude.

I was a great sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form, to such an extent that my friends thought me in consumption; but thanks to Dr. Lighthill's skill, I am now perfectly well, and free from all those loathsome and disgusting symptoms attending such a disease, and weigh twenty pounds heavier than I ever did.

I would earnestly advise all similar sufferers to apply to Dr. Lighthill, 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St.

PERMANENT CURE OF DEAFNESS.

From Hon. A. M. McPhail, Jr.,

Piano Manufacturer, 185 Washington St., Boston

Dr. Lighthill,—Dear Sir,—I take great pleasure in saying that your professional efforts in my case of deafness, some years since, resulted in a permanent cure, and were in the highest degree satisfactory.
I have the honor to be very truly yours,
A. M. McPHAIL, JR.

CURE OF HEART DISEASE AND CATARRH.

From Mrs. M. A. Emery.

Mr. Editor,—Allow me to express my gratitude to a real benefactor through your columns. For six years I have suffered from Heart Disease and Catarrh so very intensely that my life was despaired of by my physician as well as my friends, and when I first consulted Dr. Lighthill, I myself feared that my lease of life was fast drawing to a close, for I was extremely debilitated, in great state of suffering, and withal greatly discouraged; but my first interview with the Doctor inspired me with hope, and ere I had been under his care but a few weeks I began to improve in health, strength and spirit, and this improvement has steadily continued until I was completely restored. My wonderful recovery astonished all who knew how great a sufferer I was. In gratitude to Dr. Lighthill, and for the benefit of other sufferers, I make this public statement. Yours, truly,
Mrs. M. A. EMERY,
359 Lowell Street,
Lawrence, Sept. 21, 1880.

HOPE FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

A REMARKABLE CURE.

From G. H. Robinson, of Methuen.

Dr. Lighthill has done wonders for me. My case was a serious Throat and Lung Trouble, pronounced by several physicians Consumption, for I had many of the worst symptoms of that disease, but from the beginning of Dr. Lighthill's treatment I commenced to improve, and now I am happy to be able to call myself a well man. G. H. ROBINSON,
Methuen, Nov. 1st, 1880.

Please Remember—Dr. LIGHTHILL'S Office is at 7 Somerset St., near Beacon St., Boston.

Theatre-Going.

"Theatre-Going. What are its Tendencies?" was the subject of the lecture in the Baptist Church, last Sunday evening, by Rev. L. L. Wood. He took his text from II. Timothy, 2: 22, and in the course of his remarks said:

It is an indisputable fact that we have too much mental excitement at the present day. The abuse of mental excitement is constantly increasing. There is no place where it does not exist. The quiet times of our good old forefathers and mothers are gone forever, and country, town and city alike must be kept in a constant whirl of excitement. Men do not need mental stimulus and excitement at the present day. They need the opposite. They need the agreeable companionship of social friends or of an interesting story in the quiet atmosphere of home for their recreation. And facilities for such recreation are scarcely ever wanting at the present day, wherever there is a disposition to improve them. And I would say to business men if you can not leave your cares when you turn the key on your places of business at night, then take ample time in summer and recruit up for the year, and enjoy the healthful breath and refreshing shade of the country, where nature's gentle tonic will revive your weary minds and prolong your lives. And what you lose in money by so doing you will more than recover in health and strength and spirit. But do not attend the theatres when your mind will be likely to become more excited and your imagination to become corrupted with impure suggestions. Theatrical entertainments can never subserve a public want because they tend to excite rather than allay that nervous irritability already too alarmingly prevalent.

We are pleased with that which excites us most. People attend the theatre to weep and laugh over false representations. For two or three thousand persons to sit breathless, leaning eagerly forward and throwing their sympathies into a first-class play, as all sensitive minds do, and this in connection with the heated atmosphere and late nights, which are the invariable concomitants of theatre-going, must produce too high a tension of the mind for any beneficial effect, as all must know, and especially if the entertainment is sought as a gentle relaxation for an overtaxed mind. Its tendency is to vitiate the moral sense. The attractions as found in most theatres are largely connected with the appearance and costume of its actors and actresses, the suggestions of which are often impure, and the tendencies of which are usually demoralizing. Profane language is not unusual on the stage, which is a mark of vulgarity, to say the least, even if those who use and hear it have no reverence for God. The moral tone of society is more elevated, and the world is better to-day, as any candid mind may ascertain by contrasting the present with any preceding age. And yet it is a fact that in the days of ancient Greece, when the stage was in its palmiest days, there was no "White Fawn" nor "Black Crook," and such plays as have had the largest run in our day. But while there is occasionally an exceptionally good and high moral-toned play there are a thousand that are of a correspondingly low moral tone, and to each so-called better class of theatres there are a hundred of the lower character, because such places better please the theatre-going classes. And to such places parents and children not unfrequently go, and from their seats with opera glasses gaze upon scenes whose chief suggestion, to a young mind, is that of moral impurity. And these places are thus patronized because of a semi-respectability which the so-called better class of theatres has generated. Not unfrequently you will find the most dazzling and attractive scenery with these lower grades of plays, as though emblemizing in their strong combination of beauty and of vice the moral derangement of our world. Well perhaps you ask me, "Do not moral and respectable people often attend the theatre?" I answer, undoubtedly. But in so doing they must run the risk of the obloquy that ever hangs about the place, and which centuries of effort have been unable to remove.

I would not recommend a Sabbath School teacher, however, to meet his class at such a place, if he wished to impress them with the weight and influence of his moral character on the coming Sabbath. I believe that no true Christian will ever visit the theatre from a love of the place. If he goes it will be for some other motive.—There is that in the drama which one might study as an art, and yet which he would condemn in its immoral tendencies. Thus the works of William Shakespeare should be in every clergyman's study, because there is, perhaps, no other work of any human author which seems to present a more widespread knowledge of human nature or such a variety of human character, and yet this is very far from sanctioning the modern drama of which William Shakespeare was the father. Or the same thought might apply to the Bible, which presents scenes as dramatical as any ever dramatized by man. Yet the Bible and the theatrical stage are no less opposite and antagonistic in character than holiness and sin, than God and Satan. But if a minister of the Gospel or a Christian does visit the theatre, by all means let him go as a man—for an honest man is the noblest work of God, whether found in a place of amusement or in a sanctuary of worship—let him take a good seat and pay close attention to the play, and then let him go away and reflect on what he has seen and heard, and see if he does not come to the same conclusion as the inspired apostle when he says: "Flee youthful lusts, but follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart."

Theatre-going tends to a waste of money. Reckoning the admission tickets to these places of amusement from thirty cents to three dollars each, leaving out the boxes, and we have an aggregate expense of at least $15,000 for the twenty thousand or more of theatre-goers in Boston and suburbs every night. Add to this the expense of getting there and other expenses often incidental to theatre-going, and it swells the amount still greater. And this expense is borne not by the wealthy as a rule, but by those who can ill afford to waste so much money. It is borne largely by the young people of our cities and towns who could purchase with less money equally agreeable and far more beneficial recreation, saying nothing of the fatigue of body and mind and corrupted imagination often attending it. That is rightly considered as wasted which affords no benefit. It is this which is the curse of Ireland to-day. Year after year Ireland has been sending hundreds of millions of dollars to her twelve thousand land owners as rent money. This is all spent out of the country, and does not come back in any form. No country can stand such a drainage of her financial strength. Nor could Ireland have endured it as long as she has but for her extreme fertility. This undoubtedly is the prime cause of Ireland's poverty; this is what has caused her population to emigrate so constantly until there are twice as many Irishmen in the United States to-day than in all Ireland.

Probably not far from $25,000 are daily expended in the United States on the 15,000,000 copies of the daily press in this country, but this vast sum is not wasted, for its equivalent is returned in valuable information to the people, and money expended for education is never lost. The pecuniary expense of theatre-going is a dead waste, because it furnishes no physical or mental equivalent, but on the contrary a lessened love for honest industry and a lower regard for the higher missions of life, besides running the risk of a vitiate moral sense. We must conclude then that from whatever view we take of the subject two deductions are apparent, viz.: The influence of theatre-going, as a practice, is every way injurious, and the patronage given to these places too plainly shows that we still live in a pleasure-seeking age, when more creative enjoyments engross the highest thoughts and powers of souls created for God and destined for eternity. The drama existed before Christ was born, and theatres will exist after I am dead; yet it is my duty and it is your duty to preach against every sin just as long as we live. I would not commit the error of the austere Puritan fathers, for an error they did commit in so far eschewing all pleasure and persecuting all who were not every way like-minded with themselves—an error which I think the present generation stands in no danger of committing. But I would neither crucify nor ignore these pleasurable emotions which God has implanted within us. I would simply train them up to that highest and noblest purpose which they were designed to subserve, just as the vine may be taken from the mud and filth when its beauties are wasted, and trained to climb the trellis when may appear the buds and flowers to gladden the face or the fruit to strengthen the heart of man.

MR. EDITOR,—In the Sunday Herald of Feb. 27th, under the caption "License vs. Prohibition," appears a portion of the minority report of the Committee on Liquor Law, offered to the Legislature by Representative Bugby, of Boston. It contains some startling figures, which the advocates of a rigorous prohibitory law will do well to consider. No one doubts but that it is more to the State's credit to refuse her sanction to the evil of rum-selling than it is under the present law to legalize it. But the welfare of the people at large demands the State's attention, and if figures prove, as they do, that under a judicious system of license there are less commitments to the prisons, and less of the greater crimes known as "rum crimes" committed, then it becomes the duty of the State to comply with that system, and reduce crime to the lowest point possible.

"From a statement recently prepared by the chief of the district police, it appears that, out of 340 cities and towns in the commonwealth, 116 granted licenses last year, (1880) and the whole number of licenses granted in the State was 5397, or 1 to about 350 inhabitants. In 1864 there was one license to every 224 inhabitants. In the 11th report of the bureau of statistics of labor, (January, 1880) the statistics of crime in Massachusetts for 20 years, from 1860 to 1879 inclusive, are given. It is there shown that "rum crimes" increased to an alarming extent while the prohibitory law was in force, and that, since the enactment of the license law, the number of these crimes has steadily decreased. Under the head of "Offences against chastity, morality and decency," including drunkenness, vagabondage, keeping disorderly houses, etc., the number of persons sentenced in the whole State in 1873 (two years before the prohibitory law was repealed) was 27,270—or 1 to 58 inhabitants. In the year 1879 the number of sentences for the same crimes was only 18,170—1 to 98 inhabitants. So much for the State at large. Let us see now how the two systems, license and prohibition, have worked in Boston. It appears that the average number of arrests for drunkenness each year, for the five years, 1869 to 1873 inclusive, was 17,927; and the average number of drunken persons assisted to their homes by the police was 1863. This was under the prohibitory law. During the five years following the adoption of the license system, 1875 to 1879 inclusive, the average number of arrests for drunkenness each year was 14,865; and the average number of drunken persons assisted to their homes was 870. In 1873 (before the annexation of Charlestown, Brighton and West Roxbury) the population of Boston was estimated at 300,000. In that year the number of arrests for drunkenness was 16,810. In 1879, with a population of 355,000, the number of arrests for drunkenness was 14,267.—In 1874, the last year under the prohibitory law, the number of places in Boston where liquor was sold was 3090; and the number of drunken persons who came under the notice of the police was 19,324. For the year ending May 1, 1879, the fourth year under the license law, the whole number of places where liquor was sold under license, or suspected of being sold without license, was 2027; and the number of persons arrested or helped home was 14,929. During the year ending Jan. 1, 1881, the number of arrests for drunkenness in Boston was 16,534; and the number of persons helped home was 1377—a total of 17,911, against 19,324 in 1874."

These figures tell their own story, but it is argued by some that the old prohibitory law was not properly enforced—a point which may be true with us. But every good temperance person will point with pride to the State of Maine as being a place where it has proved a success, and yet it was but last week that one of the Justices of the Supreme Court said that he was sorry to say that "since the prohibition law had been in force 'rum crimes' had been on a steady increase."

Now while we do not favor rum-selling in the least, we believe that an evil which cannot be 'cured' and therefore must be endured should be made to contribute its just part towards caring for the misery it inflicts, and if crime, as is proved, is less under a license system then under a prohibitory law, why then choose the former, and apply the proceeds to caring for those unfortunates which under either system are sure to be made.

A very social time was experienced by the large number who attended the annual assembly given by the St. John's C. T. A. Society, in Upton's Hall, on Monday evening. Dancing was continued until after two o'clock, and every one departed, well-satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.

The last entertainment in the I. O. O. F. Course, to be given in Peabody Institute, to-morrow (Thursday) evening, will be of a very pleasing character. The programme comprises readings by Mr. Elmore A. Peirce, singing by Miss Emma S. Howe, and whistling solos by Miss Ella M. Chamberlain, who has appeared in this town before and won well-merited reputation.

The Universalist Fair, which closed Wednesday evening, was very successful, adding about $225 to the funds of the Society. We give below the names of the lucky ones on "guess" chances: The wire measured 44 ft. 7 in., and Mrs. George Pierce guessed 44 ft. 7 1-2 in.; prize, a clock. The cake weighed 8 lbs. 7 oz., and was carried off by Mrs Amos Merrill, who guessed 8 lbs. 7 oz. Tho morocco shop of Mr. Albert Bates, situated between Warren's grocery store and Batchelder & Co.'s coal yards, at Danversport, was totally destroyed by fire, with its contents, consisting of raw and finished stock, last Monday night. The grocery store of Mr. Warren was damaged to the extent of $500; the coal sheds of Batchelder & Co. caught fire, but were not seriously damaged. Very poor management on the part of the fire department was displayed.

Diptheria has been quite prevalent in our midst this winter, and in numerous cases has resulted fatally. About three weeks ago Mr. Geo. E. Carter, the hired man at the Alms House, was taken with it, and after a severe sickness, during which he was a great but patient sufferer, he died on Saturday last. Mr. Carter was a young man of good character, and a faithful workman whose place it will be hard to fill. He was well known among the farmers of this town, having been employed at the Gardner farm and other places. Always free and open-hearted, he will be greatly missed by those who were his most intimate friends. During the three weeks of his sickness there has been some half dozen of the inmates sick with the disease, but all have since recovered.

INAUGURATION NIGHT ILLUMINATION.—Washington will be brilliantly illuminated by electric lights on the night of the 4th of March. Three 25-000 candle power lights will burn on the capitol. Another of the same power will burn on the right of the treasury building, and have its rays directed up the avenue toward the capitol by a reflector. Seven lights of 2000 candle power each will be around the White House. The national museum building, where the inauguration ball is to be held, will contain three lights of 6000 candle power each. A golden Goddess of Liberty, thirty-five feet high, will stand upon a pedestal amid a pyramid of tropical flowers in the middle of the central room of the building. Her right hand will hold a torch, surmounting which will be a light. The two other lights will be reflected against a large gilded star twenty feet in diameter, suspenned from the dome of the building.

Prof. Bernbech, writing to the Medical Press, calls attention to the probable danger arising from the use of ultramarine wall papers. He states that a room hung with an ultramarine colored paper gave out a most disagreeable smell of sulphuretted hydrogen, the source of which for some time escaped detection. Eventually, however, a close examination was made of the paper, which led to the conclusion that the deep blue wall paper was slowly undergoing a process of decomposition under the influence of the alum in the paste used in hanging. This appeared to be confirmed, for on steeping a piece of the paper in a very dilute solution of alum it gave off sufficient sulphuretted hydrogen to be quite perceptible to the nose and to blacken lead paper.

The origin of "foolscap," as related by an old paper maker in Lee, Mass., was that a half-witted youth sat upon a rock, on the top of which was a shallow depression containing some water. In this puddle the boy dropped his linen turban, and, with a stone, foolishly and idly pounded it into a pulp. The sun dried the "stuff" or fiber, which had spread itself all through the water upon the bottom of the puddle, and soon it was lifted out a sheet of paper—foolscap, in fact.

The Opening Spring.

BY THE AUTHOR OF NEW ENGLAND FEATHERED SONGSTERS.

We hail the Sun's return with joy, that glorious orb of light,
His lengthenings are prolonged each day,
and shortens every night;
At each successive noon we see it higher in the sky,
The winter king before it flees, and hopeful spring draws nigh;
Its softening influence is seen upon the melting snow,
The trickling rills run down the hills, and brooks in valleys flow;
The ice-bound lakes, and ponds, and pools, it will again set free,
And on each mirrored face we may its bright surroundings see;
The dormant earth begins to feel the quickening of its rays,
Fresh verdure springs along the streams,
and by the sunny ways.
Hark! hark! what pleasing, warbling
notes, the bluebird has come home,
O, listen to her joyful lay! she's perched upon her dome,
We welcome thee, sweet harbinger of brighter days to come,
Thy beauty, habitude and song, endear thee to our home;
The robin is upon the way, that sweet,
confiding bird,
Not many sunny mornings hence, her music will be heard;
The linnet comes with warbling notes,
attired in bright array,
The little sparrow swells her throat, with her enrapturing lay.
Thus do the feathered tribes return, rejoicing and with haste,
To guard our fruit-trees and our fields
from the despoilers' waste;
Grass, herbs, and flowers spring from the earth, and verdure clothes the ground,
The swelling buds unfold their leaves,
there's beauty all around;
We feel the blissful, soothing power of soft and balmy air,
That quickens nature into life, and light-
ens every care.
What power has wrought this wondrous change, that makes all nature gay,
That gives us comfort through the night,
and pleasure through the day;
That brings the feathered songsters back,
that have been absent long,
Which make our gladdened hearts rejoice,
and fill the earth with song?
It is the Sun ascending high from its re-motest round,
Across the broad ecliptic to its utmost northern bound,
With gladness filling every heart in our loved hemisphere,
In hope of golden harvests bright to crown the opening year.
Thus from one solstice to the next, returning back again,
It gives to all that dwell on earth the sunshine and the rain,
Causing the fruits thereof to grow, and in their time mature,
It brings the seed-time and harvest, too,
and makes God's promise sure.
Thus did the great First Cause design without one lingering doubt,
And bid subservient nature work the untried problem out.

Childless.

My neighbor's house is not so high
Nor half as nice as mine;
I often see the blinds ajar,
And though the curtain's fine,
It's only muslin, and the steps
Are not of stone at all—
And yet I long for her small home
To give mine all in all.

Her lawn is never left to grow—
The children tread it down,
And when the father comes at night,
I hear them clatter down
The gravel walk; and such a noise
Comes to my quiet ears,
As my sad heart's been waiting for
So many silent years.

Sometimes I peep to see them seize
His coat and hands and knees—
All three so anxious to be first;
And hear her call, "Don't tease
Papa"—the baby springs—
And then the low brown door
Shuts out their happiness, and I
Sit wishing as before

That my neighbor's little cottage
And the jewels of her crown
Had been my own; my mansion
With its front of granite brown,
Its damask, and its Honiton—
Its lawn so green and bright—
How gladly would I give them
For her motherhood to-night.

Selected Story.

UNDER THE SPELL.

BY JENNY WREN.

"It's too bad to let the child throw away her young life and happiness. Some one ought to warn her of the rocks in her course."

So spoke the world, watching the flirtation between Eben Furval and Clare Welling. Of course it was flirtation, this same world decreed; not, perhaps, on her side—the warning would not have been needed then—but on his.

She was but 18, with something of the clear young soul shining through the dark-blue eyes as they uplifted themselves to her hero's face.

Yes, he was her hero. The world, for once, had spoken truly. She had not begun to reason. She only knew that her heart beat more quickly at the sound of his footstep—that, had one asked her ideal of all manly beauty, unconsciously Eben's dark, handsome face would have instantly pictured itself before her, though she might have vouchsafed no spoken answer—that to her ear was no sweeter music than the low, melodious utterance of his voice.

Of course he knew his power. The world remembered numberless instances when he had used it but too mercilessly; therefore, they felt sorrow for the young untried girl who also had fallen "Under the Spell."

Yet, as she stood to-night by Ben Furval's side, the tall, slender figure, draped in soft, white folds; a brilliant color on her cheek, lending new lustre to her eyes; the soft, fair hair, curling itself in myriad rings upon the low, white brow; she seemed a picture of girlish happiness. Could it be that he who had made it should mar it? If so, how perfect his acting!

"Clare," he whispered—never, never had her name sounded so sweet before—"are you tired? Shall we not finish this waltz?"

For answer she let him slip his arm about her waist.

Tired with him? Had the music lasted, she might have gone on forever!

She sighed when it ended, with a crash, and he drew her into the dimly-lighted conservatory.

What meant the look with which he pierced down through the azure eyes into the hidden depths of her soul?

He spoke no word, but there, amid the flowers and fragrance, with a half-sleepy canary warbling his good-night song above their heads, he opened wide his arms.

A moment she resisted their mute entreaty; he drew a step nearer then; with a half-sob of the most exquisite happiness she had ever known, she felt them fold themselves about her, and laid her head, like a tired child, upon his breast. He held her close and long.

"Clare, you love me?" he half asserted, half questioned. "Oh, child, what a sweet, fair page has been the life upon which I may dare inscribe my name!"

At his words of self-implied reproach, she raised her head. In his face was a light she had never seen before. With a glad thrill she knew that her hand had illumined the torch.

"I love you—I love you!" she repeated, softly, until he hushed the words with his kiss.

"Let us not tell the world our secret," he pleaded. "It is so sweet to have no one share it but ourselves."

And to this wish of his she gladly gave consent.

On swiftly-joyous wings the days followed, merging themselves into halcyon weeks; yet some lives, she had heard, were filled with misery. Could she ever fathom the meaning of the word? Ah, she was young to ask the question! It was to be answered all too soon.

Poor child! she had no mother—perhaps a mother's hand would have been more gentle with the knife; but one day her aunt, with whom she lived, came into her room to rudely break in upon her day-dreams.

"Clare," she said, "I want to talk with you. This Mr. Furval who is here so often must come no more. The day might dawn when you would become interested in him, and I would be sorry to have my singing-bird's song cease. They tell me he is fascinating. With his honeyed words and phrases he sets traps for hearts, as the fowler for his game. He makes boasts, too, of his conquests, I hear. The words, 'I love you,' fall all too readily from his lips. The question, 'Be my wife?' never!"

Pale as ashes, Clare had been about to utter an indignant denial of all her aunt had said. When she had added these last words, "The question, 'Be my wife?' never!" they seemed to lend a ring of truth to all that had gone before; yet her loyalty stood her in good stead, though her pride made her hide the freshly-gaping wound.

"You are unjust, aunt," she said, speaking with effort, "Why should you believe what gossip says?"

"Because it has extended its voice to you—because it says that you, too, are under the spell of this man's wonderful fascination. Many is the heart he has broken, Clare—he shall not break yours!"

"If what you say be true," she replied, defiantly, "it is already broken; but I do not—I will not believe it! He loves me, and I—I love him!"

"He has asked you to become his wife?"

The question cut like a knife to the girl's quivering heart.

"No; not in words. I did not even miss them, so sure was I of his purpose. Why—why do you come here to torment me?"

"Because I would save you, and because he shall never know his latest victim. Child, look here! This was sent me yesterday."

And she placed a sheet of paper in the little, trembling, outstretched hand.

It was covered with the handwriting of him of whom they spoke, and it was a mad, passionate declaration of his love for her to whom it was addressed. There was neither name nor date—only his signature, bold and free.

"Clare, you believe now?"

"Yes, I believe," she answered, softly. "Leave me to myself."

The next day, when Eben Furval called, a daintily-folded note was put into his hand. Eagerly he tore it open, to read these words:

"I must ask you not to see me again. You are a better actor than I. I have wearied of the farce. Doubtless, with the world for your audience, you can find some one better fitted to play my part."

This was all. Thus had the child striven to hide the wound from which was pouring what she vainly hoped might be the life-current.

With a bitter curse, ending in a groan, the man crushed the paper in his hand.

"Oh, God!" he said, beneath his breath. "After all these years, is this a second time to be my reward? Is there no truth in woman?"

And his soul echoed, "None!"

But Clare had been half-child, half-woman. Only yesterday her eyes had looked with worshipful light into his. There was some mistake, some treachery. He could not let her thus escape him. He had been world-worn and weary. Her love had been like finding the cooling spring in the arid desert. Must he pass it by, and perish of thirst? Not so! He would write to her, and beg her to tell him if indeed she had but played with him. If so, to let her silence answer; if not, to bid him come to her.

His very soul seemed to pour itself out upon the senseless sheet. The next day he himself saw it delivered at her door. What he unhappily did not see, were the hands that received it.

"It will but make the child grieve more," reasoned her aunt; and, with the seal unbroken, laid it on the flames.

For what had Clare hoped as the weary days went by? Had she expected any answer to the poor little note with which she had struggled to bolster up her pride?

Paler and wanner she grew as her hope died. Truly she was "under the spell," said her aunt, sadly; but her own lips were dumb, until the strain on brain and heart gave way, and the name she had held so long unspoken was breathed in every accent of love and despair from her fever-parched lips, as she lay tossing in delirium.

Her aunt, good woman though she was, could have cursed the name's owner as she listened, shudderingly, to its repetition.

"My one poor little ewe lamb!" she would whisper, tearfully; "why might he not have spared you?"

But one day, when the whisper had spread abroad that Clare Welling was dying, a man, haggard and white, forced himself into her presence.

"Let me see her!" he entreated.

Some spirit rose in the crushed heart at sight of him.

"You would see your victim!" she questioned with scorn. "Wait until your work is complete—it will not be long."

"If you have a woman's soul within you, tell me what you mean!" he answered. "My victim? Do you know that one little month ago my dearest hope was to make Clare my wife? Ah, heaven! I thought she shared it then. But they tell me she is dying. Let me but see her once!"

Was the man speaking falsely? or had she, who had meant to save the child, brought her to this pass?

"Wait here," she commanded, and hurried from the room.

When she returned, she carried a sheet of paper in her hand.

"This was sent me," she explained. "Did you write it?"

He glanced over it, and his face paled.

"Yes," he said. "Ten long years ago, when I was a lad of 20, I loved the woman to whom it was addressed, and she played with and jilted me. For a time I lost all faith in women, until—until I met Clare. She taught me what it was to love again, but this time with the endless passion of the man. The woman I once loved is a widow now. To you I may confess she has striven vainly to allure me back into the toils. Doubtless she has sent you this paper. Tell me"—a sudden light dawning upon him—"did Clare see and believe this?"

The woman bowed her head.

"Forgive me!" she murmured, brokenly. "Help me to nurse my darling back to life, and together we will make her atonement."

It was a hard struggle they had set themselves, but they conquered.

Perhaps even in her delirium Clare knew who answered to his name, or who held her in his strong, loving arms; but, however this may be, certain it is that one day the blue eyes opened, to look with dawning recognition into the pale, handsome face of her lover as it bent above her.

"Hush, my love," he whispered, as she was about to speak. "I am with you, never to leave you again. It has all been a mistake, darling—all except our love, which has won for us the victory."

Was she dreaming? She did not know, but, nestling closer in his arms, fell into the sweet, refreshing sleep which was the turning-point from death to life.

A month later, and in the gray old church was a quiet wedding.

"Who would have believed it!" said the world.

This time it really looked as though they were both "Under the Spell;" and so indeed they were, but the name of the magician's wand was Love!

Book Notices.

THE NEW BIBLE.—Quick Work.—The new version of the New Testament, which has been so many years in course of translation, and which is unquestionably the most important literary enterprise the century has seen, is being waited for with curiosity and anxiety by hundreds of thousands. It is not generally known that a first edition of 500,000 copies has already been manufactured in England, and 100,000 copies are said to be already in New York City, not one of them permitted to be sold. They are awaiting a telegram from the authorities in England authorizing their issue. The first copies can only be had at the extravagant price of $10 per copy. The Literary Revolution proposes fully to meet the demands which its army of friends are making upon it by doing probably the quickest work in book-making which has ever yet been accomplished. Arrangements have been fully made to put the entire book into type inside of 24 hours from the time a printed copy of the English edition can be procured, and within three days at least 10,000 copies will be bound ready for delivery to awaiting purchasers, and at least 5000 copies will be manufactured every day thereafter, until the demand is met. It will be printed in large, beautiful type, neatly and strongly bound in cloth, in a volume of about 500 pages, and sold at the nominal price of 30 cents. A fine edition in half Russia, gilt top, will be sold for 60 cents, and one in full Turkey morocco, gilt edges, for $1.25. Of course the popular demand will be enormous. Orders will be filled in the order in which they are received, with remittance. American Book Exchange, New York.

SCRIBNER FOR MARCH has a number of interesting points. The second part of Mrs. Burnett's piquant novelette, "A Fair Barbarian," will be eagerly read by those who have read the first part, and will be found even more interesting.—That this story adds new laurels to the author's reputation is not doubted by any one who has read it through. "Ericsson's Destroyer, and her New Gun," is the subject of a paper, by Mr. Charles Barnard, which has the advantage of presenting the first drawings of this long expected piece of armament, with some fresh details. In "Musical Possibilities in America," Mr. Theodore Thomas writes practically of vocal and instrumental culture, church and theater music, bad and good methods of teaching, and of American violins. Never-before-engraved portraits of Charles and Mary Lamb, from old painting, embellish a short paper by Mr. John Arbuckle. "In London with Dickens" is a chronicle of the localities of Boz, including Mr. Tulkinhorn's house, Limehouse Hole, Jenny Wren's house, the Inns of Court, etc. Dr. B. E. Martin, who contributes this paper, writes from from personal familiarty with the places which he describes. Another similar paper is to follow. There is an illustrated article on "John Singleton Copley," by his granddaughter, Mrs. Amory, giving a biographical account of an American painter popularly little known, and presenting engravings of "The Boy and the Flying-Squirrel," the "Boy Rescued from a Shark," "Lady Wentworth," and other illustrations. Still further variety is given to the number by a second paper of "Recollections of American Society," by Mrs. S. W. Oakey; an illustrated paper on "Striped Bass," by Mr. Francis Endicott; an account of "Protestantism in Italy," by Rev. Washington Gladden; more "Notes of a Walker," including discussion of Shakspeare's natural history, by John Burroughs; "A Dangerous Virtue," a striking short story, by Mr. H. H. Boyesen; the fifth part of Mr. Schuyler's "Peter the Great, as Ruler and Reformer," illustrated by Blum, Nehlig, and others, and the concluding paper of "Glimpses of Parisian Art," with studio sketches by Jourdain, Alfred Stevens, Rico, Egusquiza, Madrazo, and others, and interesting personal material.—Among the poems there is a sonnet ("Two Homes") by Dr. Holland, who, in "Topics of the Time," writes of "George Elliott" and "The Metropolitan Museum," and takes note of Bishop Coxe's exception to part of a recent paper in SCRIBNER on the Bible Society. "Home and Society" treats of "A Mother's Duty to her Girls," "A New Cooking-Stove," and "Servants' Rooms and Quarters." The book notices are by specialists, as is the aim of the magazine; and this month they have much variety and suggestiveness, a review of "Endymion" being especially interesting. "The World's Work" deals with "Artificial Ballast," "Power for Pleasure-Boats," "Optical Tests for Milk," etc., and "Bric-a-Brac" has humor and pleasantry of its own well-established kind.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for March is received by the Peabody News Company, 9 Main Street. It is an excellent number; there is not a dull article in it; and the illustrations are not only beautiful as works of art, but full of interest and meaning. A striking feature is its variety. Opening the magazine, we are first attracted by Mr. Conway's description of Bedford Park (in Chiswick, London)—a group of artistic dwellings, in the Queen Anne's style, only half an hour's ride from Charing Cross, yet in the open country. The houses are picturesque without, and the interiors are planned and decorated by the best artists. The article is illustrated from drawings by Mr. Nash, a London artist. Prof. Hewett contributes a valuable and interesting paper on the University of Leiden. J. L. Cloud gives another of her inimitable Irish sketches, "The Arran Islands," with quaint pictures. S. B. Parsons, in "The Possibilities of Horticulture," shows how to make gardens and lawns beautiful; the illustrations to his article representing the best recent work in this direction. An anonymous article describes Albany as an old Dutch town two centuries ago. This paper contains sixteen illustrations. Closing the list of descriptive illustrated articles is Mr. Lathrop's, "A Nation in a Nutshell"—a brilliant description of social and political Washington, with twelve illustrations. Abbey contributes another Herrick illustration, "The Grave-digger"—a very impressive drawing. Miss Woolson's "Anne" has fairly won all readers; and Mr. Hardy, ranked by the London Academy as the first of living novelists, has done no better work than he is giving us in his "A Laodicean."

This number also contains two remarkably excellent short stories—"Hands Off," which is an interesting parable, and "A Help-meet for Him." George Merrill contributes an instructive article on "The French Republic," showing its organization as a government, and its prospects of permanent success. Mr. Henry O. Dwight contributes a very entertaining and novel paper on "The Family Life of the Turks."

THE ART AMATEUR for February contains a criticism, by Edward Strahan, on the New York Water Color Exhibition, with over thirty illustrations; a third notice of the Walters Gallery, in Baltimore, describing Delaroche's famous "Hemicycle;" a piquant Boston letter, and several articles of interest to print collectors. The departments of "Decoration and Furniture" and "Art Needle-Work" are full of practical writing by Shirley Dare, H. J. Cooper, and others, on "A Homelike Country House," "Stained and Polished Floors;" "Desirable Woods for Furniture," "A Model Back Parlor," "Embroidery Materials and Designs," and kindred topics. A wonderful Oriental Rug, valued at $4,000, is the subject of a full-page illustration, in addition to several striking furniture pictures. Industrial art students will especially value the first of a series of illustrated articles on bookbinding, and a page of designs for jewelry and fine metal work. China painters will find some excellent flower and bird designs for plaques, and needle-workers and etchers on linen will rejoice in a profusion of spirited figures suitable for their use. A page of quaint and original Valentine Cards, by George R. Halm, forms a timely feature. The editorial, musical and correspondence columns are filled with the usual chat and comment. Evidently The Art Amateur is bound to make itself a necessity to every one in any way interested in Decorative Art. (Montague Marks, Publisher, 20 East 14th Street, N. Y. $4 per annum; single numbers, 35 cents.)

The forthcoming (March) number of the INTERNATIONAL REVIEW will be one of the strongest ever issued. Its table of contents will bear the names of Edward Atkinson, Henry C. Adams, Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, Leonard Courtney, M. P., Henry C. Lodge, and Justin McCarthy, M. P. Messrs. Courtney and McCarthy, than whom there are none more competent, will both write about Irish affairs; the former giving the concluding part of his article on "Ireland," began in the January Review, and Mr. McCarthy writing upon "The Irish Land Question." Edward Atkinson, having recently made a tour of the South, will give his impressions of the "Solid South." Henry C. Adams will give an advance from his forthcoming book upon "Modern Public Debts." The Review will be ready about Febrrary 15th, and will be sent to any address upon receipt of the price. Fifty cents single number; $5.00 a year. A. S. Barnes & Co., 111 and 113 William street, New York.

The contents of the North American Review for March must win the attention of all by the timeliness of the topics discussed. First, we have a thoughtful and moderate article by Bishop Coxe on "Theology in the Public Schools." The author would sternly exclude from the schoolroom all sectarian dogmas, whether Papist or Protestant, but he insists on the retention of the Bible, first because that book is the principal fountain of our English speech, and secondly because it is really the base of our social system. The second article is by Captain Eads, who endeavors to show the practicability of his ship-railway, its advantages over all canal schemes, and why the United States can without risk guarantee the payment of 6 per cent. interest on $500,000 of the capital stock of the proposed company. Judge H. H. Chalmers, writing of the Effects of Negro Suffrage, bespeaks for the Southern States, while engaged with the solution of the great problem that has been forced upon them, the sympathy and counsel of the North. The other articles are "The Free-School System," by John D. Philbrick, being a reply to the recent strictures of Mr. Richard Grant White on the public schools; "Theological Charlatanism," by Mr. John Fiske, whose typical theological charlatan is Mr. Joseph Cook; and, finally, a review of some recent publications in Physics, by Prof. A. W. Wright.

THE MARCH ST. NICHOLAS.
(READY FEBRUARY 25TH.)

The most striking things in the March ST. NICHOLAS are Mrs. Oliphant's admirable paper giving the touching story of "Lady Jane Grey" (to be followed in April by the companion article on "Mary, Queen of Scots"); an illustrated account of two sturdy Icelandic boys and their desperate "Encounter with a Polar Bear;" "Mary Jane Describes Herself," an illustrated autobiography of a Sunday-school scholar; a new scientific in-door amusement called "The Magic Dance;" an incident of Adelina Patti's childhood, when traveling in the United States, in 1854, with Ole Bull and Maurice Strakosch; and the four serials,—the fourth installment of Rossiter Johnson's story of "Phaeton Rogers," in which is described that young inventor's disastrous "horizontal balloon-ascension;" Dr. Oswald's stirring "Adventures in Nature's Wonderland;" Mrs. Clara Erskine Clement's second paper of "Stories of Art and Artists," with six pictures; and the anonymous "Mystery in a Mansion: a Story of an S. S." There are more than fifty illustrations, a page of music, and an Anglo-Chinese story for the boys and girls to interpret.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY. There can be no question as to the great merit and cheapness of this magazine; in these respects it is not excelled by any similar publication. The number for March contains, as does every copy, 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations, together with a beautiful colored frontispiece, "No Rose without a Thorn." The articles "Our Monster Telegraph System," by Noel Ruthven (16 illustrations); "A Dash Through Connemara," by N. Robinson (9 illustrations); "The Trent Affair," by an eye-witness (6 illustrations); "The Story of the Diamond Necklace" (6 illustrations); "The Pine-apple Trade in the Bahamas," by Mrs. Frank Leslie (8 illustrations); "Why the Clouds Float, and What the Clouds Say," by Robert James Mann (8 illustrations), and many other articles, are deeply interesting and replete with information. There are excellent stories, sketches, adventures, etc., by celebrated writers; some admirable poetry, and a very large amount of miscellany, embracing history, science, travels, fun, etc., etc. A single copy of this delightful periodical can be obtained for 25 cents; the annual subscription is $3; six months $1.50, four months $1, sent postage-free. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

Our Little Ones, at home and in school. An illustrated magazine for little people, edited by Oliver Optic, $1.50 per annum in advance. Address the Russell Publishing Company, Boston, Mass. This magazine is a favorite with our little ones, and well it may be, for it is filled from cover to cover with interesting, easily-understood reading matter, and a profusion of pretty pictures that cannot fail to interest those too young to read. It is bright, lively and attractive.

The Household. George E. Crowell, Brattleboro, Vt. $1.10 per annum. The best magazine for the household, edited with care and tact, neat and pleasing in appearance, and full of matters of interest to every housekeeper in the land.

The Nursery is as beautiful as ever, full of charming stories and sweet pictures. John L. Shorey, Boston.

☞ Smart Weed and Belladonna combined with the other ingredients used in the best porous plasters, make Carter's S. W. & B. Backache Plasters the best in the market. Price 25 cents.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE FOR MARCH.—This number is one of remarkable excellence, and the new editor, Rev. Mr. Taylor, has catered most successfully for the edification and entertainment of his readers. There is, as he remsrks, "something for everybody, of whatsoever class, or of whatever age. . . . Bible students, and sermon readers, and temperance reformers and lovers of stories will all find in this issue something to suit them and to help them pass the time pleasantly and profitably." Among the distinguished contributors are the Revs. J. M. Whiton, R. C. Houghton, W. T. Wylie, T. H. Vail, Bishop of Kansas; C. F. Deems, David Swing, H. Bonar, Bishop Peck, etc.; Alfred H. Guernsey, Hattie W. Arnold, Mrs. J. G. Burnett, Josephine Pollard, Frank H. Converse, Louise C. Moulton, etc. The opening article by the editor, "Our Home Heathen," is highly interesting, and equally so is "Scenes on the Danube," by A. Guernsey; both are finely illustrated. The serial story, "Out of the World," is continued, and the several short stories, sketches, etc., are replete with interest and well written. The numerous poems are of singular merit. Dr. Deems explains "Hard Places in the Bible;" the sermon is by Rev. C. N. Sims, on the "Supernatural Success of Christianity." But it is impossible to convey in a brief notice any idea of the rich literary and artistic feast prepared by the editor. There are 128 quarto pages and over 100 engravings. A single copy is only 25 cents; a year's subscription, $3; postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

Speaking of Governors suggests the mention of an item we received from Mr. Henry A. Knight, Foreman at Charles Waters & Co.'s Governor and Valve Works, Boston, Mass.: I have used St. Jacobs Oil among our employes, and find that it never fails to cure. The men are delighted with the wonderful effects of the Oil, as it has cured them of bruises, burns, etc.—New Albany Ledger-Standard.

A servant having broke a lamp chimney, said to her mistress: "Madam must know that a lamp chimney always breaks the first time it is used."

The subjoined opinion, we perceive, by J. A. Daniels, Esq., of Messrs. Stogdill & Daniels, attorneys, La Crosse, Wis., appears in the La Crosse Chronicle: Sometime since, I was attacked with pain in and below one of my knee joints. A few applications of St. Jacobs Oil quieted the pain and relieved the inflammation. I regard it as a valuable medicine. — Elgin, (Ill.) Daily Leader.

☞ As a food and as a medicine nothing in medicine can compare with Malt Bitters.

A gentleman noted for his punctuality one day sat on a chair containing a watch. When remonstrated with for doing such a careless thing, he remarked: "Well, I can't help it—I'm always on time."

☞ WHAT IS BEHIND IT?—No amount of money can stand in the stead of a good name. It is a blunder everywhere and every time to suppose the loss of character can be paid for. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., proprietor of the great medicine called "Favorite Remedy," would have but little confidence to recommend the public to buy and use it if his own good name were not behind it. But the fact that he has staked his reputation upon it ought to be, and is, better than a thousand cheap certificates—in the opinion of the people. The Doctor is a regular physician-surgeon, and despises a humbug as heartily as any man. If you are sick with any complaint of the Blood, Kidneys or Liver, invest One Dollar in the "Favorite Remedy," and it will speak for itself.

Those who believe the world owes them a living don't stop to consider how many bad debts the old globe has to shoulder.

Yesterday morning, in the senate chamber at Washington, the chaplain offered the Lord's prayer. When he had finished, Doolmey leaned over to Josonby, and remarked: "He stole that prayer, and I'll bet a 'boodle' on it, for I heard the same idea expressed in Eureka at a funeral over two years ago."

"You old vulture, you!" she exclaimed, when he hinted that seven bonnets a year were enough for an ordinary woman. Next day when he relented and told her to go down to Division street and order the eighth, it would have made an angel smile to hear her sweetly call him "Birdie."

☞ Carter's Little Liver Pills are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only; very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging.

Prisoner behind the grating of a cell in the Tombs. Visitor—"What are you in for, contempt?" "I hope not, I haven't got so low as that yet. Why, I'm in for a simple drunk only."

☞ Rich in fat-producing material beyond all other foods and medicines are Malt Bitters.

We have seen an article in the papers about "boy inventors." We hope they will invent a boy who won't whistle in the street cars or miscall the head-lines when selling papers.

☞ INCREASING USE OF COMPOUND OXYGEN BY PHYSICIANS.—A large and steadily-increasing number of intelligent physicians in all parts of the country are using Compound Oxygen in Chronic Cases which they have not been able to cure with ordinary remedies. Writes one: "I shall make the Oxygen Treatment a prominent feature in my practice, for I have tested it sufficiently to satisfy me of its merits." Says another: "I do know that my patient is a hundred per cent. better, and is gaining rapidly. His left lung was almost consolidated, but is now free except in one small spot." Another physician who used it in his own case, says: "I was relieved, the first time I used it, of a very severe catarrh trouble; and my lung trouble promises to be a thing of the past." Writes another: "I am thoroughly convinced that the Compound Oxygen is what we need in a vast army of Chronic Diseases." We could give columns of extracts from our correspondence with physicians who are using this new Treatment all of the same tenor. If you wish to know what Compound Oxygen is, and what it cures, send for our Treatise on its Nature, Action and Results. It will be mailed free. Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Miscellaneous.

"BEARING" A SINGER.

Speaking of tenors, says a Roman correspondent, I remember reading a short time ago an anecdote which may perhaps amuse you. It was in the days when tenors thought themselves well paid at 1,000 francs a year instead of 1,000 francs a night, as now. It was in the days of Charles II. of England. Among his chapel singers was John Abell, who, when James II. came to the throne, was exiled as a Papist. He is reported to have had a remarkably beautiful voice, and he accompanied himself on the lute. During his exile he visited Holland and Germany, singing in every town through which he passed.

He gained heaps of money for those times, but was very extravagant and fond of gambling, so that he spent and lost all he made as soon as earned. Sometimes he was even obliged to wander on foot, instead of traveling in a carriage, and it was on foot that he reached Warsaw. As soon, however, as the King heard that the celebrated Abell was in Warsaw he sent for him, wishing to hear him the same night. A gentleman of the court was therefore sent to fetch the tenor, and a carriage was placed at his disposal. But Abell, who was tired and hungry, wanted to eat more than to sing. He did not, however, say he would not go to sing before the king, but that he could not.

The gentleman pretending that he believed the tenor, bowed himself out of the little inn's dining-room, saying he would inform the king of the tenor's indisposition. But on going out of the door he whispered something to the inn-keeper, who went immediately to Abell, who was beginning his supper, and took everything away from him, saying he had orders not to allow him to touch anything until the king's doctor had seen him. But, instead of a doctor, there came a regiment of soldiers, who took our bewildered tenor by force and carried him to the Palace. He was led into a hall, which was surrounded by a large gallery, filled with all the ladies and gentlemen of the court. In the centre of the body of the hall was a large chair, on which the tenor was tied, and then he was lifted in the air, and suspended midway between the floor and ceiling like a chandelier; then, at a signal, a side door of the hall was opened, and twelve bears were introduced, who began to sniff at the poor tenor, balancing above in his swinging chair. Abell was ordered to sing, or to be flung to the bears. And there, enjoying the scene, he sang all his favorite songs, and delighted the whole court for an hour. Even the bears were entranced, says the writer of this anecdote.

A VERY QUIET BABY.

Children-in-arms generally enjoy exemption from customs' duties, and even the octroi officials stationed at the "barriers" of French and Italian cities, fiscal martinets though they be, are wont to allow these innocent creatures to pass them free of duty. There are, however, exceptions to every rule. Only a short time since, among the passengers in an omnibus undergoing the usual inspection at the Porta Garibaldi of Milan was a ruddy-cheeked wet nurse, bearing on her lap an infantile treasure, carefully swaddled, its youthful lineaments hidden from view by a thick white lace vail. It seemed a baby of excellent conduct, by no means addicted to infuriate screaming, or even to the complacent gurglings affected by some infants, but wrapped in a profound noiseless slumber.

"That is a remarkably quiet child of yours," observed the searching official to the nurse.

"Yes, indeed it is, dear little angel," rejoined the latter; "it hardly ever cries, the sweet poppet, and when it does whimper a little I can quiet it in a moment with a lump of sugar."

"It must be quite a treasure," replied he of the octroi; "just step down, there's a good woman, and bring it into my office, will you. I should like to have a look at it, being a family man myself.

The nurse grew pale; she had, however, no valid excuse for non-compliance with the request, so she descended from the omnibus and followed the fatherly official into his bureau, where, strange and sad to tell, the extraordinary placidity of her infantile charge was speedily accounted for by the discovery that it consisted of 14 pounds of fine Bologna sausage, neatly packed up in the snow white robes of guileless babyhood.

A FAMILY AFFAIR.

The Kaffirs hold the doctrine of the transmigrations of souls, and pay the spirits of their relatives the doubtful compliment of believing that they have a special affinity for snakes and serpents. So, when some venomous reptile takes up its quarters with a family, in place of killing it, they abandon the hut to its use. Dr. Norbury tells a story of a missionary who came near to paying with his life for the delicate consideration of his flock. While officiating at the communion-table, he fancied he heard a hissing sound. Bringing the service prematurely to a close, he peeped below the cloth, and saw one of the most poisonous snakes in South Africa. His parishioners had had their eyes upon it all the time, but had declined to say anything from motives of delicacy. They thought the snake must be a relative of their clergyman, and would not interfere in a family affair.

A man is rich indeed when he has friends who are willing to stand by him when his fortune fails.

Have not the cloak to make when it begins to rain.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!
Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE NEW YORK
EVENING POST
FOR 1881.
In Its Eighty-first Year.
The character and objects of the Evening Post are so well known, that it would be enough, as a prospectus of the coming year, merely to announce that it will endeavor to maintain its position as the leading evening journal of the city of New York, but its proprietors hope, by renewed energy and enterprise, to render it still more worthy of the generous support which it has hitherto received from the public.
1. The Evening Post, for more than fifty years, has been devoted to that theory of politics on which our institutions are built, and which regards the government as the organ and representative of the whole community, and not of any class. By the fundamental law of its corporate organization it is bound to stand for the decentralization of power, for freedom of exchange in trade, for just and impartial taxation, for a sound hard-money currency, for economy and purity of administration, and for a reformed civil service, and to these principles it will continue to give an earnest, enlightened and unfaltering support.
2. In 1854 it took an active part in the formation of the Republican Party, to the measures and candidates of which it has since generally adhered; but it is in no sense the slave of any party organization. It holds that the highest duty of a good journal is to the community at large, and to parties only as they are subservient to the general good. While it has decided political preferences, therefore it has no political prejudices; and is determined to be fair and impartial toward all parties, and independent in its judgments. It means to make vigorous war, as it always has done, upon all public jobs, all corruption, all extravagance, all peculation, all rings, and all class legislation.
3. But the chief aim of the proprietors of the Evening Post is to make it a first class family newspaper, which shall not only provide the latest and fullest news of the day, but lend a special aid to all the best elements of civilization, to Literature, to Science, to Art, to Education, and to Innocent Amusements. Accordingly, it maintains intelligent correspondents not only in our two political capitals, Washington and Albany, but in all the great cities of the Christian World. Its reviews of books have long since made a name for themselves; its theatrical and musical criticisms are full, discriminating, instructive and just; its financial and market reports are noted for their completeness and accuracy; while its miscellaneous departments have no superior for variety, freshness and general interest.
4. Every Saturday, to accommodate our advertisers, who are more numerous than those of any other New York daily journal except the Herald, we publish a supplement, which contains tales, poems, correspondence, extracts and miscellanies of various kinds, and which is intended to anticipate the Sunday editions of the morning papers. It is furnished to our subscribers without increase of price.
5. The best things of our daily edition are specially prepared for our Semi-Weekly and Weekly editions which supply to country readers all the news, with an abundance of other matter, up to the day of their date. We do not believe that any better papers for country reading are issued from the city of New York.

Wednesday Evening, March 2, 1881.

The South.

The Arkansas legislature has passed a bill, by an almost unanimous vote, to appropriate $10,000 for a colored normal school. Florida has made wonderful progress in education the last four years, during which twenty-five per cent. more school houses have been built and fifty per cent. more schools operated than ever before. In every Southern State, indications of substantial progress in educational matters, by providing liberal appropriations and a better class of teachers, give evidence that popular opinion has at last been aroused to the importance of a better and more liberal system of education throughout the South.

So it is with immigration, and it is a fact that in those parts of the South where Bourbonism is weakest, industrial progress is most apparent. This is illustrated by Texas, where the mourners for the "lost cause" are comparatively few, but the growth in wealth and population has been simply wonderful. The same is relatively true of Florida and Tennessee. Bourbonism may be very chivalric and all that, but it does not pay. South Carolina has passed stringent anti-dueling laws, and requiring all officers to take an oath that they will not engage in a duel during their term of office.

And soon the "Puritanical notions of the North," which Southern chivalry has been wont to sneer in the past, will one after another become incorporated into legal and social restraints of the South, as civilization progresses, and industry undermines the false ideas of life that formerly prevailed in that section of the country.

SAYS Professor Phelps of Andover Theological Seminary: "We are not half awake to the fact that by our laws of divorce and our toleration of the social evil we are doing more to corrupt the nation's heart than Mormonism tenfold. Vice, avowed and blatant and organized, to a large extent nullifies itself, so far as self-diffusion is concerned. But vice, lurking and still, trickles into all the crevices of society. A nation of Mormons is impossible—not so a nation of libertines."

THE astronomers are ridiculing a sensational prophecy that the earth is about to be destroyed by a comet. The earth has been destroyed so often during the past 100 years by fanatical alarmists and sensational prophets that it will be quite safe for sensible people to possess their souls in patience as regards the dreaded calamity.

THE National Banks are making a strong fight against the three per cent. funding bill. The Sub. Treasurer of New York has received deposits of $5,557,000 from the National Banks, which threaten to retire their circulation on account of this bill.

THE pension appropriation bill calls for $68,282,306.68, which is more than all the pension appropriations of all the Governments in the world combined. Our Government is not ungrateful to its defenders.

WEDNESDAY, snow and rain; Thursday, wind and cold; Friday, snow; Saturday, pleasant and cold; Sunday, warm and thawing; Monday, rain and fog; Tuesday, dampness, fog and rain.

Men are like pins. One with a little head may be just as sharp as one with a big head.

THE great rival cities of the West, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis, are now engaged in an earnest effort to secure a better observance of Sunday.—St. Louis is struggling to suppress all kinds of vicious Sunday amusements in theatres and variety halls, which have been allowed to run in full blast during the Sabbath. In Chicago and Cincinnati, reformers seek to accomplish the enforcement of the law against the sale of liquor on Sunday. Aside from any moral considerations, it is the duty of a city or town to enforce such laws as shall maintain the physical and commercial welfare of its citizens. To do this, all good citizens agree that a quiet and orderly observance of the Sabbath is as necessary for the bodily and mental health of a people, as it is essential for the prosperity and well-being of society as a whole. This, surely, cannot be done when the workingmen of every city or large town are accustomed to indulge in the riotous exercises and flagrant vices which are now allowed in our own state to desecrate the Sabbath and make it a curse instead of a blessing to so many people. It is a hopeful sign of the times when reform in this direction has been begun in real earnest.

There is reason for solicitude when the people who must use the telegraph, are told they must pay dividends on eighty millions of dollars, when a quarter of that sum would replace all that the stock of the inflated corporation represents. There is reason for solicitude when the same principle, applied now here, now there, to lines of transportation, threatens to end in imposing throughout the country four times the charge for carrying goods or persons that the service is worth. There is reason for solicitude when, seeing what may be done, free of let or hindrance, with telegraph and railroads, monopolists are visibly preparing to repeat the performance in other fields so that at last it may even be that the whole labor of the nation will stagger under unprecedented and at last unbearable burdens to swell the already crammed purses of scheming monopolists.

It is tolerably well settled that, besides the solid New England delegation, Hon. Thomas B. Reed, from the First Maine District, will receive a strong support for Speakership of the next House from the Northwest. Members from other sections, too, will be likely to vote for him. It is claimed by those in a position to know the best about it, that the probabilities of Mr. Reed's election are very strong. He is a man of great ability, of large experience, and it is doubtful if the House could find in any other member his equal for a presiding officer.

There has been some talk about town the past week in regard to the Post Office. For various reasons many seem to think the time for a change has come. We do not state this to add to the discussion, but as an item of current news. It seems to us, however, that the present agitation is rather premature, inasmuch as Mr. Ward's commission does not expire until next fall. In the meantime, whatever may be the reasons which cause the demand for a change, proper consideration should be given the present incumbent, who is a soldier and a member of the G. A. R.

It is rather early to worry much about it, still it may be comforting to some to know that Vennor says the 4th, 5th, 9th, 11th, 16th, 17th, 25th and 26th days of next July will be excessively hot ones; that next August will be decidedly moist; that next October will be foggy all the month; that next December will be muddy and mild.

A week ago it was said that ice water caused Bright's disease, but now there comes an eminent physician — one "whose sands of life have nearly run out," probably—who says that lager beer is responsible for a vast amount of sickness in this country. Who is to decide when doctors and others disagree?

Colonel Higginson's new House in Cambridge, is tiled, instead of clapboarded and shingled. Its principal feature is the hall, which occupies as much space as any of the rooms, and has a fireplace in it and a staircase. All one side of the hall is lighted by windows of various shapes and sizes.

The last religious census in France shows that in that country there are 35,387,703 Roman Catholics, 467,531 Calvinists, 80,117 Lutherans, and 33,113 of other Protestant denominations.—The Jews number about 50,000, and 90,000 are attached to no church.

We are informed by members of the Goldsmith Literary Society that no change has been made in their by-laws, as stated in a previous issue. Two months' notice has to be given before a change can be made.

An exchange hits the nail squarely on the head when it says a good newspaper liberally patronized by business men is the best recommendation that can be given a town.

ABOUT LOVE.—Mr. Factandfancy has noticed—

That the boy who is most afraid of the girls is the first to be corralled in matrimony.

That the little boys prefer boys to girls.

That they soon change, never to go back to their early love.

That the little girls love the girls best.

That they don't get over their preference as soon as the boys do—some of them never.

That women love the men because they love everything they have to take care of.

That men love women because they can't help it.

That the wife loves her husband so well that she has no thoughts for other men.

That the husband so loves his wife that he loves all women for her sake.

That girls who have given over all hope of matrimony, or who never had any, love to flirt with married men.

That the married man is apt to think himself all-killing among the fair sex, simply because he has found one woman fool enough to marry him.

That homely husbands are the best. They never forget the compliment paid them by their wives in accepting them.

That homely wives are the truest. They know how to make the most of what they have. Lightning seldom strikes twice in the same place, and homely women feel that a similar law governs question popping.

That the man who marries late in life does well.

That the man who marries young does better.

That the man who never marries is to be pitied.

That the woman who marries does well.

That the woman who does not marry does better, nine times out of ten.

That the young man who prattles about the "daisies" would turn as red as a beet and tremble like an aspen if one of them should look at him out of the corner of her eye.

That the fellow who makes the most conquests has the least time to brag.

That the man who thinks the girls are all in love with him is happy after his way.

That the man who loves all the girls is happy after the true way.

That the man who loves his wife may still love other women.

That the least he has to say about his love for other women the smoother will be his matrimonial career.

That old people think that lovers act like fools.

That these same old people would like to be young lovers again, even if they had to act like fools too.

That it is a mistake to say a person "falls" in love. Love is a long step upward toward heaven. It is heaven.

That as we are commanded to love our neighbor as ourselves, we should see to it that our neighbor is a charming young woman.

That it is time to stop, for fear our readers might become love-sick.—Boston Transcript.

March and Spring were the names of two somewhat celebrated clergymen in Newburyport who were on the School Committee, and on the first day of March the big boys would set the young greenhorns to cramming on their reviews, by telling them that March and Spring were coming into school, though they made the mistake that the majority of us do, in common parlance, in making the two synonymous, as spring really commences three weeks from the first of the month, when the sun crosses the Equator, and the days and nights are equal. This was formerly the commencement of the year, till three hundred years ago Gregory XIII ordained that it should begin on the first of January, and the calendar at the same time was reformed by the addition of ten days, a reform which England being Protestant, and Russia being of the Greek Church, would not accept from the Pope of Rome. England, however, adopted the new style in 1751, by an act of Parliament, putting the date eleven days ahead, not without great opposition on the part of the people, who believed that that number of days had been subtracted from their term of existence. Old fogy Russia still adheres to the old style, which necessitates the use of double dates when transacting business with other nations.

Our readers, then, in backward New England — backward only in the matter of the seasons—need not be disgusted at the discrepancy between a miscalled spring and a probable snowstorm that may be raging when this meets their eyes.

But though it be not quite time to plough except with a snow plough, our rural readers will bear in mind that much can be done on the farm before the end of this month. Walls can be put up and manure hauled on the land as well as in the more busy season, and the same team that takes the manure on to the land may take a load of stones off, where the soil is rocky, but don't pick too close, for the gradual disintegration of small stones that won't greatly obstruct the tilling is a constant source of fertility to the soil. Window gardening, or the starting of early vegetables in boxes, placed in the kitchen windows, may be commenced at once, followed by hot bed and cold frames out of doors.

One lady who recently crossed the Atlantic was so sick that she does not dare to return for fear of losing her life. She is an exile indeed.

SALEM ITEMS.—There are now 15 claims against the City of Salem, for personal injuries received on the street, a majority of them being caused by snow and ice. The city will probably contest a part or all of the claims.

Mr. W. C. Packard has received a permit to re-build his furniture establishment, recently damaged by fire.

Mr. John L. Stoddard will give the third lecture of his illustrated course, entitled, "The Passion Play of 1880 at Oberammergau," at Mechanic Hall, on Friday evening, March 4.

Jefferson's Birthday, April 22, will be celebrated by the Essex County Democrats, with a dinner at Salem.

Be in style, by going to "All the Rage," under the management of Mr. E. F. Johnson, at Mechanic Hall, on Monday evening, March 7.

Merrill & Mackintire have a line of cards which are unsurpassed by any dealer. They make it a point to get the latest designs as fast as they appear. Call and see them, corner of St. Peter and Essex streets.

It is reported that Mr. A. F. Hitchins, Inspector at the Salem Custom House, will succeed Mr. Dalton as Deputy Collector, and Mr. Hosea B. Griffin, who has resigned his position at the Salem Post Office, succeeds to the office vacated by Mr. Hitchins.

A very pleasant social time was enjoyed by those present at the East Church Cotilion Party, at Central Hall, on Wednesday evening of last week. The object of the party was to raise a sum of money for the benefit of the Sunday-School Library, and we presume a substantial amount was realized for that purpose.

At a meeting of the School Committee, on Monday evening of last week, an important feature was the consideration of the revision of Chapter Eight of the rules and regulations, which refers to the duties of the Secretary, the office which partly supersedes that of Superintendent of Schools. Section 3, relating to the authority of the Secretary in cases of truancy and non-attendance, and Section 4, in that of transferring pupils from one school to another of the same grade, met with the most discussion, but these, and also the whole chapter, were finally adopted.

The seventh sociable of the Salem Light Infantry took place at their Armory on Thursday evening last, and was fully as enjoyable as those previous. The date of the next party by this company has not yet been decided upon, but due notice of the same will be given.

Some folk fink dat de test ob goodness am gwine ter church or givin' ter charity, but I doan'. I b'lieve dat a man's good and bad pints am developed in de way he uses his nayburs an' de way dey like him. If yer nayburs am bad let 'em alone; if dey am good, incouraige 'em. Keep no chickens, build no high fences, maintain no howlin' dogs, have no rows, return all favors, and yer nayburhood will be all right. If George Washington had tried to keep sebenty-five chickens on a patch of ground thirty by sixty, wid a garden each side of him, he could not have bin de Father of his Kentry. If Henry Clay had kep' a howlin' dog or a brayin' mule, oratory would have bin declar'd a sham. If Benjamin Franklin's wife had trotted te dis naybur fur flour, dat one for sugah, to de nex' for tea, an' so on aroun', de philosophy of Poo' Richard wouldn't weigh ten ounces to de poun'. To sum it all up, de family what quarrels wid its nayburhood quarrels among itself. De manners in a family crops out in outside rows.—Detroit Free Press.

The United States can claim a business prosperity last year never equalled before in the history of the country. Nearly fifty thousand new farms started during the year, while there have been only about half the number of failures of the average for a dozen previous years, while the average liabilities of those unable to meet their obligations was a quarter less than formerly, and it is noticeable that the majority of the failures were not in the line of legitimate trade, but as a result of speculation.

Nearly double the miles of railroad were built last year—7000 miles—than in any previous year, while the earnings of all the roads amounted to a hundred millions more than the previous year, 1879. Our exports of merchandise amounted to a hundred and twenty millions more than the year before, exceeding our imports a hundred and sixty millions. There was also a corresponding increase in all the great staple crops, which looks as if we had a sound basis for our prosperity, since all wealth comes primarily from the soil. If we can be content to follow a "steady business," according to the law of demand and supply, and keep out of reckless speculation, there is no reason why we should not have continued prosperity for an indefinite series of years.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE NEWSPAPER. Nothing presents a sadder commentary upon the present condition of society than the large number of families, both in town and country—but more especially in the latter—that subscribe to no paper of any kind. Hundreds and thousands of families are thus growing utterly ignorant of what is transpiring in the world around them—ignorant of the mighty events of the day. But who can tell the vast amount of injury that is being inflicted upon the rising generation—those who are to take our place in the busy world at no distant day—growing up without any knowledge of the present or past; this ignorance, too, being imbued into them by the sanction of those who should, and doubtless do, know better, did they only think of the injurious effect of their insane course. Let the head of every family think of this, and place in the hands of those for whom he is responsible the means of acquiring some knowledge of the moving panorama in which we act our different parts.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

G. A. R.—The entertainment furnished last Wednesday evening by Post 90, in the Institute in Danvers, was particularly pleasing, and the subsequent gathering very social and jolly. About fifty comrades of Post 50 of this town, and a delegation from Post 89 of Beverly, were the guests of the evening. They assembled at the headquarters of Post 90, by whom they were escorted with a drum corps to the Peabody Institute. A double quartette furnished spirited and excellent music. Messrs. F. C. Green and J. P. Warren played admirably upon their respective instruments, the violin and cornet. Miss Carrie E. Hale, a young lady formerly of Danvers, recited several selections with marked ability, winning golden opinions from all. Miss Rose Stewart exhibited much talent as a singer, and received hearty and spontaneous applause. Mr. J. W. Barnard, who had charge of the entertainment, assisted by Mr. A. J. Walker, added greatly to the excellent programme by piano selections and very sweet music upon the organ. Every part of the programme was of a high order of merit, and reflected credit upon Mr. Barnard, the Post and the performers, and gave great delight to the visiting comrades, and to the friends who were permitted to be present. After leaving the Institute, a supper was served in Temperance Hall, followed by the customary pipe apiece. Humorous, eloquent and wise speeches were made, and an hour of jollification followed. Among the speakers were members of Post 90 of Danvers, 89 of Beverly, Mr. A. L. Goss, author of Life in Rebel Prisons, and comrades A. E. Johnson, Hildreth, Spofford, Randall, Davis, Adams and others, of Post 50. Quint carried the boys back and forth in his sleighs, and although the weather was intensely cold, it was a warm time.

MR. J. FRANK BAXTER.—It is seldom that one person can be found to entertain a large audience the whole evening, but those who were present at Temperance Hall, on Wednesday evening last, to hear Mr. J. Frank Baxter, can testify to his ability in that direction. The readings and recitations capitally attested Mr. Baxter's superior elocutionary talent. Many of his selections elicited continued applause. His selections from negro, religious and plantation songs were extremely mirth-provoking, and were repeatedly encored. "Twickenham Ferry" was finely rendered, and gave immense delight. The entertainment was heartily enjoyed by all present, and a general desire has been expressed to have it repeated.

THE WEST PEABODY FARMERS' CLUB.—The seventh meeting of the West Peabody Farmers' Club was held Friday evening, Feb. 25th, at 7.30. This meeting was public, and it was expected to have the time occupied by a lecture and musical selections by the quartette. In consequence of ill health the lecturer was not present. Rev. Mr. Spaulding occupied the time with an address, which was highly interesting and entertaining. Unless notice is given to the contrary, the same program, with the lecture, will be in order for Friday evening, March 4th, at 7.30. Gentlemen are invited to attend with their ladies.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH. — To-day begins the Lenten days, the season of fasting and prayer, in commemoration of the terrible passion of Our Saviour. At the Catholic Church in town services will be held every Wednesday and Friday evenings until Easter, consisting of a sermon, the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, and the reading of the Stations of the Cross.

A new temperance society was formed among the members of this church on Sunday last. About thirty-two persons joined. The first meeting will be held to-morrow evening, over Newman & Symonds' store, when the society will be organized.

WOMEN'S SCHOOL SUFFRAGE. — A number of lady voters met at the W. C. T. U. room on Friday afternoon to consider their duties. The meeting was formally organized, and candidates for the School Committee duly nominated. The ticket is Miss F. L. Kittredge and Mr. Amos Merrill. These names on an otherwise blank ticket of legal size will be at the town meeting for the use of the lady voters. This woman's caucus recognized the right to scratch, and there will certainly be space enough on this ticket for the individual opinions of the voters. The meeting adjourned to next Friday at 4.15 P. M., when any remaining matters can be attended to.

POLICE NOTE.—Feb. 26, George Alley, appeared for drunkenness, and this being his third offence, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

THE WARRANT for the annual town meeting contains the usual articles which annually appear, and the following new ones:

26th. To act on the report of the committee chosen at the last annual meeting to consider the matter of high service water.

27th. To hear and act on the report of the committee to which was referred, at the last annual meeting, the subject matter relating to a new town house.

28th. To see if the Town will alter the regulations concerning the choice of members of the Water Board, so far as they relate to the number to be chosen, and the time they shall serve.

29th. To see if the Town will grant free the use of the Town Hall to all political parties to hold caucuses for the nomination of such officers as are required by law to be elected, agreeably to the petition of Richard Kimball and others.

30th. To see if the Town will appropriate five hundred dollars, or any other amount, for the purpose of raising the grade of Brown street, deepening the gutters of County street, and providing means of escape for water across, or through portions of Lynn street, or take any action thereon, agreeably to the petition of Edward E. Taylor and others.

31st. To see if the Town will appropriate the sum of two hundred dollars, to assist Union Post 50, Dept. G. A. R., in defraying the expenses of Memorial Day, May 30, 1881, agreeably to the petition of W. M. Ward and others.

32d. To see what action the Town will take upon the following proposed additions to the By-Laws of the Town, agreeably to the petition of Frank E. Farnham and others, namely:

"The School Committee of the Town, by a majority vote, may require the Town to provide, at the Town Alms House, or elsewhere within the limits of the town, suitable accommodations for the confinement, discipline and instruction of truant children, agreeably to provisions of Section 1 of Chapter 262, of the Statutes of 1873."

"The School Committee of the Town is hereby empowered to authorize the necessary complaints, and to superintend the execution of any judgment thereon, in all cases accruing under the foregoing By-Law."

33d. To see if the Town will appropriate a sum of money, not exceeding four hundred dollars, to establish a Telephonic Fire Alarm, agreeably to the petition of George Upton and others.

34th. To see if the Town will cause the By-Laws of the Town to be revised, or take any action thereon, agreeably to the petition of Charles E. Hoag and others.

MURRAY CLUB.—The entertainments given at the meetings of the Murray Club, are deserving of larger audiences. Last Monday evening the exercises were very creditable and interesting. After a song with banjo accompaniment by Mr. Chas. Rogers, which was an excellent performance, a scene from Hamlet was read very creditably by Mr. George Farrington and Miss Katie Price. The farce Putkins was read by Messrs. Randall and Farrington, and Misses Addie Hill and Lizzie Gould, creating merriment and leaving all in the best of humor. The concluding part, which occupied about an hour, was a musical and recitative sketch by Frank W. Taggard and Miss Alice H. Nelson, entitled "An Hour of Fun," a finished humorous dialogue interspersed with singing. They appeared in character, with changes of costume, and gave a unique and laughable entertainment, highly creditable to themselves and much enjoyed by those present.

BELLS OF CORNEVILLE. — Holten Lodge 104, I. O. O. F., with their friends, celebrated their third anniversary at Peabody Institute, last Thursday evening, when Bennett & Moulton's Juvenile Opera Company played "Bells of Corneville." Our readers are too familiar with the play itself to need any comment from us. This company gave good satisfaction, and, although the entertainment was inferior to those which have always been given by the Odd Fellows, it was enjoyed by most of those present. The whole concluded with a grand novelty olio, consisting of the singing of humorous songs, etc.

HARDWARE AND HOUSEFURNISHINGS.—Mr. Samuel Trask, on Walnut street, having replenished his stock for his spring trade, is now ready to supply his patrons and other friends with anything in the line of Hardware. His stock includes not only a general assortment of Builders' and Curriers' Hardware, but also many articles which are convenient and labor-saving to the housekeeper, both in the line of hard and wooden ware. Painters and others who are about to commence spring repairs will find with Mr. Trask a full assortment of paints, oils and brushes. All of the above are offered at the lowest cash prices.

LEVER'S HORSEMANSHIP.

An incident with the harriers established Lever's character for pluck, if not for horsemanship. Nixon was the possessor of a mule, whose services he placed at the disposal of his friends, but the mount was always accepted with misgivings, for the animal was the most vicious of her tribe. The operation of grooming could only be conducted with safety to life and limb by the restraint of an iron-barred muzzle, and with a fore leg tied up. Bridling and saddling and mounting were managed from a loft above, and the animal was backed into the open, and not freed from restraint until a clear stage was reached, where man and mule might try conclusions as to mastery. This was no child's play, for the brute's nose would seem to touch the ground, while its heels appeared high in the air. When these preliminaries were safely got through, there was usually peace for the rest of the day; for, once fairly started, the animal seemed to like the work, and she was fleet, sure-footed, had the activity of a cat, and followed sport with the keenness of a dog. A pause, however, or a lull in the amusement, was always dangerous; she would have time to remember her vices, and recommence their practice. The movement was commonly stern foremost, the hind legs flourishing in advance in a manner that meant mischief. In this fashion, on one occasion, Lever being the rider, a farmhouse was entered, such slight obstacles as chairs and tables being easily kicked aside. A "dresser," the pride of the family, with its furniture of crockery, was dislodged from its fastenings by these formidable heels, and fell to the ground, with plates and dishes, mugs and porringers, scattered and shattered. Many were the devices that were tried, but failed, to get rid of the intruder, until at last, to secure eviction, the strong measure of igniting bushes of furze under and behind the animal was resorted to. When Lever emerged from the smoke, still mounted, he was greeted with loud cheers, and, with the assent of a chorus of sponsors, the animal previously called Blazes was rechristened "Knock-a-crockery," in memory of the event.—The University.

ROMANCE OF A DIAMOND.

An interesting history is attached to the celebrated Orloff diamond which belongs to the Emperor of Russia. It appears that it originally served as an eye to an idol in an Indian temple until it was plucked out by a French deserter, who brought the precious jewel with him to Europe, where, after passing through various hands, it at last came into those of Count Orloff, who purchased it for an enormous sum of money and presented it to his Imperial mistress Catherine the Great. The soldier, it is said, sold his prize to a sea captain for £2,000, who sold it to a Jew trader for six times that amount. It was sold by the Jew to an Armenian, and by the Armenian to a merchant of Amsterdam, from whom Orloff purchased it for half a million roubles, an annuity of two thousand roubles and a patent of nobility.

He who is false to the present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will see the effect when the weaving of a lifetime is unraveled.

☞ AN HONEST PREPARATION. —The world is so crammed with swindles that a really honest man or honest thing is almost as scarce as robins in January. Yet Mr. J. H. Northrop, of Lansingburg, N. Y., formerly captain of the Troy police, says Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" is "an honest preparation." And the captain ought to know, for the medicine cured him of Liver Complaint. It is mean enough to cheat a well man, but to cheat the sick and the suffering deserves a short shift and a long rope. Whatever sins Dr. Kennedy may be guilty of, misrepresentation of his medicine is not among them. Try it for One Dollar, or write to the Doctor at Rondout, N. Y.

True happiness, remarks an exchange, is realized to the fullest extent by those who, after many struggles and discouragements in striving to gratify an honorable ambition, at last reach success. If this is the case, then our business manager must be truly happy. He has been trying for a long time to make his moustache meet his ears, and now, after numerous trials and disappointments, his efforts have been crowned with victory.

From a Prominent Physician.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents.—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse, and both horses are to-day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Respectfully yours.

Portrait of FAITH WHITCOMB, the Shakeress, the most successful nurse of the age, who is now accomplishing more good through the distribution of her medicine than all the doctors in the country.

SPECIAL TO LADIES!

FAITH WHITCOMB'S Shaker Liniment is a Sure and Certain Cure for Inflammation of the Womb and for the distressing Lame Back, from which the majority of American women suffer.

A Boston gentleman, well known in business circles—in fact, one of the largest advertisers of the city whose wife has suffered for four years with inflammation of the Womb with constant lameness in the back—employing the best regular Physicians—and afterwards the best Female Electric Physicians, expending vast sums of money with but little effect, has had no occasion to employ a Physician since commencing the use of last July. She is now well. She never has the Backache from which she was hardly ever free during the previous four years.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT.

LADIES:—Instead of filling the stomach with washy-washy medicines for so-called "Female Complaints," apply the proper remedy—externally—and you will obtain certain relief. Every regular Physician will tell you that the only wise treatment for the Inflamation of the Womb is by the external application of the proper remedies, and if you ask your Family Physician he will advise you to use FAITH WHITCOMB'S SHAKER LINIMENT, (to whom the recipe is open for examination.

INVALID LADIES

Who will send a postal card, simply bearing their address, will receive, prepaid by mail, which every mother should read. Address, FAITH WHITCOMB'S Agency, Boston, Mass.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

LINIMENT.

THE GREAT SHAKER REMEDY

FOR

Neuralgia, Rheumatism. Pains in the Spine, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Enlarged Glands, Toothache, Croup, Earache. Sprains, Chronic Diseases of the Joints and Muscles, Bruises, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quincy, Sore Throat, Swellings, Burns and Scalds, Headache, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, and all diseases of an inflammatory order.

FOR TOOTHACHE.

Boston Dentists use it in their practice and recommend it to their patrons.

FROM THE CELEBRATED SURGEON DENTIST, U. K. MAYO.

337 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, Aug 30, 1880.

I congratulate you upon the merited and enviable renown attained by your really valuable liniment. It is the most effective remedy for toothache that has ever come to my notice and I cheerfully recommend to my patrons. U. K. MAYO.

IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

For proof of which please read the following:—

214 CAMBRIDGE ST., BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1880.

I am astonished at the wonderful properties of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment. Three weeks ago I was attacked with Inflammatory Rheumatism, my head was swollen to double its usual size and the Pain was intense. The first application relieved the pain. In two weeks after using two 50 cent bottles of the Liniment I was entirely cured. Those who are familiar with the Inflammatory Rheumatism and the time which it generally runs will agree with me that the Shaker Liniment is a remarkable remedy and I advise Rheumatics to use it. J. F. SAWTELL.

The Boston Evening Traveller in referring to the above case says:—

"The cure of Mr. Sawtell, the well known grocer, of inflamatory rheumatism, is creating a decided sensation at the West End. Several gentlemen from the Revere House, chronic Rheumatics, called upon Mr. Sawtell for confirmation of the rumors of his astonishing recovery and found that the facts had not been exaggerated. Such cures place Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment at the head of rheumatic remedies."

SAVE THE LITTLE ONES.

"If Faith Whitcomb's directions are followed not one case of croup in a thousand will prove fatal.

"He will give further proof if you will call upon him.

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1880.

This certifies that my wife who had been a sufferer from Neuralgia for twenty years, was cured by the use of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and four applications cured my back which was so lame from Rheumatism that I could not move without pain. I assure sufferers from Neuralgia and Rheumatism that this Liniment will surely cure these diseases. I know it to be a fact that Mr. Lord, one of my neighbors at Greenwood who had been on crutches for fifteen years, and had unsuccessfully tried many remedies, obtained relief from less than one bottle of Shaker Liniment, and Mrs. Wheeler of the same place another neighbor, a great sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism—is raising the Shaker Liniment in the strongest terms, for it is the only remedy that would help her. I shall be glad to give further proof of the value of this Liniment to any sufferers who will call either upon me in Boston or at my house at Greenwood. A. HANSON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

You know Physicians are proverbially shy of anything like patent medicines. Doctor Sylvester is no exception to this rule; but when he saw the formula of "Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment" he said "that is all right, that is a good remedy." He prescribed it for me when I was next assailed by my old enemy Neuralgia, or rather Neuralgic Rheumatism, from which I have suffered much, especially from Neuralgia of the Heart. It was a severe attack and I feared a long illness, but I used the Liniment freely and began to find relief very soon. In a week I was WELL. Its effects are almost magical. I will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. C. A. SYLVESTER.

SHERBURNE, MASS., Nov. 2, 1880.

Dr. Sylvester the well-known Physician of Sherborn, gives the following statement:—

SHERBORN, MASS., Sept. 20, 1880.

This certifies that I have examined the formula of Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment, and the ingredients are such that it must be of great value in Neuralgia and Rhumatism. I use it in my family and I recommend it to all sufferers from these diseases, for it is better than any Liniment that has ever come to my notice. W. P. SYLVESTER, M. D.

When regular Physicians recommend a remedy, and use it themselves in their families you may be sure it has unusual merit.

A well-known Sunday School Worker gives his evidence.

WOBURN, Aug. 24, 1880.

The Shaker Liniment cured my wife of an enlarged joint, from which she suffered for months. A few applications cured her. I also received almost immediate relief in a case of acute inflammation and my son received great benefit in a severe attack of rheumatism. As a family liniment I think it has no equal. E. N. CUMMINGS.

"It cannot be recommended too highly as a family liniment.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20, 1880.

I have used Faith Whitcomb's Shaker Liniment for rheumatism with the happiest results, indeed it is the best liniment that I have ever used giving me quick relief. It is not only efficacious for rheumatism, but for strains, sprains, etc. It can not be recommended too highly as a family liniment. C. H. LEWIS.

It always relieves Neuralgia and if the application is continued a cure can be dependedupon.

[From Hon. A. Maynard, the extensive manufacturer and founder of the town of Maynard.]

ASSABET MILLS,
MAYNARD, Mass., Aug 24, 1880.

I gladly add my testimony to the value of the Shaker Liniment in case of Neuralgia and Rheumatism. By its use I obtained almost immediate relief, and unhesitatingly recommend it to my friends.

It was taken up by the conductor, who acknowledged that the oldest one before known to have been taken was only eighteen years old.

A recent traveller in Siberia asserts that birds go there to breed, not in thousands, but in millions, and that for the reason that they find there a prodigal abundance of food. Berries of many kinds in inexhaustible quanties, frozen during the winter, are ready the moment the snow has melted for the fruit-eating birds, and for the insect-worm varieties of mosquitos in such swarms that the birds have but to open their bills to have them fly down their throats.

Speaking of the presence of the Lord Mayor at a recent public dinner, the London correspondent of the Liverpool Mercury remarks :—"It is costly amusement to have a Lord Mayor supping with you. He brings five gorgeous flunkeys with him to attend to his wants, and a toastmaster to announce when he is going to speak. The five flunkeys before the end of the evening find time to demand five shillings apiece from the givers of the feast as some slight token of the honor they do to the Lord Mayors' hosts by appearing in uniform so magnificent, and the toastmaster advances a claim for two guineas, though he is ready to take a quarter of the sum."

The right of operatic singers to decline from any whim to sing when they are announced is considered by some to be one of the inalienable rights of the profession. Usually the public permits these favored beings to do as they please, but in Brazil it acts differently. A suprano and tenor in Para, having been unfavorably criticised in the newspapers, refused to sing the next evening. Thereupon the manager of the theatre, after vainly trying to induce them to act up to the contract they had made with him, had recourse to the law, and the stubborn vocalists were arrested and sent to prison. The next morning they were ready to do anything that was asked of them and in the evening sang acceptably to a large house.

The Queen of Italy has just saved a life. She was taking her afternoon drive beyond the Porte Angelica, accompanied by the Duchessa Sforza-Cesarini and the Marchese Niccolini, and had alighted for a little walking exercise, when a riding party, consisting of a lady and two officers, came up. The three equestrains, on seeing her Majesty, made a sudden wheel to the side of the road, to let the carriage pass, but in the act the lady's horse stumbled and fell, dragging its fair rider along with it. The Queen, stepping forward, seized the struggling animal by the bridal, and held it unt l the lady had extricated herself, and was out of danger. By this time the two officers had leaped from their horses and the Duchessa Sforza-Cesarini and the Marchese Niccolini from the royal carriage, but only to hear the Queen deprecating the lady's gratitude, and regretting her having been the involuntary cause of the accident.

AMPUTATION OF THE LEG.

THE OLD FAMILY PHYSICIAN AT FAULT—DR. DAVID KENNEDY THE SUCCESSFUL SURGEON.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Elsworth, of Port Ewen, of Ulster county, N. Y., had realized this truth.—His disease involved the whole of his thighbone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb—asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, of Rondout, N Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood-Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system, prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Elsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

COLD AIR THE COURSE OF HEAT.

A gentleman while attending church one evening found that his feet were icy cold, so that he had to raise them off the floor. Calling the attention of the sexton to the fact, the latter said, with some perplexity, "Yes, we have a good many complaints of cold feet from others; but I don't understand the reason why we can't keep the church warm—we surely have fires enough." So saying, he pointed to a register in the aisle behind the gentleman, and in the adjoining pew. Looking around, the latter could see that there was a hot fire in the furnace beneath, and yet no heat came up. When a handkerchief was laid over the register it scarcely stirred. The visitor asked the sexton, "Have you any means of ventilation?" "No, sir." "Are there no windows open?" "None whatever." "How, then, can you expect the air to come in here if it can't get out somewhere?" There was no response; the man was nonplussed. "Did you ever try to blow into a bottle?" continued the inquirer. "No, sir." "Do you think, if you did, that you could force out any more air from a bottle by blowing than was in it before?" He couldn't say. Never had thought of it. "Well," continued the gentleman, "you would soon find, if you tried, that it was impossible, and neither can you force air into this church through a register if you don't open a window or some other orifice." "But," the sexton demurred, "opening a window would let in the cold air, wouldn't it?" "You just try it," was the response. "Raise some of the windows on the leeward side of the church, and see what will happen." It was done, and instantly the handkerchief lying on the register rose half way to the ceiling with the force of the ascending current. The sexton stood and stared in astonishment.

ADVANTAGES OF POVERTY.

The advantages attached to poverty in most religions are sufficiently notorious. The four leading orders of Franciscans, Dominicans, Augustines and Carmelites are all of them orders of beggars. And Beranger calls the Gospel to witness the truth of his assertion that they are a happy people. Their pleasures are described at length by the picturesque writers of Spain, by the sage who calls their life a boneless morsel, a chain of delights; and by Brome, in his "Jovial Crew, or Beggars' Chorus," in which their happiness is preferred to that of kings. And if there be still any person with soul so dead as to be incapable of appreciating at a high value a condition of life which is sweetened by pleasure and made noble by art and religion; if there be any one who is perverse enough to consider such a state distinguished less by glory than disgrace, let him look to cure his folly, as the Israelites looked at the brazen serpent, on the names of those great beggars traced by Time's finger in golden letters on the wide walls of the world, on the names of philosopher, general and poet, on the names of Diogenes, Belesarius and Homer.

PERSIAN SUPERSTITION.

Some one—a very holy dervish some said, others, they knew not who—writes a correspondent of the London News, had stated that, if any one possessing a white fowl or fowls allowed them to live up to the end of the Bairam festival, at that time a small snake would issue from the throats of the said fowl and sting their possessors, who would, as a consequence, straightway die in great agony. I was asked over and over again by the Turcomans and Asterabadi what I thought of the prophecy. The result of it was that long before the proscribed time not a single white feathered domestic bird was to be found far or near. While geese, ducks and hens were exposed for sale in all the bazars at merely nominal prices. Even now no one wishes to have a fowl of the objectionable color in his possession. And yet this superstition originated but a few months ago, set on foot by no one knows who. At Teheran I heard it stated that the story originated with the Austrians there, who wanted a supply of white feathers for the plumes which a new regulation requires them to place in their hats.

ARMY STATISTICS.

There is no need of a conscription law in this country at present, for there were 23,767 applications to enter the regular army last year, when only 5,000 men were wanted. Of the 5,000 men who were accepted 3,741 were born in America. New York furnished the most, 727, and next in order were Pennsylvania, 474; Ohio, 307; Maryland, 255; Virginia, 205; Indiana, 149, and Kentucky, 140. No other States furnished as many as 90. Massachusetts did not have a third as many as Tennessee. Of the 1,565 foreign born enlistments, Ireland furnished 576; Germany, 447; England, 185; Canada, 155, and no other country so many as 50. Farmers are more numerous than any other class in the new recruits, numbering 1,483, against 1,405 "laborers," 564 soldiers, 248 clerks, and so on.

A moment's work on clay tells more than an hour's labor on brick. So work on hearts should be done before they harden. During the first six or eight years of childlife mothers have chief sway, and this is the time to make the deepest and most enduring impressions on the youthful mind.

A more glorious victory cannot be gained over another man than this, that when the injury began on his part the kindness should begin on ours.

Instruction ends in the school-room, but education ends only with life. A child is given to the universe to be educated.

FAITH WHITCOMB.

The Most Successful Nurse of the Age, whose Wonderful Cures are creating such a sensation.

FAITH WHITCOMB'S

BALSAM,

IS THE MOST EFFECTIVE REMEDY

— FOR —

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, COUGHS, COLDS, LOSS OF SPEECH, AND ALL CASES OF INFLAMMATION OF THE LUNGS.

☞ This preparation contains no opium, or any other dangerous narcotic, but is composed of Pure Shaker Herbs.

It has actually Cured Consumption after Tubercles had formed upon the lungs.

IT CURES NIGHT SWEATS.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of physcians in the dissemination of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, for it is all that we recommend, and we shall be glad to show the formula to any regular physician on application. The cures being effected by its use are more wonderful.

JOHN K. STICKNEY—now and for the past eleven years Treasurer of the town of Water town, Mass.—says: "I was recently confined to my house with sore lungs and a racking cough — and an attack of Pneumonia. A neighbor sent me a part of a bottle of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam which gave me almost immediate relief, and I was soon able to attend to my business. I heartily recommend this Balsam to all sufferers from Coughs and Colds."

S. E. BROWN, of No. 8 Walden street, Cambridge, and 299 Washington street, Boston, says: "I earnestly recommend Faith Whitcomb's Balsam for Coughs and Colds. It is the best cough remedy in the market."

GEORGE ELLIS, the veteran crockery importer, who lives in Charlestown, says: "My physician pronounced my wife to be in consumption. She commenced the use of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam in October, and the effect was wonderful. It is the best lung remedy I ever knew, and I recommend it to every one inclined to that terrible disease, Consumption."

J. B. F. GATELY, of Gospel Hill, Hudson, Mass., says: "In regard to the value of Faith Whitcomb's Balsam, refer pulmonary invalids to me. I use it as a family medicine, and for the diseases subject to childhood, it is of inestimable value."

All About a Baby.

The following is all about a baby, and to those who entertain a prejudice against this important class in the community — bachelors and the like — I would say, Read no farther; for should you, unfortunately, read it through, your comments at the close might be very uncomplimentary. "Too foolish for anything," might come from the lips of those members of my own sex who see no prospect of ever tending a baby of their own; and "Beneath contempt," from the wiser heads of those gentlemen too old or too "crusty" ever to become a father. Therefore to all such I say, pass on. To those who are interested in these little ones, I appeal for attention while I talk about

OUR BABY.

And now, reader, did you ever own a share in a baby? Not as a parent—I do not refer to that relation—but to the right and privilege of loving and caressing without limit a blessed little girl-baby, belonging to those very near and dear to you? If you have, you can understand and appreciate my present feelings.

'Tis scarcely two months since the advent of this little queen into the home over which she rules so royally, for, mite though she be, never did a national queen rule more abject subjects than have already become those youthful parents. Now do not think I am writing about an ordinary baby. No, indeed, I am not! This is (and I say it very proudly) a grandchild. Perhaps you will say, "So are most babies."—Yes; but don't be provoking! this is very different. This is more of a rara avis; this is a first grandchild, and that is something that can come to us but once in our mortal existence.

Now perhaps you will be enabled to comprehend my feelings in a small degree—and somewhat my gratitude also, I trust; for as the days glide by, adding new graces to her infantile loveliness, it seems to me I can never feel sufficiently thankful to the great Father for this beautiful gift, for infusing life and color into a somewhat sombre existence.

How readily these little treasures lay hold on one's affections! How quickly they ensnare one's heart in their toils, and with what a tenacious grasp they hold it! At least this one seems to possess that power to a remarkable degree. Yes, I feel sure these precious little atoms, fashioned after God's own image, possess the ability to transform one's entire nature. Who has not seen a hard and otherwise unlovely face light up and brighten into something pleasant to look on at sight of a little child? Truly these little ones have a mission to perform amongst us.

In many hearts this may not find an echo, but there must be some among you who have enjoyed an experience similar to mine, and to whom my words may not sound strangely. The position of a grandmother I find (although pleasing in many respects, its novelty, etc.) is not without alloy, if one is sensitive as to ridicule and happens to feel a dislike at being the subject of jokes. Numerous are those perpetrated at my own expense, but they all fall flat and unappreciated. It has been suggested that "the pivot on which the world revolves is that baby." Of course it is—my world. I see nothing strange or funny in this application of the worn-out old similes, and say to them that if my attention were not already so pleasantly engrossed, I would like to assist them in their fruitless efforts to be facetious. Let those laugh who win—have I not my baby? and there blessedness lies. It might not please every one to have it said, "She is in her dotage," "O'd and childlike like all grandmothers," etc.; but I only attribute such remarks to their envy of my happiness, or dismiss them from my heart as "people disposed to make sport," as our good deacon sometimes says.

But all this time I am not telling you what kind of a baby this is, with whom my soul is so well filled—for know you, reader mine, she belongs to a class that admits of a great variety in some respects. Quite as much do they vary as in children of a larger growth. This specimen is a wee dumpling, as healthy as possible, with wondrous depths of blue in her big, solemn-looking eyes—not at all times solemn either, for at rare intervals, when, in despite of the little neck and head with its many jumps and jerks, the focus can be properly adjusted, may be seen the prettiest little smile in the world, well rewarding the interested spectator for her patience—as though the great problem of the universe was no serious matter after all—that she understands all about it, and everything is a good joke. Poor little head! how difficult to manage just now. Will it ever be less so, although in a different way? All this I sit and watch, and think and dream as I watch.—Watch this little bud of life unfolding, which has added new interest to my life. What society, entertainments, and the like are to others, she is to me—my occupation and delight. And what a pity that an unwelcome thought should be allowed to intrude. Must there ever be a skeleton at the feast—the apple turn to ashes ever? Alas and alas! this is a portion of the divine decree. Perfect happiness can never be reached 'til we cross the portals.

The cloud behind the silver lining in this instance assumed the form of a fear that she may not be long spared to us—that notwithstanding her healthy appearance, she may possibly be frail, or be suddenly snatched away, even as was my own precious one, so long sleeping 'neath the daisies, and there rises from the depths of my being a prayer that it may be otherwise. My soul cries out:

God grant it may be so. May he strengthen and develop this child-life, until we behold her (than which nothing better can be) a noble, good woman, comforting all by her sweet, loving, womanly qualities. May thee very lovingly and tenderly guide her innocent footsteps up the path of life down which my own are surely tending.—And, Oh! may she be spared to comfort with her sweet presence my declining years. So fervently do I desire this that my very soul cries out:

Oh! spare her, ye Immortals, spare,
Till all my days are done;
Thy Heaven is filled with angel forms,
While mine but holds this one.

G. M. A.

WILL IT PAY?—Young man, as you lift the gleaming wine glass to your lips in the jollity of the night's spree, will it pay? It is a gross insult to call a man a fool. Every man would resent it; but in the suffering of the next morning, with disturbed conscience, aching head, throbbing temples, racking brain, hot, fevered tongue, and all the horrible reaction that might come, does not the victim of aches clasp his burning hands and bitterly call himself "Fool! fool!" It does not pay to begin. First you tolerate it, then you touch and taste it, then you jest and laugh at it, and then revel in it. When it becomes your master, then what? What numbers have been swept down by the hurricane of temptation! In the mad power of this passion they have burst the bonds of a mother's love, trampled a father's counsels in the dust, mocked at reproofs and tears and prayers; and now with tattered sails, leaking hull, and splintered masts, are drifting on amid howling winds and wintry skies to utter ruin, when they might have reached the haven of peace and security, laden with honor and happiness. Truly it does not pay.—John B. Gough.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY,
JOHN D. LONG,
GOVERNOR:
A PROCLAMATION FOR A DAY OF FASTING, HUMILIATION AND PRAYER.

Whereas, it is a good and ancient custom to set apart a day, to be kept throughout the Commonwealth, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer to Almighty God:

Now, therefore, I, John D. Long, Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, appoint therefor Thursday, the seventh day of April next.

Describing the departure of the Pilgrims from Leyden, and John Robinson's farewell discourse to them, Governor Bradford said: So being ready to departe, they had a day of solleme humiliation, their pastor taking his texte from Ezra viii. 21: And there at ye river, by Ahava, I proclaimed a fast, that we might humble ourselves before our God, and seeke of him a right way for us, and for our children, and for all our substance. Upon which he spente a good parte of ye day very profitably and suitable to their presente occasion.

Profitably and suitable to our present occasion let us also keep our fast day—a day sacred to the memory of our ancestors, to the sanctities of religion, to the ministrations of charity, to the love and tenderness of home. Like the Pilgrims, let us lift up our eyes to the heavens, our dearest country, and quiet our spirits.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Boston, this twenty-third day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and fifth.

JOHN D. LONG.

By His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Council.

HENRY B. PEIRCE, Secretary.

God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Two Singers.

BY DEXTER SMITH.

He sang, in grand, heroic strain,
Of brave deeds on the battle plain.

She sang of brooks—of meadows green—
Of homes where Love is gentle queen.

He woke to wrath, ambition, greed,
And in men's minds sowed discord's seed.

She touched the chords of faith and hope,
And gave to charity full scope.

His song is o'er. The singer dead.
For empty fame his legions bled.

Her song's sweet cadence ne'er departs,
But lives to cheer a world of hearts!
